Urge Electrical Wiring More Adequate

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Home builders were urged today to make sure that they install electrical wiring which will meet their needs.

The urging came from speakers at the annual convention at Banff, Alta., of the Canadian Adequate Wiring Bureau. They said it is not enough to meet "safety" requirements only.

David S. Catton, manager of the bureau, commented:

"As a standard of safety, the Canadian Electrical Code is still satisfactory, but it is definitely not a standard of adequacy."

Speakers said there has been no established authority to which builders can go for advice. The Wiring Bureau, formed a year ago and supported by electrical manufacturers, is endeavoring to fill this place, especially through the formation of regional Electric Service Leagues, supported by all electrical industry groups.

INSUFFICIENT WIRING

Mr. Catton said further:

"Every day new evidence comes to light showing that insufficient wiring is going into homes that are bring built today, and if it is insufficient for comfortable electrical living today, it will certainly be insufficient for tomorrow's requirements."

He suggested that Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation "insist on adequate wiring in each of its homes at the outset rather than minimum specifications required by the Canadian Electrical Code."

Howard N. Walters, president, Electrical Service League of British Columbia, illustrating growth in electrical requirements, said:

BIG JUMP

"In 1930 there were 19 standard appliances on the market, mainly irons, toasters, grills, ranges, washers, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and clocks. In 1940 there were 36, the additions being principally shavers, mixers, air conditioning, electric radios and some automatic devices.

"In 1950 there were 43, including garbage disposers, dishwashers, clothes dryers, freezers, electric bed covers and television. In 1951 there were 53, including deep-fat fryers, coffee grinders, clock radios, etc. In 1960—who knows—perhaps 75?"

FRANK GILL, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gill, Norwood, graduated from the University of Toronto with the Degree of B.A. Sc. in civil engineering. A graduate of Norwood High School, Mr. Gill served with the Canadian forces for five and a half years in England, Mediterranean and Northern Europe. He is now employed with the Materials Lab. (soils branch) Dept. of Highways. He was married last year to the former Bernice Doughtry, and they are now living in Toronto.

Car Telephones Ready For Peterborough In Fall

Mobile telephones service is being expanded and will be available this fall in a number of centres in southern and eastern Ontario, including Peterborough, The Bell Telephone Company of Canada announced today.

The service permits exchange of conversation between vehicles on the road and any telephone, whether mobile or fixed, which can be reached in the usual way through local or long distance channels.

The subscriber's vehicle is equipped with a radio transmitter, a receiver, control unit, antenna, and a telephone handset which is mounted under the dashboard. His calls are carried by radio to a fixed transmitter-receiver and from there by telephone wire to the mobile service operator — located at a long distance switchboard— who dials or rings the required number.

USE DIAL SYSTEM.

To reach a mobile-equipped vehicle, a caller using an ordinary fixed telephone dials or asks for long distance, then asks for the mobile operator, who uses a special dialing apparatus to reach the disired mobile number. He can contact the mobile operator up to about 30 miles away. .

Mobile service is available at present only in the urban areas of Toronto and Montreal and along highways between Toronto and Barrie. Service will be installed late this fall at Peterborough, London, Kitchener, Belleville, Kingston, Smiths Falls, Hawkesbury, Brockville, Cornwall and Ottawa. It is not yet known where the transmitter aerial will be erected near Peterborough.

This is part of an over-all expansion program scheduled for completion late in 1953. In all, it involves the erection of 24 additional transmitter-receivers, to link vehicles by radio with the main telephone system.

This will enable mobile-equipped vehicles to be in continuous touch by telephone while travelling in urban centre or over any main road in the large area where the service will be provided

Types of vehicles in which mobile telephones have been installed include both private and commercial passenger cars, ambulances, police cars, tow trucks, cranes, snowplows, transport trucks, bank and express money cars, department store delivery vehicles, and fire fighting trucks.

GETS NEW KIDNEY — A healthy kidney has been grafted from a dead woman into Mrs. Dorothy Pezze, 26, of Toronto. The operation was performed by Dr. Gordon Murray of Toronto, who has been experimenting for years with transplanting kidneys in animals and who was the first to make a successful mechanical kidney. Mrs. Pezze's own kidneys were not removed. The third one was added.

Leave Money With Wife Nomads Rule

WASHINGTON — "Keep your gun by your side and leave your money with your wife."

Kashgai tribesmen of Southern Iran still live by this fierce old adage for keeping out of trouble. Women are the family bankers. The husbands, bred to the saddle as herdsmen and hunters, hold horse and gun above all other possessions.

Ammunition is expensive, so the long-winded Kashgais sometimes run down exhausted desert partridge on foot. Again, a chief will stand in his stirrups at full gallop and kill five fleeing antelopes with five shots. It saves bullets, but more important, it would be a disgrace to miss.

How these proud and independent people, descendants of the legions of Genghis Khan, came to medieval Persia and retained their tent-dwelling way of life down to modern times is told by an adventurous American couple in the current National Geographic Magazine.

Jean and Franc Shor travelled to the Kashgai's high summer pastures in the Gagros Mountains of Iran as guests of a hard-riding chieftain with a law degree from Oxford. They witnessed the annual fall migration of 100,000 Kashgai wanderers, back toward winter grazing grounds by the Persian Gulf.

Seated on rich carpets in black goat-hair tents, they heard the story of the Kashgai tribe as handed down from father to son for centuries.

According to their own legends, the Kashgais came originally from Chinese Turkistan, sweeping across Afghanistan and Northern Persia (modern-day Iran) in the vanguard of the yellow horde. They still speak a Turkic tongue strikingly similar to that of the City of Kashgar in far-off Sinkiang (Chinese Turkistan).

"In the time of Genghis Khan," a chief told the Shors, "we were not yet a separate tribe. After our ancestors settled in Azerbaijan, on Persia's northwest border, we came together as a unit. Then, around 1600, we made our way south, settling where we are now."

Today the domain of the Kashgai comprises nearly half of the Province of Fars, or Parsa, which gave old Persia its name. Although legally subject to the Iranian Government, the tribe is actually governed by its own khans, kalantars or subkhans, and other "greybeard" patriarchs.

The present khans are direct descendants of the family which founded the tribe, and which has ruled it for more than 400 years. Each leader rules as "the wisest of his people, the finest horseman, and the best shot."

Because their land is too poor to support life on a year-round basis, the Kashgais move frequently to find better hunting or grazing land. Entire tent cities go with them.

"The best thing about being a nomad," one leader told the Shors, "is that you're always at home."

HONOR OLD BOY— Francois Xavier Thomas Berlinguet, 97, of Three Rivers, Que., is dean of active Canadian land surveyors and oldest living graduate of Laval University which recently awarded him an honorary degree in land surveying. Laval now is celebrating its centenary. The western surveyor is fond of casino, a card game in which he excels.

High Lake Level Cuts Passengers

TORONTO (CP)—Flooding on the Toronto Islands, caused by high water in Lake Ontario, is cutting down the number of passengers carried by the five ferry boats which ply between the mainland and the islands across the mouth of Toronto harbor.

The ferries are operated by the Toronto Transportation Commission, publicly-owned transit service which runs street-cars and buses in the city and suburbs.

D. A. Peters, T.T.C. marine superintendent, says the number of passengers carried this year is down 30 per cent from last year. He blames the flood situation in parts of the island for discouraging would-be picnickers.

Last year 1,720,482 passengers were transported to the islands. Heaviest year on record was 1944 when 2,537,489 tickets were sold.

Since April of this year, 271,384 passengers have used the service—149,516 less than that recorded for the same period last year.

NEW MEDIUM TANK DEVELOPED — A tank crew member peers out of the "Patton 48," bristling with armor, as the Army's newest medium tank rolls along at Newark, Del. The 45-50 ton vehicle carries a high-velocity 90-mm. gun and the latest in aiming and fire-control equipment. Improved resistance to anti-tank fire is afforded by sloping contours of hull and turret. Contracts of more than a billion dollars have been placed for the tank, believed to be the most advanced of its type.

Atomic Islands Fisherman's Paradise

By W. L. FORD

PERTH, Australia (Reuters)—The barren, inhospitable Monte Bello islands where Britain plans to hold her first atomic weapons test this year are a fisherman's paradise, but periodical cyclones could upset the best-laid plans.

The clear waters surrounding the Monte Bellos' three islands—Hermite, Trimouille and North West—swarm with whales, and are a happy hunting ground for huge sharks, devilfish, stingrays, and leathery turtles which are six feet long, weigh half a ton and are capable of breaking a man's leg with the sideswipe of a flipper.

Smaller greenback and hawksbill turtles also slide through the shallows surrounding the islands, 85 miles northwest of Australia.

OYSTERS, CRABS PLENTIFUL

Disturbed flying fish swim the surface round fishing boats. Oysters and mud crabs with claws as big as a man's fist and with flesh enough to feed three at a sitting, thrive along the tepid tidal reaches of the lagoons.

The land of the Monte Bellos, never more than a mile from seaboard to seaboard, sprawls untidily at the tip of an intermittent rocky ridge running from Barrow Island, Australia.

Sheltered bottle-neck lagoons at Hermite Island, where the British atom ships Narvik and Zeebrugge were last reported, offer safe anchorage to those who can navigate the tide-swirling entrances. Smaller lagoons, entered through passages less than 20 feet wide, are natural fish traps where, at low tide, acres of fish are left high and dry.

Royal Australian Air Force personnel are building an airstrip on Hermite, biggest of the group.

At Onslow, Australia, the little town which now serves as a port for supplies which during the last 18 months have been shipped to Monte Bellos, the main concern of the 200 inhabitants seems to be in adjusting their outlook to cope with the steady stream of military personnel arriving by train and plane.

Little railroad cars loaded with equipment and tarpaulined mysteries for the Monte Bellos trundle regularly down the narrow-gauge railway through the main street of the town.

WINDS WRECK TOWN

Always in the background in Onslow and the Monte Bellos, is the threat of cyclones which pluck houses from their anchorages and hurl them with shattering force at the remaining buildings.

Most of Onslow's buildings have been damaged at one time or other by savage winds. One storm left the small hotel's then conrete upper storey an unroofed shambles. Residents, huddled in the Onslow post office and other strong buildings, saw furniture sucked from houses and dumped into the streets. A 5,000-gallon water tank was flipped against a house and both whirled away.

To the scientists' temporary installations on the Monte Bellos, a cyclone could be disastrous. In a few hours, it could wipe out the installations and supply facilities from Onslow and set plans back for months.

Old Etonians' Tie Described As 'Gilt-Edged Security'

LONDON (CP) — James Callaghan, 39, one of the "bright boys" of the Labor Opposition's front bench in the House of Commons, thinks school ties may be of some help to a graduate's career but nothing, he says, compares with the power and influence of the light blue and black neckwear sported by old Etonians.

A product of a secondary school and former Parliamentary secretary for the Ministry of Transport, Callaghan unburdened himself on his views right in the inner sanctum of Eton College, seat of learning for the sons of Britain's aristocracy.

"If you can sport the old Etonian tie you will never starve, someone will always make sure you have a roof over your head and you need never go without a job," he told amused members of the college's political society.

He reminded the students that the only way to be assured of an Eton education was for parents to nominate their son for registration at the time of his birth. It had proved a gilt-edged investment for the future.

"Entry at birth or not at all," he observed. "Now that is the way to run a closed shop. Compared with this typical ruthless approach of the upper classes the trade unions are mere amateurs in the game."

Laughter greeted Callaghan's suggestion that if old Etonians really got into desperate difficulties in finding a job, the Tory party as a last resort could usually find a place for them on the government's front bench.

In the present House of Commons, he said, no fewer than 28 former Etonians were members of the government.

JUST SLIPED IN

"Now when you look at the government's record, doesn't that make you wonder whether Eton has any future?" he asked. "Or perhaps it is that bounder from Harrow (Prime Minister Churchill) who slipped in by mistake, that is causing all the trouble."

On reflection, Callaghan said the old Etonian system of looking after its own was only the primitive forerunner of the Welfare State. All the Labor party sought to do was to extend to the ordinary workers the privileges that had been reserved in the past for old Etonians—freedom from want and work or full maintenance for all.

Asked what he thought of the Labor member's broadside, Robert Birley, Eton's headmaster, said: "I don't know what Mr. Callaghan said and I don't want to know. It was a private meeting for the boys."

Train Parachute Doctors To Aid Airborne Actions

CALGARY (CP)—Medical skill is not the only requirement of some doctors in the Canadian army. They must be able to fight, shoot and make parachute jumps with the best of them.

A small group of doctors was included in the force taking part in exercise "Bull-Pup," a two-week joint army-air force training exercise in the Calgary-Wainwright area this month.

Known as No. 1 airborne section, Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, and permanently based at Camp Borden, the unit's purpose is to bring medical aid to paratroopers injured in an airborne army action.

The group was formed at the beginning of this year with the hope that an airborne medical section can eventually be dropped with each company of paratroopers sent into action.

A medical officer and four medical technicians would be dropped with each company of front-line troops. On the ground, they would throw off their packs and set up a regimental aid post to administer first aid to the injured.

OTHERS ON CALL

On call at all times to the medical team on ground is a sugical team composed of a surgeon and four additional specialists. If needed, these men are parachuted to assist with the wounded.

Each section is self-contained. Equipment, medicine and supplies are parachuted in with them along with plasma and even a mobile operating table.

"We think we have the best unit in the whole brigade," said Major J. E. Gilbert, doctor commanding the section and veteran of 19 parachute jumps.

Besides being trained medical specialists, they must be trained soldiers and qualified parachutists. Each has taken the regular jump-training course at the joint services school in Rivers, Man.

Each man carries weapons and must be prepared to down his instrument at any time, pick up a rifle and fight.

Swinging Towards The Century Mark

Harry Goltzman, 85, can't understand why anyone should think it unusual for him to enjoy an old-fashioned swinging session. "You're only as old as you feel," says the retiring president of the Minneapolis, Minn., Golden Age Club.

Largest Locomotives Used In South Alberta

CALGARY (CP) — The largest railroad locomotives in the British Commonwealth, giant Selkirk steam engines, now are being used in southern Alberta.

The engines haul freight between Calgary and Medicine Hat, and between Medicine Hat and Swift Current, Sask.

They were displaced on the Calgary-Revelstoke, B.C., mountain run by diesel engines. Before the Canadian Pacific Railways could put them on southern Alberta freight runs it had to spend thousands of dollars on lengthening siding tracks for train passings.

Special fuel points also are being built for the locomotives, which burn bunker fuel instead of coal.

MARITIME COMPARISON

Nova Scotia has an area of 21,068 square miles, almost equal to that of Holland and Belgium combined.

Young Gives Good Report About Possibilities Of NWT

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The rulers of the vast Northwest Territories were told yesterday the north may soon bolster Canada's oil boom and that its mining prospects could easily double the population there in 10 years.

The predictions came from Maj.-Gen. H. A. Young, Commissioner of the Territories, as the Territories Council came together in Ottawa, a Little Parliament made up of five senior civil servants and three men elected by the northerners themselves under a revised set-up adopted in 1951.

MANY PROBLEMS

They met in a Senate committee room with a red-jacketed Mountie on duty in the background, appropriate murals of Canada's early days on the walls and ceiling and with an agenda that smacked of the problems of an isolated, early society—should the Indians be allowed to go into the two taverns in the Territories? Who should be charged for showing moving pictures? And so on.

This is the second meeting for the three elected northerners, Frank Carmichael, a retired trapper and trader from Aklavik, James Brody, a Fort Smith trader, and Mervin Hardy who works for one of the mining firms in Yellowknife. They attended their first council meeting in Yellowknife some months ago.

Gen. Young's opening address—a sort of Speech From the Throne reporting on the situation in the north and the issues before the Council—was buoyant and full of hope.

Economic growth has been tremendous in the last 20 years, he said. The north's economy was "dynamic and surprisingly versatile" with mining, fur trapping and fishing all exporting their goods out of the territories.

OIL EXPORTS SOON

Before too long it was hoped that the petroleum industry would be exporting oil. Uranium, radium and gold were the only minerals now in production but "it is no exaggeration to say that important mining prospects may develop at any time almost anywhere between Hudson Bay on the east, Great Slave and Great Bear Lakes on the west and from the 60th parallel to the Arctic Ocean."

Internal economic activities included agriculture, horticulture, lumbering and the breeding of reindeer.

In the last 20 years, the population grew by 72 per cent to 160,000 from 2,300, mainly through influx of white persons. Assuming that mining prospects realized their best hopes, the population might well be doubled by 1961.

Noisier Bells For US

LONDON (AP)—R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, gave British bicycle bell makers a tip yesterday on how to sell in the United States market: "Make the bells a little bigger and a little noisier than the ones for the home market." Butler told the National Union of Manufacturers one small bicycle bell maker adopted that as his motto and is doing well.

Finnish Girl Hopes To Race In Indianapolis

VANCOUVER (CP)—Kalja Kalevala hopes to become the first woman to race a car in the Indianapolis speedway classic.

The 28-year-old platinum blonde Finnish dirt track champion is trying to find a car and a sponsor. Reputed to be the only woman race car driver in Finland, she came to Canada last December and entered an amateur race at the Burnaby speedway here.

A. G. Digney, Burnaby track manager, was reluctant to enter her, fearing other drivers would object, but she persisted. With a car she had never driven before she finished the quarter-mile stretch in 18.95 seconds, second best of 60 drivers.

"I was very happy when men said I am O.K. driver," she said.

Miss Kalevala holds 21 trophies, including 12 first prizes for races throughout Finland. She is also Finnish champion in ice racing over a frozen lake. As chains are not allowed this requires the utmost driving skill.

"I now practice and learn and hope I will be allowed to race at Indianapolis. Then I show men that women can also be good racers," she said.

The muscular beauty drove a heavy ammunition truck during the Finnish-Russian War and was wounded when a Soviet dive bomber attacked.

Later she drove a taxi at Helsinki and then became a movie stunt driver.

"For the movies I drove cars down steep cliffs, rolled them over until they caught fire and drove them into rivers. That I like."

She holds a master mechanic's certificate and says she can repair anything on a car.

"I have no time for romance. I love cars more than men. They at least don't tell me what I can and can't do."

Loyalists' Descendants Hold Oshawa Reunion

HASTINGS— (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Orr and family attended a reunion in Oshawa Saturday which commemorated the landing on this continent of Captain Michael Grass.

Coming to Canada as a United Empire Loyalist after the American revolution, Capt. Grass is credited with surveying the present site of Kingston.

Besides the Orr family there were representatives of relatives from England, Australia and the United States attending the reunion. It was the first reunion, the organizing undertaken by Mrs. Marion Grass of Whitby, N. S. B. Grass of Cambridge University, Mass., spoke on "Forgotten Loyalists of Captain Michael Grass."

A reunion highlight was when a horse-drawn carriage brought members of the Grass family to the party, held on the land owned by A. E. Grass and granted to his forefathers in 1799.

Plans are being made to erect a monument over Capt. Grass' grave in old Cataraqui cemetery.

Spray Attack On Budworm Finished In N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP)—Successful completion of a 300-square-mile aerial spray attack on the spruce budworm, ravager of foliage of softwood trees, was announced last night.

The announcement was made jointly by Hon. R. J. Gill, New Brunswick Minister of Lands and Mines, and Vernon E. Johnson, President and General Manager of New Brunswick International Paper Company.

The announcement said field studies indicate high mortality of the insects. Actual effect upon the forest will not be known for some time.

Cost of the $500,000 project, largest single operation of its kind ever attempted from one airfield in one season, is shared by the New Brunswick government and the company.

Twenty spray-rigged planes and two observation planes carried out the work. They went into the New Brunswick forests, to a specially-prepared airfield, at the end of May.

The area chosen covers about 192,000 acres in New Brunswick's Restigouche county. It was considered the front of the budworm epidemic—an epidemic in which billions of budworms have slowly been travelling eastward, and multiplying, following an outbreak 13 years ago in Ontario.

Primary objective of the operation, viewed as a major step in Canadian forest conservation, was to check the budworm in an area of peak infestation for sufficient time to allow trees to outlive the insect's progress.

MP's Disagree On Interest Public Shows Over Seats

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott and Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) yesterday disagreed on the amount of interest the public shows in the current redistribution of seats in the Commons.

Mr. Fleming suggested the Redistribution Bill should be left until the next session to give the public a chance to study proposed changes in the boundaries of some constituencies.

Mr. Abbott: "The public do not care; it is only the members who care."

Mr. Fleming: "The Minister of Finance said that the public does not care and members on this side of the House besides myself heard him say it right now."

Mr. Abbott: "The public does not care about this discussion, it is only interested in the result."

Mr. Fleming: "The fact remains the Minister of Finance said that the public does not care. . . Those of us who sit in the Opposition have a very different conception of the responsibility this House owes to the people."

3,000 Set House Afire In Chicago Disturbance

Police said the crowd broke all the windows in a two-storey frame building. The front porch and two front doors of the building were destroyed and two fires were set. About 200 policemen were sent to the scene.

Plan Your Summer Meals With An Eye To Weather

When hot summer days come along, plan meals with an eye on the weather. If the family is listless and appetites wane in the heat, why not move them outdoors at meal time? It is surprising how fresh air and the novelty of new surroundings will perk up faded appetites. The home economists of the Department of Agriculture send a reminder to have plenty of filling and substantial food. If there is a fire the food will be no problem. Many mouth-watering dishes can be made on a wire grill or plain wire rack on two stones. Young broilers, about two pounds dressed weight, are delicious split in half or quartered and grilled directly over the coals or separate pieces like breasts or legs may be used. The pieces may be brushed with fat or sauce and grilled slowly, turning frequently, until tender—about 35 to 45 minutes. Spareribs, chops, luncheon meats and sausages may also be grilled successfully.

It is not necessary to have a fire, however, to enjoy delicious chicken. Chicken-in-a-basket is a wonderful way to serve chicken. This intriguing-sounding dish is really pieces of crisp, tender, golden brown fried chicken and may be served either hot or cold. The name started when a restaurant specializing in chicken dishes observed that many of its patrons preferred to pick up the pieces with their fingers. They decided to make this a regular practice and served the chicken attractively piled in baskets, without forks. It was so popular that this method of serving became generally accepted. To prepare the chicken ready-to-cook cut ups may be purchased. Wipe and coat with seasoned flour or egg and crumbs, then fry in one-half inch of hot fat allowing about five minutes for each side. Cover and allow to cook about 25-30 minutes until tender.

A TASTY PICNIC SALAD

A chicken salad is always good picnic fare—it is filling and pleases most palates; it can be made ahead of time so that there is no need for that last minute rush, and it is easy to handle. Another point is, it can be made from fowl which is in good supply right now and is less expensive than many other meats. A six-pound fowl will give about four cups of cooked diced meat. To prepare the salad, stew or steam the fowl, then remove the meat and dice enough to make two cups. This will give six average servings—although you may want to increase the size of servings to allow for those special giant-size picnic appetites. Combine the two cups of diced chicken with two cups of diced celery and enough mayonnaise to blend well. For extra flavour, add one-quarter cup of diced green pepper or almonds, blanched, then shredded and browned.

Some prefer to marinate the ingredients for a couple of hours before serving the salad. Marinate comes from an old Spanish word meaning "to pickle" and to do it, an acid dressing is added to the ingredients to give them new flavour and to soften tough fibres. French dressing is usually used as the marinade. For a specially brisk flavour, add parsley, pickles, olives, catsup, chili sauce or Roquefort-type blue cheese to the dressing. After the ingredients have stood in the marinade for an hour or so, the salad is mixed with a regular mayonnaise or salad dressing.

EGGS—THE PERENNIAL FAVOURITE

One favourite perennial in the picnic line is eggs—other foods come and go in picnic popularity, but eggs are standard fare at every outing. They can be used as a delicious filling for sandwiches, to add extra food value to light salads or they may be served plain or devilled with the main dish. In any case, they are always hard-cooked for picnics and it is important that they be cooked correctly. All too often the term "hard-cooked" is replaced by "hard-boiled" and as a result the eggs are tough and rubbery. The home economists tell us eggs should never be boiled. They should be cooked slowly in water just below the boiling point, allowing at least 30 minutes to cook. Of course, no one wants to have eggs with dark rings around them, so cool them immediately in cold water as soon as they are cooked. This will make peeling easier too.

The eggs may be sliced or quartered to serve with a salad or they may be devilled. To make devilled eggs, cut the eggs in half, lengthwise or crosswise, scoop out the yolks and mush them while hot and season with salt, pepper, mustard and a little vinegar or mix them with salad dressing and seasonings. Then place the mixture back into the whites, heaping it attractively. Delicious devilled eggs are made too, by combining finely minced ham or bits of crisp bacon with the mashed yolks and dressing. A little chili sauce, catsup or relish may also be added.

Lady Drivers Outsmart Men With Aid Of Feminine Wiles

Women are taking to the open roads this summer, and men, as usual, are holding their heads and predicting the outcome will be nothing short of "grim."

If you belong in the category of "female traveler," there's only one way to uphold your dignity and reputation as a woman who knows where she is going and in what.

As soon as you have decided on a destination, have a chat with your garageman. Make it casual. Don't let him know you are really depending upon his advice. Let him think you are holding a friendly discussion.

Ask him in the course of pleasantries to check the wheels for balance. If he has nothing else to do, he might even take a minute to rotate the tires and examine them for cuts, blisters and dangerous tread and sidewall wear. Don't make your request obvious, however, a hint or two should do it.

Next, lean against the radiator with some off-hand comment about leaks and possible stoppages in engine water jackets. After that's taken care of, suavely slip behind the wheel and start pumping at the brakes.

Smile sweetly, and remark about adequate fluid and brake lining. After all, there will be times on the road, won't there, when you might want to stop? Throwing out a plank could serve the same purpose as brakes, but it would be so inconvenient to carry.

IF YOU ARE PLANNING to do any travelling in your automobile this summer, you should be fully prepared to meet any emergencies and repairs on the road. Insure safe and happy driving with careful pre-vacation planning. Your life may depend upon it.

If you are lucky, it will be raining the day you visit the garage. Then it won't seem odd that your windshield wipers are madly beating back and forth. After suggesting that he look to see if the wipers are sweeping clean, you might flash your headlights on nine or 10 times with the implication that you suspect potential short-circuits.

As you are pulling away from the station, call back a word or two about checking adjustments on the carburetor and choke, as well as mentioning that he examine the fuel pump for wear.

Your final words might be about checking the timing of the ignition, distributor points, coil, condenser and ignition cables. The spark plugs might be adjusted or replaced, too. Whatever you do, though, remember to be offhand.

Once you and the garageman have "talked" your car into perfect condition, drop the guise and get on with your travels.

If you are an explorer by nature—resist temptation. You'll be much safer sticking with known roads. If somehow you find yourself bogged down in a mud puddle in the middle of a deserted country lane, don't tramp on the gas pedal and expect to sail blithely through.

More likely, you'll go into a side spin and realy bog down. Shift into first or second gear instead, and move slowly but steadily. To stop is to sink.

When irrevocably stuck, cogitate, don't accelerate. Get out of your car and reconnoiter. There may be firm ground a short distance ahead. Put brush, dry grass, sticks or stones under those rear wheels. Gearshift-rock the car gently until the wheels grab. Scatter the track ahead with more dry stuff and proceed slowly in low gear.

Unpleasant as the thought may be, better learn to change a tire. It may not be the most glamorous job in the world, but with a little perseverance you can do it. Take the bumper jack out of the trunk and practice.

Better play safe and assemble a "trouble kit" for that long trip. You may not know how to use all the gadgets, but someone will.

In addition to your car's regular complement of tools — pliers, screwdrivers, special wrenches and jack—add: socket wrench set, penknife tire irons, tube patches, pump, flashlight, fuses, two spark plugs (correct size), emergency gasoline can, tow rope, squirt oil can, coveralls and canvas gloves.

And if perchance, as you happily and safetly travel over hill and dale, you should happen upon a disgruntled male mortorist who forgot his squirt oil can—be tolerant. Toss him yours, and be merrily on your way.

Home Freezing Guidance For Vegetables

CORN ON COB: Same as whole grain corn. Alternate each cellophane wrapped cob, with a base end beside a tip end. Wrap several cellophane-wrapped cobs together in locker paper. Be sure cobs are thoroughly cool before wrapping and freezing.

GREEN PEAS: Peas must always be immature and gathered early in morning. Wash and shell at once. Scald shelled peas in blanching bag or basket in boiling water 1 minute. Chill 1 minute. Drain, Package. Do not do more peas than will take one hour between packaging time and freezing.

PUMPKIN: Well-ripened winter pumpkins only. Peel, cut in 1-inch cubes, cook till tender. Cool. Force through sieve. Add spices and salt as required for pie. Package. Freeze.

SQUASH: Select immature squash. Test this by piercing with finger nail. It should pucture easily. Wash with brush. Same as pumpkin from here on but do not add spices and salt.

SWEET POTATOES: Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hour. Cool. Remove skin. Cut in ½-inch slices lengthwise or quarters. Roll each piece in granulated suger. Package. Freeze.

Mrs. Irving L. asked for freezing instructions for pastry, sandwiches, fillings, etc.

WRAPPING of cooked foods is of utmost importance: Moisture will exaporate from cooked foods causing them to dry out and lose flavor and texture unless perfectly air-tight so use moisture-vapor-proof locker papers.

FREEZE pies after baking. Double-crust pies are best for freezing. Fruit or berry or mince pies are best. Optimum freezer life of a fruit or berry pie is 2½ months. Mince pies keep well for 4 months. The only precaution you should observe in making berry pies is to add extra thickener—instead of 2 tablespoons flour or cornstarch or minute tapioca add 4 tablespoons. Use same shortening as you do for fresh pies—preferably dehydrated.

SANDWICH fillings for frozen sandwiches: Cream cheese, tuna fish, crabmeat, lobster, devilled ham, peanut butter and chopped egg are good. Toasted sandwiches are highly recommended. Wrap and seal and pack in large freezer box that will hold about 6 2-slice sandwiches. Be sure package is completely moisture-proof.

Fashion Flashes

Adaptations of Dior fashions are favorite sellers. One store has imported and copied a wearable beauty, a cardigan jacket and dress ensemble of frosty pink rayon crepe. The skirt is pleated all around to match the jacket, while the dress bodice—round of neck, and short of sleeve — is plain.

New Hairdo For Princess

LONDON (AP) — Prince Margaret has a "new look"—short haircut, darker red lipstick and a hint of mascara.

Margaret's new hairdo—short and dressed in soft chunky curls high up at the back—fills in "the rather bleak gap which some girls show betwen the back of the hat and the end curls," one woman correspondent said.

The 21-year-old princess, always stylish, has worn her soft dark-brown hair medium long in the past.

Judge And Family Welcomed At Civic Reception

The wives and members of the Peterborough Law Association together with the Mayor and the County Warden and their wives and the staff of the County Court welcomed His Honour Judge John de Navarre Kennedy and his family at an informal civic reception Wednesday afternoon.

Judge Kennedy took the oath of office as Judge of Peterborough County just prior to the social function which was held at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Kennedy and their daughter Miss Anne Kennedy, second year student at the Ontario College of Art, Toronto, graciously accepted floral gifts presented by young Peter Philip, son of Magistrate and Mrs. W. R. Philp.

Also attending were some close friends and associates of the Kennedy family from Toronto, and some members of the Victoria County Bar, Representatives of the Peterborough City Council, the Ministerial Association, and the Jewish community were also present.

MRS. JOHN de NAVARRE KENNEDY, wife of the new Judge of Peterborough County, is seen thanking Peter Philp for the bouquet of flowers which he presented to her at a reception in honor of the Kennedy family Wednesday afternoon. Her daughter, Miss Anne Kennedy, is seen at right and Peter later presented her with a corsage of roses. He is the son of Magistrate and Mrs. W. R. Philp.—Examiner Staff Photo.

Scotch Relatives Attend Wedding Miss Elsie Hill

St. Paul's Church was the scene Saturday at one o'clock of a pretty wedding between Elsie Hardie Hill, youngest daughter of Mrs. J. Hill and the late Mr. Thomas Hill of Falkirk, Scotland, and Elwood John Gillespie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gillespie of Youngs Point. The Rev. C. G. Boyd officiated.

The church was tastefully decorated with baskets of frosty pink peonies and canterbury bells.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law Mr. Edgar Stevenson, the bride was gowned in ivory slipper satin with nylon lace. The bodice was fashioned with a yoke of nylon net, long sleeves coming to a point over the wrists and buttoning to below the waist on a full skirt which fell into a full train at the back. She wore a full length veil of French illusion, sent from Scotland, which was caught to a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a cascade of deep red roses.

Mrs. Mary Cockburn of Peterborough, formerly of Scotland, and Miss Elva Gillespie, were bridal attendants in frocks of yellow brocade under net and nile green organdy over satin. She was also attended by two small flower girls, Heather Stevenson and Marilyn Wilson, nieces of the bride and groom, in frilled Victorial dresses of orchid nail head taffeta. All wore headdresses of flowers and tulle. The bridesmaids carried cascades of white and blue carnations and the flower girls posies of blush pink carnations and roses.

Mr. Robert Gillespie attended the groom and the ushers were Grant and Howard Gillespie.

Mr. Christopher Gledhill played the wedding music and Mrs. Joan Godfrey from Scotland, was soloist. During the signing of the register Mrs. Godfrey sang "O Perfect Love."

The reception was held at the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. Hill, the bride's mother, was wearing for the occasion, a two piece dress of navy and white silk and navy accessories and her corsage was of ping carnations. Receiving with her was the groom's mother who had chosen powder blue silk and navy accessories. She also wore a corsage of pink carnations. Guests were present from Scotland, Pittsburgh, Niagara Falls, Windsor, Toronto and Peterborough. Greetings cables were received from the bride's absent relatives in Scotland and Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie left for a honeymoon trip, the bride travelling in navy and white organza dress with matching accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

They will live at 308 Boswell Ave. on return.

Libby, Lang Nuptials

Of interest is the wedding of Marie Belford Lang, second oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Lang of Oshawa, formerly of Peterborough, to Walter Henry Libby, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Libby, also of Oshawa and also formerly of Peterborough, which took place in the Christ Memorial Anglican Church, Oshawa, Saturday. The Rev. H. V. Cleverdon officiated.

The bride's gown of white nylon net over satin was accented with a lace bertha forming epaulets over the shoulders and coming to a point at the waistline. A braided headdress with pearls held her fingertip veil and she carried a white prayer book crested with gardenias and stephanotis.

She was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister Mrs. Gordon Bannon and Miss Ruth Libby and Mrs. Robert Skitch, sisters of the groom, with Miss Irene Lang, the bride's younger sister as junior bridesmaid. The attendants wore identical gowns of flower blue marquisette over taffeta complemented with motifs of frills and frilled cuffs on their mittens. They also had matching caps and they carried bouquets of carnations and roses.

Groomsman was Robert Skitch and the ushers were Orland Brooks of London, Thomas Cook and Eric Lang of Oshawa.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a floor length gown of aquamarine blue, the bodice fashioned of imported lace and the skirt of faille crepe. Her matching hat of milan straw was trimmed with tiny white flowers and her corsage was red roses. The groom's mother wore mist grey French lace over Windsor rose satin and small hat of the same material. Her corsage was pink roses.

After a reception in the church hall the couple left to honeymoon in the Muskoka district, the bride wearing a blue linen ensemble. They will go on to points in United States before returning to make their home on McGregor Street in Oshawa.

Food Prices Show Drop

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Are food prices in Canada dropping appreciably?

The decline in the Vancouver area at least is noticeable compared to a year ago. In the same period, general retail sales in British Columbia have increased about 25 per cent.

Don Carlson and R. J. Moore, business editors of the Vancouver Sun and the Vancouver Daily Province, respectively, recently took a look at food prices and produced such comparisons as these:

| | Year Ago | Today |
|---|---|---|
| Premium Side Bacon | .41 | .34 |
| Rump Roast | .92 | .69 |
| Shortening | .37 | .25 |
| Dozen Eggs, Large | .78 | .56 |
| Butter | .69 | .64 |
| Smoked Hams | .65 | .55 |
| Hamburger | .75 | .55 |
| Beef Dripping, No. 1 | .22 | .13 |
| Lard | .29 | .14 |
| Margarine | .43 | .36 |
| Pork Liver | .38 | .13 |
| Cottage Rolls | .77 | .55 |

The gain in sales is attributed by retailers to the downward trend in prices and a wider variety of goods to choose from.

One department store has cut its on-the-shelf inventories by one-third. One of the store's buyers said: "That is how sure we are that price withdrawal is continuing. If we thought the drops in price were temporary, we certainly wouldn't empty our cupboards."

This price retreat was not generally reflected in other living-cost items like furniture, clothing and transportation. And potatoes, other vegetables and fruits cost more than they did a year ago.

But one distributor estimated that in the last 12 months staples had dropped by this much:

Margarine, 25 per cent; butter 10; eggs 15; soaps 10; rolled oats 15; sugar 5; dates 35; coffee 3; tea 5; powdered milk 20 per cent.

'PEAK IS PAST'

This distributor added: "Food prices are definitely down across the board, and they will stay down. The peak is past."

There seemed to be three chief factors to the decline: A reduction in world commodity prices; overtaking military orders, allowing more supplies for civilians; and buyer resistance.

Helen Price Weds Donald Frise In Toronto Church

Helen Elaine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clare Price of Toronto, formerly of Havelock, became the bride of Donald Kenneth Frise, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kenneth Frise of Peterborough, in the Humbercrest United Church on Saturday afternoon. The Rev. T. W. Hazelwood officiated.

Tall standards of white gladioli, peonies and palms decorated the church. Mr. Edwin Flath was at the organ and the soloist was Miss Frances Alexander. She sang the Lord's Prayer before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride wore an original gown of frost white french lace and nylon tulle over satin. The bodice was fashioned of the lace and featured a rounded neckline with small rolled collar, princess lines which extended into a peplum and long snug fitting sleeves. The billowing skirt of layers of tulle flowed into a circular train. A brim of the lace held her fingertip veil of tulle illusion and she carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and ivy. She was given in marriage by her father.

Her attendants, Miss Lucille Nichols, maid of honor, and Miss Phyllis Shier and Miss Ruth Hudgins were frocked alike in ballerina gowns of ice blue nylon net over taffeta, designed with a strapless bodice covered with a rib-hugging short sleeved jacket. Matching mittens and slippers and bandeaux of pink Esther Reid daisies and cornflowers to match their crescent bouquets completed the pretty ensembles.

Mr. John Hodder of Hamilton was groomsman and the ushers were Leo Unhola, Toronto, and John Frise, Peterborough.

The reception was held in the garden at the Old Mill. The bride's mother received, wearing a gown of hyacinth blue lace and crepe with a hat of navy mohair and she had a corsage of American Beauty roses. The groom's mother wore dusky rose lace and crepe with a white milan straw hat and her corsage was cream roses.

The bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Temagami and Quebec City, following which they will live at 735 Water St. N., Peterborough.

For travelling the bride chose a lime linen suit and she wore white and tan accessories. Her going-away corsage was white carnations.

MR. AND MRS. ELWOOD J. GILLESPIE were married Saturday in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The bride is the former Miss Elsie Hill who came from Scotland and has on several occasions appeared with the C.G.E. Pipe Band to dance the Highland Fling.—Choate Studio Photo.

DOROTHY DIX

Girl Should Forget Man Who Put His Money First

DEAR MISS DIX: For quite some time I have been going steady with a man who has intentions of "someday" getting married. We are both 30. The reason for his delay is that he feels we should have a certain amount of money before marrying. He also feels that we should not have children, since they get on his nerves. I, on the other hand, am extremely fond of children and would like a large family. The third reason for the postponement of our marriage is that my friend, Mac, being a successful businessman, believes that a wife should be secondary to his career. He expects to put his business first, wife and home second. I feel that he is wrong but his ideas along these lines are definite, and he contends that a lack of understanding on my part is our real difficulty.

LAURA M.

ANSWER: Mae's emotional make-up leads me to believe that his mother was a deep-freeze and his father an adding machine. He simly isn't human, Laura, so what possible attraction could he have as a husband?

Any one of the drawbacks he presents would send any normal girl flying in the other direction, yet you don't mention one redeeming quality—probably because he doesn't have any.

HE'S AN EGOMANIAC

The real reason behind his excuses for avoiding matrimony is a colossal egoism that shuts out—and will always shut out—any form of affection or consideration for another person.

Business is, of course, an imporant aspect of any man's life, yet no one but a cold-blooded fish would aver during his courtship that his wife would naturally be given second place to a ledger.

Most serious is his stand on children. Since you like, and want, a family, there is absolutely no possibility of your being happy with a man who considers youngsters a nuisance. If you marry Mac and accede to his demand to eliminate children as a part of your home, you'll be beset by frustrations of such severity that they might even eventually endanger your sanity.

Think things out a little, Laura. Mac has absolutely nothing to offer in the way of home, family, affection, love, devotion or any other quality that makes a good husband. You'll be an attractive adjunct to his business life, and that's all. Scarcely anything alluring in that prospect, is there?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: If a lady is slightly friendly and I am eager to know her, shall I make conversation until I learn her name and address? If she happened to be interested in me, wouldn't she give me her name and address without my asking for it, and possibly invite me to her house?

B. C.

ANSWER: The lady certainly should not be so forward as to volunteer her name and address without being asked to give it We women are much more subtle than that. If you like the girl and wish to see her again, it's up to you to arouse her interest, and then ask to call on her, in which case, of course, the salient details of name and address are bound to be forthcoming.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: At 25, I have an offer of a job in a nursing home. I would love work like that but my parents are against me going out to work. I am the only child, and my parents have always kept me close to them. They don't want me to leave home, though the nursing home is only a short way off, and they have always objected t omy going out. Should I go against their wishes and take the job?

V.M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By all means take it. At 25 you should be independent and able to stand on your own feet. What would you do if anything happened to your parents? You undoubtedly will have to face the world sometime, and the best time to start is now. There should be no unpleasantness about your work; just tell the family that you have this opportunity and intend to take it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two lonely G.I.'s in Korea and would like you to put our names and addresses in your column. We are 18 and 19 respectively.

THOMAS and VINCENT

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If anyone would like to cheer these boys with pleasant letters, send me your name and address and I'll tell you how to reach them.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Home Freezing Guidance For Suitable Vegetables

The readers are getting ahead of the writer or the students are forging beyond the teacher or modern preserving methods are becoming so varied there isn't space in food columns to keep pace with the rapid progress—or maybe I'm sleeping at the switch.

Anyway—here's the second instalment of deep freeze instructions that were requested by Mrs. Irving L and others. I want to thank her again for jarring me into giving you these.

Last week I gave you detailed instructions for freezing blueberries, sour cherries, yellow peaches, raspberries, strawberries, asparagus, snap and lima beans. Then I ran out of space. Now I have some more.

VEGETABLES SUITABLE FOR FREEZING (Cont'd)

BROCCOLI: Select tight medium-sized heads, newly cut. Immerse broccoli heads in solution of ½ cup salt to 2 quarts water for ½ hour to remove insects. Wash under running water, trimming off any woody portions. Scald 5 minutes in boiling water, using cheesecloth bag or wire basket to hold vegetables. Chill in ice water at once for 2 minutes, moving vegetables in container in ice water to speed cooling. Drain. An efficient method for broccoli is to wrap in moisture-vapor-proof freezer paper or cellophane. Fold sides of paper towards centre, over broccoli, roll up and seal. Use an outer wrapping of stockinette or locker paper, to protect package. Freeze at once.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS: Same as for broccoli—using dark green freshly cut sprouts, trimmed as for table use.

CARROTS: Use only young small, freshly dug carrots. Never freeze mature carrots. Wash and scrape and sort for even size. Scald in boiling water 3 minutes. Chill in ice water (using cheesecloth bag or wire basket for container). Handle only 1 lb. at a time. Alternate tops and bottoms when packing in freezing boxes. Pack tightly. Freeze immediately.

WHOLE GRAIN CORN: Scald on the cob 1½ minutes. Corn should be newly gathered and young. Milk is thin when corn is young. Chill 7 minutes. With sharp knife cut off kernels not too close to cob. Pick out bits of silk or cob among kernels. Package. Freeze.

Chrysler To Close Over Steel Shortage

WINDSOR (CP)—Chrysler of Canada will shut down July 11 because of the United States steel strike which began June 2 but the first two weeks of shutdown will be regarded as an employee's vacation period, company officials said today.

The corporation's two-week vacation shutdown had been scheduled to begin Aug. 17.

Ford of Canada officials said the strike-caused steel shortage is forcing the company to operate on a "day-to-day" basis.

Mrs. M. Stewart Celebrates 97th Birthday

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Mrs. Mary Jane Stewart, who remembers Confederation Day when she was a girl of 12, celebrated her 97th birthday on Tuesday, July 1.

She is Millbrook's most elderly resident. She was born four miles southwest of Millbrook and except for the 20 years she made her home in Peterborough, has lived in or near Millbrook all her life.

Her parents, James Evans and the former Mary Jane Collins, were pioneers in Cavan township from Armagh, Northern Ireland. Her husband, James Stewart, whom she married in 1873, was also of Northern Ireland pioneer stock. His parents were Richard Stewart and the former Mary Thompson. Mr. James Stewart died in March, 1917, on their 44th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Stewart was one of a family of eight girls of whom three others survive.

They are Miss Matilda Evans, 90, of Lincoln, Nebraska; Mrs. Marion Seaton, 88, of Munro, Michigan, and Mrs. Alice Metherall, 85, of White Oaks, B.C.

Mrs. Seaton phoned from Munro to congratulate her sister on her birthday.

Mrs. Stewart is the mother of 10 children, seven of whom are still living. On Sunday, a family party was held in her honor in Millbrook, where she makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, and Miss Crystal Stewart.

About 40 relatives enjoyed a buffet supper together. Those coming from a distance were her daughter, Mrs. Tom Hendry (Luella), and Mr. Hendry, of Peterborough; Mrs. Alex Sage (Edna), also of Peterborough; Mrs. D. A. Messecar (Florence) and Mr. Messecar, of Waterford, and Richard N. Stewart, of Toronto, the only surviving son.

The only one of her children still living not able to attend was Mrs. John Cruikshank (Rachael) of Hastings.

Three sons have died, Edward, Henry and Anthony.

Of Mrs. Stewart's 13 grandchildren the following were present: Ormie Cruikshank and Mrs. Cruikshank, Mrs. William Loomis (nee Jean Hendry) and Mr. Loomis, Mrs. Bob Porter (nee Crystal Hendry) and Mr. Porter, Leslie Sage and Mrs. Sage, Stewart Sage and Mrs. Sage, Mrs. Don McIntyre (nee Ruth Sage) and Mr. McIntyre, Mrs. Ralph Innis (nee Alice Armstrong) and Mr. Innis, all of Peterborough, and Arnold Armstrong, of Millbrook.

Mrs. Stewart has 14 great-grandchildren and those present included: Joan Cruikshank, Margaret Loomis, Lynne and Craig Porter, Gary, Rickey and Deborah Sage, Michael Sage, Nancy and Susan Innisall, of Peterborough. Craig Porter, two months old, was the youngest present at his great-grandmother's birthday celebration.

Mrs. Stewart received many cards, bouquets and gifts both at the family party on Sunday and from callers on Tuesday when she was at home to her friends.

One unusual gift was a birthday cake made and iced to look like a large Bible. The words "Holy Bible" were traced in gold-colored icing across the top and at the bottom was a white scroll with "The Lord Is My Shepherd" on it. The three sides of the cake were iced in gold colour to resemble the gilt-edged leaves of a book. The cake was the gift of her daughter, Mrs. Messecar.

Mrs. Stewart, who is in good health, enjoyed a car ride to Peterborough on Monday on the eve of her 97th birthday.

Armless Man Builds Radios

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) —Born without arms, Raymond Sageloloy, 22, learned to play the piano and guitar with his toes.

In his teens he tried desperately to crack the radio field as a disk jockey.

He continued studying the technicalities of radio. After years of experiments, he constructed with his toes a new entertainment machine which combines a record player and movies. He calls it reco vision. It provides recorded music together with black-and-white or colored movies of singers or bands.

To an ordinary record he attaches a miniature transmitting cylinder which contains 35-mm. film. The cylinder transmits microsound waves which are transformed into electronic rays and finally form an image on the screen.

He has taken out an international patent for his invention.

Raymond admits that the intricate wiring circuits caused him endless trouble. Working with his toes, he constructed the console radio size cabinet for his machine.

As an added feature, he wired his reco vision for standard television reception.

Murder Witness Is Found Slain

NEW YORK (AP)—A star witness in a pending murder case was found dead in an East Harlem gutter today, apparently killed after a gangland-style ride.

The body of Basillo Puiutta, a 52-year-old bartender, was found by a city garage foreman, Charles Spuches, who stumbled on it in a darkened warehouse section of the city. A two-foot sash cord was loosely wound around Puiutta's neck.

Puiutta worked at a restaurant where Walter Forlenza, 31, was shot to death last Feb. 26. As a witness to the slaying, Puiutta went before a Grand Jury last month. The jury indicted Leonard Saleni, 40, in the slaying.

Scots Farmers Introducing New Beef Breed

WASHINGTON (ENS)—Farmers in the British Isles, original home of some of the world's best known meat and milk cattle, now seek to import a new North American beef animal, the cattalo, a cross breed of domestic cattle and the bison, or American buffalo.

A report from Aberdeen, Scotland, states that Highland district councils recommend that Scots farmers introduce cattalo, the product of 30 years of scientific interbreeding.

Cattalo were developed by the Canadian Government in an effort to find animals with the good beef qualities of Aberdeen Angus, Shorthorns or Herefords and the ruggedness of the bison, which can withstand severe winter weather, says the National Geographic Society.

The bison faces into severe winter blizzards, while domestic cattle habitually face away from the wind and sometimes are smothered by drifting snow. In addition, the bison can find food at any time, pawing through the snow to grass beneath.

On the other hand, domestic stock is more disease resistant than wild bison stock, and the meat is more acceptable on the general market, although buffalo steak was long a staple on the western plains of the United States and Canada.

Development of cattalo was not without difficulties. Breeding of bull bison with domestic cows was first tried, and many cows died in bearing the heavy-bodied calves. Other experiments were tried, and eventually the calf crop increased without great cow mortality.

Then the new cattle were found to be true hybrids, sterile, like mules. This failing was slowly overcome by further cross breeding until the present herd is largely one of true cattalo, with both cow and bull of cross-bred stock. The most satisfactory combination so far is three quarters domestic stock and one quarter bison. The animals at first had large humps, like the bison, and the short hair of domestic cattle. The hump gradually disappeared with further generations, but the hair remained short. Cattalo, however, were found to have the buffalo's weather resistance even with the short hair.

In addition, they can eat almost any plant food and do not require any sort of special diet. This makes them economical to raise and they could, presumably, provide low-cost beef for meat-hungry Britain.

Plan Film Lectures

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Association of Film Councils and the Department of Education will sponsor institutes on films and community leadership at the University of Western Ontario, London, and Queen's University, Kingston. Lectures from July 17 to 20 at Western and Aug. 7 to 10 at Queen's will concern program planning for rural and urban groups.

Dr. Max Levy (left), his personal physician, drives the car. Matthew B. Ridgway.

3 Parties Plan Research In Frobisher Bay Area

MONTREAL (CP)—Three parties of young Montrealers are on their way to Frobisher Bay, Baffin Island, for research in that Arctic territory about 1,200 miles north of here.

Largest of the groups—five youths—will be taken by chartered plane to Frobisher Bay.

They include E. H. Grainer, graduate in zoology, who is in charge of the diesel ketch Calabus, a research vessel of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada; Ian McLaren and W. F. Black, postgraduate zoology students at McGill University; William Wilson, McGill medical student, and his brother, Thomas Wilson, a high school student. Two Eskimos will join the party at the site of operations.

The group, which will operate from the Calbus, will study physical oceanography and marine biology in Frobisher Bay. They will also make a census of marine animals, including seals, walrus and whales.

ZOOOGICAL RESEARCH

Arthur Dawson and Storrs McCall, another research team, will undertake zoological research in Lake Ogac, on the shore of Frobisher Bay, under the McGill-Arctic Institute research program.

They will investigate the existence of land-locked cod in the lake, which may have been cut off from the ocean thousands of years ago, and hope to learn how these cod differ from the Atlantic type.

A third research team, John Mercer and Weston Blake, Jr., from the Department of Geography at McGill, will make glacial studies on the Grinnell ice cap on the shore of Frobisher Bay.

Preventing Paralysis From Polio Tested With 60,000 Children

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—A way to present paralysis from polio is being tested this summer in a great human experiment.

Time and 60,000 children will tell whether it works.

In a few cities hit by polio, children will soon line up for injections. They have already started at Houston, Tex.

Half will get a magical medicine from human blood—gamma Globulin or G.G. In monkeys, the G.G. shots prevented polio paralysis.

The other half will get the injections that look the same but lacking the G.G.

RESULTS IN FALL

Late this fall, it will be known whether there is less paralysis or even no paralysis among youngsters getting the G.G. and whether the G.G. blockades the polio virus and stops it from hitting human nerves.

If so, there will be a fairly practical way of taking the dreadful paralytic sting out of polio. But until the human trials are run, parents, children and doctors will never know whether G.G. can do for humans what it does for monkeys that get the polio virus.

The vital experiment is being supported by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. It will start any day now.

The success of the trial, say foundation officials, depends greatly upon parents' calm and willing co-opeation and their understanding of all the facts.

These are the basic facts as known now from research:

The polio virus apparently enters our bodies through the mouth or nose. It doesn't cause any sickness at all while it is in our stomachs or intestines. It can cause mild sickness, such as fever and nausea and soreness of muscles, while it is in the blood and a few nerve cells of the central nervous system. There is no paralysis at this time.

The virus causes paralysis only if it damages a lot of nerve cells. All the damage to nerve cells is done within about 24 hours.

People always recover from polio if nerve cells are not damaged, or only a few are hurt.

They can recover completely or greatly even from paralysis. The extent of recovery depends upon the extent of damage to nerve cells.

Now comes a vital new discovery, made by Dr. David Bodian of the Johns Hopkins University and Dr. Dorothy Horstmann of Yale, in polio work with monkeys and chimpanzees.

After a few days, the virus goes from the intestines to the bloodstreams of monkeys, before it gets into the nerves. The virus doesn't cause any real sickness while it is still in the blood.

While it is in their blood, the monkeys start making antibodies or agents which disarm or neutralize the virus. If the monkeys make enough antibody, soon enough, they escape sickness and paralysis. If they don't, they fall ill of polio.

Most importantly, the mokeys can be protected. They are protected by giving them shots of gamma globulin, obtained from the blood of monkeys which had fought off polio, or recovered from it.

The shot of G.G. gives the monkeys the extra antibody to prevent paralytic sickness.

The G.G. is not a vaccine. It stays in the blood only a few weeks, giving temporary protection.

Another vital fact is that most of us already have had polio.

We developed our own antibodies, soon enough, and disarmed the invading virus.

We still have the miraculous antibody, in the gamma globulin, one tiny protein part of our blood. If that virus comes along again, our G.G. antibody will capture it and make it harmless. The experts estimate about 90 per cent of us over the age of 15 have these anti-bodies

St. Andrew's Holds Flower Service

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The Rev. Margaret Butler was the special speaker for the Sunday School anniversary service of St. Andrew's United Church o n Sunday morning.

It was also the annual flower service, and th[illegible] had been beautifully decorated by Miss Mabel Clarry and her committee.

Sunday School children, who walked in the processional, each had a bouquet of flowers which they presented to be added to the decorations. Those receiving and arranging the flowers were Mrs. Henry Gray, Miss Jean Burnham, Mrs. Bruce Ingham, Dorothy Ball, Frances Elson and Margaret Guthrie.

The members of the Sunday School who sang "The Lord's My Shepherd' Brother James' air with descant, were directed by the Rev. A. M. Butler. Herbert Patton, Sunday School superintendent, read the Scripture lesson.

Mrs. Butler opened her address with the Bible story of the little blind boy Bartimaeus who met Jesus after he had grown to be a man and who was healed by him.

She said that following Jesus could help people to see many things more clearly. One of these things was the necessity for keeping close to God. Just as it was necessary to take the right kind of food to withstand illness of the body, so it was necessary to take the right kind of spiritual food to be strong when troubles come.

Another thing they were able to see more clearly was that people were happiest when they were doing what God wanted them to do.

They could see clearly, also, that what they did and said was important. No two people were exactly alike. It was necessary to be oneself and not an imitation of someone else.

Mrs. Butler closed with an appeal to parents to try to see that their child had the most important gift of all, that of having a living sense of God's presence. No one could insure that his child would be always well, or guarantee his financial welfare at all times, but that this most important gift once possessed could not be taken from him.

Drug Wiping Out Malaria As Military Problem Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Malaria, which has killed as many soldiers in some campaigns as enemy weapons, is being wiped out as a military problem by a new drug called primaquine.

Tests now being completed by the United States Army Surgeon-General's office indicate primaquine to be a simple, inexpensive and almost sure cure for the vivax type of malaria. This is the kind that is causing trouble in Korea today.

A routine treatment with primaquine takes only 14 pills costing less than one cent each and requires no hospital care.

CALL IT CURE

Among one test group of Korean veterans with malaria, the drug has suppressed all symptoms in every case but one. Doctors now are calling it a cure and await only the lapse of a little more time before reporting the results officially to the medical profession.

Vivax malaria has a "sleeper" period of almost 30 weeks in which symptoms may disappear only to return in full force. Doctors want to be sure that in the test cases the drug has cured, not temporarily suppressed, symptoms. But the tests have been running since last summer, and virtually no relapses have occurred.

The present supply of primaquine is sufficient only for the United Nations forces in Korea. In time it seems certain that the drug, or an improved form of it, will be available wherever malaria is a leading cause of death.

It could cut down the world death rate for malaria to a low point. Doctors say primaquine alone probably won't stamp out the disease because it is only a cure. The disease is spread by mosquitoes.

The army says that primaquine is wiping out, for the United Nations one of the last of nature's great soldier-killers.

Primaquine is one of about 15,000 compounds tested since 1942 by U.S. scientists hunting a cure for malaria. Dr. Robert C. Elderfield of Columbia University produced it synthetically while working in co-operation with the U.S. Office of Scientific Research and Development.

Now it can be produced at cost of 12 cents for a full course of treatment—14 pills in 14 days—for each man returning from Korea. Before this it cost an average of $72 per patient to hospitalize about 12,000 Korean veterans with Malaria.

The development work on primaquine cost about $10,000,000.

The type of malaria found in Korea is related to that which once prevailed widely in the United States. Quinine, atabrine and another new drug called chloroquine are helpful but not usually considered a cure.

Malaria organisms first live in the blood stream and then apparently hide out in such body organs as the liver. Quinine, atabrine, chloroquine and other substances will control the disease in its first stages. But when patients stop taking them, the organisms are out of reach of the drug and the disease may break out again.

Primaquine apparently penetrates to the hiding places of the parasites.

Present treatment is in two parts. Soldiers are given chloroquine to suppress malaria symptoms, like chills and fever, and prevent it from disabling them. The second part of the treatment consists in giving all men returning from Korea 14 pills of primaquine to wipe out hidden parasites.

Virginia Mayo Wants To Look Like U.K. Actress

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—True, everybody in Hollywood wants to be someone else—actors wish they were directors; directors wish they were producers and so on.

But when Virginia Mayo says she wants to look like someone else, let's face it. That's carrying dissatisfaction too far!

I learned this bit of intelligence after seeing Virginia in "She's Working Her Way Through College" in which she plays Hot Garters Gertie, a burlesque stripper. This picture accents a well-known Hollywood fact, to wit:

Virginia Mayo is the possessor of the movies' most beautiful body. And she's got the face to go with it.

LITTLE MAKEUP

For one thing the makeup departments at Warners and other studios reveal that she needs only powder and rouge to look her best before the cameras. That's something that can't be said of all glamor girls in this town.

Armed with all these facts and figures, I asked Virginia what she thought of cheesecake.

"I like it very much," she replied unsmilingly. "It tastes real good."

"I didn't mean that kind of cheesecake."

"Oh," she smiled. "You mean the other kind—leg art. Frankly, I don't mind posing for it but I don't enjoy seeing cheesecake or any other kind of pictures where I look like me. I like pictures of myself where I look like someone else, preferably, Vivien Leigh."

Now Miss Leigh is a beauty and undoubtedly one of the world's greatest actresses but one will get you 10 that she would gladly trade the Oscar she won last March if she could look like Virginia in a bathing suit. Or play Hot Garters Gertie.

WANTS TO ACT, TOO

I asked Virginia if this business of wanting to look like Miss Leigh harbored a secret yearning to be a great dramatic actress.

"Naturally, I'd like to be a great actress. And the studio gives me enough versatility in my roles so I can try; but basically, I'm a song-and-dance girl. I love musicals and wouldn't care if I did nothing but musicals. That's all Betty Grable does—look where she rates in this business."

9 Men Wounded On Patrol Refuse To Be Evacuated

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Nine of 27 men wounded on a patrol by the 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment were able to avoid evacuation and to remain on duty with the battalion.

Of the 18 others several had to be rounded up by the medical officer, Maj. David Jeffey of Brockville, so they could be "sent down the line." After treatment they had gone back to their company to avoid evacuation. . .

The divisional artillery, directed by Capt. C. R. Davidson of West Kildonan, Man., laid down one of the heaviest Canadian barrages of the year to screen off the patrol's withdrawal after it was frustrated within an inch of success. The success. The smoke was so thick that at one point it was feared the Chinese might attempt to follow in behind it.

Other happenings that night:

The patrol planted a sign—cryptic, under the circumstances—telling the Chinese, "You ain't seen nothing yet." It was painted in Chinese characters.

CUT HOLE IN CAP

Sgt. B. C. Robinson of London, Ont., was knocked to the ground by an almost-spent piece of shrapnel which cut a hole in his cap but stopped just short of penetrating the flesh of his head.

Lieut. Bert Ritchie of Brantford, was knocked to the ground four times by concussion but not wounded.

Pte. J. A. Amero of Saint John, N.B., though wounded, carried another man back to safety with him.

Regimental linemen, such as Pte. M. R. Cantwell of Ottawa, though wounded, maintained the patrol's telephone lines to the last.

Pte. C. M. Ray of Dryden, though slightly wounded, left shortly after the operation to attend a driver-operator course at Kure, Japan.

The body of the one man killed on the patrol—Pte. A. J. Gosselin of Winnipeg—was retrieved by Sgt. J. L. Mazerall of Dalhousie, N. B., and two others. While they were carrying it down the steep, shrub-covered slope they were protected by a trio fighting a rear-guard action. The three were the assault platoon leader, Lieut. E. Gibson Bauld of Halifax, Sgt. Don Desroches of Vancouver and Cpl. Robert E. Clark of Komoka, Ont.

Although individuals on the patrol claimed a total of five Chinese killed, the battalion has not listed the claims.

Canadian Troops Test Body Armor In Battle

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Canadian infantrymen recently went into battle wearing body armor.

The experiment was tried by the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment on the suggestion or Commonwealth Division headquarters.

A patrol led by Lieut. Graham Herman of River Hebert, N.S., the night of June 23 wore the vests of laminated steel covered by a nylon-duck fabric. The vests, which "zip" up the front to a tight-fitting collar, are United States Army equipment and were loaned to the division for trials.

(It is reported that the Canadian Army also is producing a type of armor vest for infantrymen, and that prototypes are expected shortly for trials in Korea.)

HAS TWO TYPES

The U.S. army has two types—one anti-shrapnel and the other anti-small arms. The Van Doos wore the anti-shrapnel kind on their June 23 patrol.

It was a dark, hot summer's night and enough hell broke loose about the operation to give the armor a fair work-out.

Herman's mission was to get a prisoner from an enemy position 500 yards ahead of the Van Doo outposts. It meant more than 1,500 yards of uphill cross-country travel.

The men touched the foresight blades of their rifles with white paint to sharpen their aim in the blackness of the night.

It was a steep climb to the first Communist bunkers. The Van Doos hit nothing.

They climbed higher.

"We got within 25 yards of the main position," said Herman, "before they opened up."

Then we ran into it. We were pinned down. We took another bound, and were within 15 yards when we had our first wounded. I sent three down with Cpl. Fontaine (Cpl. J.C. Fontaine of Ste. Hyacinthe, Que.)"

Then, for the third time in as many patrols, the Canadians encountered the Communists' new super-concussion weapon. It packs blast enough to bowl a man over, with wounding effect ranging from considerable to negligible, depending on fragmentation.

Said Herman, "we now call them 'six-pounders' — they must have at least six pounds of high explosive in them."

KILLED IN ASSAULT

Dugal (L. Cpl. Paul Dugal of Quebec City) charged forward and was killed as he was getting his first rounds away.

Also killed in the assault was Pte. J.G. Tremblay of Amos, Que.

"While we were reorganizing, Pte. Conrad Desroches (of Esquimalt, B.C.) came up and said, 'I'm going to get Tremblay, whether you tell me to or not.'

"I told him I wouldn't stand in his way. But he wasn't able to make it."

Of Herman's original 20, all he had left for the final rush to the top were six—himself, Desroches, Fontaine and Ptes. Gaston Decourcey, Quebec; Joseph Barbeau of Grand'mere, Que., and A.M. Boissoneault of St. Apolinaire, Que.

"We went straight up. But we got as far as the same place, and got the same treatment—but good. We were pinned again, made another bound, were pinned again—and then all hell broke loose.

"We were trying to figure out the next move when the colonel (Lt.-Col. Louis Trudeau of Quebec) pulled us back.

"It was hop-scotch with Chinese mortar and machine-gun fire all the way back."

Medically, the armor vests had been a success. None of the three killed and five wounded had been injured in chest or back. The third man killed. Pte. Bill Fong of Montreal—who had served with the Van Doos as a sergeant in Italy—died of a head injury. Other wounds were of the head and limb type.

OPINIONS DIVIDED

Operationally, opinions are divided as to the first work-out.

Senior officers feel that the vests, which weigh only eight pounds, are worth that in gold for the confidence they lend the soldier.

But the men who carried them said they found them too warm, and that while they were loose and roomy, nonetheless the soldier felt constricted in them.

Ironically, no soldier was spared injury by the vests alone—none was found who would have been a casualty had he not worn one.

But unquestionably those who were casualties were much less severely wounded than they would have been without them.

Fund Collected $538,801, $771 For Food

TORONTO (CP) —A report of an investigation into the United Emergency Fund for Britain says that only $771 of the $538,801 collected by the fund was spent for food. "It is impossible to determine," said Public Trustee Armand Racine, " how the 1,800 pounds of food represented by this item were disposed of." Mr. Racine, appointed to investigate the Fund, reported yesterday to Attorney-General Porter that only $771 was spent for food out of its general collections

An additional $148,157 worth of food was sent through the Canadian Parcel Service, through which parcels were prepared for shipment to Britain and sold to individuals in Canada. A further $12,481 in personal food parcels was sent through the Fund's reduced shipping rate service.

PUBLICITY COSTLY

Mr. Racine reported that salaries and wages took $185,689 while $188,535 went for advertising and publicity.

The Fund was started March 15, 1948 by eight Canadians headed by Sir Ellsworth Flavelle of Toronto. Its charter was surrendered Feb. 13, 1951. The Racine probe was 13, 1951. The Racine inquiry was the question in the Legislature by E.B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. leader and then head of the Opposition.

Mr. Racine's report said a goal of $5,000,000 was set and a coast-to-coast organization was set up. But it was found "that the sights had been set too high and that the Fund was not meeting with the success expected."

Sir Ellsworth said at the time of the investigation's start that the original object of the fund had been to publicize and advertise the need of British citizens, to co-ordinate the flow of parcels to Britain and also to purchase and supply food.

He added that the campaign caused more than 1,000,000 pounds of supplies to flow to Britain, even if not purchased with money from the Fund.

First officers of the Fund included Senator Thomas J. Vein, (L.—Quebec) Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario) and Lady Eaton of Toronto. Each officer contributed $1,000 to start things rolling.

In Britain an advisory committee was set up whose membership includes Countess Mountbatten of Burma, the Countess of Limerick and the Marchioness of Reading.

SPENT $759,097

During the period of the fund's existence $759,697 passed through its hands. A report of Fred Page Higgins and Company, auditors, showed expenditures of $15,851, exclusive of salaries, which were unsupported by invoice or other documentary evidence.

Mr. Racine did not comment on his investigation, nor did he make any recommendations. Following Mr. Jolliffe's questions the Legislature passed amendments to the Charities Accounting Act. The chief of these provided that a judge on receiving a written complaint about a charitable organization could recommend if advisable that the public trustee investigate it.

Liberal Party Defeated In B.C. Election

VANCOUVER— (CP). — The Liberal Government soundly beaten, C.C.F. and Social Credit Parties ran almost neck-and-neck today for a minority-government prize in British Columbia.

Yesterday's first day of delayed final counting of alternative votes in the province's June 12 provincial election brought the personal defeat of Premier Johnson. With 21 of the 48 Legislature seats decided, only one of his Liberal supporters had won election. Liberals led in five seats.

Social Credit, which had never before elected a member in this bustling coastal province, had won 10 seats and led in seven. The C.C.F. counted eight members elected and 12 candidates leading.

However, no party seemed likely to capture the 25 seats needed for a bare majority in the House and observers looked for a new election within a year.

This was the party standing when counting finished for the night:

| ELECTED | |
|---|---|
| Social Credit | 10 |
| C.C.F. | 8 |
| Liberal | 1 |
| Progressive Conservatives | 1 |
| Labor | 1 |
| LEADING | |
| C.C.F. | 12 |
| Social Credit | 7 |
| Liberal | 5 |
| Progressive Conservatives | 3 |
| Total | 48 |

Lyle Wicks, president of the B.C. Social Credit party, will discuss another possibility—coalition—at a party caucus July 15. He emphasized there was only a remote possibility of coalition with the LIBERAL PARTY

Allies Accept Secret Session

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Allied truce negotiators today accepted the Communists' bid for secret sessions and voiced hopes that the Reds are ready to modify their demand that all Allied-held war prisoners be sent home.

Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., told the Reds the United Nations would agree to a news blackout. The negotiators immediately went into a 40-minute secret session. Another was set for tomorrow.

The U.N. communique said Harrison agreed to off-the-record talks "in the hope that secret meetings will make it easier for the Communists to modify their adamant insistence that all prisoners be returned to their control by force if necessary."

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, U.N. spokesman, described the first secret meeting as "quietly impersonal," He added: "both sides spoke frequently. . with a certain amount of consideration and caution."

Duke Of Edinburgh Reported Improving

LONDON (Reuters)—The Duke of Edinburgh is making a satisfactory recovery from his attack of jaundice and has been able to leave his room for short periods during the last two days, Buckingham Palace said today.

But he will require further convalescence and will not be able to carry out any immediate engagements, the announcement added.

Plan Immediate Inquiry

Will Investigate Charges Of Steel Firm Conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board plans an immediate investigation of charges by striking C.I.O. steelworkers that major steel producers have "entered into a conspiracy" to prevent settlements with any affected company unless the "big six" agree.

President Truman made virtually the same charge at a press conference yesterday. He accused the major steel companies of conspiring to draw out the strike, and said the situation does not call for use of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Truman indicated strongly he did not plan to follow the "request" by Congress that he try to end the 33-day work stoppage by asking the courts for an 80-day injunction against the strike, as provided for in the Taft-Hartley law.

The union said, shortly after the President's press conference, that the purpose of the alleged conspiracy is to "prevent any one of the Big Six companies or any other smaller company from reaching final agreement on a new work contract."

The six major companies named by the union are: U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Jones and Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Inland. Together they produce 70 per cent of total U.S. output.

A spokesman for the six companies issued a statement saying the union "apparently will go to any length, ridiculous though it may be, in its effort to force employees in the steel industry to join the union."

This referred to a union demand for the union shop, a form of compulsory unionism. That demand is generally considered one of the main obstacles to settlement.

Truman's mobilization chief, Dr. John R. Steelman, told another press conference that a new contract agreement had been reached in New York recently "pleasing to some of the companies" and mentioned Bethlehem as one of them.

That purported agreement, not acknowledged and not denied by the companies, was said to have been spiked when others of the Big Six refused to go along.

George J. Bott, general counsel of the N.L.R.B., will start an investigation of the union's charge this week-end.

The Taft-Hartley Act imposes on labor and management the obligation to bargain in good faith. The Union's conspiracy charge means it questions whether the steel companies are bargaining in good faith.

EIGHT PERSONS WERE KILLED and 20 others injured early Thursday morning when this Northland Greyhound Lines bus ripped into the rear of a parked trailer truck 14 miles south of Winnipeg, Manitoba. The bus was enroute to Winnipeg from Minneapolis, Minn., when the driver was temporarily blinded by the headlights of the oncoming traffic and failed to see the flares which were reportedly put out by the driver of the truck while he fixed a flat. The scattered debris is the remains of a number of the bus seats, luggage and goods from the heavy trailer truck.

Railway Unions Ask Raise Of 45 Cents

MONTREAL (CP)—Seventeen non-operating railway unions announced officially today they are demanding a wage boost of 45 cents an hour in negotiations with the railroads for new collective agreements to become effective Sept. 1 next.

Other demands, an official statement said, include a cost-of-living bonus of one cent an hour for each one-point rise in the official cost-of-living index, a union shop and check-off of union dues by the railways.

At the same time, union officials announced that a conference between the unions and the railways has been arranged for Monday next.

The union demands went to the railroads yesterday by letter.

RAILWAYS AFFECTED

Railways affected are Canadian Pacific Railway Company and Canadian National Railways and their subsidiaries, the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway and the Ontario Northland Railway.

The announcement came from the office of Frank Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee representing the unions, two of which are Canadian and 15 international. They represent 125,000 non-operating railway workers—those who do not actually operate the trains.

The unions' letter outlining the wage demands requested a conference within 20 days.

In his statement, Mr. Hall said "it is hoped" to bring the negotiations "to an early conclusion."

"Much of the dissatisfaction and unrest on the part of the employees is due to past delays in effecting settlements, which always operate to their disadvantage. They feel it

Second Mail Not Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Postmaster-General Cote yesterday said in the Commons his department is not contemplating a return to twice-a-day mail delivery.

He made the statement in reply to G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) who said postal carriers are dissatisfied with the one-a-day delivery because they are asked to do two or three rounds in different areas.

Mr. Fraser said postal carriers also feel their salaries should be more in line with those of police and firemen in their communities. They also want overtime pay since office workers in the post office receive it.

Mr. Cote said the matter of salary is dealt with by the Civil Service Commission.

During discussion of mail delivery, Mr. Cote said the department is investigating the difficulties created for business firms in residential areas who now receive only one mail delivery a day.

Steel Plant May Be Closed

HAMILTON (CP) —The threat of closure loomed today for the 9,000 workers in the Steel Company of Canada and Dominion Foundaries and Steel Company Limited and shopkeepers and business men in the city faced prospects of an $18,000,000 cut in business during next winter and early spring. The threat of shutdown was said by company representatives to be due to the fact that the influx of iron ore to local foundries has been cut by half and that by the end of the fall it may trickle away to nothing. It is estimated that the total weekly wage bill at the two steel plants is in the neighborhood of $650,000 a week, nearly all of it spent in Hamilton.

Shipments of ore, according to company reports are seriously affected by the steel strike in U.S.A. and the opening of a big new blast furnace at Stelco would boost ore requirements there by 400,000 tons more per year.

SEE HALT IN SEPTEMBER

At Dominion Foundries and Steel Company Limited a company vice-president said operations might have to end in September unless supplies of ore were resumed immediately.

"There is a certain amount of stock," he said, "so output may not be affected till mid-September. But, the position looks grim for the winter. We have only a short shipping season to look forward to in order to cover our needs and we do not think there is enough time to build up our reserve stocks."

Labor circles in Hamilton area said they "did not regard the threat seriously."

Larry Sefton, supervisor in Hamilton and Niagara area, for United Steelworkers of America, said he thought the statement that had been issued was "a tongue-in-the-cheek" statement.

Steel Company of Canada officials say so much time has already been lost that it will be impossible to make up the leeway in time to lay in big enough ore stocks to tide them over the winter.

Unofficial Race Of Liners Believed Now Under Way

NEW YORK (AP)—The United States sailed yesterday on her maiden voyage and-possibly-history's greatest ocean race. Unofficially, British shipping authorities were reported spoiling for a battle. They could turn loose the giant Queen Elizabeth, already 1½ days out of New York, and try to outspeed the United States.

A Cunard Lines spokesman in London said frostily:

"We are not racing."

But Commodore George Cove, soon to retire as skipper of the Elizabeth, was quoted earlier as saying it might be a good idea to climax his career with a "memorable fast voyage."

HELD IT LONGEST

Down the years, Britain has held the blue ribbon, mythical emblem of trans-Atlantic speed, oftener and longer than any other country.

The U.S. last held it in 1851 when the S.S. Pacific steamed from New York to Liverpool in nine days, 19 hours and 25 minutes.

The skipper of the United States, Commodore Harry Manning, wouldn't say yes and he wouldn't say no when asked if his $73,000,000 superliner will take a crack at the record on her first crossing.

In London, newspapers treated the United States' departure as though the great race were already on.

The printed tables of statistics, a sort of box score on the 990-foot United States, the 1,019-foot Queen Mary, and the 1,031-foot Queen Elizabeth.

MARY HOLDS RECORD

The ribbon has been held by the Queen Mary since 1938 when she crossed in three days, 20 hours and 42 minutes at an average speed of 31.69 knots.

The United States is reported to have done 34 knots in trials.

The Queen Elizabeth was a troop carrier during the war and it has been whispered ever since that she topped 35 knots on occasions.

Japan Alerted Fear Uprising

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan today was on the alert against a possible Communist armed uprising.

Police reported increasing outbreaks of violence through the country. Though they felt the Communists are not yet strong enough to stage an armed revolution, they said they anticipate Communist plans for such a rising.

All city and provincial forces were warned of possible danger from Communist attempts to mobilize on a national basis a suspected Korean fifth column, numbering at least 5,000 North Koreans living here.

Mobs clashed with police in half-a-dozen cities of Japan's main island. Communist activity against the police included cutting a police communications line and firing police boxes with home-made bombs.

Police also expected the Communists to mobilize for heavy fighting July 15 to mark the 30th anniversary of their party's formation in Japan.

Osaka police arrested 19 persons early today after clashes with 500 demonstrators marching on a railroad station. Thirty-four police were injured in the melee.

Two Trains Collide

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Two trains collided in the little town of Lidingo today and at least 45 persons were hurt. Twenty ambulances hurried to the scene, in a mountainous area near here.

Millions Of Americans Celebrate Holiday Predict 430 Will Die Over Weekend

CHICAGO (CP). — Millions of Americans took a brief holiday from their normal round of affairs today to celebrate United States Independence Day with parades, ceremonies and picnics.

The National Safety Council estimated that some 90,000,000 persons, riding in 40,000,000 cars, would take to the highways during the extended weekend holiday. Of these, the council predicted, at least 430 would die in accidents between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Sunday.

In the first few hours of the holiday the death toll in traffic accidents was 16.

In the May 30 Memorial Day weekend the final toll was 363 traffic deaths, 85 drownings and 62 violent deaths from miscellaneous causes.

Six persons were killed last night at Monroe, La. when their automobile was destroyed in a crossing collision with a Missouri Pacific train.

Murderous Barrage Laid Down By U.N. Artillery

SEOUL, Korea (AP) —Allied Sabre jets today shot down 12 Communist MIGs while Allied artillerymen unlimbered every big gun on the Korean battlefront for a double-barrelled Fourth of July blow against the Reds. The toll of 12 MIGs shot down, one probably destroyed and six damaged made the air battle the second biggest Allied jet victory of the Korean war, the Fifth Air Force said. Few MIGs have been seen over North Korea for more than three months. But Friday the Reds hurled 115 of the swift swept-wing fighters against U.N. fighter bombers and the 97 Sabre jets flying protective cover.

The air force did not identify the target of the big force of F-84 Thunderjets. However, it said the Communist installation was about 20 miles southeast of Suiho, site of a giant power plant smashed June 23.

Some observers said the secrecy and the unusually big fighter cover gave the raid the appearance of something out of the ordinary.

LOSSES NOT ANNOUNCED

Allied plane losses, if any, were not announced.

The MIG toll was just short of the all-time record set Dec. 13 when 13 MIGS were shot down, two probably destroyed and one damaged.

The total number of MIGS destroyed, probably destroyed and damaged topped the earlier battle, 19 to 16.

Two wings of F-84 fighter bombers pounded the unidentified target with 1,000-pound bombs and napalm, the air force said. Then the jets dived low to strafe anti-aircraft positions with .50-calibre machine-gun fire.

Returning pilots said it was impossible to evaluate damage because of dense black smoke.

MURDEROUS BARRAGE

Fighting broke out in three sectors of the ground front as Allied artillerymen wheeled every big gun on the 155-mile line into action for a murderous barrage.

On the western front, a Chinese Communist battalion of 750 men swarmed up two hills three times. Twice Allied guns hammered the charging Reds back, but still they came.

One Allied unit finally was cut off and some forward bunkers were overrun. But the U.N. troops rallied around tanks which poured

10,000 Left Homeless In Philippines Blow

MANILA (AP)—The typhoon which pounded the central Philippines Wednesday and Thursday left 85 dead, 115 missing, more than 10,000 homeless, incomplete reports showed today.

A customs official said 70 persons were aboard six sailboats which failed to arrive at Cebu, where 10 persons died in the big blow. Crop losses on northeast Mindanao, Leyte, Bohol, Cebu, Negros, Panay and smaller islands totaled millions of dollars.

The typhoon today was 250 miles west of Manila and heading northwesterly across the South China sea.

Fraser Supports Inspection CMHC Building

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said in the Commons yesterday the sharp decline in house construction in Canada since 1950 is a matter of "grave concern if not alarm."

He made the statement during discussion of estimates providing a total of $13,700,000 in advances to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for veterans housing, married quarters for armed service personnel and housing for workers at such government projects as the Chalk River atomic energy project.

Mr. Fleming said much of the decrease was caused by government suspending a provision for second-mortgage loans of one-sixth of the value of homes being built with financial aid from C.M.H.C.

Later, Resources Minister Winters said the one-sixth provision was met by making available loans of up to 80 per cent of the sale price. Loans of that amount were sufficient to cover today's costs.

CARRY OUT INSPECTION

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, urged that C.M.H.C. carry out inspection and supervision of home construction, now the responsibility of the private lending agencies.

"Contractors are getting away with nothing short of murder in some instances," he said. Specifications were not being carried out.

G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West) said he supports Mr. Coldwell's view that C.M.H.C. should have its own inspection and supervision service.

H. A. Hosking (L—Wellington South) and George Fulford (L—Leeds) urged that greater aid be given municipalities in extending water and sewer mains to areas under housing development.

Halt Search For Airman

PORT STANLEY (CP)—An all-night search for a missing airman from Trenton was abandoned today when he was found at London, Ont.

Discovery of a club-bag containing clothing on the lighthouse pier led to suspicion that a man might have been drowned. Since Monday high waves have been crashing against the pier.

A laundry mark on a shirt found in the bag gave police a clue to the man's identity. When located today he was unable to explain how he lost his club bag.

Ottawa Prepares For New Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government is making preparations for an early Commonwealth economic conference, Prime Minister St. Laurent said today in the Commons.

He emphasized that Canada is not taking the initiative but indicated some other Commonwealth elements will be calling the conference at "a not-too-distant date."

Force Bank Manager To Open Safe In Home

OKA, Que. (CP)—Three armed and masked men last night forced a sleeping bank manager to get up, go downstairs and open the safe of the Banque Canadienne Nationale branch in her home at St. Benoit, near here and hand over $3,000.

The trio made her open the safe and then tied and gagged her and her brother and put them in a bedroom.

Labor Members Make Bid Cut Queen's State Income

LONDON (Reuters)—Two Labor members of Parliament announced today they will make a bid to cut the Queen's proposed annual state income of 475,000 pounds by nearly half.

They will also demand that allowance proposed for her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, be cut 75 per cent.

Left-wing Labor members James Carmichael and Emrys Hughes issued seven amendments to the royal payroll worked out by a House of Commons committee and due for debate in the House next Wednesday.

Their motions would cut the Queen's allowance from 475,000 to 250,000 pounds a year.

The committee report granted the Duke a life annuity worth 40,000 pounds a year. This, the amendments would cut to 10,000 pounds.

VOTED DOWN

There were several Labor party members on the House committee, including leader Clement Attlee. Several economy moves proposed by him were voted down by the committee.

The left-wingers also seek to wipe out the extra 9,000 pounds a year which Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, will get when she marries. At present Margaret gets 6,000 pounds a year.

They also want to cut out altogether the 150,000 pounds which the committee seeks for Prince Charles, 3½-year-old heir to the throne, to cover his maintenance and education until he is 18.

OBJECT TO PROVISIONS

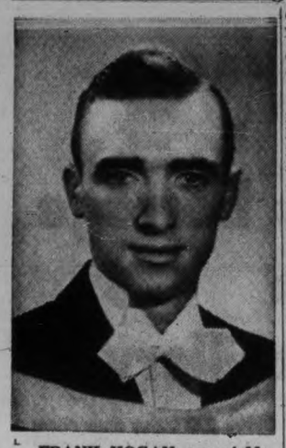
Hughes and Carmichael object to provisions made for other royal children—10,000 pounds a year at the age of 21 for sons with a further 15,000 pounds on marriage, and 6,000 pounds a year for daughters rising to 15,000 pounds annually when they marry.

The M. P.s called for the nationalization of the Duchy of Cornwall, the royal estate of the monarch's eldest son, which yields about 90,000 pounds a year from valuable London property and thousands of acres in the west of England.

The amendments have little chance of success in the House of Commons. Most attention will be focussed on the proposal by Labor leaders that there should be less formality at the Queen's court.

Find Dope Addicts In Schools In Vancouver City

VANCOUVER (CP)—The known number of school-age users of narcotics here jumped to 18 today as authorities moved to crush the menace and rehabilitate its victims. As Vancouver became the first city in Western Canada to be confronted by possible widespread use of narcotics by juveniles, Attorney-General Gordon Wismer and Police Chief Walter Mulligan met yesterday to discuss methods of treatment.



FRANK HOGAN, son of Mr. and Mrs Austin Hogan, of R.R. 1, Indian River, has taken his honors degree in English and Philosophy at Assumption College. The graduating ceremony took place at the University of Western Ontario.

Police revealed they have the names of 12 more juveniles who have been taking drugs and they reported the arrest of two others, a boy and a girl, as suspected drug addicts.

These arrests brought to six the number of teen-agers picked up by police since Saturday.

SEEK KEY MAN

Detectives were said to be hunting for a man described as a "key figure" in the distribution of narcotics.

So far six persons have been charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency in connection with the narcotics distribution.

Only a few months ago city police emphasized in a formal report to school authorities that there was no drug use or addiction by juveniles here. Police at that time scoffed at the possibility dope pushers had invaded the juvenile field here, as they had done in larger U.S. cities.

BROKE STORY

The story broke last Friday afternoon when a 16-year-old girl collapsed on the street from overuse of heroin, which she had been taking at intervals for more than eight months. Another girl, 15, had been taking heroin with her. Both were from upper-middle-class families and had been paying $5 a shot after getting their first drugs free.

Two other high school girls, both 17, have been arrested as drug addicts. One has been taking heroin "on and off" for two years, the other since January.

It is proposed that the city and provincial government share equally the cost of the treatment. It is estimated it would cost $25 daily for each patient, with the treatment being given in a sanitarium.

Charged with supplying heroin to girls are a 19-year-old seamstress, Patricia Bagstad, and a 28-year-old decorator, William Ainsworth. She was granted bail of $2,000, but Ainsworth was ordered kept in custody. Police said more arrests were expected.

The Greater Vancouver area has been know nto contain about one-half Canada's estimated 10,000 dope addicts.

More than half of the women today in Canada's only penitentiary for women—at Kingston—are from B.C. and most of them were sent there for narcotic offences.

Wheat Stocks Drop 2,800,000 Bushels

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Canada's wheat stocks in transit and in store in North America dropped 2,800,000 bushels in the week ended June 26 as export and domestic shipments outpaced country deliveries.

The Board of Grain Commissioners reported today that visible stocks totalled 204,700,000 bushels compared with 207,500,000 the previous week and 168,800,000 at this time last year.

Overseas wheat clearance totalled 7,600,000 bushels compared with 8,400,000 the previous week.

Grain stocks in store at the Lakehead dropped to 41,400,000 bushels compared with 46,100,000 the previous week.

Urge More Supervision To Halt Drownings

TORONTO (CP)—To check the rising toll of drownings, Dr. Smirle Lawson, Ontario's chief coroner, yesterday urged strict supervision of children at swimming places.

The drownings of eight boys and four men Wednesday brought the water toll in the province to 26 deaths in three days.

Dr. Lawson called for an Ontario-wide campaign to teach children and adults how to act in boats and to warn them of the danger of swimming too far from shore.

Judge Delays Giving Sentence To Reporter

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Francois Caron today postponed sentencing of a Montreal newspaper woman found in contempt of court yesterday for declining in Montreal's vice inquiry to name bookies who gave her information for a newspaper story.

He told Mrs. Jacqueline Sirois Moore, now a staff writer for Weekend picture magazine, he is considering her case further and will pronounce judgment July 17 or 18.

Yesterday, when Mrs. Moore declined to answer questions about the names of bookies who gave her information for a story appearing in the Montreal Standard Aug. 3, 1946, the Superior Court justice told her:

"I declare you in contempt. Come back at 10:15 tomorrow morning and if you don't change your mind I will be obliged to sentence you."

Taxes Making Farmers Cut Production

OTTAWA (CP)—Taxation policies have caused many western farmers to curtail production, Robert Fair (SC—Battle River) said today in the Commons.

Mr. Fair, speaking during discussion of Revenue Minister McCann's estimates, said "farmers have not had any too much justice" in taxation.

He cited the case of a farmer who had sold some of the animals in a cattle herd owned partly by his wife and then invested $13,000 of the proceeds in a government annuity for his wife. He had been charged $1,184 as a gift tax.

Mr. Fair said the 10-year annuity of 1,200 a year was worth only $12,000 but the farmer had been forced to pay more than $14,000 The $1,184 had been "confiscated in Russian form."

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, agreed the case was one of "gross injustice" and he joined Mr. Fair in demanding a refund.

Mr. McCann suggested the couple take up the matter with the income tax appeal board, which had been set up in 1949 to handle this type of case.

Frost Opens Flood Project

BRAMPTON (CP) — Premier Frost and Ontario Cabinet members opened the Etobicoke River flood control project here yesterday.

The Premier drew aside a veil from a cairn commemorating the $900,000 project. It was, he said, "only the beginning of a great program of conservation in the province."

The Brampton channel is three-quarters-of-a-mile long and bypasses the waters of the Etobicoke around the town. Nearly $1,000,000 damage resulted in 1948 when water flooded the main street.

Fraser Asks P.O. Curb Reds Using Mails

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Cote yesterday said in the Commons he will ask the Justice Department if something can be done about Communist organizations using the mails to spread propaganda.

He made the statement in reply to G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough West), during consideration of his departmental estimates.

Mr. Fraser asked if the Post Office Department "is considering denying its facilities to Communist Endicott, whom some people call doctor, and his Communist friends." They were sending out a stream of Communist propaganda through the mails.

Mr. Cote said his department can't tell what is being sent out if the letters are sealed. But if they are unsealed, he would be happy to find out from the Justice Department if anything can be done.

Seven Killed On Turnpike

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Two separate pre-dawn auto accidents on the New Jersey turnpike today claimed the lives of seven persons.

The deaths brought to 25 the number of traffic fatalities on the 118-mile super-highway since it was opened eight months ago.

Five persons, including a 3½-year-old child, were killed in one of the accidents when a big tractor-trailer truck plowed into two cars that had stopped for a minor mishap.

State police said both autos, tangled masses of twisted metal, burst into flames. Four of the victims were trapped inside the first car. The child, riding with his parents in the second auto, was flung into the flames by the force of the impact.

Two sailors were killed and two other servicemen injured in the second accident. State police said the driver apparently fell asleep.

CHINESE PULL BACK

At 2:30 this morning, four hours after the attack began, the Chinese pulled back to their own lines, the army said. A spokesman said 100 Reds were killed and 200 were wounded.

Slightly to the east, a somewhat smaller Communist force of about 150 men hit a newly-won Allied position under cover of a heavy mortar and artillery barrage. The army said the attack was stopped cold.

A U.N. armored raiding column shot up Communist positions near the Panmunjom truce talks site Thursday, killing an estimated 50 Reds and wounding 50.

Another tank-supported raiding force knifed into Communist lines northwest of Kumwha, the old "iron triangle" anchor city on the central front. An army spokesman said every Red soldier on a jagged hill was killed or wounded before the column pulled back.

Artillerymen observed U.S. Independence Day by firing every gun on the line.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

Bitter Republican Fight Begins

CHICAGO (CP)—The bitterly-disputed Texas delegate contest involving 38 votes that may prove decisive in nominating the Republican Presidential candidate at the national convention next week is up before the party's National Committee today for decision.

One delegation—calling its opponents thieves and worse—wanted to vote for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The other—denouncing the Eisenhower forces as mostly Democrats in disguise—was for Senator Robert A. Taft.

The 106-member National Committee has the job of deciding—for the time being, at least—which crowd to let into the convention.

TAFT IN CONTROL

With Taft forces running the committee, nobody here has much doubt that most if not all the Texans winning recognition today will wear Taft buttons.

But that was far from being the end of it.

Delegates who lose their contests before the committee, and this year that means Eisenhower delegates with few exceptions, can appeal to (1) the convention's credentials committee, and (2) a vote of the convention delegates themselves.

There, on the convention floor, with the microphones and the television cameras telling the whole story to the voters, is where the real fight is going to be.

Two Democratic aspirants to the Presidency viewed the Republican turmoil as a sign of lasting party disunity. President Truman said it looks better for the Democrats all the time.

Woman Finishes One-Third Of U.S. Swim

AVALON, Calif. (AP)—Swimmer Florence Chadwick completed one-third of her swim from Catalina Island to San Pedro early today in calm seas.

Fred Beitz, an Amateur Athletic Union official in a nearby boat, said Miss Chadwick stood a good chance of beating the record of 15 hours, 49 minutes for the 21-mile course, set by Toronto-born George Young 25 years ago.

Miss Chadwick, slightly ahead of schedule, took nourishment of vitamin pills and sugar. She was eight miles across the channel at 1:15 a.m. PDT.

She swam along at 28 strokes a minute, four strokes less than when she started. Her form was brilliantly illuminated by lights from a nearby television barge.

SLOWED BY FISH

Shortly after completing the first eight miles she ran into a school of fish which slowed her course for several minutes. The fish apparently were attracted by the glare from the lights.

She dived into the fog-shrouded channel at 8:50 o'clock last night and headed toward the mainland as press and pilot boats chugged nearby.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Chadwick, covered her with a heavy coating of lanolin, dyed black to keep from attracting sharks and barracuda. Miss Chadwick chose the night hours because the Pacific is least turbulent then in this area.

If she completes the grind she will be the first woman to swim the choppy, shark-infested channel.

SPURRED BY SONG

Her manager, Bert Rovere, a former opera singer, was spurring her on by singing her favorite songs, "Amapola" and "On the Road to Mandalay."

Miss Chadwick's attempt at crossing is her first major swim effort since the death of her father, Richard W. Chadwick, last November. He was her trainer during her two successful English Channel crossings.

Union Strikers Stage Fight

DAGENHAM, Essex, England (Reuters)—Fighting broke out at a mass meeting of Ford Motor Company strikers here today.

Police had to intervene after some of the 10,000 present shouted "Let's return to work and negotiate."

Strike leaders had told them that they could not end their nine-day strike until the management had assured them that all workers would be reinstated.

The management had indicated that all could not be taken back until another strike at the adjoining Briggs motor bodies factory ended.

The 6,000 men at Briggs, associate of Ford, decided at their own meeting today to continue their stoppage.

Hold US Colonel In Man's Death

ORILLIA (CP)—A United States Army colonel is being held by Provincial Police here in connection with the traffic death last night of Robert English, 73, of Palmerston.

English was struck while walking on No. 23 highway near Palmerston. A witness gave police an Ohio licence number and the colonel was picked up here 2½ hours later.

No charges have been laid. The man is being held until Prof. Joslyn Rogers, provincial pathologist, examines his automobile.

is reasonable to expect that negotiations on the present demands will be concluded prior to the expiration of the agreements Aug. 31."

That is the date for the expiration of the two-year agreement which resulted from the arbitration award of Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada after Parliament legislated the end of the railway strike of August, 1950.

Under the settlement, the wage increase was seven cents an hour, but the work week was shortzned. The further increase through this cut-down averaged 19 cents, making a total increase of around 26 cents an hour.

MORE ABOUT—

Liberal Party

C.C.F The C.C.F had said earlier it had no intention of joining forces with any other party to form a government.

Mr. Wicks said main purpose of the caucus was to select a Social Credit House leader.

For more than 10 years, the province was governed by a coalition of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives. They joined forces after an inconclusive election in 1941 and split last January.

Going separate ways, the Progressive Conservatives fared almost as badly as the Liberals. They held one seat and led in three after yesterday's counting. Their leader, Herbert Anscomb, was beaten by a Liberal in Oak Bay.

RESUME COUNT

Counting went ahead again today. It was thought possible that in some constituencies final results might not be known for another week. Although results from the first day of counting were not general enough to establish a province-wide trend, results from 22 constituencies indicated that a majority of C.C.F. voters were giving their alternative choices to Social Credit candidates. And Social Credit voters were making C.C.F. candidates their second choice. A similar cross-choice pattern showed as between Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

Social Credit alternative votes for the C.C.F.'s Rae Eddie enabled the Socialist candidate to come from behind to defeat Mr. Johnson in New Westminster.

Conversely, C.C.F. support of Social Credit in Yale enabled Irvine Corbett to defeat Liberal veteran Dr. J. J. Gillis.

MINISTERS DEFEATED

Two of Mr. Johnson's ministers were defeated with him. Health Minister Douglas Turnbull was turned out in Rossland-Trail by Social Credit. Mr. Turnbull was administrator of the province's compulsory hospital insurance scheme, chief issue in the election campaign.

Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman was beaten by Social Credit in Fort George.

By midnight last night, after 15 hours of counting, only 31 of the 48 seats had reported complete first counts and of these just 22 had swung into new counts.

Tabulating of the absentee vote elected one candidate without a second count being necessary. Frank Calder of the C.C.F., only Indian member of a Canadian Legislature, was returned in far-north Atlin.

U.S. Tourist Cars Pouring Into Canada

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Americans turned night into day on highways extending from border points at Windsor and Sarnia through all western Ontario, in and through London, last night as they began the U. S. Independence Day holiday. Police reported the heaviest all night traffic in many years as holiday seekers crossed the border to Canadian resorts.

Accient toll was called "surprisingly light" in the face of the heavy volume of cars. A hit-and-run car was being sought after a Mount Forest resident was killed. A witness said the car bore Ohio license plates. In Houghton township an accident injured nine persons but none critically.

Dollar Reserves Nearing 2-Billion Mark

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official reserves of United States dollars and gold climbed to a peak of $1,828,000,000 on June 30, Finance Minister Abbott announced today.

This stockpile of gold and dollars, to cushion the blow should the Canadian dollar suddenly recede from its current high levels, has been climbing steadily all through 1952.

The reserves climbed from the previous high of $1,787,000,000 on March 31 to $1,803,000,000 on April 30 and to $1,807,000,00 on May 31.

Informants said this was an indication that the government's foreign exchange fund has been continuing to buy American dollars, possibly as a means of keeping the exchange value of the Canadian dollar from reaching such high ground that Canadian exports would be simply priced out of world markets.

CLIMBED STEADILY

The world demand for the Canadian dollar has been so great since it was freed in 1950 that it has climbed steadily to a point where it is more than three cents above par in comparison with the U.S. dollar.

That means that on a comparison, of dollar values alone, a foreign importer can buy goods more cheaply in the American market than he can in the Canadian.

Informants said that in terms of Canadian funds, it was true that the value of the reserves depreciated every time the Canadian dollar climbed. In fact, every time it rose one cent, the fund had to write off a bookkeeping loss of about $18,000,000.

However, they said if the fund stopped buying American currency—thus distributing more Canadian dollars on foreign money markets—the exchange value of the Canadian dollar might go far higher than its current levels. This might injure Canada's trading position.

Charge U.K. Troops "Dropping Lepers"

MOSCOW (Reuters)—British troops in Korea were accused of "dropping lepers in the rear of the people's army" by the Soviet Navy newspaper Red Navy today.

The paper accused British armed forces of being "accomplices in the bacteriological warfare begun by the American interventionists."

It said "already in 1951 English servicemen, particularly English naval sailors, were engaged directly in the spread of leprosy in the northern districts of Korea, dropping lepers in the rear of the people's army."

Jap Official Says Reign Of Terror 'Exaggeration'

TOKYO (Reuters)—A high Japanese Foreign Office official yesterday described press reports of a "reign of terror" by Commonwealth soldiers in Japan as greatly exaggerated.

Conditions are not as bad as people have been led to believe, said Yujiro Izeki, director of the Foreign Office's International Cooperation Bureau, at a press conference after he returned from Kure.

"Certainly crime in Kure is no worse than in towns where American troops are stationed," he added.

Japanese newspapers have accused Canadian, British and Australian troops of dozens of crimes including rape, assault and burglary at the former naval base of Kure on the south coast of Japan's main island.

Izeki said most of the crimes committed at Kure were of a petty nature such as "soldiers under the influence of alcohol breaking window panes."

"Reports that Kure and the surrounding district are riddled with sex crimes by foreign soldiers are not true," he declared.

EXCESSES DENIED

Commonwealth authorities have denied the excesses attributed to their men and last night Commonwealth spokesman issued a public statement analyzing the military offences in the Kure area.

"The majority of cases were of a minor nature," the statement said, "wilful damage being the breaking of a drinking glass or a chair, theft being the removal of a bottle of sauce from a cafe and assault being the forcible rejection of professional amorous advances."

Stock Market Prices Show Little Trend

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market prices showed little trend today in slow early afternoon dealings as traders hesitated to take a stand without direction from New York, closed for Independence Day.

Industrial trading remained in selected leading issues and few golds, metals or oils attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours was 670,000 shares.

Retail stores posted a scattered list of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Agricultures, refining oils and manufacturing companies also drew firm support but papers, steels, foods and miscellaneous issues slipped.

Base metals eased as Chromium, Consolidated Smelters, Mackeno, Mindamar, Quemont, Steep Rock and Yukeno traded lower. Sherritt-Gordon and United Asbestos showed strength.

Western oils were mixed. Canadian Devonian, Del Rio, Highwood and Okalta strengthened while Britalta, General Petroleum A, Punch and Selburn weakened.

Senior golds dipped. Kerr Addison and Lake Shore lost fractions. A scattered list of leading secondary issues climbed moderately.

The exchange's 1 p. m. indices showed industrials up .38 at 320.55, golds down .39 at 91.11, base metals down .27 at 186.92 and western oils down .03 at 137.16.

Now Blame Americans For Loosing Moths

VIENNA (AP)—First it was Colorado beetles, then it was germ warfare in Korea, now it's the "American white spinning moth."

This is the latest Communist bug accusation against the United States.

Hungarian newspapers reaching here claimed "American white spinning moths" had made their appearance and villages were waging a "fierce fight" against the moths, which had destroyed fruit trees.

In Czechoslovakia, meanwhile, the newspaper Rude Pravo announced that in future potato bugs will be known as "American beetles."

Offer To Marry Dancer Just A Joke

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Marco Mauri's offer to marry a former Hollywood dancer who advertised for a husband with $15,000 "was just a joke," he said today.

The 18-year-old Milan student thought the story about "Mrs. Anonymous" which he read in an Italian magazine "was just a joke, too."

Mrs. Anonymous advertised in a Hollywood trade paper offering to marry any "solvent gentleman who will advance me $15,000 immediately." She disclosed Marco's reply in Hollywood today.

Marco wrote "I am not as desperate as you but wish to marry you. I am an Italian student. My father has $15,000,000."

His father does not have $15,000,000 Marco said today, "nor anything like that."

Security regulations cloak performance of the tailless twin-jet fighter, but it was designed to out-fly and out-fight any other carried-based fighter in the world. While unsuited to the present carrier equipment of the Royal Canadian Navy, it was among the aircraft recently studied by the R.C.N. The Cutlass is manufactured by a division of United Aircraft Corporation, of which the Canadian Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co., Ltd., in suburban Montreal is a subsidiary division.

Canadian Major Shot Private; Protecting Men

OTTAWA (CP)—The Army said today that Maj. Guy D'Artois, one of Canada's most colorful soldiers, recently shot and killed in Korea a Canadian private who had been threatening his comrades and shooting off his rifle.

Pte. Joseph Emile Hector Sanscartier, 20, of Cantley, Que., was killed the night of July 1 in the lines of the 1st Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment.

An Army statement said Maj. D'Artois, Sanscartier's company commander, shot the Quebec soldier to protect the lives of other men.

A board of inquiry is investigating the incident.

Maj. D'Artois, a slim, dynamic 36-year-old Montrealer, won the D.S.O. for parachuting into France and playing a prominent role in the resistance movement which fought the Germans in the months before D-day, 1944.

He won the George Medal in 1948 for leadership in the spectacular Arctic rescue of Canon John H. Turner.

SEVERAL SHOTS FIRED

The Army said several shots were fired during the incident.

"Further details are being obtained by army headquarters," it said, "but from information already received from Korea it appears that Pte. Sanscartier threatened a number of his comrades, including his company commander (D'Artois) and fired several shots from his rifle.

"It is understood that in the ensuing efforts of the company commander to protect the lives of the other soldiers, Pte. Sanscartier was struck in the body by a shot fired by Maj. D'Artois and died half an hour later.

"The 25th Brigade provost marshal is investigating the incident and a board of inquiry has been convened."

Say 100,000 Being Detained

BERLIN (AP)—The West German government said today 100,000 Germans are being held in Poland against their will.

Officials who represent the Bonn regime in Berlin told a press conference the German citizens are scattered through old Poland and also the East German territory seized by the Poles and the Russians in 1945.

The estimated 100,000 are the remnants of a German population east of the Oder-Neisse line which once numbered upwards of 8,000,000. Most of them were expelled westward in 1945 and 1946.

Henry T. Millard Repairing Reels For 30 Years

Former sporting goods merchant Henry T. Millard of 424 Stewart St., has been repairing fishing reels for the past 30 years.

During his 42 years of business on Hunter and Charlotte Sts., and two years since retirement, he has set up a lucrative business at his home and from his large stock of parts works on any of the 200 models of fishing reels made by 14 manufacturers.

Mr. Millard thinks spinning reels are the coming thing; at any rate he has only had two of them in for repair, but, he cautioned that there were fewer parts to go wrong.

Business comes to him from city and district sporting goods merchants and through advertising in a national magazine. His mail order business is increasing all the time, he says.

"It is a good summer business for a man of 78," said Mr. Millard.

Dead are George Petrovich, 53, who died of multiple injuries suffered when an automobile he was driving collided head-on with another in East Windsor and Harry Stern, 34, who died of internal injuries suffered when a station wagon in which he was a passenger rolled into a ditch near Maidstone, 10 miles southeast.

Retired Farmer Left On Highway To Die

Police said the driver of the car failed to stop.

English's body was found at the side of the road and police said it had apparently been run over by several vehicles.

Palmerston is 30 miles northwest of Kitchener.

Failed To Signal Driver Fined

Keith Brown, 18, of Queen St., Lakefield, was found guilty Thursday of not making a proper signal before making a left turn in his car. He was fined $7 and $6.75 costs.

The charge arose as a result of an accident May 15 at George and Lake Sts.

Brown said he had just got into the intersection and had pulled to the centre of the road to make a left turn. He heard a horn sounded from a car coming from his rear and he stopped.

The left side of Brown's car was damaged as were the two right fenders of the other car driven by Robert Boyce, 17, of Edison Ave.

Defence Counsel William C. Grant argued that Brown had pulled to the centre of the road as he was required to do before making a turn. But as he had only just entered the intersection and had not reached the actual turning point was not obliged to signal.

"It would have been prudent perhaps to have done so, but it was not required by statute," said Mr. Grant.

Youth Jailed On Theft Counts

A 16-year-old Peterborough boy was sentenced to a year definite and two months indefinite in reformatory for a series of thefts during June at the Peterborough Tool and Machine Co. on Dalhousie St.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, Q.C., said that in that period the boy, Robert Bolton of Edinburgh St., could learn a trade. Major Harry Everitt of the Salvation Army suggested that Brampton would be the desirable reformatory.

Bolton pleaded guilty to three charges of breaking, entering and theft at the plant during June. In that time he managed to avoid a police trap but on June 30 he was seen leaning inside an open window at the plant directing a 13-year-old boy inside. An additional charge of breaking and entering with intent was laid.

He was caught by Constable Dennis Smith.

His total loot, Detective Sgt. W. A. Clarke told the court, was $19.50.

Today his mother appeared in court and asked that he be given suspended sentence so he could get away from Peterborough where he only "gets into trouble".

Magistrate Philp warned Bolton that he had committed a serious offence and gave him the reformatory term. All four sentences will run concurrently.

Tangled 3 Times, Pair Jailed On Third Fight

Anthony Titus, 25, of Hunter St., and Orvil Thomas, 23, of North Monaghan township, were each fined today in court for a fracas on June 7 near the Pines Pavilion. Both pleaded guilty and were assessed $10 and costs.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Q.C., said the two youths tangled three times that weekend and were finally arrested by provincial police for causing a disturbance.

William Clancy, 42, of R.R. 6 Peterborough, pleaded guilty to being drunk Thursday in a downtown hotel. He too was fined $10 and costs.

West German Plan May Change Replies

Are Peterborough Taxes As High As They Seem?

Peterborough's taxes are high, aren't they? No ratepayer in the city will deny the statement, not after having received this year's tax bill. For that matter, people who rent are also aware of the towering taxes; the high bills are reflected in their rents. High taxes? Yes, sir! Look at the mill rate this year: 64.75. Last year it was high enough, at 55.5 mills, more than five cents on the dollar of assessment. The increase of nearly ten mills has been staggering. Only ten years ago—in 1942—the mill rate was 30. Now it is more than double: 64.75. It is cold comfort to know that in 1942, '43 and '44 when the mill rate was stable at the low 30, municipal works (like sewers, sidewalks, hospital accommodation, schools and the like) were being postponed because of the shortage of materials and labour. The city, like other Canadian cities, stood still during the war years. When the war ended, Peterborough and all other places not only had to try to keep pace with post-war expansion but also had to catch up on work neglected during the war. So the costs rose sharply. But to think of these matters is insufficient solace for the fact that the mill rate was 30 a decade ago, and is now more than double that figure.

* * *

It is no comfort, really, to know that the cost of living has gone up about a hundred per cent. since 1942, and that, therefore, a hundred per cent. increase in the tax rate merely follows the trend. Nor can we be quite contented in knowing that 1952's dollar is only worth fifty cents in 1942's terms, and therefore, viewed thus, the tax rate has not gone up at all. The assessments have also risen, as householders know to their chagrin.

* * *

Let us look at the present high taxes in relation to real values. The taxes are on real estate which has a dollar-and-cent value. They are based on assessments, which have little relation to the real dollar worth of the property. So let us put aside assessments and mill rates, and look at the situation in terms of how much money a property-owner pays in taxes on property of a definite saleable value.

* * *

Here is one example—taken from 1942, when the mill rate was 30. In 1942 a good old house in the west end of town sold for $2,600. The taxes on it that year were $70.50. Last year, 1951, the same house was sold for $9,500. Its taxes were $134.23. In other words, the taxes did not quite double, but the value trebled. Has the man who bought that house in 1942 for $2,600 and sold it last year for four times as much any reason at all to complain about high taxes on the property? Its value went up almost four times, its taxes only twice.

* * *

This is only one instance of thousands in Peterborough. People complain because their taxes have doubled, but forget that in many cases the value of the property has doubled, tripled or quadrupled. In other words, taxes have not gone up nearly as fast as the values of the property.

* * *

Here are other examples of values, taken at random all over the city. They are not guess-work figures, but actual records of transactions and taxes.

(These examples are not fully representative of highest-priced houses in the highest taxed residential districts, because such houses change hands infrequently and we have been unable to get exact buying and selling prices on them for the period under review.)

* * *

The figures show that taxes have risen only by half in some instances, while the property values doubled or quadrupled. One instance in the list shows the general trend in exaggerated form: the house in the north end of the city whose value rose between 1938 and 1951 more than sevenfold (undoubtedly some improvements were made to the structure during the period), yet the taxes on the property only doubled.

* * *

People who complain about high taxes should remember that the value of their property has probably increased at an even higher rate. Not all ratepayers have been lucky enough to find their houses worth three or four times what they paid for them. Some owners of large old houses, or of very expensive newer houses, or of good houses whose district has deteriorated, will find that they have not had as large an appreciation on their investment as others. Some readers may say: these figures may be correct, but the fact is that I have not sold my house, nor do I intend to sell it. I have not made money out of it, yet my taxes have doubled. The answer to this is that, whether a sale has been made or not, the people who own the house have a more valuable estate (in today's dollar values) than they had. The new high tax rates hit hardest the people who have been living in their own homes for years, have perhaps now a fixed and limited retirement income, and find the new taxes a specially heavy drain on that income.

* * *

Peterborough facts seem to bear out a general statement of a municipal finance expert, D. C. Corbett of McGill University, who has stated that "From 1933 to 1949, municipal revenues from real property taxes increased by 60.5 per cent. in Canada. Meanwhile the value of residential real estate . . went up by 209%. From these data . . . it would appear that taxes have gone up a good deal less than values. Rates and assessments appear to have lagged considerably." In Peterborough and other Canadian cities, that lag is being made up this year. With a tax rate of 64.75 mills, an increase of nearly ten mills over last year (the last for which our examples are cited), property taxes are beginning to catch up to the increased value of residential real estate. But in real terms, can they be considered high, even now?

It Is Wrong To Pass On The Right

A magistrate in Niagara Falls recently dismissed a case in which a motorist was charged with passing another car on its right on a four-lane highway; the deputy Attorney-General has made it clear that it is a violation of the Highway Traffic Act to pass on the right except when the driver ahead is preparing to make a left-hand turn.

There have been pleas for amendments to the Act which would permit passing on the right, but we think that they represent the wishes of eager motorists rather than the true counsels of safety. A driver should look for passing cars only on the side covered by his rear-vision mirror; passing on the right always creates some degree of danger.

It must be said that some drivers on four-lane highways hog the left-hand lane; it is difficult to escape the impression that some of them do it on purpose to be objectionable, for they do not respond to the warnings of the horn of the overtaking car, and have been known to make derisive gestures to the overtaking driver. And this brings up a point which we have never seen discussed in a newspaper, and that is a shameful aspect of the psychology of motorists.

There appears to be something about whizzing through the countryside in a ton or so of steel that deprives even the nicest people of some measure of their good sense and good manners. They hate to lessen their speed under any circumstances; they often become restive because they have driven for some time behind another car, the driver of which they begin to regard with unwarranted dislike; slow drivers insist that their snail-like pace is the only safe one, whereas fast drivers declare that there is safety in speed. They all suffer, in some degree, an illusion of power and infallibility. That is why there are so many accidents on the highways.

We read that at Hell, Michigan, the temperature last week reached 103 degrees, whereas at Paradise, Michigan, the mean temperature was 67. It looks as though ideal summer weather lay between the two.

THE AMERICAN SCENE

Wets Fight Drys In Closed Battle

By KENNETH HARRIS

I KNOW THAT the Americans like to blame their government for everything, but I never thought they would go so far as to pass a law compelling it to keep its hands off the weather. But there it is, passed by the Senate, and now going up before the House of Representatives, a measure which prevents the President from trying to make it rain.

The main purpose of the bill is to set up a government inquiry into all those private groups who are either trying feverishly to make it rain by artificial means, or who are equally feverishly and by equally artificial means trying to stop the artificial rain from falling. As the Senate Committee which sponsored the Bill said: "It is high time we found out who is doing what and to whom."

It certainly is. Over in the state of Washington, in the north-west corner of the United States, there is almost a civil war going on—Wets on one side, Drys on the other.

* * *

THE WETS are the big wheat growers on Horse Heaven plateau. The drys are the cherry growers, down in the valleys. Rain in June for the Heavenly Horsemen means bushel after bushel of extra wheat. Rain in June for the Cherrybim means split cherries and spilt profits.

Three years ago the H. H. hired a platoon of professional rainmakers, who flew through the clouds in planes and seeded them with silver iodide crystals. Result—lashings of wheat, lashings of split cherries.

This year the Cherrybim's patience was exhausted. They too hired rain-pros—some say the same ones—who dive-bombed the clouds, not seeding, but over-seeding them, so that the clouds dropped, if anything, less rain than they would have without any seeding at all.

* * *

IF YOU WANT the scientific explanation of this, you can have the one I have been given. Clouds are made up of tiny droplets too small and too light to drop. Seeding with silver nitrate introduces centres or nuclei around which these squeamish droplets collect until they form a drop with sufficient energy to drip. But if you overseed, you introduce so many nuclei that these miserable droplets don't know around which one to nucleate, and just stay up there dithering.

This civil war between fruitsters and grainsters would pobably have gone on in a steady, hearty, clean, kind of way had not nature taken a hand and introduced a complication which is turning a decent war into a riot. In the past ten days a number of storm clouds have come in over the State from the sea. The sky above Washington is now full of cloud, and the over-seeding Cherrybim, who up till now were doing very well, cannot tell which are the Heavenly Horsemen's clouds and which are nature's neutrals. The H. H., of course, are not letting on, so the Cherrybim have nearly bankrupted themselves rushing around in planes and shooting silver iodide into the air from mobile ground generators at any clouds that looks as if it might be about to rain on them.

HAVING NOW set up as rain-war correspondent, I shall report back with a despatch from the Washington front from time to time, weather of course permitting.

Having studied the all-round strategic situation, I think the Drys are going to win. Before this new turn in events, the Wets were getting pretty fed up with their seeding platoon who were not making enough rain to compensate for the dollars they were paid to make it. The rainworkers complained there weren't enough clouds for them to work on.

Also, a highly-placed source in a dry circle whom I carefully seeded with Scotch, has leaked to me the news that the Cherrybim have a secret weapon: A Mr. Hubbard is working with a new chemical which he claims "can dry up a continent."

In this early phase of the conflict, therefore, it looks to me as if the Drys have it. But anything can happen in America and as I leave for Washington, with my typewriter I shall also pack an umbrella.

* * *

DROPPING IN at New Orleans to divorce her fourth husband, Hedy Lamarr defended her matrimonial multilateralism with "Four marriages make me seem much worse than I am, but that's because I married every man I fell in love with." Wounded four times but still in the front line, this gallant girl has not lost an ounce of her idealism. "Love is great. Men are great. It's marriage I'm a little disappointed in."

C'est-magnifique, mais ce n'est pas Lamarr. More likely the remarks came from her press agent.

* * *

TALKING OF FILMSTARS, the lovely Zsa Zsa Gabor entered a Hollywood suburb the other day, and, hearing his pupils discussing her pros—she has no cons, a local high-school master called McGrath tried to re-direct their attention to their studies by saying that the only reason which could excuse them from concentrating on their Latin exam would be a personal visit from Miss Gabor.

Enterprising students contacted Miss Gabor's press agent, who arranged for her to visit the Latin class the day before the Latin finals. "This is the biggest thing that's happened to Latin since the fall of the Roman Empire," commented McGrath. And writing on the blackboard "Zsa Zsa omnia vincit" he let his pupils off the examination.

* * *

I WOULD LIKE very much to see the Good Design in Furniture exhibition which has just opened in Chicago. The newspaper reports say that the emphasis this year is on how to increase relaxation in the home, most of the exhibits having been designed with that object.

Mr. Walter Lamb of San Francisco has designed a lounge consisting of "a piece of canvas tied to oxidised brass tubing" which sounds dandy for a would-be Lotus-eater. A Mr. Billeni Newmarch of Sacramento, has invented a "nest" of "three chairs without legs," consisting of "V-shaped frames with oyster or tangerine canvasses." He says that these are the answer for those parties "with more guests than chairs, where guests end up sitting on the floor."

Henry Mittwer, also from California, has produced a table for relaxed evenings which is made of black metal with an orange linoleum top five inches from the floor. And his neighbour, Mr. Van Keppel Green, has designed a "tailored love seat" described as a "masterpiece of proportions for sitting comfort" with "the seat sloping slightly, and the back subtly tilted." This chap has also invented a relaxing chair "made of iron bars with a string back."

If this is how they relax in California let me be put on a bench in Grand Central Station when I want a quiet time.

Hail To Thee, Blithe Scallop!

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

A new scallop bed, says the department of fisheries, has been opened up in Northumberland Strait off Richibucto, New Brunswick, and fishermen are being urged to take advantage of its glittering opportunities. People at the receiving end of this most luscious of seafoods hope they do so.

This is not to decry the shrimp, the crab, the lordly lobster, or the opulent oyster. Nor can be overlooked the quahaug, king of the clams. Each has its devotees. But to many palates the scallop outranks them all. And because there's really no off-season for this admirable creature, the scallop fancier can set himself down, almost anytime he chooses, before a dish of plump specimens of Placopecten grandis, anointed with tartar sauce. Scallopites are among the most contented and reliable members of society.

Ask any chef entrusted with the preparation of the delicacy just what is a scallop, and he will promptly reply, of course: "A bivalve having a sub-circular shell with sinuous radiating ridges." He will explain that in this country the only portion of the scallop which is eaten is its adductor muscle, and that fishermen discard everything but this organ joining the two shells when they "shuck" scallops. He will also inform you that the protein value of the scallop is twice that of the oyster.

Another rudimentary fact is that the scallop often reaches an age of 15 years. When excited it closes its valves with a snap, which is a foolish thing to do, because a hitherto undetected colony may be discovered when fishermen, looking for nothing more inspiring than cod and haddock, find scallops clinging to their trawl lines. The finest beds are found where tides cause a rapid flow of water.

But what of the shell? This has a claim to renown in its own right. James Kinlock, writing in the fishery department's Trade News, records that in mediaeval times the scallop's fan-shaped shell was worn as a cap badge by Canterbury pilgrims and was a symbol of holy pilgrimage in most European countries. In Germany the scallop is still known as the "pilgermuschel" or pilgrim mussel. And Sir Walter Raleigh wrote, devoutly: "Give me my scallop shell of quiet, my staff of faith to walk upon."

What has the over-rated oyster to offer in rebuttal? Just pearls, and with no guarantee of one to a customer.

Letters To The Editor

SHOCKED BY "CLUTTERBUCK"

Sir: Will you please print the following letter as soon as possible in The Examiner?

An Open Letter to the Directors and Players of the Peterborough Summer Theatre.

Last night I witnessed your performance of "Clutterbuck" in the Queen Mary auditorium.

To say that it was shocking would be an understatement. I felt that I needed a bath when I reached home. The play reeks of immorality. In the third act the promiscuous sexuality of Pomfret and Pugh is likened to that of a tom-cat. And the description is correct. But all the characters in the play, without exception, display the same promiscuous behaviour.

History records the grossly immoral tone of the theatre in England at the time of Charles the Second. Is the Peterborough Summer Theatre descending to that level?

As a minister of the Gospel of Jesus Christ it is my duty to promote sexual purity among young people and loyalty to the sacred vows of marriage. "Clutterbuck" strikes a blow at such ideals. If you encourage people to applaud impurity on the stage how can we hope to combat it in the home?

As constrasted with the cinema the theatre calls itself the "legitimate stage". But where plays such as "Clutterbuck" are concerned surely "illegitimate" would be a more correct description.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES HAMPSON,
Minister, Bethany Pastoral Charge,
United Church of Canada

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION TO LOCAL M.P.

Sir: May I, through the Examiner, express thanks to Mr. Gordon K. Fraser, for his kindness to the children of Harvey, North Monaghan and Smith Township Schools?

Each year, the children of these schools, have a trip, planned by the Teachers, and this year Ottawa was our goal. We travelled by bus on two consecutive days. I was with the children on Thursday, June 19th, and it was very enjoyable. The children were well-behaved all day and we were very proud of them.

Mr. Fraser had our day planned and had made arrangements for us to visit the Mint, where we were shown every process of making coins. We were then driven to the Experimental Farms for our lunch, after which, we were met by the Ottawa Bus Lines and taken on a two hour tour of Ottawa, Hull and Gatineau Point. A very helpful driver on our bus explained everything in detail, and it was most constructive to the children, who have studied the district in school.

Arriving back at the Parliament Buildings, we were met by Mr. Fraser, at the door and escorted to the Library. A tour of the buildings followed, with every detail described by efficient guides. We also took a trip to the top of the Peace Tower. We were privileged to sit both in the House of Commons and the Senate for short periods. Mr. Fraser only left our party while he had to sit in the House of Commons. A sumptuous dinner was provided by Mr. Fraser at St. Mathias' Church during which time Mr. Fraser kept busy seeing that all children had all they could eat.

There was no talk of politics. Mr. Fraser did this solely for the children and we adults, who accompanied them were much impressed by the fact, that Mr. Fraser did not send someone else to do the job. He gave us his full attention and did a marvellous job of it.

I hope this will express the thanks of the parents of all the children who were able to go.

(Mrs. F.G.) MYRTLE ELCOMB
R.R. 3, North Monaghan

Bible Message

(From the Atuhorized Version)

My son, if thou wilt receive my words, and hide my commandments with thee . . . Yea, if thou criest after knowledge, and liftest up thy voice for understanding; if thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures; then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God. (Prov. 2: 1, 3-5.)

* * *

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that do his commandments: his praise endureth for ever. (Ps. 111:10.)

* * *

Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness: he is gracious, and full of compassion, and righteous. (Ps. 112:4.)

* * *

But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. (I Cor. 2: 14.)

Snakes At Large

(Port Arthur News-Chroncle)

There was a situation in Port Arthur a number of years ago, which created some brief excitement.

A shipment of snakes, rattlers, copperheads and so on, had come from the southern states addressed to a travelling show which for some reason, failure enroute possibly never arrived here.

No one wanted the snakes and the express agent tried sinking the crate. Something happened by way of objection and the box was lifted out of the water and returned to the express office. The agent tried chloroform. It didn't work either.

Finally, arrangements were made with two ball players to open up the crate and kill the reptiles. This job was done in the express room where the young men prodded the snakes out of the crate and chopped them to pieces with sharp edged shovels as they emerged. Then they dumped the box in the lake.

There turned out to be a second bottom in the box. In the fresh, cool water the additional snakes came out with some vigor and soon there were rattlesnakes and copperheads swimming around the water from. One by one they were disposed of.

To cap the story the writer of this sent an account of the incident to a Toronto newspaper in the expectation of the usual small fee. The only reaction was a message saying "We want true stories".

Mrs. Anonymous, who said yesterday she received a letter from Marco Mauri of Milan, Italy, disclosed the contents:

"I am not desperate as you, but I wish to marry you. I am Italian, a student. My father has 15 million dollars."

Her ad in a Hollywood trade paper said, "I am desperate and will marry a financially solvent gentleman who will advance me $15,000 immediately. I am a former dancer, considered attractive, and exotic, and have a well-bred small son."

She said she needs the $15,000 for medical care for an ill younger sister, to pay off creditors, and to care for her son.

British Forces Bag High Guerrilla Total

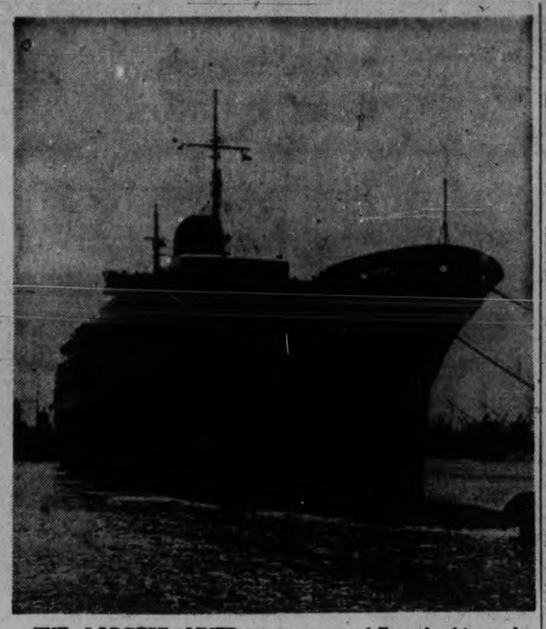
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters)—British security forces in Malaya bagged the highest monthly total of Communist guerrillas last month since the jungle war began here four years ago—at least 109 dead.

High Commissioner Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, announcing these new figures today, said another 18 terrorists had been captured and 23 surrendered during June.



THE LARGEST LINER to come out of French shipyards since the war and the fourth largest unit of the French merchant marine, the 20,300-ton SS FLANDRE of the French Line now is on trials at Dunkirk. The sleek vessel is scheduled to make her maiden voyage on the Le Havre-New York run July 23.

Cobourg First-Sacker Out With An Injury

COBOURG — Cobourg Legionaires baseball team, already worrying about slim reserve strength, suffered a serious setback Wednesday night here.

Fred McMillan, star Cobourg first baseman, suffered a broken bone in his foot while sliding home in the fourth frome of the Baltimore Miller-Canadian General Electric softball tilt. C.G.E. won the game 21-4.

McMillan, regarded by many as the best second baseman in the Lakeshore loop in 1950, dropped out last year, but returned to the Legionaires this season and has become their regular first baseman.

The first base problem was the big worry of the Legionaires this year until McMillan was transferred there and apparently solved the problem. Now it looks as if it will be up to playing manager Howie Dalton to switch from utility positions at third and short to the first base job.

McMillan was taken to the Cobourg General Hospital, where X-rays were taken of the injured member.

These pot luck dinners will be held during the summer as the dinners have proved quite popular with the tourists.

Abundance of hot meat pies, salads and pies are served. Upwards of $100. was realized.

The ladies of Group Four decided to have a sale of home baking and bazaar in the dining hall on July 16 during the afternoon. Each member during the year has turned in a number of home made articles, and these are to be for sale, along with felt handcrafts.

Rhee Winner Of Fight Shift Election

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—President Syngman Rhee tonight won his fight to shift election of a Korean president from the National Assembly to the people.

The Assembly adopted a series of compromise constitutional amendments which may mean an end to Korea's political crisis.

The 77-year-old President also won adoption of his demand for a two-house Legislature, replacing the present one-house Assembly.

Under the compromise, the Assembly gained the right to overturn the Cabinet by a vote of non-confidence, and the Prime Minister rather than the President will name the cabinet.

The Assembly voted 613 to 0 approval of the amendments, climaxing six weeks of feuding with the President. Three members abstained.

The session was called amid reports that Rhee intended to dissolve the Assembly and call for new elections. Attendance was greater than at any time since Rhee declared martial law May 25. Some members were rounded up by police.

The compromise retains the President as executive head of the states and commander in chief of the army and navy—Rhee's source of power during the crisis.

He will continue to name the Prime Minister.

Penguins Reach Canada

VANCOUVER (CP)—A dozen white-coated, dignified king penguins, first to reach Canada, arrived at the Stanley Park zoo yesterday, a gift from Governor Miles Clifford of the Falkland Islands. For the flight across the tropical jungles of South America the big birds were flown in planes equipped with ice compartments.

Lift Cheese Controls

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Agriculture Department yesterday lifted import controls on Swiss, Gruyere, process roquefort and several Italian varieties of cheese. It increased the import quotas for blue mold, edam and gouda combined to 6,000,000 pounds a year. The quota has been 4,700,000 pounds.

Eagles Hockey Club Plans To Return To League Says Sponsor D. A. McGillis

The Eagles Hockey Club of Peterborough will operate again in O.H.A. senior "B" ranks this coming winter, D. A. McGillis, club sponsor and president, announced last night at a dinner he gave the players in the dining hall of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club. He said he would again back the Eagles, and that the executive and players were all anxious to return to the hockey wars. The president gave a short, sharp attack on the Ontario Hockey Association which presently has the club under suspension—despite an O.H.A. rule which says but one official of the club is suspended—for failure to play a game last spring in Kingston. The Eagles had refused to play this game until the status was cleared up of imported Kingston goalie Sonny MacDonald of the Maritimes.

"AN UNFAIR DEAL"

Coach Ned Vitarelli told the more than 40 players and guests that the Eagles had been given a most unfair deal by the O.H.A. and that the club would be back in action this coming hockey campaign. On behalf of the team, he made presentations to D. A. McGillis and to Dr. J. R. Epping, club physician and executive member. Horace Guppy, secretary-treasurer, also came in for considerable praise.

Stan McBride was the capable master of ceremonies at the fine dinner. Mr. McGillis gave out 35 windbreakers to club officials, players and various assistants of the team. Players were present from Peterborough, Oshawa and Lakefield, none being overlooked, and the donor was thanked for the expensive tokens. Following a number of short speeches by those at the head table, films of a Big Four football game of 1951 and the Canadian Open golf tournament were shown to the gathering.

Red Wings Drop 4th Game To Leafs 5-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Rochester Red Wings ever hope to catch the International League-leading Montreal Royals, they will have to start beating Toronto Maple Leafs.

After being only two games behind the Royals at the start of this week's play, the Red Wings dropped three of four at Toronto and then came home last night to lose the opener of a five-game series 5-3 to the same Leafs.

Meanwhile, the Royals extended their margin to four full games as Tommy Lasorda (7-4) blanked the host Syracuse Chiefs 5-0.

Baltimore Orioles moved one percentage point ahead of the seventh-place Buffalo Bisons with a 4-3 decision over the Cubs at Springfield. Tail-end Ottawa beat the Bisons in their home park 9-5.

FAILS IN CLUTCH

The Red Wings had the bases loaded and one run already over with two out in the ninth and player-manager Harry Walker, the league's leading batsman, at the plate. But Ray Shore, hurling in relief of winner Red Fahr (3-7), retired Walker.

Lasorda was backed by nine hits as rookie Frank Marchio set the pace for the second night in a row, driving in the winners' only earned runs with a pair of doubles.

Baltimore cut a ninth-inning Cub rally short to save Jocko Thompson's sixth win in 13 starts. Blix Donnelly put out the fire in the final frame as three Cubs dented the plate after Thompson had a two-hit, 4-0 shutout for eight innings.

Charley Bishop (8-6) was tagged for 12 hits but managed to turn back the Bisons as his Ottawa mates picked up a like number. Bishop himself and Jack Littrell homered for the winners, while Hal Daugherty and Frank Carswell connected for the opposition.

Demote Rookie For Spanking Stephens' Son

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—It came out yesterday why rookie outfielder Jim Piersall was demoted to the minors by the pennant-hungry Boston Red Sox.

Not that Piersall wasn't a good ball player, Red Sox shortstop Vern Stephens told a reporter, but "because of a number of crazy things that made our manager mad."

And when Piersall spanked Stephens' four-year-old son in the Boston clubhouse last Friday night "that was the climax," Stephens reported. Manager Lou Boudreau ordered Piersall sent back to Birmingham of the Southern Association.

Boudreau insisted "the Piersall incident is closed" but he didn't deny the report.

The story was reported first by Ed Costello, sports editor of the Boston Herald. Costello quoted Boudreau:

"When I heard Saturday morning about the Piersall incident with Stevie's son Friday night, I knew that to prevent a serious incident that might involve Stevie and Piersall, it was best to send Jim away."

Stephens said he was "pretty angry" when he heard about the spanking, "as any father naturally would be."

At New Orleans, Piersall admitted the spanking but "I ain't got anything more to add."

P.G. & C.C. CHIPSHOTS

The weather was perfect over the holiday for golf and quite a number of matches were run off. On Saturday about 20 players from here took in the Midland League at Port Hope but found the hilly terrain a little tough. The wind didn't help much either.

At home some of the boys got off to a good start in the Bob Abbott round-robin competition while others didn't fare too well. There are 24 players entered in this interesting tournament and they will have to play about three matches a week to complete it before season's end; so better get going, fellows. Results of matches to date are;

Mike O'Leary def. Don Vyse, 1 up.

Red Sullivan def. Don Vyse, 2 up.

Don Vyse def. Joe Watson, 2 up.

Don Vyse def. D. Pammett, 10 up.

O.A.S.A. has a bulletin out for association secretaries and umpires. It points out that the official strike zone adopted is: "Between batter's armpits and the top of his knees, when the batter assumes his natural stance." That narrows the zone or target the pitcher must hit compared with what it was a year or so ago. This was started last season. It used to be from the shoulder to the middle of the knee. Secretary points out that changes in the residence rule can only be made at the annual O.A.S.A. meeting. Subject matter for the year book is being considered now for next year. Lefty Reid, who formerly pitched here and is now at Chatham, has been re-instated after a lengthy suspension.

* * * * * *

They're now deadlocked for second-place in the O.L.A. senior standing, Toronto Yorks and Petes' Timbermen. Both with 18 points but Yorks have lost one more tilt. Mimico is leading by six points, and Hamilton is down a bit by six points. According to the latest standing we have, though it changes daily it seems. Anyway, second place is at stake when Yorks clash with the Timbermen here tonight, weather being okay, and the loser of this joust will have a hard run ahead to try keeping on the fast-stepping Mounties' heels. So, the Thorpe team will shoot the works on home terrain 'gainst a strong opponent, and it ought to be a right interesting scrap.

Monarchs and Petes

Kingston Monarchs show here again Saturday night in a C.O.B.L. fixture with the Petes. This one is a seven p.m. twilight tilt, and folks can get away earlier than usual. Clubs can't get players off work so easily through the week, hence night games are staged later. Saturday it's different. Can't say yet who will get the slab assignment for Ed Whitehill's crew, and Kingston also are finding it a tough grind on twirlers as they've been staging one or two exhibitions a week. The Petes are due to break out in a rash of basehits at Riverside to give the home fans some thrills and knock off the opposition again.

* * * * * *

There was some plain and fancy belting seen in the Belleville ball park last gloaming as the Redmen defeated Petes 14-7. A total of 35 base blows, even the losers collecting 15. Bryon Young bashed out a homer and triple, while Fred Garvey and Bill Dadson had three safe hits each. Bill Edger clouted a double and single, and Phil Clancy two singles. The Quinte clouters were led by Mouse Bush and Tony Pettit with four apiece. Art Wright was bingled freely by the visitors but his mates also nicked Dadson and Clancy to rack up the count. 'Twas no twirlers' night at all—strictly a hitting spree by all concerned. The win keeps the Reds firmly atop the C.O.B.L. heap.

Puck Eagles To Play

Eagles have every intention of returning to the senior "B" puck wars this coming autumn. That was learned at the dinner which club sponsor and prexy D. A. McGillis gave the team at the Peterborough Golf Club last eve. They all received fine windbreakers and in turn presented him with a nifty engraved tray. Both the sponsor and the club coach, Ned Vitarelli, stated that the team would be back in action, and both blistered the O.H.A. for its suspension of the club early last spring. Players and executive alike felt they had been and were being given a raw deal by the O.H.A., and they plan to fight it plenty. That's the present angle on the Eagles. 'Twas a right enjoyable "do."

A local grid official last evening was telling us that Frank Gnup's Brantford entry in the senior O.R.F.U. was being equipped by Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four and given a payroll of $40,000 for this autumn! The Als then get first call on any good material in the Brantford lineup, whereas the local club might get some pretty fair players from the Hayman squad from time to time. Lally Lalonde and plunging Bill Huntley, with the Orfuns last season in O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" competition, will play for Gnup, the latter being particularly high on husky Bill since Frank coached the local club for the last half of last season. Orfuns will sure miss Huntley.

Rain Washes Out Play At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON (AP) — Rain washed out a full day's play in the all-England Lawn Tennis championships yesterday for the first time since 1923—the year this huge tennis plant was opened.

Officials waited five hours and 15 minutes past the scheduled start before giving into the elements.

The loss of a love set to the weather set the schedule-making department in an uproar. After much juggling, it decided to play the two all-American women's semi-finals, scheduled for yesterday, on the same bill as today's men's singles final between Frank Sedgman of Australia and Jaroslav Drobny, the self-exiled Czech.

Ready to play yesterday, if they could, for the right to be the women's champion, were Maureen Connolly, Shirtley Fry, Louise Brough and Mrs. Pat Todd.

Russian Coaches Highly Honored As Star Pupils

By TOM WHITNEY

MOSCOW (AP)—In Russia the athletic trainer or coach is as highly honored as his star pupils.

The Russian trainer or coach generally is a member of the staff at a sports club. It's his job to select and train leading athletes as well as give general advice to club members.

He becomes the chief authority and mentor in the life of stars under him.

An outstanding Russian instructor is Boris Dyachkov, who holds the title "Honored Master of Sports," the highest rank a Soviet coach can receive.

Dyachkov is the trainer of Nina Dumbadze, famous Russian discus thrower who holds the world record in the event. He is also her husband. Dyachkov is given much of the credit for Nina's success.

Another well-known coach is V.I. Alekseev, instructor at the Zenith Sports Club at Leningrad. He is responsible for developing two of the country's leading women javelin throwers—Natalya Smirnitskaya, the world record holder, and Galya Zybina.

Then there's Dmitri Markov, as widely hailed throughout Russia as his 2 pupils, famous women shot-putters—Anna Andreyeva, world record holder, and Tayana Sevryukova.

Most trainers and coaches are former athletes. They have considerable liberty in selecting pupils and are encouraged in their efforts to find new and better methods of performance.

The basic sports facilities in Russia are maintained by sports clubs which are the heart of the Soviet program. A Soviet citizen may join one of the large Moscow clubs, Spartak or Dynamo, for the price of a package of cigarettes.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Tonight, men's invitation night. Come along and bring a friend at 7.30 o'clock.

The trip to Hillcrest Club, Toronto, that was set for tomorrow afternoon has been cancelled; so we can stay at home and enjoy "The Family Hour" tournament Saturday evening.

About two years ago, a couple of rinks from our club took in the men's open tournament away down east, in Ottawa. When the day's play was over and all scores recorded, it was found that the two Peterborough rinks were tied for a certain prize. Rather than stay and play in Ottawa and get home around sunrise, they decided to play it off on our own greens at some future date. Future is right, because it was played last Wednesday night.

The game had not got past the first end when one of the skips made a protest; he and his rink claimed that a certain player was not entitled to play inasmuch as he was not at the tournament in Ottawa—never was in Ottawa—and they doubted that he knew where Ottawa was. After considerable time was lost, they decided to appeal to the board of management. They convened to the club house and after all the cards were put on the table it was found that this certain player not only knew all about Ottawa, but he was born there. The protest failed and the game proceeded.

Then about half-way through the other skip claimed he was gypped on a measured shot. He claimed that the opposing vice used an elastic measure. That protest was dismissed also with the necessary frills.

It was a good game well played. Some real good bowling and some not so good. The Freeman skip and his "hired" help (and we use the word "hired" advisedly) were up 16-14 at the end of the 21 ends, but it was a close call all the way. Tied five times.

The rooters on the Caledonian bench had a grand evening. They were equally divided.

The presentation of the prizes was quite a ceremony indeed.

The rinks:

John D. Fitzpatrick, Cecil Williamson, Aaron Martin, Percival Moore, Ross Hopkins, Robert Gamble, Harold Freeman, William W. Jeffries sk. Sk. 16-14.

Games last evening were postponed; rain being the cause and, incidentally, it was the first postponed game of the season.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jack Dempsey won the world's heavyweight boxing title 33 years ago today from Jess Willard at Toledo, Ohio. Willard failed to answer the bell for the fourth round. Dempsey held the title until he was beaten on points by Gene Tunney at Philadelphia in 1926.

More Complaints On Selections For Olympics

MONTREAL (CP)—President A. Sidney Dawes of the Canadian Olympic Association said yesterday that, returning from a one-day holiday with his family, he found his desk "littered with complaints about the selections made by the track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Association of Canada."

The complaints followed the Olympic track and field trials at Hamilton last Friday and Saturday.

Dawes said complaints were about non-selection of Mary Lawrance and Jo Brennan of Toronto, in the women's field events; Fred Ruish of Niagara Falls, in the men's shot put, and Bob Bazos of Toronto in the decathlon.

NONE MET STANDARDS

Dawes said none of these athletes during the Olympic trials "made the equivalent of sixth place at the 1948 Olympic Games, which was the standard called for by the C.O.A." For this reason they were not selected.

Other than outlining reasons why selections were not made of athletes about whom protest has arisen, Dawes' statement did not indicate what further action, if any, would be taken by the C.O.A.

Dawes said that in the 1948 games the women's shot put was won with a heave of 45 feet, 1½ inches. Sixth place was 41 feet. Miss Lawrance at the trials, tossed the shot 40 feet, 3¼ inches.

Similarly, in the women's discus throw, the winning 1948 Olympic mark was 137 feet, 6½ inches; sixth place was 127 feet, one inch. At trials Miss Brennan's throw was 123 feet, 3 inches.

(Both Miss Lawrance and Miss Brennan set Canadian native records in their respective victories. The standards given the press for these events in Hamilton were 37 feet for the shot put and 120 feet for the discus. Track sources told The Canadian Press last night that these were the standards established but said also that entry forms, filled by all athletes, stated that bettering standards at the meet would not necessarily mean an athlete would be on the team, now bound for the 1952 games at Helsinki, Finland.)

Lefty Roger Bowman Pitches No-Hit Game

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Lefty Roger Bowman, Oakland pitcher on option from New York Giants, pitched a no-hit, no-run game last night against Hollywood, leader of the Pacific Coast League. Oakland won 5-0.

It was the league's second no-hitter of the season, both turned in by Oakland hurlers. Hal Gregg, now with the Giants, pitched a seven-inning no-hit game May 1 against Portland.

Redmen Victors Over Petes In League Game

BELLEVILLE — Redmen and Petes' bludgeons blasted heavy barrages here last night as Belleville defeated Peterborough 14-7 in a wide-open Central Ontario Baseball League game. The win was the seventh in eight league starts for the Redmen and further strengthened their hold on first place.

Thirty-five base hits bounded off their bats with the Reds collecting 20. A homer, four triples and seven doubles were included in the barrage with the Petes getting the round-tripper, two triples and two doubles and the winners coming up with two three-baggers and five two basers.

LED ATTACK

Mouse Bush and Tony Pettitt spearheaded the Reds' attack with Bush lashing out a triple, double and two singles, driving in three runs, and Pettitt getting a triple and three singles. Mulholland clicked for a double and two singles, Gilmour was good for a triple and two singles with Wardhaugh, Kelleher and Semark getting two each.

Young paced the Petes' offensive with a homer and a triple. Garvey and Dadson each had three singles with Edger getting a double and single, and Clancy two loners.

Art Wright, racked up his fourth victory for the Redmen and was touched for 15 clouts over the nine innings route. He whiffed six and walked two.

Lefty Dadson started for the Petes and worked for 4 2/3 innings when he was relieved by Clancy after giving up 11 hits for 10 runs. Clancy was hit freely, yielding nine hits for four over the rest of the route.

Giants Take Sixth Straight Beat Out Brooklyn 4-3

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

You've heard of the tradition . . . that the Fourth of July leaders are supposed to win the major league pennants. That has been true more than 50 per cent. of the time. But it didn't happen last year. Then the leaders were Brooklyn in the National League and Chicago White Sox in the American.

New York Giants and New York Yankees clashed in the World Series last October. Where were they July 4? In second place.

This should be a comforting thought to the Giants and White Sox this year for both were in the runner-up spots as the Fourth of July fireworks began with doubleheaders in eight major league parks.

CAN'T TAKE LEAD

The Sox, 2½ games behind the pace-setting Yankees in the American, can't possibly take over the top spot today even if they should win two from St. Louis Browns while the Yanks drop two in Washington. The best the Giants can do is tie the Dodgers for first.

The Giants moved to within two games of the Dodgers yesterday, taking their sixth straight from Brooklyn, with a 4-3 decision.

Don Mueller starred for the Giants. He tripled in two runs in the sixth inning and then scored on a single by George Wilson. He also brought in the first run following a walk. Jim Hearn turned in his ninth triumph for the Giants. The loss went to Billy Loes.

The White Sox thrashed the Browns twice, 6-3 and 12-3, to move past Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians. They picked up a full game on the Yanks who were held to a split by Washington. The Senators won the second game 6-4 after losing the opener 9-6.

Philadelphia Athletics dropped Boston into fifth place with a 4-3 verdict. Cleveland, rained out at Detroit, fell from second to third.

CARDS, PHILS HOT

St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies continued their torrid pace in the National. The Cards, behind the five-hit pitching of Joe Presko, defeated Chicago Cubs 4-1 for their 13th win in the last 17 games. The Phils made it five wins in seven starts under their new manager, Steve O'Neill, as southpaw Curt Simmons turned in a four-hit 2-0 shutout over Boston Braves.

Bubba Church pitched Cincinnati Reds to a 5-1 victory over Pittsburgh.

Eddie Robinson banged in seven runs in the nightcap with a pair of three-run homers and a single to give the White Sox their sweep over the Browns. The first game was a continuation of a game suspended since April 27. The homers were Robinson's 11th and 12th.

Eddie Yost's bases-loaded single in the fifth inning of the nightcap off Bobby Hogue snapped a 4-4 tie and gave the Senators a split in the doubleheader with the Yanks. New York came from behind with four-run splurges in the seventh and ninth inning to win the opener. Jackie Jensen, former Yankee, hit safely in each game for the Nats to extend his hitting streak through 20 consecutive games.

SEVENTH FOR SIMMONS

Billy Hitchcock's bases-loaded single with two out in the last of the ninth broke up a 3-3 tie and gave Carl Scheib of the A's his second victory. Dick Grenert's homer with two on in the sixth accounted for all Boston's runs.

Simmons did not issue a base on balls as he spun his fourth shutout and his seventh victory against two defeats for the Phils. A home run by Del Ennis was all he needed.

Roe Withdraws

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers announced yesterday that pitcher Preacher Roe has been given permission to withdraw from the All-Star game Tuesday at Philadelphia to visit his father, critically ill in Viola, Ark.

Kitney Family Garden Farmers For 64 Years

For three generations, Peterborough housewives have been buying fresh vegetables grown on the River Road truck farm of Charles Kitney and Sons on the outskirts of the city.

In 1888, Charles Kitney began market gardening and during the last 64 years, the acreage under cultivation and the amount of produce grown has expanded with the growth of the city until today, it is a year-round business.

Truck farming is a family proposition with the Kitneys who operate Chesley Gardens and Greenhouses as a partnership, in which the founder's grandson, John Kitney, is an actiuve partner. The business is managed by his uncle Ernest Kitney.

About 20 acres are planted in various vegetables each year and an irrigation system ensures a good crop even in a dry season such as this year.

TOMATOES COMING

Two crops of stake tomatoes are grown in large greenhouses heated with a hot water heating system and when the Kitneys are not busy looking after field crops, they are either preparing the soil in the greenhouses for the spring and fall hothouse tomato crop or growing seedlings for the next planting.

During dry weather, the irrigation system sprinkles 6,000 gallons of water on the crops every hour. There is danger of burning tender leaves if the system is used when the sun is hot during the day but in the early morning and evening, the system is used an average of 10 hours a day and sometimes as much as 16 hours.

About 15,000 head of early cabbages were grown this year and there was both a good demand and a good price for them on account of the dry weather.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 late cauliflower are grown each year along with thousands of heads of lettuce, celery, and other vegetables such as radishes, parsnips, carrots, onions, beets and turnips.

ALL VARIETIES

The Kitneys do not specialize in any particular crop, but grow all varieties of vegetables and all their produce is marketed in the city.

Weed sprays, a by-product of crude oil used in the manufacture of gasoline, have eliminated much of the back-breaking work of weeding rows of carrots, parsnips and turnips. The rows are usually sprayed twice during the season with the solution which is somewhat similar to cleaning fluid, and youngsters are hired during their summer holidays from school to thin the vegetables.

Slightly different solutions are used for different vegetables and the chemical kills the leaves of the weeds, but does not harm the vegetables. Practically all root crops except beets can be spray weeded.

PREPARE FOR NEXT YEAR

During the fall and winter, after field crops are harvested, there are turnips to be waxed and about the latter part of February, greenhouses are started for the coming season.

The last of the spring crop of hothouse stake tomatoes is being picked now, the summer tomato crop is thriving in the fields and tiny seedlings which will be producing fresh tomatoes about Christmas time are sprouting in open outdoor hot beds.

Wherever possible, ground used for early vegetables is replanted as soon as the crop is off and rye is often sown as a cover crop with late plantings, to be ploughed under in the spring, so the soil will contain the proper amount of humus which is necessary to produce top quality vegetables.

IRRIGATION SOLVES DROUGHT on the River Road truck farm of Charles Kitney and sons, where 20 acres of vegetables are thriving in spite of the dry weather. Chemical weed sprays have practically eliminated the back-breaking work of weeding carrots, parsnips and other vegetables but they still have to be thinned and the youngsters in the top photo are hard at it, and earning some spending money during their summer holidays. The farm is operated as a family partnership and John Kitney in the lower photo is looking over the hothouse stake tomato crop with his uncle, Ernest Kitney who is manager of the business.—Examiner Staff Photos.

Hard Work To Root Out Poison Ivy

Poison ivy is the weed of this week in the present series of notices issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

It is commonly found growing in fence rows, roadsides, around bathing beaches and playgrounds in other locations where cultivation is next to impossible.

J. W. MacRae, fieldman for the crops branch of the department say: 'One type creeps along the ground; another grows 1½ to 2 feet high; and a third is the climber, which is found growing over fences and trees. They are easily recognized by their leaves, which grow in groups of three at the top of the stem. These leaves are usually shiny or waxy on top surface.

Small greenish-yellow flowers develop in the axils of the leaves, and these are followed by pale grey seeds which stay on the plant over the winter. In the fall, the leaves turn a brilliant orange or scarlet."

Cultivation destroys poison ivy, but it is seldom found within the range of that farm work. In the more difficult locations it can be grubbed out with a heavy hoe or other digging equipment. He warns those doing the digging to be extremely careful to avoid touching the plant with the hands or other parts of the body.

Mr. MacRae says the weed killers 2-4,D and 2-4-5-T, will give good control, but several applications will be necessary to completely eradicate the weed. For large areas, the recommended dosage is 2 pounds of acid per acre. However, for small patches, 2½ oz. of 2-4-5,T in 10 gallons of water will give effective control. After treatment, the area should be watched for new growth. If new plants start, up further applications can be given, and the poison ivy will eventually be eradicated.

In summing up the control measures, Mr. MacRae feels that control of poison ivy can only be brought about by persistent treatment, and all effort put forth to control and eradicate this menace will be well worth while.

If contact is made with this weed, the affected area of the body should be washed with soap and water at least four or five times and a five per cent alcholic solution of ferric chloride then applied. Some victims get good results by treating the affected skin with calamine lotion.

Charlton Grigg is the local leader of the club which is sponsored by Roseneath Agricultural Society and under the supervision of the assistant agricultural representative, Sidney MacDonnel.

Following are the officers: President, Bruce Davidson; vice-president, Phyllis O'Connell; secretary-treasurer, Adele Varcoe.

During the business period, it was decided to change the name of the club from Roseneath Calf Club to Roseneath 4-H Calf Club. The new name was adopted because of the international significance of the name 4-H, and the steps previously taken by other provinces. No changes were made in the rules and regulations.

Achievement day will be held in co-operation with the fair. A number of the Roseneath junior farmers were privileged to meet Ian Graham, Northumberland, England, who is spending a month in Ontario and spent a week in Northumberland county. Mr. Graham is one of team of six junior farmers from England touring Ontario.

Plans were made for the next meeting to be held at the home of Miss Adele Varcoe, July 31.

Egg Subsidy Ends In U.S. Net Cost $169 Million

The U.S. egg subsidy program is ending at a cost of nearly $169,000,000.

At the end of the war, Congress decreed that price support should be provided for surplus eggs, potatoes, and other crops. Since then the Department of Agriculture has spent $403,900,000 on eggs, including storage cost, and got back $235,000,000.

The losses came in gifts or bargain sales, mostly abroad. The program, all in dried eggs, ended Dec. 31, 1950. By the beginning of this week, Agricultural Secretary Brannan expected to "be shed" of the last 5,200,000 pounds left over. Some of it has been kept in caves in the west.

The whole lot was offered recently to export dealers for what it would bring. It must be sold abroad.

Involved since early 1946 have been some 355,600,000 pounds of dried eggs. At three dozen shell eggs to the pound, that has run into "quite a few" eggs—12,801,000,000.

Since the beginning of 1951, there has been no support buying. Producers have cut their output slightly and consumption of shell eggs has increased to take up the slack. Prior to World War II, U. S. consumed less than 300 eggs per person a year. The figure is now crowding 400.

A new program of buying shell eggs began a few weeks ago. It is limited to 500,000 cases a year. The department expects to close [illegible] storage periods without much loss.

Ferry Service Disrupted On Detroit River

DETROIT (AP)—Passenger and railroad car ferry service on Lake Michigan and the Detroit River between Detroit and Windsor, was halted today by the strike of members of the Great Lakes Licensed Officers Organization.

Herman M. Booth, Jr., marine director of the independent union, called the strike at 12:01 a.m. this morning.

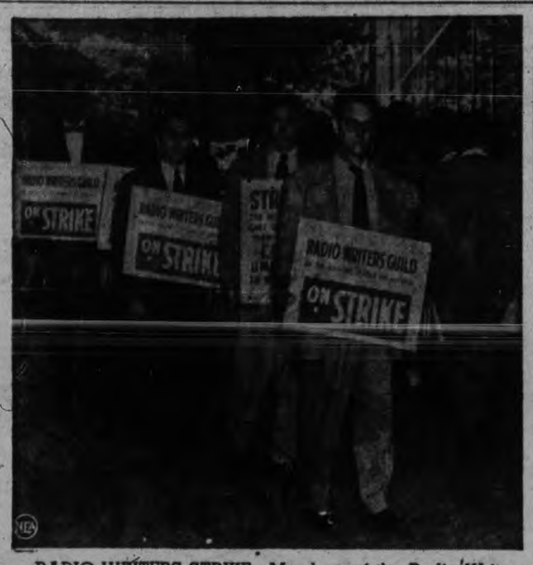
Ferries operated by five railroad were affected by the strike, called as the Fourth of July holiday traffic to Wisconsin and resort areas in Michigan's upper peninsula neared its peak.

Some 250 members of the union are involved in the strike. They all are officers on the car ferries. The strike centres on a wage dispute.

Officers are demanding a pay increase from $28 to $40 month for captains of ferry boats, and corresponding raises for lower grade personnell.

Negotiations between the officers and the operating railroad have been in progress since March 1. The national railway labor mediation board abandoned efforts to settle the dispute last May. The strike followed the board's mandatory 30-day cooling off period.

The strike made idle 20 ferries.



RADIO WRITERS STRIKE—Members of the Radio Writers Guild picket the RCA Exhibition Hall in New York's Rockefeller Centre after calling a strike against three major networks. The strike came when the networks rejected Guild demands in a wage dispute. Also to be picketed was Chicago's International Amphitheatre, site of the upcoming political conventions.

Brakes Faulty Man Fined $10

Bertram Durham, Bethany truckdriver, Thursday afternoon was found guilty on a charge of driving with faulty brakes. He was fined $10, and costs, by Magistrate W. R. Philp, Q.C.

Durham, who hauls milk from the Bethany district for a Peterborough dairy, pleaded not guilty.

The charges arose as a result of an accident April 23 at Charlotte and Aylmer Streets. Later Constable Wilfred Perry, a qualified mechanic, tried the brakes and found [illegible] pumped three times before being even partly effective.

Durham testified that the brakes were in working order before the accident and he was able to drive the truck about town without difficulty even after the accident. He attributed the trouble to a defective master cylinder.

"It was an old crock that should not be on the road," was the comment of Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, Q.C. He said that the steering also had to be fixed on the 1936-model truck.

W. F. Huycke, Q.C., was counsel for Durham.

Say Building Contracts Down From '51

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Building contracts in Canada are down from 1951, but in comparison with any other year the pace would be a record one.

It was in 1949 that contracts first passed $1,000,000,000 for a full year, reaching $1,140,116,200. In 1950 they totalled $1,525,499,000, and in 1951 they boomed to $2,295,499,000.

This year, the six-month figure is $904,779,300, or $273,526,500 off the 1951 pace, but still a whopping figure, especially in view of the fact that non-essential building is discouraged.

The figures are from MacLean Building Reports, Ltd.

Contracts in June totalled $203,964,000. This is down $178,395,900 from June last year when the figures were swollen by hydro-electric projects in Ontario

June figures by categories, compared with June, 1951, were:

Residential $60,956,900, up $10,696,000; business $53,980,200, up $2,799,700; industrial $49,340,100, down $17,373,000; engineering $39,627,700, down $174,518,600.

June figures by areas were:

Maritimes $12,359,700, up $4,163,300; Quebec $62,452,000, up $8,946,200; Ontario $72,762,500, down $159,374,000; West $56,330,700, down $32,131,000. Ontario's engineering category was down $162,109,600.

Big contracts in June included a $20,000,000 smelter in Quebec, a $12,000,000 chemical plant in Alberta; and a $5,400,000 power development at Pine Portage, Ont.

Commons Busy Winding Up Sessional Business Today

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament, sitting since Feb. 28, is due to end its sessional business today.

The legislators will adjourn until Nov. 20 and soon after that are expected to prorogue and start off a new session that will run into 1953 and constitute the main sitting for that year.

Business of the current sitting drew within striking distance last night when the Senate gave quick approval of the bill for redistributing Commons representation, most controversial measure of recent weeks.

HOIST DEFEATED

Earlier in the day, the Commons itself gave the bill third and final reading after a concluding attempt by the Progressive Conservatives to give it the six-months' hoist. The hoist was defeated by a vote of 90 to 27.

But with that controversy out of the way, the progress towards prorogation slowed up somewhat as the Commons gave over part of the afternoon sitting and most of the night to discussion of Post Office Department estimates.

In this it heard:

1. A demand by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, that the use of the mails be barred to Communistic material such as that put out by the leftist Canadian Peace Congress.

2. A renewal by about a dozen members of the annual call for improvement in the system of paying rural mail carriers.

3. Urgings by some members that the Post Office Department revive the two-a-day mail delivery in urban residential areas, discontinued last year.

CAN'T CENSOR MAIL

Postmaster-General Cote, piloting his estimates through the House for the first time, said his department objects to censoring the mail and must have evidence that an offence is being committed before it can act to bar the mails to an organization.

Mr. Drew said the department has shut off mail service for lotteries, and it should take similar action against "seditious, disloyal and scurrilous" material being sent by the Peace Congress.

The night debate on that point was a sequel to an earlier discussion in which Prime Minister St. Laurent expressed the personal view that Dr. James Endicott of Toronto, head of the congress, is guilty of breaking Canadian laws in recent statements concerning the Korean War.

CONVICTION UNLIKELY

But Prime Minister, in response to questions from Progressive Conservatives, indicated the government doubts the chances of getting a conviction on the available evidence. He said nothing to change a previously-announced decision against prosecuting Dr. Endicott.

On the long-standing issue of the rural mail carriers' pay, Mr. Cote said he will refer the question to a departmental committee for study. They now get their jobs on a four-year tender-contract basis, and several members said this results in their being underpaid.

Mr. Cote said his department is not contemplating a return to the twice-a-day urban delivery.

Believe Men Lived In Canada More Than 7,000 Years Ago

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Museum is excited over discovery of "quite unique" evidence that men lived in Canada 5,000 years ago and possibly even longer ago than the 7,000 years established by United States discoveries.

Dr. F. J. Alcock, chief curator of the museum, making no effort to hide his enthusiasm, said yesterday that hundreds of ancient, crudely-worked stones have been shipped here for study. He called their discovery "one of the biggest things ever turned up in Canada" by archaeologists.

The stones were found over a 50-acre area on Manitoulin Island a year ago. The discovery was kept secret mainly because the stones were found near a main highway and it was felt wide publicity would interfere with the work.

It was made by Thomas Lee of museum staff who now is directing the scientific recovery of any further traces of ancient man at the site at Sheduiandah Bay, near Little Current. Dr. Alcock intends to go to the site shortly to join in the search.

More than 800 hand-worked stones taken off the surface of the land or down to a depth of six inches have been shipped here. Absence of arrow-heads or of pottery indicated extremely great age.

The New York State Museum has traced North American man back 7,000 years through discoveries that have extended into southern Ontario. The Manitoulin Island rocks are different, however, and may go back even further into time, Dr. Alcock said.

In Little Current, Mr. Lee said: "Nothing like it has ever been discovered anywhere in North America—perhaps in the world."

The chance discovery of a hand-worked stone in a farmer's field by Mr. Lee last year led to the partial uncovering of an ancient village site.

Movie Bosses Re-Discover Eddie Albert

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The movies are up to one of their old tricks—re-discovering an actor who has always been great.

The actor is Eddie Albert and the amazing thing about his re-discovery is that it came about in competition with the actor who is generally regarded as the world's greatest—Sir Laurence Olivier.

Albert is the brash, travelling salesman of "Carrie" who woos heroine Jennifer Jones, an Oscar-winner herself, and then loses her to the suave Olivier.

Good as Olivier and Jones were, many a critic came out of the press showing with comments something like this:

"That Eddie Albert sure is a great actor. Where's he been lately?"

PRE-WAR STAR

The 44-year-old Albert (he looks much younger) was a popular movie star before the war. He started off strong in "Brother Rat," the same role he had played on Broadway.

Then came a hitch with the U.S. Navy in the south Pacific, and Hollywood soon forgot. His post-career never quite hit the big time.

I thought I'd find out from Eddie why Hollywood, constantly searching for new faces, just as constantly overlooks its own proven performers.

I picked the wrong day, it turned out. I looked up Eddie at a local television station where he has been a 25-hour-a-week disk jockey on a daytime program.

ANOTHER FILM

It was his last day on the show before a summer layoff. He was leaving for Rome the next day. Willie Wyler, the director who made "Carrie," had just signed Albert to make "Roman Holiday" with Gregory Peck and Audrey Hepburn.

Midway in Albert's TV stint, an old movie is shown. This gives him an hour's break—long enough, I had hoped, to learn what I wanted to know.

He dashed from the set, grabbed me by the arm and headed for the parking lot.

"Come along to my lawyer's office with me. I have to sign my will."

His lawyer gave him a copy of the will.

"It's so legal, I can't understand it." He signed it without reading it.

He grabbed my arm again and soon we were riding along in the car.

"Eddie", I began, "now that . . ."

He interrupted with: "Wait a minute. I have to stop here and pick up my watch."

Two more stops and we were back at the TV station.

"One of my sponsors is a re-upholstering firm," he said.

"Eddie," I began again, "now that Hollywood has re-discovered you. . ."

An assistant handed Eddie a re-built vacuum cleaner. He was on.

"Gosh, that hour went fast," remarked Eddie, shaking hands. "Hope you found out what you wanted to know?"

Present Signet Ring To Albert Wagner

APSLEY (ENS).—Mr. and Mrs. Norm Wilson entertained on Saturday evening a number of young people at their summer cottage on Cedar Lake. The gathering was to honor Albert Wagner, who is leaving in the near future for Regina, where he will enter the R.C.M.P. for training.

An address was read by Rena Earnshaw and a signet ring presented by Andrea Steer.

The evening was spent dancing and Mrs. Wilson and daughter served lunch.

Take Dollar At Par

TORONTO (CP) — Despite the 3⅜-cent premium of the Canadian dollar, United States tourists can still get full face value for their money in Toronto, a survey showed today. However, retailers said further widening of the exchange gap may force a revision of sales practices.

Judge Caron Holds Reporter In Contempt Of Court

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Francois Caron, presiding at Montreal's vice inquiry, yesterday held a woman newspaper reporter in contempt of court for declining to name bookies who gave her information for a newspaper story about gambling.

The Superior Court justice deferred sentencing of Mrs. Jacqueline Sirois Moore, now a staff writer for Weekend Picture Magazine, until today.

She was found in contempt for objecting to revealing the names of bookies to whom she talked for information for a story appearing in the Montreal Standard Aug. 3, 1946. The story bore the headline: "Bookie says he paid $80 a week for protection."

Asked by Mr. Justice Caron whether she knew the penalty for refusal to answer, Mrs. Moore said she didn't.

NO PENALTY LIMIT

Mr. Justice Caron said: "There is no limit to the successive terms that could be imposed. You have heard of the man in the United States who got 15 years for contempt. I cannot go back on my decision. A judge's order must be followed until he is reversed."

The inquiry is into alleged non-enforcement of anti-vice laws by the police department over a 10-year period.

Joseph Cohen, Q.C., counsel for some persons concerned in the inquiry, told Mr. Justice Caron he felt a journalist's sources of information should remain secret.

Mr. Justice Caron said: "The privilege of not testifying depends on the kind of person questioned. In the case of a priest it applies for the confessional. A doctor is the sole judge of whether he should answer. A barrister has to be believed by his client. And so on.

"I do not believe that a journalist is privileged. . ."

Autopsy Reveals Shooting Suicide

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — An autopsy yesterday showed that Douglas C. Young, 50, railway worker found shot to death in the basement of his home Wednesday night, died from self-inflicted wounds.

Dr. J. MacLan, provincial pathologist, said powder burns on the body led to the belief the death was a suicide. No inquest will be held.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CV. No. 3 — FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1952 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

Rivetter Cheats Death, Grabs Rope In Plunge From Second-Storey Girder

Worker Bounces Off Concrete Wall Escapes With Few Injuries After 20-Foot Fall To Basement Floor

Plunging from a second storey steel girder where he had his footing today, a Cape Breton construction worker grabbed at a dangling rope. He caught it and hung on long enough to break his fall so that he was only bruised and shaken up when he dropped to a concrete basement floor more than 20 feet below. The dangling rope, quick thinking and just plain luck, combined to save 29-year-old Fred Botts from death or serious injury in his second close brush with death in recent months.

Botts was rivetting on a girder of the new department store building being erected on George St., on the site of the former Zack's Building, destroyed by fire in May, 1951, when he felt himself slipping.

He was dropping head first toward the concrete basement floor, when he saw the hanging rope and grabbed it.

CHECKED FALL

His grip gave way but slowed his fall enough so that he was able to right himself and aim his feet between two beams on the ground floor. His body then bounced off the concrete basement wall and he ended up on the basement floor with only a rope burn on his right arm and bruises on his left arm and back.

A medical examination failed to reveal any broken bones.

"It sure is a funny feeling to be falling," Botts commented as he rubbed the bruised muscles of his left arm.

"A steel worker needs nine lives," he added as he mentioned that a few months ago he was working on a similar job in the Maritimes when he slipped off a sixth storey girder. That time he came out even luckier than he did today. He caught the next beam underneath and was able to hang on, otherwise he would likely have been killed by the long fall.

THIS ROPE saved Fred Botts (above) from death or serious injury today when he grabbed it and slowed the rate of his fall before he lost his grip, after he had lost his footing and fallen headfirst from a second-storey steel girder (top X) of the new department store building being erected on George Street, and bounced off the concrete wall on the site of the former Zacks building.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Hope To Produce Music Festival For Dominion

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Establishment of a national music festival in Canada is being discussed here by the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals.

The annual convention voted Wednesday to hold over for further discussion a resolution by B. R Guss of Saint John, N.B., calling for a committee to formulate plans for such a festival.

Mr. Guss' resolution said a national festival would help foster a national spirit in the Canadian Federation and would provide a forum for Canada's musical talents of promise.

Reginald Sugo of Winnipeg was re-elected president as the Federation wound up its annual conference yesterday.

The 1953 conference will be held at Peterborough.

Vice-presidents named were Mr. Guss, Frederick Parish of Port Arthur and Harold Hay of Saskatoon. R. W. Cooke of Winnipeg was elected secretary-treasurer and named to the board of directors were Ralph Booth, Vancouver, H. G. Turner, Edmonton; R. M. Aikenhead, Saskatoon; James Heaton, Winnipeg; J.G. Sutherland, Ottawa; D. W. Macpherson, Newfoundland, and Mrs. Lorna Grayston, Halifax.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

CLOSE LINDSAY LOCKS

A few spoilsports have ended swimming in the Lindsay Street Locks for this year, Lockmaster Thomas Heenan has said. A couple of youths took advantage of their swimming privileges in the lock area and tampered with Department of Transport boats moored there. Mr. Heenan also complained of abusive language.

HURT BY TRACTOR

RICE LAKE 'LUNGE

A. J. Zumbro of McKeesport, Pa., caught a 17-pound 'lunge off Keene on Rice Lake on Thursday. He was using a june bug spinner and worm. Mr. Zumbro is the first fisherman to qualify for the Order of Kawartha Muskie and was presented with crest and certificate today at the Chamber of Commerce.

TOP NAVIGATOR

The award was made by the Institute of Navigation in San Francisco.

7 Buses Bring 264 Children From Farms To Inspect City

Seven bus loads of 4-H club boys and girls from Simcoe County arrived in the city today for a day-long visit that will include visits to the DeLaval and Quaker Oats plants and the farm of Harry Blewitt on the Chemong Road. The buses picked up the 264 farm club members throughout the county and formed a cavalcade at Orillia.

After their arrival in Peterborough at 10.30, they toured the DeLaval plant and then went to Nicholls Oval.

There they ate the picnic lunches they brought with them.

Frank Stone, assistant agricultural representative of South Simcoe and Jim Hancock, associate representative of North Simcoe are in charge of the group which is one of the largest ever to visit the city.

SHOW WHOLE PROVINCE

Purpose of the tour Mr. Stone said is to "take the 4-H members to different parts of the province each year and show them the province from an agricultural viewpoint."

After the lunch break at Nicholls Oval, they were scheduled to visit the Quaker Oats plant where they will see grain being converted into animal feeds and learn the relationship between the milling industry and agriculture.

Then, the buses will take the youngsters to the Blewitt farm on the Chemong Road, and they will return to the city for dinner at the Empress Hotel before leaving for home.

Mayor Hugh Waddell and County Warden Dick Stewart will get the junior agriculturists at the dinner this evening.

Dobson Fly Awesome Brute

A specimen of one of the nastiest looking insects in the district, the Dobson Fly, was brought to the Examiner newsroom today by Clarence Manley of 705 George St., for identification. He picked it off his screen door on Thursday evening.

It was an adult of that popular bait insect, the helgrammite, which is much sought after by fishermen in the fast-flowing Otonabee River waters and small tributary creeks.

This "fly", a member of the neuroptera or nerve-winged insects, is properly called the "corydalis cornuta" and has a wing expanse of 4 to 5 inches and about the same overall length. The sharp claws or mandibles will snatch a person's finger and hang on.

The helgrammite is found under stones in water. It remains in the wingless crawling stage for three years and after laying clutches of 3,000 eggs or so develops to grow into the super-sized Dobson Fly.

According to the number of helgrammites collected and sold by bait dealers, the country roundabout, and city, is probably filled with these ugly looking insects. Only two have been brought to the Examiner this season.

LAKEFIELD REEVE STRICKEN

Reeve E. H. Northey of Lakefield was stricken with a heart attack at his home on Thursday and was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital for observation. He was visited for a short time in the evening by Mrs. Northey who reported that he was resting comfortably. She attributes his condition to overwork during the past few months and says that he will recuperate at their summer home at Clear Lake for the balance of the summer when he is released from hospital.

3 Minor Crashes Damage Cars

Three minor accidents were reported on city streets late Thursday afternoon and Thursday night.

John Simpson of RR 2, Peterborough came to the police station and reported that a two-and-a-half ton truck, owned by Lloyd Edwards of Little Britain, had backed into his car which was parked at Reid St. and Parkhill Rd. Simpson said he called out to the driver but the truck moved away.

Damage was caused to the front of the car.

Constable Ted Stephen investigated.

J. S. Leggitt of 382 George St. N. damaged the grill of his 1949-model car Thursday night at George and Sherbrooke Sts. when he collided with another northbound car, driven by Grant E. Finnie of 57¼ Hunter St.

The rear bumper of the Finnie car was slightly damaged.

When his brakes failed while making a U-turn at Murray and George Sts., Earl Fader of William St., Lindsay, ran into the right front of a car driven by Harry Dunford of 181 Murray St.

The brake fluid ran out of the Fader car and the vehicle ran into the right front fender of Dunford's car that was just starting a left turn onto Murray. The left front bumper of Fader's car was dented.

Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

CBC To Build TV Station

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann announced today the CBC has been authorized to build a $800,000 television station in Ottawa.

He said the Montreal and Toronto stations will begin operations early in September and that current expansion plans are being limited to those two cities and Ottawa until the public can judge the results.

But extension of television into the west and the Maritimes and other areas "has not been lost sight of," he told the Commons.

Dr. McCann predicted that by late next spring Ottawa will be in the Canadian network and said it is intended to originate some shows here.

Pavement Wet Car Skids, Rolls

Two Havelock men were uninjured Thursday night when their car skidded on the wet highway west of Havelock and rolled over.

George Barker, 18, was driving the 1934-model car along Highway 8, just over a mile west of Havelock, when the vehicle skidded on a sharp curve. The pavement was still wet from a rain storm.

Lorne King, also of Havelock, was a passenger in the car and crawled to safety through a window after the vehicle came to rest on its top.

Damage was estimated at $100. O.P.P. Constable John Cawood investigated.

NOT POLIO

The seven-year-old girl who was believed to be Peterborough's first polio case of the season has turned out to be suffering a temporary nervous infection.

American Tourists Start To Crowd Streets

Discount or not, American tourists are coming to Peterborough.

At mid-afternoon Thursday a count of cars parked on the east and west sides of George St., between Simcoe and Charlotte Sts. showed 10 of the 21 cars had American licenses.

Eight more of the cars had out-of-town licenses.

James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce reports the tourist industry is booming in the Kawartha district. He said that eight parties had called this morning at the chamber office and there was a great deal of difficulty finding accommodation for them.

HOMES ON THE ROAD

Starting on the eve of the American holiday, July Fourth, tourists streamed through the city en route to summer resorts of their choice. Many who had apparently driven all night pulled over to the side of city streets and highways to snatch a few hours of sleep before continuing on to their destinations.

OPENING DAY CATCH

Gordon Freeburn and Wilbert Barcroft, both of 368 Downie St., must have had all the luck on opening day. Before breakfast on Tuesday on Buckhorn Lake off the Ennismore shore they boated 15 'lunge—four of them keepers (above), 11 pickerel (two of the largest above), three black bass and one green. They had nary a strike after 6:30 a.m.

Pay Envelopes New Slim Look

Taxes are taking an even larger slice out of take home pay now that all personal income is being taxed two per cent to pay for old age security pensions.

The new tax announced last April when finance minister Douglas Abbott presented the budget to Parliament went into effect July 1.

Actually, income taxes are slightly less this year, but the over-all effect of the reduction in income tax and the two per cent tax for social security means that Canadians are paying slightly more tax on their income than they have been paying.

From now on, wage earners will be paying two cents out of every dollar, in addition to their regular income tax, to pay for old age pensions, and the total amount each individual will pay, will of course vary, depending on the amount earned.

However the government has ruled that regardless of the amount of income an individual may be earning, the two per cent tax cannot be more than $30 for the remainder of 1952 and for 1953, and later years it cannot exceed a maximum of $60.

Kelly To Perform At Big Air Meet

LONDON (CP)—Canada's airmen will participate prominently in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's first annual air demonstration at Brussels July 11-13. Representatives of 11 N. A. T. O. air forces, totalling 1,500 airmen, will take part.

Flt. Lt. Dean Kelly of Peterborough will be solo aerobatics performer and the 441 Silver Fox jet squadron under Sqdn. Ldr. Andy MacKenzie of Montreal will do formation flying in F86 Sabre jets.

Ian F. McRae Appointed Vice-President

In his new capacity, Mr. McRae will be responsible for achieving over-all company objectives in the fields, through the five self-contained operating divisions which the company recently set up as part of its broad scale decentralization program.

Last October Mr. McRae was promoted from works manager here, a position he held for ten years, to the company's head office in Toronto, as assistant to vice-president K. J. Corkery.

After joining the C.G.E. here as an apprentice in 1925, Mr. McRae rose to the position of works manager at the age of 43, in 1941.

During the war, he was director and manager of Genelco Limited, the government owned company operated by C.G.E. and he has held important defence posts during and since the Second World War, in addition to his other duties.

Mr. McRae is a past president of the Rotary Club of Peterborough and the Peterborough Y.M.-C.A. and is a member of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario and the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Reds Protest Pass Demand

BERLIN (AP)—The Russians protested to the British high commissioner last night over "continued harassment" of the Communist radio Berlin building in the divided city's British sector.

The Communist-controlled East German news agency, ADN, published a note from Gen. Vassily Chuikov, chief of the Soviet control commission to the British high commissioner, Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick. Chuikov said East German employees of the station are in virtual confinement.

The letter referred to a British troop barricade thrown around the station last month. The British move was in retaliation for Communist grabs of land parcels on the West Berlin border.

Later Britain removed her troops but West German police now require the station's East German employees to carry special passes.

A British spokesman termed Chuikov's charges "unfounded" and said British troops had not interfered with operation of the station.

Reserve Decision On Firemen's Raise

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—A three-man arbitration board headed by Judge James Maxwell Cooper of Sudbury today reserved decision on a request by local firemen for more money, a shorter work-week and pension improvements.

The firemen want a wage increase of $35 a month to make the average wage $286. Firemen also want the present 56-hour week reduced to 48.

Canada's horse population in 1951 was 1,306,634, or less than half the total counted in 1941.

THREATENS REVOLT — Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina (right) tells the 44th annual Governors Conference in Houston, Tex., that he will walk out of the Democratic national convention if the anti-Truman delegation from Texas, headed by Gov. ## Four Entrants Only Ones To Start Race

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. — (AP). —The all-women international air race got off to a wobbly start today, with only four of 11 original entrants taking to the air. Bad weather was between them and the finish line in Canada tomorrow.

Mrs. Blaine Mogelvang, Lockhart, Fla., flying a Piper Clipper, was first off in the 1,195-mile race to Welland, Ontario.

Mrs. Dorothy Rungelling, Welland; Miss Betty Haas, Scarsdale, N.Y., the 1950 winner, and Peggy Lennox, St. Petersburg, Fla., victor in 1949, completed the field.

Overnight withdrawals included Miss Margaret Carson of Ottawa, who won last year.

PRINCIPAL CAUSES

Plane trouble and inability to get planes for the races were the principal causes of cancellations.

Miss Haas said she expected to reach Westchester, N.Y., the first scheduled stop, about 4 p.m. E.D.T. A 1,000-foot ceiling faced the girls in the Charleston, S.C., area, and a cold front with squalls and showers loomed between Philadelphia and New York.

The women are allowed to fly only during daylight hours. All the single-engine planes have two-way radio systems. Only Miss Haas flew without a co-pilot.

The winner will be determined by corrected flying time and handicaps. There is $2,000 in prize money.

The event is sponsored by the Florida Chapter of Ninety-Nines, organization of women pilots.

Order Inquiry Use Of Special Drug

WASHINGTON (AP)—Blood disorders and several deaths traced to use of the antibiotic drug known as chloromycetin have touched off a government investigation into "possible hazards" of its use by humans.

The drug—its scientific name is chloramphenicol—is used for treatment of typhoid fever, Rocky Mountain fever, typhus, whooping cough, boils and other infections.

The Food and Drug Administration said today it had asked the National Research Council to help it evaluate results of a country-wide survey which turned up 200 cases of blood disorders and "a number of deaths" among patients who had been treated with the drug.

F.D.A. made it clear that beneficial effects of the antibiotic have been proven and that its use would not be ended when it said:

"Doubtless thousands of lives have been saved through its use in serious diseases. . .several million people throughout the world have been treated with chloramphenicol apparently without adverse effects. . ."

Use Silent Demonstration To Protest British Rule

ATHENS (Reuters)—A "silent demonstration" to end British rule on Cyprus and unite the Mediterranean island with Greece started through Greece at dawn today.

For four hours towns and cities came to a standstill in protest against Britain's attitude on the issue.

The main cities were ghost towns —not a soul to be seen, not a car on the streets. All traffic, including ships, trains and planes, halted; all workers, bank employees and civil servants stopped work.

The Pan-Hellenic committee for the union of Cyprus with Greece, calling for the mute demonstration today, said it was meant as a friendly gesture towards the British people "in request that they should stop rejecting our friendly feelings."

Britain took over the administration of Cyprus from Turkey in 1878. The island, located in the far eastern bight of the Mediterranean some 600 miles from Greece, now is a British Crown colony and also serves as an important British Mediterranean base.

The 20-per-cent Turkish minority on Cyprus opposes any change in the status quo. The articulate section of the other four-fifths of the population, Greeks, would appear to favor union with Greece.

Union Workers Holiday Take Courses At Whitesands

Built to become one of Canada's finest summer resorts, Lake Catchacoma's Club Whitesands has become a summer school and holiday haven for workers under its new operators, the International Chemical Workers Union (AFL-TLC).

Situated north of Buckhorn, about 35 miles from Peterborough, on the north shore of the lake, the union-operated camp is unique in Canada, in that it is a trade-union operated summer resort.

Originally intended to be an exclusive summer club for its wealthy owners, Club Whitesands was completed in 1948. Before it opened, plans were changed and it became a summer resort catering to the luxury trade.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Union members this week are attending a summer school at the resort. The school is sponsored by the Canadian section of the union under the direction of Dr. Otto Pragen, the union's director of research and education.

This school will be held annually as a leadership training school for union stewards and local officers, and for union staff conferences. After the school the resort will be open to vacationing union families.

Actually the resort is open for the general public as well as union members and families, but it is felt the demand for accommodation from union members within the next five years will fill the club to capacity for the summer.

Almost by accident the union acquired the modern resort which was built for an estimated $500,000 and snapped up by the union at a selling price of $400,000.

Looking for a summer area for its summer school, a real estate agent brought Club Whitesands to the attention of Canadian vice-president Gordon McIlwain. The price was so appealing, considering actual resort value, that Club Whitesands was brought to the attention of international president, H. A. Bradley, Akron, Ohio. Within a few days the deal was closed.

NO ROADS

Club Whitesands can only be reached by boat or aircraft. Union members and families travel to the lake by road which runs from Buckhorn to the lake; from there it's a 15-minute boat ride to the club on the opposite side of the lake.

The resort has a capacity for 70 guests, served by a staff of 24 who live in large staff house. The main building is L-shaped, and like other buildings, is winterized. A fleet of 28 boats, including several motor launches was included in the $140,000 price.

Harry Leonard, a Texan, with 25 years experience managing a resort in Temagami, was retained by the union as club manager.

Three factors which will help the union succeed where others failed are: the low purchase price, the fact that the union is not looking for a profit but just to meet expenses and to protect its investment, and the union's membership of 100,000 in Canada and the United States, a ready-made clientele.

New Director Of Health Ed. Arrives At YWCA

Miss Roselyn E. Stone arrived in Peterborough this week to take charge of the Y. W. C. A. Health Education department of which she has been appointed director. It was not her first time in the city however, nor in Peterborough for she lived here for several years when a child and came to gym classes during that time. "I liked Peterborough then and I wanted to come back," she says.

She was selected for this position because of qualifications particularly fitting and because of excellent recommendations on her past record, which includes two years assisting in similar work at the Windsor "Y". She was graduated from the University of Toronto a month ago after completing the three-year Physical and Health Education course.

So, the Y personnel committee feels very happy in being able to present to the membership and the public a well-trained director to carry on the gymnasium and swimming activities built up by Miss Caroline Littlefield over a long term and by several swimming directors in the past few years.

Miss Stone has reviewed the past program and has decided to continue along the same lines. She hopes that any changes desired will be outlined to her through the Gym Auxiliary or peronally. Former associates and teachers describe her as " a sincere and kind person with a friendly and interested manner towards all, and a particularly friendly manner with newcomers," so the membership can expect little difficulty in this direction. Swimmers can already verify the statement for she has been conducting their classes since Tuesday.

Her particular strength is in swimming, though she has skills in gymnastics, art and crafts, music and particularly in dancing. Her own interest is in modern creative and interpretive dancing, square dancing and folk dancing and in rhythmical exercises but she also has some knowledge of ballet.

While at university Miss Stone participated in the interfaculty sports program, coaching, refereeing, and taking part in swimming, volleyball and basketball. Her interest in synchronized swimming led her to participate and assist in the organization of two University water shows and a synchronized swimming competition.

Because of her association with the Y. W. C. A. in Windsor she is well acquainted with the organization and its policies. Recommendations list her as being "outstanding in leadership, reliability and perseverance, the latter almost to a fault." She has studied community organization, group work and administrative practices which will be of value in planning and directing her program this fall.

An associate director, Miss Beatrise Pelsis from Latvia, has been engaged to start work at the Y in September, and Miss Stone feels that European training will add a decided flavor and interest to the dancing and gym program.

Miss Stone's parents who now live in Windsor, are both Canadian born and the family is affiliated with the Baptist Church.

Highland Lassies Must Cover Knees

ABOYNE, Scotland (CP)—At the fall highland games in this sleepy, rambling Aberdeenshire village back by the same hills that surround Balmoral Castle, girl dancers must cover their knees.

This edict was issued by the committee of the Braemar gathering, parent show held during Royal residence at Balmoral for the fall shooting season.

Both gatherings are famed for competitions in highland dancing —and for a considerable number of years the kilt for such occasions, worn with silver-piped velvet jacket and lace-ruffled blouse, has been knee-length.

Now, after two years' research, the standard dress is: Fully-gathered, calf-length tartan skirt with plaid to match, tight-fitting sleeveless corsage laced in front and white crepe blouse. The hair is tied back with velvet or tartan snood and the clan badge is backed by a tartan bow. No stockings are worn.

The alternative is a kilt covering the knees, white blouse with traditional double-laced ruffles, military belted plaid and black lisle stockings.

These lightfooted summer sandals have cloth tops and thick soles for maximum comfort on a hot day. Lounger (upper left) has top in harbour blue, sole in lightweight cork crepe. Espadrilles (lower left) have faded blue denim stripe, cork crepe soles. The tie (above) is bright red, has cork-and-rubber sole to keep feet away from hot pavements and wet grass. The Siam sandal (upper right) has natural-colored straw braid vamp with cornflower blue trim. Another version of the espadrille (lower right) is in solid-color chartreuse, has second set of laces for change-off. —By Gaile Dugas, NEA Woman's Editor.

Girls Triumph In Living Rigorous Life

KILMORY CASTLE, Scotland (CP)—Sixteen triumphant girls returned to their office desks this month happy in the knowledge they proved themselves tough enough for anything.

For two weeks, at a cost of four pounds each a week, they made 14-mile hikes, lived in tents, went scrambled over rough Argyllshire hillsides and moorland.

It was all part of an experimental course arranged by a national association of girls' clubs and mixed clubs. "So many girls complained that boys have far more opportunities for this sort of holiday," said Miss H. Harford, the general secretary.

The girls, 11 Britons and five Germans, aged between 16 and 20, came mostly from towns and had few ideas about how to get along in the wide-open spaces. But they survived such experiences as that of Jean Andrews, 19, of Birmingham.

Jean was scared of water so they tucked her into a small collapsible canoe—plus a life-jacket—and launched her on the wind-swept waters of Loch Gilp.

"When you're in a canoe it's such fun you haven't time to be scared of water," she said later.

Two sisters from Buckinghamshire, Jeanetta and Valerie Blattner, had to find their way over the hills with only a map and compass to guide them. "And we did," said Jeanetta, 18. "The compass went wrong but we got there and back before anyone else."

Another adventure was two days living on an uninhabited island off the coast. Torrential rain blew in the side of one tent and soaked its occupants in their sleeping bags —but the girls enjoyed it so much they didn't want to leave.

HASTINGS (ENS)—Mrs. Wm. Brooks opened her home to the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The president Mrs. Charles Dodd, conducted the devotional services.

Mrs. Scott Fife gave some very interesting current events and presented the study book. Mrs. J. M. Ritchie gave a reading. A cooking sale is planned in the summer and the date will be announced later. The hostess served delicious refreshments, after which photos and items were on display in keeping with the recent centennial celebration of the church. Mrs. H. B. Wilson moved a very hearty vote of thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

London's Art Students Fashion Leaders

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Sixty fashion-plate pieces, designed by 30 art school students for less than 150 pounds, gave Britain's hard-bitten fashion writers something to crow about.

"No one who saw this show could go on repeating that British designers cannot create," wrote Jean Soward in the News Chronicle.

With the working millions getting yearly more fashion-conscious and keenly aware of the high cost of good styling, London's foremost art schools take pride in showing what can be done by unknown designers, few of whom have tried their wings on commercial markets.

Results may mean weeks of patient work—but it's worth it. Take, for instance, a dream dress made from 31 yards of white organdie over 15 yards of white tarlatan giving an ethereal evening gown that would not disgrace a queen. A diaphanous cloud of frill-tipped organdie frames the face and cascades over the arms to the ground, forming a billowing background to the wide-skirted gown with tight, cummerbund waist, its strapless top accented by two dark roses.

"I told them they had just three weeks, and to go ahead and create new and beautiful clothes," said artist Muriel Pemberton, who directs the school's fashion and design sections.

NOT FOR SALE

The show had everything most buyers cross the channel to see—nonsense, humor, drama, invention and glamor. The only difference was that these goods were not for sale. They will most likely be worn for some dream-come-true occasion planned by the young designers as they cut, sewed and ironed.

Typifying French chic was a strapless evening dress made from 15 yards of stiff white cotton, pleated and machine embroidered to give weight and style, and trimmed with 40 yards of white lace.

Altogether it cost designer Marjorie Cornelius an outlay of 8 pounds, 10S. The cotton was 5S 11D a yard, lace 10D and pleating 30S. The pleated empire top was accentred by a large brown rose that Marjorie had dyed herself. A wide, stiff belt drew in the waist above a full, calf-length skirt hemmed with pleating.

Beachwear included black linen jeans and sloppy joe, a black and white check lumber jacket with empire sleeves over plain black playsuit. Worn with yellow linen beach-bag, the bottom of which was a wicker bread basket, it had all the chic necessary for a California beach.

Wearability was the keynote of stiff white cotton blouses with big collars and important lantern sleeves.

Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Would you please give me a good salad dressing recipe also that French dressing that does not separate.. also good homemade ice cream recipe.—Mrs. W. F. R., Mitchell.

ANSWER: I hope you saw the homemade ice cream recipes in last Monday's column.

ALL-PURPOSE SALAD DRESSING

(This recipe won a prize at a fair in Detroit in 1924).

Combine in this order: 2 beaten egg yolks, 1 teaspoon each mustard and salt, and 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 tablespoons of vinegar. While constantly beating, add 1 cup ice cold salad oil, 1 teaspoon at a time. When this becomes quite thick from emulsification, 1 tablespoon oil at a time may be added. Stir together in top of double boiler 2 or 3 tablespoons butter and stir over boiling water until blended. Slowly add 1 cup boiling water and stir until thick. Cook covered ten minutes, stirring twice. Chill. Beat well after it is cool to smooth it out, then slowly beat it into the first oil mixture until well blended. This is economical, and a great favorite. Once you've made it and used it you will want to keep it on hand.

NON-SEPARATING FRENCH DRESSING

In an ice cold bowl mix together ½ cup cider or other vinegar, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1½ teaspoons salt, shake of red pepper, ½ clove garlic or ½ teaspoon garlic salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 whole egg —cold. Mix these all very well together. Then add by teaspoonfuls 1 cup cold salad oil, while constantly beating. Do not hurry the addition of the oil. Give at least 25 turns of the hand rotary beater or ½ minute in electric beater between additions. Store covered in refrigerator. This keeps well.

QUESTION: About 2 months ago you had a recipe for raviolas. I wonder if you would repeat these.—Mrs. Ernest P., Redcliff.

ANSWER:

RAVIOLA PASTE

Melt 1½ teaspoons shortening and mix with ½ teaspoon salt, yolk of 1 slightly beaten egg, and ½ cup lukewarm water. Sift bread flour and measure 2 cups. Add 1½ cups and stirr in. You want a medium dough that does not stick. Add more flour until you have a dough that can be handled. Knead it on floured board to make it smooth—this will take about 3 minutes. Let stand covered on board for ½ hour. Roll out into a sheet about 16 x 18 inches. Brush half of dough with well-beaten egg white. Arrange 1 rounded measuring teaspoon of filling at perfectly even intervals with 1-inch space between them over the brushed half of dough. Cover with other half of dough. Press down dough, starting at centre, between each section, to press out air, and to stick together top and bottom dough layers. Cut into squares with ravioli wheel (or sharp knife) and pinch ends together with fingers if some of them are open. Place on floured wax paper as you make them. Let stand 1 hour, turning them over two or three times to prevent filling settling. Twenty minutes before serving time lower gently into rapidly boiling salted water. Do not overcook or they may break. Serve on warm individual plates with Italian Tomato Sauce, sprinkled with Parmesan cheese.

POPULAR FILLING FOR RAVIOLA

Saute ½-pound freshly ground meat in 2 tablespons butter or oil for 5 minutes. (If using leftover cooked meat grind it and saute only 2 minutes). Add ¼ cup finely chopped cooked spinach, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, ⅛ teaspoon pepper 1 finely chopped clove garlic, 1 finely chopped small onion, 1 tablespoon grated old cheese, and cook together slowly 5 minutes. Add egg and beat hard. Remove from heat. Cool and use as is, or put through food chopper. This amount is sufficient for the above raviola paste, which makes 24 medium-sized ravioli.

If you learn to make ravioli you will open up a new field of cookery for yourself—economical too—for the fillings and sauces are numerous.

THE COSTUME LOOK in swim suits is showing up on beaches everywhere this summer. Its attractions are many. With it, it's possible to make one swim suit serve the purpose of several — as, for example, when a brief cape also doubles as an overskirt. The costume look may very well include a brief jacket, a three-quarter length coat, a tiny shrug sweater, a stole or a cape. Whatever the styling, the pieces are assembled into an harmonious and useful whole, intended to give a maximum of protection from sun, breezes and salt spray. The one-piece suit (left) has a dramatic anthurium design for a splash of color. This color repeats on the matching jacket. Both pieces are done in a satiny rayon-and-nylon fabric that's quick to dry. The suit has sleek lines and a cuffed top. A costume look is achieved (right) in this three-piece suit through use of a tiny cape with permanent pleated edge that doubles here as wrap-around skirt. The suit is in smooth rayon bengaline, is elasticized for sleek fit.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Eating More Fish And Cheese Advised

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Fish, particularly salmon, and cheese must become frequent items on Canada's weekly food list if the country's economy is to be kept on an even keel.

At present Ontario has a surplus of 15,000,000 pounds of cheese, and producers are looking to the Ontario government for means of handling it.

In British Columbia, salmon canners are faced with the problem of finding a market for 698,000 cases of last year's pack.

These are some of the situations developing from loss of overseas markets. It seems that countries which have dollars are using them for cheaper foods than Canadian cheddar or B.C. salmon. Last year the British Food Ministry spent $6,700,000 for salmon, but this year it may buy none at all.

Canadian housewives can help by encouraging a taste for cheese among their families, and perhaps instituting a "Fish Monday" and a "Fish Wednesday" as well as the traditional fish meals on Friday.

So far as salmon is concerned, the pink salmon is as tasty as the more expensive variety. In casseroles it's hard to tell the difference.

USEFUL RECIPES

Salmon Loaf: One large can salmon; 1½ cups cracker crumbs; one egg; one small onion minced.

Bake in small baking-dish for 20 minutes or until brown.

Macaroni and Cheese: One cup macaroni broken in pieces; three tablespoons fat; one tablespoon finely chopped onion; three tablespoons flour; salt and pepper; one teaspoon steak sauce; two cups tomato juice, one cup grated cheese.

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain through sieve and pour cold water over to separate the pieces. Melt fat. Add chopped onion and cook three minutes. Add flour and seasonings, blending well. Add tomato juice and cook, stirring constantly until sauce thickens. Stir in cheese.

Place layer of cooked macaroni in greased baking-dish. Cover with sauce. Repeat until dish is full, finishing with layer of sauce and then topping with grated cheese or equal parts grated cheese and bread crumbs. Bake in moderately hot oven about 30 minutes. Serves six.

HERE AND THERE

The Canadian Association of Consumers in its latest bulletin says that oil processed eggs, "something new and different," soon will go on sale in grocery stores across the country.

"Experts tell us that grade A quality oil processed eggs can be poached, fried or boiled with good results," says the C.A.C.

"This process provides a good means of augmenting the supplies of good quality shell eggs during the period of scarcity and should help to keep the price of this nutritious well-balanced food within the reach of most family budgets."

And the Canadian Horticultural Council sends a reminder that "Salad Week" begins Aug. 1.

DOROTHY DIX

Going Steady Is Pernicious Practice But It Is Seemingly Here To Stay

DEAR MISS DIX: At high-school "proms" or dances to which I go, my steady escort dances all the dances with me. My parents say this shows rudeness on the boy's part, and makes it appear than no one else desires to dance with me. They think I should dance with different partners, as it would help me to get acquainted with other boys. I have told them their theory is old-fashioned. I am 16, and too young, they say, to go steady. Most of my girl friends do, and no one else asks me out since I have been going with my present boy friend.

TEENA

ANSWER: I understand, and agree with, your parents' point of view! However, since we deal with actualities, not theories, we must recognize the fact that the old-fashioned procedure at dances, when partners were exchanged frequently during the evening, is now passe with the young. It is the accepted practice for a girl to dance exclusively with her escort. Commingling at affairs of this type was one of the most pleasant things about them in the last generation, and it is too bad that such a drastic change came about.

The same may be said for the practic of "going steady." Today, if a boy takes a girl out twice, the crowd assumes they're "going steady." This term was once used almost as a synonym for being engaged. Now, however, it is an indeterminate expression meaning simply that one goes with one boy at a time. A pernicious practice, but since it is accepted so definitely by our young people, we oldsters must learn to live with it.

✧ ✧ ✧

BOY WANTS NO STRINGS

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going with Vinnie for two years, and he just broke off with me. He said he didn't like me any more. I don't think this is true because he still comes over to my house. I like him a lot and would like to get him back.

CHICKY

ANSWER: Vinnie's actions were apparently caused by the feeling that for some reason or other he didn't want to be tied down to steady dating. Since you see him anyway, and he still takes you out, why worry?

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married for seven years and, though I love my husband, I can't help being attracted to other men. If they notice me on the street, or in a public place, I simply must smile back and be pleasant. My husband is so annoyed at this habit of mine that he threatens to leave me. There's nothing wrong in my actions; it's just that I like attention and respond to it. I cannot help being friendly, so don't you think he's [illegible]

M. M.

ANSWER: While you may think your friendliness is just that and nothing more, be assured, there are gossips all around who put the worst interpretations on your actions. You are not behaving as a decorous, married woman should, and are bound to pay the penalty in a damaged reputation.

No wonder your husband is annoyed; almost any man would be. There seems to be a more serious basis underlying your apparently innocent flirtations and, to make this more easily understood by yourself, I suggest a visit to a marriage counselor, who will discover the reason for your behavior, and advise you on the best course to take in order to avoid serious complications.

DEAR MISS DIX: Though we have been married only three months, we are having trouble already because I am jealous of my wife. She was married before; her husband was killed in a hunting accident. I have never been married. I am very much in love with my wife, and adore her little boy, who calls me daddy. The trouble is that my wife still carries a picture of her first husband and it seems that whenever we visit her folks the husband is brought into the conversation.

ANSWER: Anyone married to a man or woman who has had a previous spouse encounters much the same trouble. You cannot expect your wife to forget her first husband, nor to have her son forget his father. You are a little oversensitive about the matter. Be assured, if your wife didn't love you, she wouldn't have married you, and time will lessen the place your predecessor has in her thoughts.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting: Eddie Robinson, Chicago White Sox—batted in seven runs with a pair of homers and a single to lead the Sox to a 12-3 nightcap win over St. Louis Browns.

Pitching: Curt Simmons, Philadelphia—turned in a four-hitter, striking out four and walking none for his fourth shutout and seventh victory as the Phils whipped Boston Braves 2-0.

TRIBAL MAGICIANS

The Garpugarees, credited with being able to make rain, formed a distinct caste among many sects of Central India.

LAUGHING MATTER — Ken McGregor, left, laughed as he and his partner, Frank Sedgman, went after balls together during the men's doubles of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships. The Australians were the favorites.

Bill Thompson Leading Ontario Golf Open

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Thompson, long a contender in tournaments for assistant golf professionals in Ontario, goes after bigger game today.

The dapper assistant from Toronto York Downs yesterday led the 18-hole qualifying round in the Ontario Open with a 67, four under par at the Toronto Weston course where he served for 2½ years as an assistant before moving to his present club.

But Thompson has his work cut out for him in the remaining 36 holes of the medal-play tournament today. Right behind him with a 68 in the opening-day's round was Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, who led the amateur qualifiers and clinched a spot on Ontario's Willingdon Cup team.

OTHER "NAME" GOLFERS

Back of Kesselring came a string of Ontario "name" golfers, any of whom could swing into the lead.

The heat bothered some players yesterday.

Thompson, who had played only eight rounds this season, was still a bit groggy after a siege of jaundice. However, he one-putted every green but three over the 6,395-yard course. The 27-year-old pro pulled off five birdies and was one over par on only the par-four fifth hole.

Kesselring played partly through an afternoon shower and wound up by sinking a 22-foot putt for a birdie three on the last hole. A long-ball hitter, the Kitchener golfer hit 16 greens in regulation figures, had two birdies and one eagle.

FEW BEAT PAR

Only four other players beat the humid day and Weston's 35-36—71 par. Two pros came in with 69 apiece—Hugh Borthwick of Toronto Scarboro and William Lamb of Toronto Lambton. Amateur P. Farley of Toronto Scarboro and pro Bill Kerr from Montreal Beaconsfield carded 70s.

Sixty-seven of the original 110 turned in qualifying cards. Low 60 and ties made the final.

Three United States entrants qualified—Jack Penrose of Miami, Bill Kozak of Youngstown, N.Y., and Tex Ardoyno of Dearborn, Mich.

Yesterday's round served as the third and final trial for the Willingdon Cup team in the interprovincial matches at Edmonton. Kesselring leads the team candidates with a 109-hole total of 418. Other likely team members are Farley, 427, Nick Weslock of Windsor Essex, whose 73 yesterday made 433, and Keith Kirkpatrick, who also carded 73 for a 438 total.

The winner of the Ontario amateur title in August automatically takes a place on the four-man team.

Qualifiers from Ontario points outside the Toronto area included: Gordon Ball, Kitchener; Grant Shirk, Kitchener; Weslock; Dick Borthwick, Hamilton; Bill Parkes, Woodstock; Robert Dean, Cornwall; Bud Smith, Kitchener; Gordon McInnis, Fonthill; Jerry Knechtel, Kitchener; Dave Morland, North Bay; George Clifton, Niagara-on-the-Lake; George Harrison, Sudbury; Bill Morland, North Bay; Lloyd Tucker, Kitchener; Griff Owen, Stratford.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

An "exasperated" member of Mickey Mantle's Miami, Okla., draft board yesterday disclosed that the United States Selective Service Board has suggested a third army physical for the 4-F New York Yankees outfielder.

Board secretary Joe Payton said Mantle's case will be re-opened next Monday. He hoped there will be no discrimination against "a highly-publicized ball player."

Mantle, 21, has been three times classified 4-F because of osteomyelitis, a bone disease in his left leg resulting from an old football injury.

ATHLETES ARRIVING

Nearly 200 athletes and officials from 15 countries have already arrived in Helsinki for the Olympic Games, opening there July 19. Most have settled in the Olympic village which has a restaurant providing British, American, Oriental, Latin-American, Scandinavian and Central European cooking. The Japanese have been teaching the staff how to cook rice.

SOLD TO BUFFALO

Cincinnati Reds yesterday sold infielder Eddie Kazak to Buffalo Bisons of the International Baseball League. The National League club gave him up in a straight cash deal. Kazak came to the Reds from St. Louis Cardinals last May in the exchange which sent outfielder Wally Westlake to Cincinnati for first baseman Dick Sisler and shortstop Virgil Stallcup.

YACHTS SEPARATED

Four yachts racing from Bermuda to Halifax yesterday became separated from their escort vessel and a plane is to leave Halifax today to search them out. Only Canadian ship is the Wanderer, IX, skippered by Cmdr. J. C. Reed of Halifax with a crew of 10.

KROLL FAR IN LEAD

Ted Kroll fired a seven-under-par 32-33—65 at Detroit yesterday in the opening round of the $15,000 Motor City Open Golf Tournament. The best any of the other 170-odd amateurs and pros could do was 34-33—67 by veteran Henry Ransome over Red Run Golf course.

MISS PEPSI FAVORED

Six open powerboats gather on the Detroit River today for the annual Silver Cup event of the Detroit Memorial races. Miss Pepsi owned by Walter and Roy Dossin of Detroit, is the favorite after winning last Saturday's Maple Leaf event at the Windsor Yacht Club. Miss Supertest will represent Canada.

CHAPMAN TO B.C.

Art Chapman, former National Hockey League player and general manager of Buffalo Bisons of the American League, yesterday was appointed general manager and coach of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Canada Hockey League. Chapman is to help expand the Buffalo interests and eastern junior farm system.

Bill Thompson Takes Lead In Manitoba Open

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bill Thompson, professional at the Brandon, Man., Golf and Country Club, yesterday took a one-stroke lead in the Manitoba Open golf championship.

Thompson, who lived in Guelph, Ont., for the last six years, took a three-over-par 73 at the Elmhurst Club, scene of the $600 tournament. It ends with 36 holes of play today.

Weather Spoils Rolfe's Chance

DETROIT (AP)—They call Red Rolfe the lame duck manager—lame duck being a term that means you're out of a job although you're still holding it.

Being a lame duck, Red felt at home yesterday as sheets of rain cascaded over Briggs Stadium's playing field and forced postponement of Detroit's game with Cleveland.

The rain washed out a hope of Red's. He had hoped to win three straight ball games and have the Tigers' longest winning streak of the season in his pocket when the club's directors meet to fire him Saturday.

Now he only has two more games to play—both today—and since he lost the last contest against Chicago he can't achieve a record.

President Spike Briggs will recommend Red's dismissal and the board will undoubtedly approve the dismissal.

Livvies Whip All Stars 75-52

MONTREAL (CP)—Tillsonburg Livingstons, Canada's Olympic basketball representatives, defeated a Montreal All-Star team 75-52 last night in their first game under international rules.

The teams used an international basketball, different from the type used in Canada, and it was the last workout for the Olympic team before they leave for Helsinki.

Tillsonburg led all the way with the half-time score 40-21. Bob Simpson with 15 and Bob Phibbs with 14 were the leading scorers.

Line-ups:

Tillsonburg: Pettinger (6), Patary (3), Campbell (5), Ridd (6), Williams (1), Coulthard (1) Phibbs (14), Pickell (10), Wearring (7), Simpson (15), Wade 7.

All-Stars: Wilson 1, Krobovitch (13), Merlin (8), Sokolife (1), Waxman (6), Richardson (0), Golfman 4, Tissenbaum 5, Moerin 0, Lands (5), Etrulovitch (1).

Kesco Victorious

Kesco downed B'nai B'rith 12-1 in their Civic Softball League clash last evening, pounding out 19 hits to score two in the first, six in the fifth frame, three next time up and one in the seventh. The losers were held to five bingles and got their lone marker in the fifth inning. Homers were by E. Conroy (2), Harris and Humphries. Both sides had two errors in a fair game. Teams:

Kesco: Chenier, Goodfellow, E. Conroy, Harris, Fortner, Harrison, Humphries, Alberico, Montgomery.

B'nai B'rith: Evans, Pagett, Hewie, Bradley, Smith, Brierly, Tully, Staves, Elliott.

Adopt Atomic Bill

PARIS (Reuters)—The National Assembly yesterday adopted the atomic energy development bill which provides for an expenditure of $105,560,000 over five years to equip the country with atomic energy plants, research stations and technicians.

Ball Pioneer Fred Tenney Dies

BOSTON (AP)—Fred Tenney, 80, four times manager of Boston's National League baseball club in the early 1900s and credited with being the originator of the "3-6-3" double play, died yesterday.

Tenney performed baseball's first 3-6-3 double play in 1897 against Cincinnati.

In this play—with a runner on first base—the first baseman fields a ground ball, throws to the shortstop covering second for the first out and then dashes back in time to take a return throw to put the batter out at first.

Tenney also was the first left-handed catcher in the major leagues. He caught 24 games in 1894 for the Boston club—known then as the Bean Eaters.

He managed Boston in 1905-06-07, played first base for New York Giants the next two seasons and then returned to manage Boston again in 1910.

Minor Ball Setup Going Ahead Here

Plans are proceeding with the reorganization of the Peterborough Minor Baseball Association. At a meeting of managers and players' fathers with recreation director Alex Sinclair at the city hall last evening, eight teams were entered, five peewees and three bantams. They have men promised to direct the boys' teams. A list of officials will be announced shortly.

An open practice for boys in the southend is called for tonight at 6.30 in Morrow Park under Jack Billingsley. It is for peewees (boys under 13 years), bantams, under 15, and midgets, under 17 years of age. More fathers of players are needed to look after the teams in the southend area or they will have no baseball there.

MP's Ask Government To Give Rural Mail Carriers Break

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of the Commons yesterday asked the government to give the rural mail carrier a better break.

The couriers get their jobs on a four-year tender basis, and members said the system results in their being underpaid.

Robert McCubbin, Parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister Gardiner, said he does not think the government is being fair to them on wages. They were not paid what they deserve. He suggested that the government make a general supplementary payment to the carriers.

SYSTEM 'WRONG'

Hugh MacKenzie (L—Lambton-Kent) said there is "discrimination" in the way the carriers are paid. The system was "wrong" and "allowed for a lot of injustices." There should be some degree of equality of pay across Canada.

H. A. Hosking (L—Wellington South) said the tender system of farming out rural mail routes is a good one. However, in some cases the tenders were accepted before the cost of living increased to its present rate. As a result, the remuneration hardly covered the cost of delivery. He suggested an adjustment.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said he has been hearing complaints about payment of rural mail carriers for 21 years and still nothing satisfactory has been done about the situation.

It was "something of a scandal." The carriers were "most inadequately compensated." The pay of some of them was "pitiful."

WANTS HOUSE COMMITTEE

He hoped a committee of the house would be set up to "devise something better than the cut-throat competition" of the tender system.

Arnold Darroch (L—Wellington North) said the system should be improved, but he would not want to see it get into the hands of civil servants who might demand that carriers have a "a couple of years at a recognized university."

He also suggested there should be a realignment of rural routes before any restorations of two-a-day urban deliveries of mail.

George Fulford (L—Leeds) said the rural mail carriers are in "a very sad predicament." The system was "abominable."

H. O. White (PC—Middlesex East) also criticized the contract system for carriers. He expressed the hope, too, that rural routes might be realigned and mail service extended to as many people as possible in the country.

HAE FEW VOTES

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said the present system is obsolete and should be replaced as quickly as possible. "But I have not much hope that anything will be done," he said, "because the mail carriers don't have many votes."

Postmaster-General Cote said he will refer the matter to a departmental committee for study.

It has just been officially unveiled and officially christened by Mrs. George S. Patton, Jr., at the Chrysler Delaware tank plant at Newark, Del. Most striking characteristics of the 45-to-50-ton monster are its low silhouette and new design, featuring elliptical-shaped hull and turret.

Important Play "Streetcar Named Desire"

On Monday, Summer Theatre audiences will have the opportunity to see the first all-Canadian production of the most widely discussed and provocative play of the past 25 years. "A Streetcar Named Desire" has been hailed internationally as the greatest drama of the decade, and has won the Pulitzer Prize and many other literary awards.

To Tenesse Williams, the author, it has brought fame and fortune, to Marlon Brando stardom, and to Vivien Leigh an Oscar. The Paris production created a sensation on opening night, and in London the play warranted a discussion in the House of Lords.

CHIEF ROLES

Last winter the Peterborough company presented "A Streetcar Named Desire" in Bermuda, and the production played to standing room only all week. In its production next week Betty Leighton will play Blanche, Gerry Sarracini, Stanley; Kate Reid, Stella, and Peter News, Mitch, the roles they created in Bermuda, and for which they received the highest acclaim of their careers.

In order to be awarded so much attention, so many literary prizes, and such zealous critical praise, a play must have strong artistic merits and a great deal of entertainment value. "A Streetcar Named Desire" has all of these. It is the type of play that makes audiences forget they are in the theatre; they are living with this rightening, dynamic, and facsinating segment of life.

In next week's production the Summer Theatre will be employing a new type of stage setting, as yet unusued in its four seasons in Peterborough. "Streetcar Named Desire" will be one of the most important production of this summer season.

Russians Enjoy Weekends On Washington Beaches

WOODLAND BEACH, Md. (AP)—Russians stationed in Washington are enjoying weekends with sun, salt water and beach air.

The Russians—under new State Department regulations—are supposed to limit themselves to within 25 miles of Washington or get special permission, but they have it all arranged.

Many of the Soviet diplomats, with their families, have rented cottages for the summer here and at nearby resorts on the South River and Chesapeake Bay. This beach and neighboring areas are a little more than 25 miles from the capital, but the State Department is allowing the Russians to travel to and from the resorts without restrictions.

The Soviets have had cottages here in past summers. This year, however, they apparently have changed their beach habits—to the great relief of Woodland Beach residents.

Last year some took over a large residence and others swarmed down in buses on weekends. They dominated the swimming area—owned jointly by property owners in this section.

'COULDN'T SEE SAND'

"Why, most weekends we couldn't even find a place to sit," recalls S. Michaelis, a director of the Woodland Beach Property Owners' Association. "Sometimes you couldn't even see the sand."

Overcrowding wasn't the only trouble.

"They'd rent motor boats and drive them into the swimming area where there was usually a lot of kids," Michaelis recalls. "When we'd point out the danger, they'd just shake their heads and hold out their palms. When we mentioned police, they moved the boats out."

This year all is quiet so far. Many Russians are here, but split up into small groups.

54 Out Of 100 Families Own Car In Canada

TORONTO (CP)—A report by the Canadian Automobile Manufacturers' Research Service says that 54 of every 100 Canadian families own one or more cars. In 65 per cent of these families the chief bread winner earns less than $60 a week.

Almost half of all Canadian families whose main wage earner receives less than $2,000 a year own at least one car. Two-thirds of them paid cash for their vehicles. In the highest income group studied, $4,000 and over annually, the number paying cash was only three per cent higher.

Ontario householders lead the provincial averages with 65 per cent owning a car. The Maritimes has the lowest average, 34 per cent.

Almost half the 800,000 cars on Canadian roads are 10 years old or more.

Judge Issues Writ Against Radio Station

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice Edouard Tellier yesterday issued a writ directing Montreal radio station CFCF to appear in court to explain why it refused to give time for political broadcasting to Gui Caron, Quebec Labor-Progressive party leader.

The privately-owned station refused to grant time to Mr. Caron, Labor-Progressive candidate in Montreal St. Louis riding in the July 16 Quebec election, on the ground he is a member of the Communist party and that broadcasting regulations did not require it to deal with "all comers."

Mr. Justice Tellier noted that the CBC, under the Canadian radio broadcasting act, adopted a regulation providing that "each station shall allocate time for political broadcasts as fairly as possible between the different parties or candidates desiring to purchase or obtain time."

Falls In Well Woman Drowns

CHATHAM (CP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Vink, 23, was drowned yesterday when a cement well cover on which she was standing gave way and sent her plunging into six feet of water. An 11-year-old girl also dropped into the well but was rescued.

Mrs. Vink was trapped under the cement cover at the bottom of the 18-foot well.

The girl, Clair Duivenvoorde, held on to a a plank floating in the water and was rescued when her father lowered a long pole to her.

Can Avoid Old-Age Ills By Keeping Busy

TORONTO (CP)—Two doctors who recently completed a five-year study of patients at Sunnybrook military hospital here said people over 60 can avoid many old-age diseases if they keep busy mentally and physically.

Dr. H. A. Himel and Dr. A. W. MacPherson, both of Toronto, said there is a misconception among laity and even some members of the medical profession that resting is an essential party of the life of an elderly person.

"On the contrary, we have become convinced that activity within the capacity of the individual is a vital necessity," they said in a report in the Treatment Services Bulletin of the Veterans Affairs Department. Keeping the patients active will "tone up the muscles and aid the normal metabolic processes of bone."

Saved For Life Belt Boy 8 Drowns

WINNIPEG (CP)—An eight-year-old boy who had saved his pennies for a year to buy a life-belt was drowned Wednesday at nearby Map Grove Beach.

The boy, Murray Strack of 2 Bedford Road, Kitchener, arrived here Monday with his parents for a two-week visit. He apparently tried to copy surf board riders he had seen earlier in the day by lying on an old board.

He slipped off into four feet of water.

His aunt said he had been saving his money and intended to buy the life belt and go swimming.

Mrs. Sophia May, 82 Dies In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Sophia Louisa May, 82, composer of more than 100 musical works, died Wednesday. A funeral service, at which a number of her organ compositions were played, was held here yesterday. A similar service will be held in Stratford tomorrow.

Born in London, England, Mrs. May moved to Durban, South Africa, where she married Thomas James May of St. Mary's, Ont. They moved to Stratford and came to Toronto in 1941.

Communists Using New Weapons Against Canadians

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA —(CP)—The Communists appear to be using a mysterious new weapon on the Canadian front. So far it has not been reported from other sectors. Actually, staff officers still are puzzled as to whether it is a new weapon or a new tactic for the employment of an old one. It has two types of manifestation. The first became known when the Communists repulsed patrols by the 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment in engagements highlighted by the same phenomena. Three tremendous explosions, greater than any mine, bomb or grenade until then encountered, hit each patrol. They were not heralded by any whistle or whine. The explosion from a projector was not heard. There was no flash.

Examination of shrapnel fragments indicated they were from a type of mortar bomb.

The second type of manifestation was on a patrol by the 1st Battalion Royal 22nd Regiment.

The same tremendous explosions were encountered, knocking soldiers to the ground, dazing and stupefying them, but not necessarily wounding them. This time missiles were seen hurtling through the air leaving a trail of sparks. The missiles were reported very large.

The Van Doo experience seemed to reduce the possibilities to a variety of grenade, perhaps a super-charge type developed by the Russians.

Meanwhile, officers at United States Eighth Army headquarters ventured that the weapon might be a new type of rocket, similar to the bazooka bomb.

GRENADE THEORY

The grenade theory was supported by the R.C.R. patrol which captured several super-charged Russian grenades from the bodies of dead Chinese. They resemble the RPG-6 type, which is an anti-tank grenade capable of penetrating 3.94 inches of armor, and were for use in an anti-personnel role.

Officers at 25th Brigade headquarters, however, still are not convinced that this grenade is the weapon used against the first Patricia and R.C.R. patrols.

They consider that to have been either the new 60-millimetre mortar bomb or a known weapon in a new role. The 60-millimetre bomb, they say, fired at low range and high trajectory might conceivably account for the lack of sound.

Another contribution made by the R.C.R. patrol was added information on the superior type of Communist soldier now manning the front, and the better equipment he carries.

Taft Gets 22 Of 38 Delegates, Ike Protests

CHICAGO (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft's Texas-borne surge toward the Republican Presidential nomination faced a blistering challenge today from supporters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The two major contenders, arriving here during the day, were ready to take over personal direction of a round-by-round battle in next week's convention for the 604 votes needed to give one of them the party's nomination.

Taft has moved within 74 votes of the needed nomination total in the Associated Press tabulation.

This scoreboard includes contested delegates awarded to Taft by the Taft-controlled Republican National Committee. Since the committee's decisions are being appealed, only the events of next week can determine just how high Taft's total will be.

As of now, the count showed: Taft 530, Eisenhower 427, other candidates 131, still uncommitted 118.

The Ohioan increased his lead yesterday when the National Committee voted 60 to 41 to give Taft 22 of the 38 Texas delegates and assign 16 of them to Eisenhower.

This was exactly what Taft proposed and what Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, campaign manager for Eisenhower, rejected as a "compromise with fraud."

Lodge and other Eisenhower leaders said they will carry their protests to the Credentials Committee which handles the seating of delegates and to the convention floor itself.

The fight over the Texas delegation started when Eisenhower men swamped local conventions in the state but were thrown out by the Taft-controlled committee when the time came to name the Texas delegation to Chicago. Eisenhower's backers held a rump convention and the result was two Texas slate—one pro-Taft, the other pro-Eisenhower.

ACCEPT TAFT VIEW

The National Committee took the Taft compromise on Texas yesterday after rejecting, 58 to 43, a substitute motion to seat a pro-Eisenhower delegation.

Arthur Summerfield, Michigan National Committeeman who is credited with being able to swing a substantial bloc of his 46-vote delegation to either major candidate, voted with the Eisenhower forces.

Similarly both California members of the committee supported the Eisenhower view, a possible forecast of what might happen if Governor Earl Warren should decide he has no chance for the nomination.

Members from Pennsylvania and Maryland—holdout states in the nomination battle—split their votes down the middle.

At Ames, Iowa, on his way to Chicago, Eisenhower said the struggle over seats "is a straight-out issue between right and wrong. He added that "it is not a business of buying and selling and backroom bidding."

Two Vehicles Topple Into Ditch

Leo McMahon Gets Chest, Back Injuries In Freak Accident

For 40 minutes early today a Douro township man lay pinned under his overturned car and chatted casually with his would-be rescuers. Only the fact that his body was squeezed down into the mud of a marshy ditch saved him from almost instant death.

Victim of the freak accident is 40-year-old Leo McMahon of R.R. 10, Peterborough, a laborer. He has undetermined chest and back injuries, cuts and bruises and he is suffering from shock.

When the car was finally pulled off him McMahon got up, stretched, complained of a sore back and then walked unaided into a waiting ambulance. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where he is reported to have had a satisfactory night.

The full extent of his injuries will be learned when he is X-rayed later today.

McMahon had tough luck earlier in the night, the indirect cause of his injury.

GIVEN PUSH

His car stalled on the 8th line of Douro township early today and Stanley Soltes of Willis Ave., Toronto, volunteered to push him along with a half-ton panel truck.

While going south on the 8th line about 2 a.m., four miles east of Peterborough, the lights of the car suddenly went out. McMahon was unable to see where he was driving and the truck lights were

$241,100,000 Surplus For Two Months

OTTAWA—(CP)—Federal financial surpluses, a big political issue last year, are back on the doorstep of Finance Minister Abbott. Mr. Abbott reported yesterday in a statement that revenue surpassed expenditures by $241,100,000 in the first two months of this fiscal year, starting April 1, even more than in the corresponding months of the last fiscal year. But the man whose 1951-52 monthly surpluses became a political football painstakingly stated that the figures don't really mean much because federal expenditures are heavily loaded in the last six months of the year.

'DON'T MEAN MUCH'

But the man whose 1951-52 monthly surpluses became a political football painstakingly stated that the figures don't really mean much because federal expenditures are heavily loaded in the last six months of the year.

At the same time, he said the Finance Department now is trying to give a truer picture of the government's financial position month by month by spreading over the year certain charges which in the past have been concentrated towards the end. Interest payments on the public debt were cited as the major example.

Despite this new redistribution, the Minister's statement showed that budgetary revenues for April and May exceeded expenditures by $241,100,000 compared to the comparable total of $233,900,000 for the corresponding months of 1951. The latter figure includes the charges which the department now is spreading over the year.

Mr. Abbott ended 1951-52 with a surplus of $355,000,000 compared to the $30,000,000 surplus for which he budgetted. At one time during the year it soared to $700,000,000 and brought Opposition complaints that the government was overtaxing the people.

The Minister is budgetting for a $9,000,000 surplus this year.

Revenues for April and May totalled $667,500,000 compared to $571,300,000 for the corresponding months of 1951. Income tax collections were up to $248,300,000, a $57,200,000 boost reflecting "higher levels of personal incomes and higher tax rates."

The same went for corporation taxes, up $41,400,000 to a total of $189,700,000.

Spending was $426,400,000 compared to $337,400,000, a boost of $89,600,000 mainly due to soaring defence spending.

But, Mr. Abbott said, defence spending is still well below the peak it should hit this year. Of the $2,125,00,000 due to be spent in that field, only $167,500,000 was spent in the first two months.

Canadian Dollar Takes Another Jump

By SIDNEY GAMPELL

LONDON (Reuters)—The Canadian dollar took another upward leap yesterday, the most spectacular of any day since it started its joy-ride last December.

In late dealings in London the Canadian dollar rate reached 2.675 dollars per pound sterling, making the Canadian dollar worth $1.04 in terms of United States currency.

Even Canadian bankers had thought the rise would stop when it reached a value of $1.03 U.S.

Bankers agreed the chief reason for the climb was the movement of capital from the United States into Canada. The great rise in the Canadian dollar was started by a movement of capital to Canada from Switzerland, but this, though it still goes on, has become much smaller than the capital movement to Canada from the United States.

United States banking statistics for the week ended Wednesday show a jump of $40,000,000 in the total of U.S. dollar investments held by foreign central bands.

All of this large sum may be due to the movement of United States capital to Canada, even though the Canadian central bank repelled some of the money by allowing the rate to rise.

Holiday Toll Across U.S. Nearing 300

CHICAGO (AP)—The toll of violent deaths in the United States during the Fourth of July holiday week-end edged toward 300 today, bringing only one glimmer of encouragement — the country appeared to be winning its campaign against careless use of fireworks.

Only two deaths—in a total of 276, were caused by fireworks. Traffic accidents accounted for 168 fatalities, while drownings took 81 lives and 25 persons died in miscellaneous accidents during the first 37 hours of the three-day week end.

The low fireworks toll was a simple reminder of the effectiveness of campaigns to eliminate this holiday hazard through education and regulation. In many states the sale of fireworks is illegal.

The traffic toll, however, was running ahead of the comparable May 30 Memorial Day week-end of 1952—when 363 persons died in auto mishaps. It was almost keeping pace with the National Safety Council's forecast of 430 traffic deaths during the week-end period —from 6 p. m. Thursday to midnight Sunday.

Drownings also were ahead of the three-day Memorial Day week-end—when 85 drownings were reported, and 62 persons died in miscellaneous accidents.

Taxi Drivers Murder Victims

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—Four Australian taxi drivers have been murdered, many slugged or robbed in a countrywide wave of vicious attacks against cabbies.

Two condemned slayers are in death cells for shooting one driver. Three men are due for trial for the murder of two more cabbies. And police are scouring the country for the killer of a fourth driver.

Postal Workers Want Collective Bargaining

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—Daniel Cross of Kingston, Ont., national president of the Canadian Postal Employees Association, last night told the group's Maritime convention that postal employees are "particularly desirous of obtaining the right of collective bargaining."

He said "it is granted to outside industry but denied to civil servants."

The association also wanted a union dues check-off system, salary increases and a five-day, 40-hour week, with time and a half for overtime and double time for Sundays and holidays.

Living Cost Index Jumps Blame Vegetable Prices

OTTAWA (CP)—Higher prices in May for fresh vegetables, pork and rents stopped a four-month decline in the cost-of-living index and jogged it upward again. The index rose three-fifths of a point in May to 187.3 from 186.7, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday. It was the first increase in the index since the peak of 191.5 was reached last December. In the following four months the index eased 4.8 points and gave rise to hopes that the battle against inflation was over. The index is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

Prices of fresh vegetables — chiefly potatoes — pork and rents increased enough to overbalance decreases during May in a long list of items including beef, butter, bacon, coffee, oranges, coal and coke, electrical equipment, furniture and floor coverings and some items of clothing.

The food sub-index showed its first increase since last December in climbing to 237.0 from 235.3. It was still below the peak of 251.4 in July last year.

RENTS SURVEYED

Rents were surveyed for the normal quarterly period and that sub-index jumped 1.6 points to a new high of 147.9.

All other sub-indices declined, except for the miscellaneous figure which remained unchanged.

Joining in the decreases were fuel and light, to 149.8 from 150.6; clothing to 209.3, from 210.1, and home furnishings and services to 197.2 from 198.2. The miscellaneous group stood pat at 147.4.

Union Votes To End Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Striking textile workers here and at Valleyfield, Que., voted to end their three-month wage walkout.

The vote came yesterday in a secret ballot as members of the United Textile Workers of America (T.L.C.-A.F.L.), decided to end the walkout that started April 2 in plants of the Dominion Textile Company here and at Valleyfield.

The workers voted on an agreement reached Sunday between union representatives and company officials which provides a general wage increase of 11 cents an hour; an increase of 10 per cent retroactive to September when the last agreement expired; two cents an hour, in addition to the 11 cents, for 600 maintenance workers and skilled help; increase in statutory holidays from six to seven.

Figures given out by the union voters went to the polls and that 3,006 voted to end the strike. The number voting against was given as 143 and there were 125 spoiled ballots.

Shortly after the result of the vote became known, the company announced that the strike-bound plants would be reopened Monday morning.

United Nations Planes Level Big Red Military School

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United Nations pilots destroyed or damaged 21 Communist jets and levelled a big Red military school without losing a single plane in a raid yesterday near the Manchurian border, the U.S. Fifth Air Force reported today.

About 70 U.S. Thunderjet fighter-bombers hurled explosives and flaming gasoline on a large headquarters building and barracks structures at the school, 20 miles south of Yalu River. Intelligence reports estimated 1,500 Communist officer candidates were to have been graduated there this month.

Eighty-five American Sabre jets ripped into formations of 115 Russian-built Mig-15s bent on thwarting the strike.

The Sabres bagged their second highest toll of Migs for any single day of the war, the Air Force said—12 destroyed, two probably destroyed and seven damaged.

The Air Force said camera film had confirmed 10 kills, one probable and four damaged.

Sabre pilots last Dec. 13 shot down 13 Migs.

The battle ended a week in which no Allied planes were lost over North Korea, the Air Force said. It was the first such week since last August.

Other U.S. Air Force and Marine, Australian, South Korean and South African planes joined in attacks on the Reds' North Korean supply system yesterday. The Air Force said night bombers knocked out 41 supply vehicles in a strike near Pyongyang.

Allied pilots claimed they killed 45 Communists in three air strikes against enemy troop positions near Panmunjom.

The U.S. Eighth Army said the roughest ground action was in the same area. Defenders of an Allied outpost forced Communist attackers to withdraw after an hour's exchange of grenade and small-arms fire early today.

Will Continue Fight For Dam Removal

WASHINGTON (AP)—A lawyer says owners of property on the Lake Ontario shore will continue their court fight to force lowering or removal of Canada's Gut Dam on the St. Lawrence River.

A suit brought by the lakeshore residents was dismissed earlier this week by Judge David A. Pine of Federal District Court. Pine said his court lacked jurisdiction.

Lawyer James R. Murphy indicated yesterday that the first move might be a new effort to obtain a ruling from Judge Pine on the request for an order to compel changes in the dam.

If necessary, Murphy said, the suit will be carried to the U. S. Court of Appeals.

The property owners claim that Gut Dam is responsible for high water that has damaged property along Lake Ontario.

McGill Students Poor In English

MONTREAL (CP)—One-quarter of first-year McGill students are defective in English composition, Dr. George Ian Duthie, professor of English at the university, said yesterday.

Disturbed at a continuing low standard in English composition among freshmen, the university required the class to write a special exam last September on the mechanics of writing and reading comprehension.

Dr. Duthie said results of the September exam showed that "one-quarter of the students were really defective in a subject in which they should have been expert long ago."

In September, 26 per cent failed and only three per cent had first class or near first class marks.

Dr. Duthie said the cause of the sloppy English was, first, need for more discipline in school to develop "habits of close and methodical study," and, second, the fact that high school students read fewer good books due to competition for their leisure time from movies, comic books and radio.

950 Canadian Vets Dock In U.S. Tuesday

VANCOUVER (CP)—A U. S. troopship carrying 950 Canadian Korean War veterans is scheduled to dock in Seattle Tuesday morning, the Army announced today.

Arrival in Seattle of the U. S. S. General Gassey will mark the end of large-scale rotation of members of the 25th Infantry Brigade who went to Korea more than a year ago.

Only a few men in this category remain overseas, the Army said, and they will be brought back under the rotation plan as soon as shipping space is available.

6 Men Killed In British Mine

POINT OF AIR, Wales (Reuters)—Five men died fighting for breath 95 feet underground here early today as the air rushed out of a coal mine pressure chamber and shaft flood waters poured in.

An accident on the surface fouled the air supply to the chamber, in which the men were working to deepen a new shaft at a 100-year-old coal mine near here.

A sixth man, experienced in high pressure work, was able to reach a steel ladder and clamber out ahead of the rising flood waters.

The surface accident killed another man—making a total death roll of six—and seven other surface workers were taken to hospital.

The accident occurred when a heavy crane bucket fouled the air lock seals.

One of the dead was the father of nine children.

Discuss Employment

OTTAWA (CP)—The field of employment for women in Canada will be discussed at a conference in Vancouver of women officials of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, July 12-13.

Ana, Darling Of Moscow Fired From Romanian Job

BERLIN (AP)—Ana Pauker has been fired from her job as foreign minister of Romania, the Soviet-licensed news agency ADN reported today from Bucharest.

The news agency said Simion Buchici has been appointed to take the place of the one-time darling of international Communism who was purged in May from the Romanian Communist party's high command.

The ADN report said Mrs. Pauker, the hefty, 59-year-old daughter of a rabbi, was fired "by decree of the great National Assembly of the people's republic of Romania."

OUSTER EXPECTED

Her ouster had been expected since she was purged from the nation's politburo for "errors and deviations."

At that time she and several other top Romanian Reds were denounced as counter-revolutionary. Western observers said they were being made scapegoats for Romania's current economic woes.

Buchici, the new foreign minister, formerly served as Romanian ambassador to Moscow.

Jut-jawed Mrs. Pauker had been foreign minister of Romania since November, 1947. She spent the Second World War years in Moscow, returning to her native land when it was overrun by the Red Army.

She was reputed to enjoy the special privilege of being able to telephone Stalin at any time she pleased.

Although there have been previous unconfirmed reports that Mrs. Pauker had been kicked out of the foreign ministry after the Politburo purge, today's ADN account was the first mention in any Russian-controlled organ.

RUMOR IMPRISONED

Unconfirmed rumors have had her in prison in Bucharest and also on her way to Moscow in chains.

Ana, fat, ugly heroine of millions of women Communists through the world, fell from favor after her close friend, Vasila Luca, was expelled from the Communist party's central committee as a "right-wing deviationist" last May.

Stalin himself apparently did nothing to save his onetime favorite, whom he once described as "the cleverest woman Communist outside Russia."

After she took over the Romanian Foreign Office, she lived in style with three houses and seven servants. Paris creations garbed her substantial figure. Her auto was bullet-proofed and armored.

Nothing is known of her husband, Marcel Pauker, an engineer. Some reports say he was arrested in Russia and shot.

But she has always been the "perfect Communist mother" to her three children, taking part in their home life and often appearing with them at the opera or theatre—complete with a bodyguard of half-a-dozen men.

New U.S. Liner Setting Record

ABOARD THE S. S. UNITED STATES AT SEA (AP)—The new American liner United States cut through thick fog with unslackening speed today and left no doubt she is headed for a record crossing of the Atlantic. She is reported hitting 36 knots.

Now they're saying unofficially the streamlined, 53,000-ton streak of power will pass Bishop's Rock off the English coast before dawn Monday and rip from six to 10 hours off the transatlantic speed record held by Britain's Queen Mary.

Bishop's Rock is the terminal point of passenger-ship speed tests, which originate at Ambrose Light, off New York.

The United States met her first severe test last night—her second at sea on this maiden voyage. She ran into a heavy mist sweeping down from Newfoundland and the visibility went down to zero. Her radar system was put to work. Commodore Harry Manning, sleepless almost 24 hours, stuck to his post through the night.

The superliner churned through the mist at a speed that reached 36 knots and maintained it most of the night. When the fog lifted, just before daybreak, she was still footing it along at that pace through a bumpy sea.

Armistice Negotiators Hold Long Session

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Korean armistice negotiators held their longest session in weeks today on the thorny prisoner repatriation issue, then set another secret meeting for tomorrow.

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, United Nations Command spokesman, emerged from the 70-minute session at Panmunjom and indicated the talks were proceeding in businesslike fashion.

"All of the discussions related directly to the unresolved problem"—prisoner exchange, Nuckols said.

The secret talks began after the Communists Thursday proposed reclassification of all prisoners according to nationality and area and checking of prisoner lists to facilitate repatriation. The Reds also indicated they would permit voluntary repatriation of Korean prisoners provided all Chinese prisoners were returned.

PICKEREL PACKS WEIGHT—Lorne J. Hartman, River Road North, nearly lost an eight-pound pickerel twice Friday while fishing in the Otonabee river near the filtration plant. While trolling he hooked the fish, it broke one of the hooks, but he brought it into the boat. There the line broke just at the sinker. With Ed Amyotte (left, above) Mr. Hartman weighed the fish on the Examiner scales. (Examiner Staff Photo)

Woman Claims Dragged Along Street

COBOURG — (ENS).—Charge of indecent assault against Richard Hart, Cobourg, was heard in Police Court yesterday, Magistrate W. R. Philp adjourning until next Friday, at the request of T. F. Hall, after the Crown evidence was in. The 27-year-old war veteran pleaded not guilty. The magistrate declined to permit an election to a higher court until the evidence was in and did not alter his decision to have the case proceed as a summary trial.

The complainant was a 45-year-old widow, resident of Cobourg for 18 years.

"Unless the evidence showed the case to be one very close to attempted rape, I am inclined to have it proceed as a summary trial, for the time being at least," was the ruling of the magistrate, his view receiving the approval of Crown Attorney Harry Deyman. Mr. Deyman said that one of his witnesses was on leave from the armed services and would not be readily available if the case did not proceed.

SITTING IN PARKED CAR

Mrs. Wells, a short, dark-haired woman, said that she was on the south side of King Street around midnight of June 29, during the time when the closing of the movie and pavilion released a large number of people on King Street. In about the heart of the business section a man, the accused, was sitting in a parked car alone and called her over. She stepped over to see who it was and what he wanted and he reached out and grabbed her wrist. Then he got out of the car and still holding on to her wrist, armed her over to the entrance of a small side street right off busy King Street. She said that he drew her along against her will and that she stumbled. At that point two men came along and one helped her to her feet and the other took hold of the accused.

Apart from holding her by the arm, he did not otherwise touch her, she testified. Witness said that she went into the side street with him against her will.

Charles and Harold Rogerson Oshawa, who had just driven up to a cafe opposite the side street, saw the woman struggling against the efforts of the man to take her down the street and arrived just as she had fallen down and the accused was trying to get her on her feet. Both witnesses said that Hart appeared to be under the influence of liquor. Charles Rogerson took Hart in tow to the police station and his brother escorted Mrs. Wells to the police staion.

Dr. D. E. Mikel examined the woman at the station and found her to be shaky and both knees bore abrasions from an apparent fall.

Dr. Mikel, a Crown witness, gave evidence on Hart's behalf.

"Nobody has asked me to say anything on behalf of the accused, but I have known him for two years and treated him one time at the hospital. I was positively amazed to hear that he was in this trouble because he is of good character and comes from a good family," testified the doctor.

Constable E. Butler said that when Hart was brought to the police station, the accused was under the influence of liquor and he detected a strong odor of alcohol on his breath.

RELEASED BY RUSSIANS—Three American Catholic priests were released by the Russians after being held captive overnight in the Soviet sector of Berlin for trying to take a picture of a Russian officer. Released with the priests was a German woman who had been guiding them on a tour of the city following their return from the World Eucharistic Congress in Barcelona, Spain. The priests are: (left to right) Father E. Sokolowski, Father George Gorski, and Father Borowszyk, all of Chicago, Ill.

Croc Was Hot

MUEHLACKER, Germany (Reuters)—A sweltering crocodile escaped from its circus cage Thursday and sought relief from the heat wave by lounging in a nearby river. While a search party was being organized, the refreshed croc came back to its cage of its own accord.

Republicans Working Hard On Foreign Policy Plank

CHICAGO—(CP)—Republican platform architects today worked on the key foreign-policy plank and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said he understood the plank in its tentative form includes his own views on how U.S. security should be safeguarded. Eisenhower has said the plank should call for a policy of co-operation among the western allies and recognition of the necessity of world trade to obtain raw materials needed in the U.S.

G.O.P. 'PRACTICAL'

At Cedar Rapids, Ia., last night, Eisenhower said that if such a plank is adopted by the Republican convention next week, "it clearly evidences the determination of the Republican party to be forward looking and eminently practical in treating the grave problem of foreign programs and our security."

Senator Eugene D. Millikin of Colorado, chairman of the platform committee, has been manoeuvring to get the warring factions of Senator Robert Taft of Ohio and Eisenhower to sign the foreign-policy plank before he reveals it.

One Republican confided that Millikin, known as one of the Senate's best compromisers and peacemakers, faces a touchy task because he must blister past international moves of the Democrats enough to please one Republican faction and still back the United Nations and collective anti-Communist moves sufficiently to satisfy another Republican wing.

Information supplied by committee members indicated the Republicans would charge the Democrats with:

(1) Failure to prevent the spread of Communism in China; (2) the "turning" of large areas of eastern Europe and of much of Asia over to Russian domination under the Yalta agreements; (3) adopting a negative policy of containing Communism within its present sphere, rather than a positive policy aimed to diminish its influence; (4) failure to maintain U.S. prestige in the Middle East; and (5) neglect of U.S. interests in Latin America and Africa while concentrating on Europe.

MAY CRITICIZE U.N.

As for what the plank would promise in the way of improving conduct of foreign affairs, less information—and speculation—was available.

There were reports that it would promise to continue the present policy of collective security, involving co-operation with other freedom-loving countries through the United Nations. However, some committee members predicted the U.N. would be criticized because it had not seen to it that other member countries furnished more help in the Korean War.

20½-Lb. Muskie Biggest Yet

TRENT RIVER (ENS) — Quite peeved with the muskie fishing in the Trent River area, Clifford E. Y. Barbo, Leavittsburg, Ohio, thought he was caught on bottom Friday while trolling. But actually he caught the young season's largest muskie, a 20-pound, eight-ounce fish, measuring 41 inches long.

One of a party of four staying at McIlmoyle's River View resort, Barbo's first visit to Trent River was beginning to be disappointing. While trolling Friday he hooked the fish and immediately thought he was caught on bottom.

Barbo pulled; the fish started to fight. Barbo became excited, thinking that perhaps he would lose it. The battle continued for three-quarters of hour. Barbo won.

Loaned Boy Friend $68 Sues For Payment

Friday in division court (claims under $100) there unfolded a story of not-so-true love and the litigation that followed.

Frances Reynolds, 19, was suing another Peterborough resident, 25-year-old James Anderson, for $68. Frances said she loaned her boy friend the money so he could pay off some bills and then they could get married. But it wasn't to be.

Somebody else caught the boy friend's eye (after he got the $68) and Frances was left with neither the money nor a potential mate. So she sued for a return of the money.

W. F. Huycke, Q.C., acting judge of the division court, thought it over for a while and finally awarded her $50.

Wheat started ½ lower to ⅜ higher, July 2.28⅝-¾, corn ¼-⅝ lower, July 1.79¾-⅞, oats ¼ lower to ⅜ higher, July 77¾, and soybeans ¼ lower to ¾ higher, July 3.28¼.

Rye trade was mixed. Prices for Class 2 wheat were up one-eighth cent. Prices for I.W.A. wheat were down seven-eighths of a cent.

Arrested In Havana

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Police arrested two top Communists last night in a continuing major roundup of Red party leaders ordered after a Communist demonstration against Gen. Fulgencio Batista's government. Lazaro Pena, former secretary-general of the Cuban Confederation of Labor, and Jose Morera, former organizing secretary, were taken into custody as they stepped off a plane from Amsterdam.

insufficient to illuminate the road.

The left front wheel of the car slid off the edge of a culvert on the side of the road and the car dropped onto its side in a six-foot ditch. During the fall McMahon fell out of the driver's seat and the car fell on top of him, squeezing him down into the mud.

By another freakish twist the truck also dropped into the ditch. Somehow the front bumper of the light truck got entangled with the rear bumper of the car and they both toppled into the culvert.

GOES FOR HELP

Soltes, however, managed to wriggle free.

He found McMahon lying on his stomach securely pinned under the car with only his head and shoulder protruding. Unable to free the injured man, Soltes went for help.

Would-be rescuers used jacks and tried to lift the car but they were unsuccessful until a tow-truck arrived from the Kawartha Garage. Meanwhile McMahon remained in good spirits and chatted away with those who had gathered about.

He walked unaided to the ambulance, but by the time the ambulance reached hospital he was barely able to move.

The accident was investigated by O.P.P. Constable Harold Armstrong.

McMahon is a bachelor and lives at the farm home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McMahon.

Commonwealth Conference Will Be Held

OTTAWA (CP) — A Commonwealth conference is in preparation, Prime Minister St. Laurent said yesterday in the Commons.

The Prime Minister gave only the barest information on the meeting after being questioned by Progressive Conservative members.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Lake Centre) suggested the meeting would be held in November, but Mr. St. Laurent would say only that the Canadian information is to be made available to "those who are considering the calling of a conference at a not-too-distant date."

He again rejected Progressive Conservative requests that Canada take the lead in getting such a conference under way, declaring Canadian initiative would be "a serious embarrassment to those who have already taken initiative to bring about this kind of conference."

TO CO-OPERATE FULLY

However, he said, Canada has expressed willingness to "co-operate to the fullest possible extent."

Outside the House, Mr. Diefenbaker said later in an interview that his information is that it would be welcome to other Commonwealth countries if Canada took the lead and if the conference were held in this country.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said he has been advised that the preliminary discussions are on the basis that it should be a general trade and economic conference.

Government sources outside the Commons said a meeting of Commonwealth economic and finance experts likely will be held next month in London, and they also pointed out that some of the Commonwealth finance ministers will be meeting in Mexico City in September for the International Monetary Fund session.

A high government authority was asked by a reporter if the Prime Minister was referring to these, or to a broader type of conference, in his Commons statement.

He replied cautiously that it would be safe to say the Mexico City developments may be followed by others.

Mr. Diefenbaker told the reporter his understanding of the proposed new meeting is that it would be on a much broader basis than the two already-arranged sessions.

INDEX RISES—The cost-of-living index increased by three-fifths of a point during May to 187.3 from 186.7, ending a four-month, 4.8-point decline from the peak of 191.5 last December. The Bureau of Statistics, which prepares the index, said the main causes of the climb were higher prices for some foodstuffs and higher rents. The dotted line shows the United States Consumers' price index. These indexes measure percentage changes in prices for each country but should not be used to compare actual levels of prices between the two countries.

HOLIDAY CRUISES AND FISHING TRIPS in their cabin cruiser will be enjoyed by Douglas Long and Joseph Campanaro, Peterborough youths, this summer. The two men added the finishing touch this year to their craft when they put in a marine motor, replacing an old converted car engine. They have been working on the boat since 1949. Long (left, above) and his wife enjoy the sun from the forward decks while Campanaro steers.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Cabin Cruiser Sets Sail After Four Years' Work

After four years of work on a cabin cruiser, two Peterborough men, Douglas Long, 298 Edinburgh St., and Joseph Campanaro, 553 Elm St., have started a summer of pleasure trips and fishing.

It all started in 1949 when the two youths had the boyish dream of building their own boat.

Long, possibly thinking of millionaires cruising the Florida waters, made the suggestion that he and Joe should make a sail boat. After a few days of thought, they decided that a cruiser would be better if they were going to make a boat at all.

Actually an old car motor made the final decision on what type of craft they would build. It was at their work and the owners donated the engine to the cause. A rough sketch of the craft was made and then work started.

During the next winter in an old barn on Stewart St. the youths worked night after night for months. In the spring the hull was completed and in the summer of 1950, it was launched at Bridgenorth in Lake Chemong.

That launching was rather disappointing, the old car engine just refused to work. But the lads kept working; they towed it across the lake to Long's father's summer home.

FINISHING TOUCHES

There the finishing touches were added. The superstructure was built, canvas sewn, the boat painted and stained, the engine repaired, repaired and repaired. The old converted motor still refused to turn over.

"Everything would happen to that old thing; finally we just had t oinstal a marine engine. We had outside help for that job," said Long.

In 1950 the cruiser made its first long jaunt up through the Kawartha lakes, using the old engine. Campanaro and Long went up as far as Balsam lake for their holidays.

"We didn't have any trouble on that trip with the motor," said Campanaro, "but as soon as we came back to Chemong, it just didn't want to go."

Now four years since they first started the craft, it's working to perfection. The new marine engine seemed to do the trick.

So far this year Long and Campanaro have confined their trips to pleasure trips around Chemong lake, doing a little pickerel fishing. On July 1, the holiday, with a group they cruised and fished up to Buckhorn and back.

Plans for later this summer include a family trip up Lake Simcoe and back. The boys' only trouble now is that the cruising season isn't long enough for more long trips.

Holiday Fever Affects Stock Markets

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian and United States stock markets struggled gamely this week but just couldn't cope with the summer's first attack of holiday fever.

Exchanges in Toronto and Montreal traded unenthusiastically Monday in anticipation of Tuesday's Dominion Day holiday. Traders barely recaptured a business mood when the New York market closed Friday for Independence Day.

Despite a shortened week, however, prices managed a slight rise to bolster hope for a predicted summer advance. But trading maintained a cautious, highly selective pattern and most gains were small.

PROFIT-TAKING SHOWS

Golds showed early signs of strength on the Toronto market but profit-taking, particularly in leading issues such as McIntyre-Porcupine and Lake Shore, dimmed prospects for a sustained drive.

Canadian observers said the holiday breaks prevented an accurate appraisal of Toronto and Montreal markets. New York's slight advance, they said, indicated a consolidation of the recent upswing.

Toronto opened the week with a slow cautious advance. Industrials and base metals drew most support and closed sharply higher. In Montreal, papers pushed upward but industrials turned lower.

Toronto opened strongly Wednesday after the Tuesday holiday with a flurry of buying as interlisted issues caught up to New York's Tuesday advance. But the advance soon faded and prices closed mixed. Industrials steadied in Montreal but papers slipped.

Traders dawdled through a dull session in Toronto yesterday. Golds showed strength but buying failed to spread beyond selected secondary issues. Papers continued to drift lower in Montreal while industrials held firmly.

TRADING SLOW

Trading slackened to the slowest pace of the year in Toronto yesterday as prices drifted. Profit-taking skimmed some gold gains. Industrials and papers were mixed.

New York started strongly Monday and carried through for a well-distributed gain. Prices soared to another record high on the Associated Press average Tuesday as buying spread to a broad list of issues.

Support weakened Wednesday as rails and steels slipped. Prices eased again Thursday in quiet trading.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto stock exchange indices showed industrials up 1.91 at 319.98, golds up 1.47 at 91.14, base metals up 1.44 at 187.32 and western oils down .43 at 137.18.

THE FACE OF WAR—One more patrol completed. One more safe return. Pvt. Heath Matthews, 19, of Montreal, Canada, who is with the Canadian Army unit in Korea, has just returned from a combat mission, tired, grimy, and shaken up. This trip, he's lucky. His only injury is a bloodied nose.

Textile Workers Voting On Strike Issue

MONTREAL (CP)—Polling booths open today for some 5,700 textile workers who decide whether they will end a strike that has lasted three months and brought an upheaval in union ranks.

The workers are those of Dominion Textile Company in Montreal and its subsidiary, Montreal Cottons, in Valleyfield.

About 3,000 are expected to vote in Valleyfield and 2,700 in Montreal.

The vote is on settlement proposals reached between representatives of United Textile Workers of America (T.L.C.-A.F.L.) and the company.

The basis of settlement, announced last Sunday:

1. Across-the-board wage increase of 11 cents an hour.
2. An increase of 10 per cent retroactive to September, when the last agreement expired.
3. An additional two cents an hour for approximately 600 maintenance workers and skilled help.
4. An additional statutory holiday, raising the total from six to seven.
5. The proposed agreement to run two years, the union having the right to reopen negotiations on wages after one year. In event of a disagreement the contract could be terminated then by either party.

WOULD COST $2,000,000

It was estimated the 11-cent increase, plus the additional two cents for 600 workers, will amount to $1,500,000 a year; the back pay to $500,000 and the additional holiday $50,000.

The strike began April 2, the workers originally seeking a 23-cent increase. An arbitration board brought in three recommendations, the chairman recommending 13 cents. Following the strike the union finally proposed 13 cents. The company offered a 10-per-cent increase. Average wage at the time of the strike was 98 cents, but union men said a 10-per-cent increase would actually mean seven to 11 cents.

Late in May came the union upheaval. The international executive ordered the discharge of the entire Canadian staff of 12, including R. Kent Rowley, Canadian director. The international said the Canadian leadership was Communistic and had also mismanaged the strike.

HISTORIC TOWN

The town of Chambly near Montreal was named after Captain Jacques de Chambly, who was granted the seigniory in 1672.

Old-Time Newspaperman L. H. Dingman Dies At 87

ST. THOMAS (CP)—L. H. Dingman, 87, one of Canada's old-time newspapermen, died early today.

A newspaperman for more than 70 years, Mr. Dingman was president and publisher of the St. Thomas Times-Journal and the Stratford Beacon-Herald. He died in his sleep after a long illness.

"V.L.H." as he was widely known used to say he hardly knew when he started in newspaper work. At the age of 10 he started to run errands, learned to set type and did odd jobs around his father's

He was a member of a family which made a great contribution to the newspaper profession in southwestern Ontario and to Canada generally. He was the St. Thomas member of The Canadian Press.

His father, Absalom Dingman, ran the weekly Dispatch at Strathroy 75 years ago. Of six brothers who predeceased L.H. Dingman, one, W.S. Dingman, was publisher and editor of the Stratford Herald and another, Charles, became managing editor and director of the Stratford Beacon-Herald.

The latter's son, Charles, is the present managing director of the paper. Among nephews surviving are George M. Dingman of St. Thomas, vice-president and managing director of the St. Thomas Times-Journal, and W. Hugh Agnew of the editorial staff of the same paper.

Lewis Hervey Dingman was born on a farm in Sombra Township, Lambton County, on March 12, 1865. His family were United Empire Loyalists.

The grandfather of "L.H." bought a farm at Sombra. One of his sons, Absalom, with a growing family of nine, became interested in newspaper work and in 1874 bought the Strathroy Dispatch. Mr. Dingman, Sr., was a close friend of Sir John A. Macdonald and the conservative leader, Canada's first Prime Minister, appointed him inspector of Indian Agencies for the district in 1884.

BUY HERALD IN '86

In 1886 W.S. Dingman and L.H. Dingman bought the Stratford Herald, then a weekly. Two years later they turned it into a daily.

One day in 1889 "L.H." received a telephone call from J.S. Brierley, then owner of the St. Thomas Journal. Mr. Brierley had just bought the Montreal Herald and wanted an editor and manager for his St. Thomas paper. Three years later Mr. Dingman purchased the rival paper, The Times. In 1918 he bought the Journal and merged the two papers.

As an editor, Mr. Dingman took special pains in selecting clippings from North American papers and magazines for his editorial page. He read hundreds of them, culling the best for his paper. It was said that lazy editors throughout Canada got their clippings from the Times-Journal.

LIKED THEATRE

A life-long lover of the theatre, Mr. Dingman recalled with nostalgia the days when good travelling shows visited St. Thomas and London. There was hardly a year since his first visit to New York in 1890 that he hadn't visited it again to take in the best shows.

Mr. Dingman never married. Three nieces and one sister, Mrs. Winifred Agnew, also survive. He lived with his sister in St. Thomas.

Pearson's Grace

The Federal Government is now spending about a billion dollars a year for old age and other pensions; it is spending millions on public health and social welfare matters. Provincial governments are likewise heavily involved in public welfare plans, organizations and expenses. "Social security" provided by governments is a phenomenon of this century, extending and replacing private and voluntary work. The multiplicity and extensions of social welfare work—demanded by voters, sanctioned by all parties, and on the whole pleasing to the citizens—is becoming so much of a good thing that, if continued at the present rate, the hand to rock the cradle-to-grave "security" may kick the bucket, be cut off at the root, throttled, or meet some other picturesquely painful fate. In other words, the people left to raise the money to provide the "security" for the many beneficiaries may break their backs in the effort.

* * *

The Honourable L. B. Pearson, speaking at the Calgary convention of Canadian Mayors and Reeves, suggested a new grace before meals for those interested in further extending social welfare: "For what we are about to receive, make us truly conscious of the fact that we will have to pay for it." Pay envelopes this first week of July brought their own message on the same theme: they were thinner than usual because two per cent. —additional to the ordinary deductions for income tax—was taken out of them as the employees' share of the expense of the new general Old Age Pensions.

Canada: America's Dollar Dependency

The sprawling blob of red at the top of this continent is a geographical distortion of Canada's importance, as Canadians recognize even before their school-days are ended. Canada does not overwhelm the U.S., even if it overhangs it on the map. The predominance of the U.S. is a fact which Canadians know in their fibres. In dollar-talk, the U.S. is all-important.

Canada lives by trade, it is said. Judging from last year's export-import figures, her livelihood therefore depends on the United States. Last year's export of merchandize to the U.S. amounted to $2,297.7 millions, an increase of $276.7 millions over 1950. Canadian exports to all the rest of the world in 1951 amounted to only $1,616.8 millions. Canadian imports from the U.S. during the year reached the highest figure yet: $2,812.9 millions. Her imports from all other countries came to $1,272 millions. Thus, Canada is the United States' best customer, as the United States is Canada's best customer. Of our total external trade during 1951 of nearly eight billion dollars, more than five billion was with the United States. Britain and all the rest of the world counted for only a third of our total export-import trade. That is how large the U.S. looms in the affairs of a trading country like Canada. The U.S. is our chief market, and our chief foreign supplier of materials, components, capital equipment and consumer goods.

This is not the whole of the story, even of the dollars-and-cents story. As the figures given above show, Canada bought more ($515.2 millions more) from the U.S. than the U.S. did from Canada. Thus, in trade, there was a heavy debit balance. This was in part made up by a credit balance of $344.8 millions in trade with other countries, but this credit was not always in 'hard' currency. How then did Canada keep up with her spending in the U.S.? Where did she find the dollars? Is this country sliding into another dollar gap, when buying in the U.S. will have to be restricted again? Last year the debit balance in American trade increased by $405 millions; it was only $109.5 millions in 1950.

The explanation for the solvent condition of Canada as regards American dollars is the huge influx of American capital for investment in Canada. Because of this, official Canadian holdings of gold and dollars increased from $1,741.5 millions at the beginning of 1951, to $1,778.6 millions at the end of the year.

This very heavy capital investment by Americans in Canada is another dollar indication of the importance of the United States in Canadian affairs—and incidentally is one reason why the Canadian dollar is at a premium on the American market now. As the American influence in these economic matters increases, the British influence wanes.

Two healthy indications that Canada is not utterly dependent on the United States, even economically, were the expansion of her own domestic market due to the greater population, with the highest national income in Canada's history to spend on feeding, clothing, taxing and entertaining themselves; and the second healthy sign was a development of foreign markets other than American.

While Britain took only $631 millions of our $3,915 millions of exports (sixteen per cent.) and the United States $2,812.9 or 56 per cent., other countries bought nearly a billion dollars' worth of Canadian goods — though admittedly some of this buying was subsidized by American dollars and Canadian loans.

Not A Closed Shop

In commenting Thursday about the decision of a Board of Arbitration to assess U.E. $9,208 damages, payable to the C.G.E. on account of an unauthorized work stoppage at the Davenport (Toronto) works, we said that the U.E. has a "closed shop" at the C.G.E. This is not so. A "closed shop" means that every hourly-rated employee either must belong to the union or pay dues as if he belonged. The Union's contract with the C.G.E. states that all new hourly-rated employees must pay union dues but may, ten days before the contract comes up for renewal, say that they no longer wish to pay the dues. Thereafter they need not. Another class of hourly-rated employees is free from paying dues; employees with the company before the union was certified, who did not want to join the union or to pay dues to it.

Notwithstanding the U.E.'s not having a closed shop, it has legal right and power to negotiate a contract for all hourly-rated employees, dues-paying or not. Having this authority, and having contracted with the Company on this basis, the U.E. therefore tacitly accepts responsibility for all the production workers. Since the Union is presumed to have the power to negotiate for all, the Arbitration Board, through its decision on the Davenport Works case, requires that it demonstrate its integrity by positively trying to ensure that all employees abide by the contract.

There is a logical inconsistency in this hazy situation of a union being authorized to act for all workers—and to have responsibility for them—when not all are members or even pay dues. In fact, many are actively opposed to the U.E.—and yet U.E. bargains for them and, as a consequence, has to accept responsibility for them. It may fairly be asked if the Union should be expected and legally authorized to make contracts covering workers who are neither members nor dues-payers when it has no legal authority over them? Without that legal authority, should it be forced to accept responsibility for them?

The situation is of course a compromise. Compromise has been the tool by which affairs in democracies progress, and is therefore not to be condemned. Because a situation is not entirely defensible logically does not mean that it is indefensible practically. This hazy relation, of a union acting for all in a shop which is not "closed" is recognized in the Board of Arbitration's award of damages to the Company, and not a penalty against the Union.

Canadians Have Been Saving

Despite high taxes and the high cost of living, last year the personal savings of Canadians—savings tucked away in banks, bonds, insurance and old stockings—were twice as big as they were the year before. They were greater than in any year since the war ended. In fact, twelve per cent., of the income that Canadians had to spend (that is, that was left after income tax deductions) went into savings.

This large proportion means that on the average Canadians were not hard pressed last year and had more income than they needed to supply their wants. Perhaps they did not gratify all their whims. In fact, although they spent, per head, more dollars on goods and services than they did in 1950, they bought less in quantity.

The big savings made by Canadians last year also may mean that individually their post-war spending splurge has gone, and last year they were buying cannily, resisting high prices for goods. This consumer resistance was one of the reasons that retail prices tumbled last autumn. People were refusing to buy, although they had the money to spend.

The cushion of last year's savings is an indication that this year—since no dreaded depression has set in, jobs are again quite plentiful and hours of work steady—that Canadians will buy more than they did last year. They have not only their current earnings to spend but also the money they saved in 1951. Merchants and manufacturers have been eyeing the high level of 1951 personal savings with confidence, if not satisfaction. It is an omen of good retail business this year.

The Queen's Large Income

By CYRIL DUNN

SPASMS OF A MILD UNEASINESS are troubling the people of the British Isles just now, if one may judge from the tones and preoccupations of the Press and Parliament. This is the beginning of a new reign and the law requires that Parliament shall approve the payments to be made to Queen Elizabeth II and to members of the Royal Family.

On paper the sums seem to be fabulous and their announcement has come at a time when the whole community is being asked to restrain its demands for higher incomes and for increased wages, in order to evade all the painful consequences of inflation. At such a moment, ordinary people are bound to be impressed by proposals to fix the Queen's Civil List at £475,000 a year (more than ¼ million dollars), to grant her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, an annuity of £40,000 for life (compared with the existing annual provision of £10,000) and to give their baby son, Charles, a lump sum of £150,000 when he is eighteen and an income of £30,000 a year thereafter.

CONFRONTED BY THE PARADOX of a war-impoverished nation apparently lavishing funds on its Royal House, one newspaper (and that by no means a Right-Wing organ) has described the whole system as "unfair to the Queen and misleading to the public." Calling for reform, the paper condemns the present practice of lumping together all the costs of monarchy, from the upkeep of the Royal stables to the expenses incurred on goodwill tours of the Commonwealth, a system which makes it appear to the world that this is the private income of the Queen, to be disposed of as she thinks fit.

The Labour Party, as devoted to the monarchy as an institution and to the Queen as a monarch as any other political group in Parliament, simply wonders if nothing can be done to reduce the total sum allotted to the Civil List. Do we, the Socialists ask, really need all this ceremonial? To which all Conservatives, and a great many who are not Conservatives, hotly reply that we do indeed, and especially at a time when we are compelled to practice a frugal austerity in our own affairs.

THE DAILY WORKER, voice of the Communist Party in Britain, naturally approaches this problem in a somewhat less inhibited style. Commenting on the current demands from some of the bigger trade unions for higher wages because of the rise in the cost of living, the Daily Worker heads its observations: "Some Can Get A Rise" and points out that the Select Committee on the Civil List has based its proposals on "the rise in the cost of living since the days of Edward VII" (1901-1910.)

But with the vast majority of people in Britain the popularity of the Queen and of those about her is so great that they might not begrudge her the £475,000 if the whole of it really were her own. But they certainly welcome the explanations now being made of how the money is allocated.

THERE CAN BE no doubt that through many reigns the monarchs of Britain did enjoy an undue share of the national income. Until the revolution of 1688, when William and Mary came to the throne, there was virtually no distinction between the cost of running the country and the king's personal spending. This meant that he had complete control over vast revenues and could, if he wished, treat Parliament with contempt.

By an Act of 1697, the first Civil List was established. This meant that the hereditary revenues of the Crown (similar to those of the other landed gentry of the kingdom, but much greater) and a part of the excise duty, some £700,000 in all, were assigned to the king. Out of this he had to pay for the Civil Service (a markedly cheaper item than it is today) and for pensions, as well as the costs of the Royal Household and his own personal expenses or Privy Purse.

SINCE THOSE DAYS, the system has undergone many changes, designed partly to ensure that the country was not saddled with debts for which there were no very detailed accounts and partly (as in the days of George III (1760-1820) to prevent the wholesale bribery of M.P.s and others out of the king's resources. The aim has been to separate the personal incomes of the Royal House from anything which might be regarded as the responsibility of the civil government.

Of all the amendments made to the finances of the Civil List, none has been more enjoyable than the one which followed the loss of the American Colonies and was designed to save the country from the bankruptcy with which this event threatened her. The beneficiaries under the Civil List were divided into categories, placed not only in order of merit but on a descending scale which meant that, if those at the top exhausted the resources of the List, those at the bottom should get nothing. It started with the Royal Family and ended with the Chancellor of the Exchequer and those officials of the Treasury whose business it was to keep this fund solvent.

TODAY the Civil List has been cleared of many of its old encumbrances, but the Queen's share in it is still heavily weighted with items which are anything but personal. Out of the total sum of £475,000, the Queen's Privy Purse accounts only for £60,000, and this amount the Queen herself has offered to cut by £17,000.

The old hereditary revenues of the Crown have now, of course, been assigned to the State and the point could be made that under the terms of the Civil List the Royal Family now gets back about half the sum which was for centuries acknowledged to be its own.

ONE CANNOT EASILY compare the incomes of kings, since the size of the countries they rule and the state they are expected to maintain are highly relevant and variable factors. But King Frederik of Denmark, for example, gets roughly £100,000 a year, for the support of himself, his Queen and his three young daughters. With that simplicity which is one of the engaging characteristics of the Danes, an Embassy official adds that the King "also gets his housing free." Other items, such as the cost of entertaining, are charged against the Exchequer. Other members of the Danish Royal Family—which means, in the main, the Heir to the throne, Prince Knud, and his wife and children—get £30,000 a year.

The young King Baudoin of the Belgians gets some £43,000 a year more than did his father, King Leopold, who abdicated in his favour. The income of the King is given as £250,000 a year and it appears to be the case that roughly one-half of this goes to meet the expenses of running the Royal Household and maintaining his state. Leopold and his family have now only £43,000 pound a year, the Queen Mother and young Prince Charles £28,000 each. In each case the sum includes an allowance for expenses.

IT CANNOT BE SAID that by American standards President Truman has been extravagantly paid. His official income is 100,000 dollars, to which is added an expense allowance of 50,000 dollars a year, plus a sum not exceeding 40,000 dollars for travelling costs and official entertaining. Unlike the Royal salary earners, the President gets no extra sum for his family; indeed, it is said that his daughter Margaret earns as a singer more than he does as President. As part of its justification for the sums to be paid to members of the Royal Family in Britain, the Select Committee makes the point, to which significance is added by Miss Truman's success, that Royalty "is excluded from commercial activities."

If one moves on into the palaces and Riviera villas of Eastern potentates, the report on income becomes more brilliant but much less clearly-defined. It is believed that King Farouk of Egypt, for example, has a personal income of about £2,000,000 a year, due mainly to the fact that he owns about one-seventh of all the land in Egypt. His father also left him property in Italy which is said to have a capital value of £12,000,000.

Nobody could say with any accuracy how much the Sultan gets from the oil-bearing island of Kuwait, but it is said that the total annual revenue of the land is £60,000,000 and this sum the Sultan administers as his personal concern, since he still enjoys the absolute authority lost by the monarchs of Britain at the 1688 Revolution. The Sultan is, in fact, the state and though he spends a good deal of his revenue on providing for the welfare of his people, his spending is in no sense limited by any such device as a Civil List.

An American View: Are You A Good Swimmer, Phil?

Letters To The Editor

DEFENDS DISTINGUISHED ANCESTRY

Sir: I take it that you do not do a great deal in genealogy and have missed quite a fascinating hobby. History is much more interesting when you find your own ancestors making it.

In my case, one of my ancestors was John Drake of Windsor, Conn., 1630. Tracing back through the Grenville, Courtney, Bohun and Plantagenet lines one arrives at about the same ancestors as this Taft article indicates with the exception of Marc Anthony, which I understand cannot be proven and I would certainly have to see it first to believe. Since every step back of John Drake can be proven, quite officially, by anyone who cares to look, let us consider the descendants of this same man. One statement says they number about 15,000,000. Probably that is not correct but they are certainly numerous enough, just counting the families, and every one of those families has about the same pedigree as far as Drake is concerned. Far from a Royal ancestry or a peerage ancestry being uncommon I venture to say that no person lives who, somewhere, does not have such an ancestry. But trace these noble, or Royal, houses back and what do you find in every case? Some stout forester, landholder or pirate was head of the family — as far as I know my father's family raised sheep somewhere around 1400.

Now why isn't it democratic to take pride in such an ancestry? Do you not think it is just plain snobbishness by folks who think they are a cut better than the peerage, when every bit of geanealogy tends to prove we are all of one blood and one family and needn't give ourselves any airs of superiority and, on the other hand, the man doesn't live who is one bit better than yourself except for what you yourself are? You need not worry about being proud of ancestry, however, even though you probably have plenty of good ones (as well as bad): just see to it your ancestors have reason to be proud of you. Or could it be you are one of those so-called Canadians that can't even hold, or appreciate, what your ancestors had gumption to get?

J. A. SPENCER.

SUGGESTIONS FOR KIWANIS FESTIVAL?

Sir: We are in the course of closing off the 1952 Music Festival. From every viewpoint it was a success and we are satisfied that in no small measure the co-operation from The Peterborough Examiner in keeping the public posted on developments contributed to this.

Your editorials, the Peter Piper Column and the work of your reporters was noted with considerable appreciation and we shall be pleased if you will convey the thanks of the committee to those concerned.

We are now preparing for the 1953 Festival, which will be held about May 6th to 12th and we hope that anyone who has any suggestions to offer which would be of assistance to the general committee, will not hesitate to write to the secretary immediately so that as many as possible of the worthwhile ideas can be incorporated in the program.

Sincerely,
W. M. GEMMELL,
Chairman.

DO WE NEED THE SEAWAY?

Sir: From time to time we hear reports of soil erosion and watersheds etc. and what a job it is to educate the general public on these points particularly property owners (since they will fight any expropriation of property they've paid for). But coming to a more important question, and that is the St. Lawrence project: We understand to put this scheme through they would have to submerge vast areas of existing land or erase in 2 or 3 hours land that wouldn't wash away in centuries. Can some authority explain this one? I am merely asking questions. Can other than the St. Lawrence supply us with the same amount of electricity? Can the cement supply handle this huge job and more important still the needs of the public at the same time, or will we have a long salty expanse of water to look at and go short of building supplies ourselves? Can a super highway be built to serve a better and cheaper purpose? How many people have to be compensated when their property is flooded? How much will it cost? Who benefits most; a few big contractors or the public? I thing the public in general should be given positive proof and facts about this prospect especially the exact cost and not a huge amount of hidden costs afterwards like many of these big jobs add up in extras! We are well aware that this St. Lawrence job would give a lot of people work, but don't hand us that one because the required amount of taxes would perhaps equally serve a better purpose and give just as many work!

As for one remark about it being useful in wartime I somehow can't swallow that one simply because of jets flying at 675 miles an hour while our snail-boats are doing 20 m.p.h. What can the experts offer us in the shape of atomic energy which they are promising and which can no doubt do more than hundreds of boats and also generate all the electricity we'll need and perhaps far cheaper than two or three St. Lawrence Rivers? I would like to hazard a guess they'll be mighty sorry they dunked so much land as will be necessary in less than 50 years time. Another question, please; in the States and here we have swollen rivers doing a lot of damage year by year. How would the St. Lawrence behave and are harnessed rivers a greater menance than when they are left alone? In closing, what questions have you on this proposed Government project and please don't say its nothing to do with you "because the Government is doing it". Because you may get a rude shock when you are presented with the bill! Even if you're just an amateur, like myself, I imagine you dream sometimes, so how about putting it in writing? I feel sure the Examiner would be pleased to hear from you as well as the public.

Yours truly,
SEAWAY QUIZ

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write; These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God; I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. . . .

Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked: I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich . . . .

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne.

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. (Rev. 4:14, 15, 17, 18, 20-22.)

CARVED WOOD MODELS VIVIFY PIONEER HISTORY

Unique Work Of Omemee Craftsman Prized By Royal Ontario Museum

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

Folkways of the people who lived for upwards of a century in the Kawartha land of thinning forests have been mirrored now and again in song, story and picture. But historical surveys of the region have been sketchy, fragmentary, misplaced emphasis.

An Omemee observer of the scene has been busy for several decades fashioning a three-dimensional record of pioneer life and work which promises to be invaluable not only in its own right but in illustrating richly what has been said in the written histories—and perhaps giving a new sense of direction to writers of the future.

J. N. McCrea is a historian in wood. In turning a keenly realistic eye upon the "Age of Wood" he has chosen fittingly enough the wood itself as the medium for his artistic expression. The period of his survey extends from the latter part of the 18th Century.

PATIENT RESEARCH

Few phases of the workaday life of the early settlers have been overlooked by Mr. McCrea in the years of patient research and skilful craftsmanship he has devoted to the construction of the models for "Pioneer Life in Upper Canada" on display at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto. The collection has been growing constantly since it was first shown in Toronto in 1938. In that year it was introduced at the Hobbies Show of the Canadian National Exhibition with a placard bearing the legend: "Models of the Ontario Wooden Age which was expiring when the C.N.E. was born". There it was seen by Dr. C. T. Currelly, then Director of the Museum, who persuaded Mr. McCrae to place it in that institution. Recently, a further lease of the collection for 25 years was arranged.

On view with the wooden models are drawings by Mr. M. McGillivray, depicting scenes of pioneer life, of diversified interest. The drawings complement admirably the display of models.

In the space here available no detailed cataloguing can be undertaken showing the scope of the model exhibition or the amazing variety of its interests. To these references (in summarized form) will be made in what follows.

IDEA BORN IN PETERBOROUGH

Of special interest to Peterborough people is the fact that from [illegible] has come much that has inspired Mr. McCrea to proceed zestfully with the fashioning of additional artifacts, particularly the construction of a faithful model of an early gristmill on a somewhat larger scale than that of most of his other work. The idea for this ambitious undertaking took form, he explains, in the course of a conversation with Dr. George Stewart Cameron, of the Medical Clinic, Peterborough.

In two years of loving care, the structure has risen on a base of two by four feet, to a height of some two feet. Internal mechanism, all of wood, has been installed. From the tiny millstones to the conveyor belt and the bolting equipment it all "works"—in other words, the whole corpus of intricate and delicately-wrought machinery illustrating the pioneer modes of grinding the precious bread-grain which grew among the stumps, is perfectly articulated. A mill-dam, a flume and waterwheels are still to be added. These will demand two years of further work.

Mr. McCrea tells of the problems which had to be met and solved in the construction of his Liliputian "stoning - machine" which illustrates how an immense field stone was lifted clear of the ground and moved by a stoutly-wheeled machine. In quest of a specimen of the pioneer equipment, Mr. McCrae called upon Victor Edwards, near Lang, in Otonabee, about ten years ago. Search on the farm was rewarded by the finding of the wreckage of one of the earliest machines, which yielded the data necessary for a reconstruction.

CAVAN MODELS

The "stumping machine" reproduced in miniature was modelled from one on the Jones' farm in North Cavan, four miles south of Omemee. This massive piece of extractive apparatus, with tripod, levers, and block and tackle, was of a strength and power which must have delighted the hearts of the perspiring dentists or medical doctors who hauled out human molars, roots and all, in that era of main force.

The important lumber industry inevitably has made heavy demands upon Mr. McCrae's artistry. His Madawaska and Kawartha models illustrate all phases of operations from those of the lumber-jack of winter, who became a river-driver in Spring, to the final furniture rub-downs given to his hand-made furniture by the cabinet-maker (who usually was also the local undertaker, fashioning the coffins he required).

The models remind us that white pine trees 150 feet high and 4 feet in diameter are not necessarily the end-product of a Munchausen dream, but were once a Kawartha reality. Object lessons are given showing how the giant timbers were transported; how boards were sawn from logs at the saw-pits built on sloping land before the days of the saw-mill; and how shingle-making became a specialized trade.

CONVERSATION

Many people come into company full of what they intend to say in it themselves, without the least regard to others; and thus charged up to the muzzle are resolved to let it off at any rate. I knew a man who had a story about a gun, which he thought a good one and that he told it very well. He tried all means in the world to turn the conversation upon guns; but, if he failed in his attempt, he started in his chair, and said he heard a gun fired; but when the company assured him they heard no such thing, he answered, perhaps then I was mistaken; but however, since we are talking of guns, —and then told his story to the great indignation of the company.

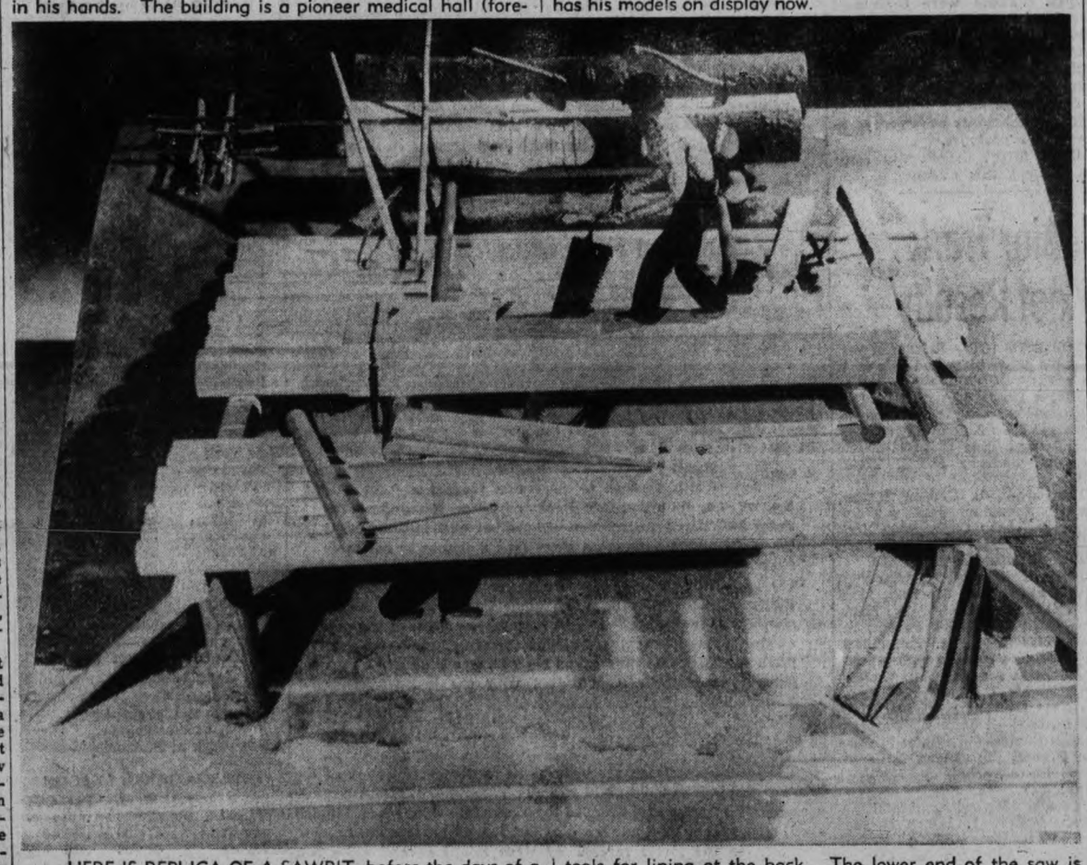
—Lord Chesterfield.

EXACT MODELS CARVED IN WOOD OF PIONEER WAYS AND MEANS are the special craft and hobby of J. N. McCrae of Omemee, show above with a model velocipede in his hands. The building is a pioneer medical hall (forerunner of a drug store), and in front of it is a buckboard and a carriage. Through Mr. McCrae's work, historical documents in carved wood of unique importance are being created for posterity. The Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, has his models on display now.



HERE IS REPLICA OF A SAWPIT, before the days of a saw-mill. The photograph of the model shows a log being sawn into 250 square feet of one-inch lumber. Note the tools for lining at the back. The lower end of the saw is removable from the box. Contrast the model of a whip-saw or frame-saw in lower right.

Prune At Right Time For Healthy Shrubs

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Now is the time to prune early-flowering shrubs and trees, urges the old gardener. Pruning at the right time will be a big help to your roses, flowering vines and trees. It should be done at the same time each year to keep them healthy and good looking.

If you didn't prune your late-flowering shrubs early this spring, wait until next time around to do them. They'll be better off if you skip a year, rather than prune them at this late date.

You can do a good part of your pruning with pruning shears. But, if you have some branches that are thicker than your thumb, the job will be easier with long-handled lopping shears. Be careful that you don't cut or nick the bark of the stems that you want to keep.

When pruning, be sure you do not nick or cut the bark of shoots you want to keep.

Here are some suggestions for pruning. Early spring flowering shrubs, such as forsythia, should be pruned shortly after they finish blooming.

Cut out the dead branches and the branches that cross each other. Make your cuts close to the ground.

Streptomycin may prove to be the long-heralded "injection" to cure plant diseases, says John Mitchell, plant hormone specialist. Mitchell says that bean plants treated with streptomycin sulfate failed to develop "halo blight," and other bacterial diseases.

Untreated plants nearby were badly infected. The antibiotic was applied to stems in a paste, and apparently was absorbed by the plants. If this idea can be developed for use on other plants, it may be one of the most important developments in plant-disease control in years.

However, do not get your hopes too high since the whole idea is still in the experimental stage. Continue to spray or dust as you have in the past.

Chlordane, well known as a chemical insect killer, has proved to be an excellent control for crabgrass when applied at the rate of a pound of actual chlordane to 4,000 square feet of sod.

University of Wisconsin scientists discovered that no crabgrass appeared in test plots after chlordane had been applied to turf to control sod webworms. Later checks showed excellent control of crabgrass from this treatment.

If a 5 per cent dust is used, 20 pounds to 4,000 square feet would be needed to get a pound of actual chlordane on the area. If a spray is used—the form applied at Wisconsin—a quart of 45 per cent emulsion would be approximately right for 4,000 square feet. At these rates, no injury to permanent grass was noted.

Gardening Questions

Q—The experts all recommend cultivation. What are the benefits derived from this chore?

A — Cultivation keeps down weeds, thus giving more food to the other plants; it closes the cracks in dry soil, thus conserving moisture, and breaks up a heavy soil, thus giving air and moisture to the roots.

Q — How do you cultivate gourds?

A—Gourds should be cultivated like melons or squash. They like a light, humusy enriched soil. They need lots of sun. Sow seed where they are to grow as they do not transplant, 10 or 12 in a hill, spacing hill six or more feet apart. Gourds do best on a trellis or similar support as they climb 10 to 15 feet high.

Q—How is borax applied for the purpose of killing poison ivy?

A—The dry borax is scattered evenly over the soil beneath the spread of the poison ivy branches at the rate of 10 pounds per square rod of acid soil, or 15 pounds per square rod of alkaline soil. Killing will require several weeks. The borax will also kill some, but not all, other plants. This fact should be kept in mind.

A·F·I·E·L·D with NICK NICKELS

There was more chit-chat on opening day of bass and 'lunge season about the American-Canadian dollar values than there was of fishing and catches.

Frankly, fishing was not too hot.

But what can you expect with the full strength of summer heat pouring over the land for the past few weeks? Fishermen have already learned to change their tactics to fishing early and late and doing anything else but during the day. Those who have the patience and skill to jig for the deep holes may get their reward.

A few 'lunge have been taken and the largest reported out of Lovesick Lake was a 17 pounder, two smaller ones within the city limits. Pickerel were fairly plentiful for the night sports and some places produced modest bags of black and green bass, but not too many. Heat puts fish off their food like humans and they laze in the coolest spots they can find. There'll come a day, though, when tales will come into the newspaper in a constant stream for the fish are in the waters and they will bite when they are good and ready.

Sat in with some lawyers and bankers the other day for coffee and all they did was talk about the curse of outboard motor racket at their respective lakes. Some admitted being sea flea racers in their flaming youths and hadn't until recently—middle age—realized what pests they had made of themselves. Others who were canoe and oarsmen stated bluntly that they never had any use for the infernal machines anyway. While they grumbled they agreed that noise was sent to try us and here to stay.

A racket that would have completely sent them off their rockers was heard on Stony Lake this week. Enterprising advertisers of a coming bingo game announced the event from a screaming outboard equipped with a power amplifier loudspeaker. People answered the brazen call by attending 100 strong at the pavilion.

That Long Slow Ride

My gloomy mortician friend, Sepple Kerr Smith, hailed me in his hollow gravelly voice to come and see his new boat. The craft was tied in the boathouse slip under shrouds. He donned a pair of soiled gray gloves and peeled back the covers as if revealing a corpse.

What a boat!

A shiny black-lacquered coffin-like job with costly silver fittings. The cockpit seat covers were of white satin and small cut-glass flower holders along the combing held faded blooms. Sep threw back the hatch covers, tinkered with the motor and stepped on the starter. The motor responded with a sympathetic slow rattle.

"Hop in," urged Sep, "an we'll go for a spin, around Deadman's Rock and back."

It was a gay trip, I can tell you.

We turned into the lake with the aft ensign trailing in the water at half mast and the wake almost covering the large silver letters BLACK MARIA across the stern. After half an hour of careening along at 15 m.p.h. we landed back at the boathouse. Sep's wife gushed that she was just dying to have a visit from me again, while my host put the wraps back on the BLACK MARIA, locked the boathouse and hung a dark wreath on the door to signify that frivolity on the water was ended.

Some people just have all the fun.

In an effort to popularize lacrosse with American visitors, executive of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club handed over 350 free tickets to the Chamber of Commerce for distribution. Manager Fraser is distributing six tickets apiece to operators of the resort section. This is a smart piece of business.

Tourists still think the Kawarthas are part and parcel of the land of ice and snow. The other day as the thermometer walked up into the 90's and townsfolk trudged listlessly along the shady side of the street an American swung along in the blistering heat wearing a loud woollen hunting shirt and leather-topped rubbers. People were too flabbergasted to follow him to see if he had a pair of skis strapped to his car top.

The Order of Kawartha Muskie is available at the Chamber of Commerce for the lucky out-of-town fisherman who shows evidence of having caught a 16-pound 'lunge, or larger. A certificate and flashy jacket crest will prove to the boys back home that he has won standing in the Kawartha's Battling Barracuda Club.

A summer visitor, Gord Maybee, of Wellington, Prince Edward County, gave me two aluminum leg bands of the American Fish and Wildlife Service. He and a friend went by boat to the westernmost point of the Island, Scotch Bonnet, a former lighthouse and now a bird sanctuary. Beside the nesting comerants they found hundreds of dead banded gulls washed up on the rocky shoals in windrows. They could give no explanation but by forwarding bands 516-47409 and 516-47480 to Washington, I may be able to secure some information for them.

The Peterborough Examiner's Canadian Vacation Guide this year has caused more comment than ever before, all of it good. An Ohian at Gilmar Lodge regards it as the only authentic Canadian holiday guide in Ontario. General Manager Maxim Gray and W. Rollason, both of the Niagara Falls Park Commission call it a "terrific job." And so does Lou Cahill of the Niagara Press Bureau. Says Clifford P. Wilson, editor of the Hudson's Bay Company Beaver Magazine: "One can have lots of fun in tha region is the general impression."And John Carrington, editor of the Northern Miner: "A meaty looking issue . . . well packed."

The first Bensfort Bridge Regatta will be held on Sunday, July 27. Fifty prizes, ornamental swimming girls, Herb Cardwell and his canoebatics and all sorts of fun. Phone Alf Pink, 5140, for particulars. So far, it is a one-man show on Alf's part. He needs your help to put over and it should be a "must" entry in your summer date book.

Timbermen Edge Toronto In 17-15 O.L.A. Tilt To Take Over Second Slot

Though shy four regulars and using junior lacrossers for replacements, the Petes Timbermen yanked out a 17-15 O.L.A. senior verdict over Toronto Yorks here last night. A crowd of 2,000 saw the Thorpe team take over sole possession of second place in the hot group race, dropping the Yorks into the third slot. It was a fairly fast, close and clean contest, apart from a fist fight in the fourth between Harry Wipper and Clark Lyons, both drawing majors. Also, Scotty McPhail was slashed on the forehead in the second heat and needed stitches.

IN ON FIVE—Husky Jerry Fitzgerald not only played a fine defensive game for the Petes here last night as they beat Toronto's O.L.A. squad 17-15, but he scored two goals and aided in three more. Only Russ Slater, with six points, had a higher tally for the night.

MOON MISSING

With Moon Wootton and Bob Thorpe nursing injuries from the last game, and Don Ashbee suffering from poison ivy—Bill Killingbeck being away—the Timbermen enlisted the services of four juniors and they turned in a fine showing. Bill Nichol and Joe Hickson each played goal in good style for two frames, and Bev Groves and Roger Smith looked okay on the field, too.

The Petes led 5-3 in the first frame and had a 5-4 edge in the close second period. It was close again in the third with the Petes throwing in three to Toronto's two, and the latter club outscored the homesters by 6-4 in the fourth. They came on late to notch the final five goals of the game and make it real close, but time ran out on them. The visitors were at full strength but trailed a bit all the way.

LED THE WAY

Russ Slater and Curly Mason scored three apiece for the winners, with two each going to Harry Wipper, Nit O'Hearn, Gary Robinson and Jerry Fitzgerald, singles being counted by Lou Nickle, Ross Powless and Roger Smith. Three assits each were chalked up to Fitzgerald, Slater and Hildebrand, and two apiece to Mason and Wipper. Single assists went to O'Hearn, Powless, Nickle, Dootch Vitarelli and Bev Groves.

Bill Timpson sparked the Toronto attack with four markers, as Frank Facto lit the light three times. Jim McNulty, Les Digby and Scotty McPhail hit the hemp twice apiece, singles going to Nick Ferri and Leo Teatro. In the assist column, McPhail clicked three times, McNulty and Webster twice each, and Banks and Timpson once apiece. Teams:

Toronto: Goal, Johnson; defence, Webster and Digby; centre, Facto; wings, Teatro and Ferri; rover, McNulty, alternates, Hilson, King, Timpson, McPhail, Kapasky, Lyons and Banks.

Petes: Goal, Nichol; defence, O'Hearn and Wipper; centre, Mason; wings, Slater and Hildebrand; rover, Powless; alternates, Fitzgerald, Groves, Smith, Vitarelli, Robinson, Nickle and Hickson.

Referees, P. Bain and L. Vipond.

WINNERS

A GOOD NIGHT

The invitation and visitors' night went over big—a nice crowd came out—the new chaps were placed on rinks with the older boys and all seemed to enjoy it.

They played two eight-end games. There were individual prizes given—same for "kitty" touchers—same for throwing the wrong bias and many other oddities. It all added up to an evening of good fun.

At the conclusion of the games light refreshments were served in the club's parlours.

Don't forget the Family Hour tournament this evening.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

There are far more golfers in Peterborough this summer than ever before. The game becomes more popular every year, it seems. A lot of athletes in other local lines of sport—like hockey, lacrosse, ball—go in for golf, too. Both the Kawartha and the Peterborough Clubs are practically bursting at the seams with members of both sexes. Golf is definitely no longer an older man's game, though plenty of elderly folk make the rounds regularly. Top pros from all over the world go the year-around in one tourney after another for big money prizes, and the sport is mentioned regularly every month in the newspapers. It is regarded as a big sport now.

* * * * * *

Speaking of money—a subject which crops up frequently even in the best circles—the stuff is getting tighter. We mean there isn't as much mazuma around anymore for athletics. Folks haven't got it or they're hanging onto it tighter. All gates are down from a year ago and the dipping trend continues. It's quite noticeable here at various games in the summer, while football last fall and hockey during the winter drew peanuts, as the saying is. Another thing, it's getting tougher to get sponsors to lay much on the line to start sports off each season. Unemployment or the fear thereof has tightened things up. Money may be the root of all evil, but the lack of it isn't good, either.

* * * * * *

Those Southend Fathers

Alex Sinclair and a number of players' fathers are making a valiant effort to get the local minor baseball setup going right during the school summer holidays. With special emphasis on the peewees and bantams, boys under 13 and under 15. A worthy try, but they need more interested fathers to help out. Some 10 teams lined up now or in process of organization, but strangely enough the large southend section of the city seems to have the more indifferent fathers insofar as baseball for their male offspring is concrened. Ashburnham is best and the northend next, with the west side just a step ahead of the southern area. Wonder why this is.

* * * * * *

Senior ball returns to Riverside tonight at seven, if the weather is right. It's Kingston Monarchs versus the Petes and the time is seven—somewhat earlier than usual for night games here. That gives fans a chance to eat their suppers, take in the game, and go elsewhere ere it gets too late. Time the Petes got rolling in the C.O.B.L. and they're due to really erupt on home terrain against Kingston or Belleville, the club having too many good players aboard to keep dropping decisions. Haven't heard who will pitch for Ed Whitehill's squad tonight, but it should be an interesting senior diamond duel with the warm-weather players hitting their stride now.

* * * * * *

Holding Second Place

The local Timbermen are back alone on the second rung of the O.L.A. senior ladder. That 17-15 win o'er Toronto Yorks here last eve was a timely triumph as it dropped the Yorks into third place. Mimico is still out in front by a fair margin,, but the '51 champs are holding their own in the torrid race. They were minus several stars last p.m. and had to fill in with juniors, but they still came through. You're bound to miss a goalie like Moon Wootton. He still has the odd dizzy spell from concussion received in the previous game, but hopes to be ready for the Owen Sound fray here next Wednesday. The juniors came through fine, Nichol and Hickson showing plenty of promise in goal, and Groves and Smith working hard up front.

* * * * * *

That old warrior, Don (Scotty) McPhail had two goals and three assists for Toronto, despite time out for stitches on a nasty forehead cut. The Yorks made it a good scrap and were finishing up stronger when time ran out. Harry Wipper would have looked good on T.V. tossing punches at Clark Lyons, who preferred to clinch, in their late tussle. Scoring for the Thorpe team was well spread around, but one must mention Russ Slater, Jerry Fitzgerald, Wipper, Curly Mason and Ike Hildebrand, anyway. Some of the others, too, but those guys named were prominent on the attack all eve. At full strength, the Petes' Timbermen are still just about the class of the circuit.

Tigers Crush Crescents 18-8

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Timbermen last night dropped Toronto Yorks out of second place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's senior league and moved in themselves with a 17-15 victory over the Toronto Club.

Hamilton Tigers trounced Owen Sound Crescents 18-8 while Mimico Mountaineers whipped Fergus Thistles 19-9.

Mimico's Derry Davies was top scorer of the evening with five goals. Bill Timpson, Toronto, collected four and Russ Slater and Curly Mason, Peterborough, Frank Facto, Toronto, Elmer Lee, Hamilton, Denny Peterson, Mimico and Bob Dobbie, Fergus, each tallied three markers.

WRESTLERS OUSTED

At Istanbul, four members of the Turkish Olympic Wrestling team—three of them gold medal winners in the 1948 games at London—were ousted yesterday on charges of professionalism. All were reported to have received homes after their London successes.

Local Juniors Edged Out In Fine Tussle

Colborne Dodgers took a 5-2 Lakeshore Baseball League win at home last evening over the Young Petes in one of the best games of the season. The visiting juniors held their intermediate rivals to a 1-1 score until the eighth when a wild throw let in three runs in Colborne's four-run drive. The Peterborough pack came back with another run in the ninth to make it close. They had scored one in the third after Colborne counted a run in the second.

Ball held Al Menzies' classy young club to three hits, but McMartin on the Peterborough mound allowed only four hits in a real pitcher's battle. Ball fanned nine while McMartin whiffed eight. The losers booted just two as the victors had four miscues. The throw from pitcher to second went into centre field to give Colborne three unearned runs in the fatal eighth.

Pammett, Kearns and Foley got the lone hits for the Young Petes, while Higgenbottom banged a double for Colborne, and Ball, Lingard and Rowsome clouted singles. Teams:

Young Petes — Langhorne, ss; Pammett, c; Kearns, 2b; Jensen, cf; Cupoli, 1b; Foley, lf; McCarthy, 3b; Ball, rf; Bigford, rf; McMartin, p.

Colborne — Lingard, ss; Rowsome, cf; Hill, 1b; Hall, lf; Carter, rf; Higgenbottham, 3b; Cummings, ss; Black, c; Ball, p.

Red Wings Club Toronto Leafs In Doubleheader

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto's Maple Leafs seemed to be making a habit of beating Rochester's hot-and-cold Red Wings until yesterday when they came up against Ellis (Cot) Deal and Jack Faszholz.

The two Rochester righthanders allowed the Leafs only seven hits in a doubleheader yesterday and lifted the Wings within three games of the pace-setting Montreal Royals. Deal won the opener 4-1 and Faszholz the nightcap 6-0.

Before the sweep, the Red Wings had lost four of five to Toronto.

ROYALS SPLIT

The Wing gain was made possible when the Royals split with Syracuse Chiefs, winning the opener 11-4 but faltering 2-0 in the nightcap.

Baltimore and Springfield also halved a twin bill as the Orioles rallied to capture the first game 4-1 and dropped the second 3-2.

Ottawa moved two percentage points ahead of Buffalo into seventh place with 6-2 and 4-2 victories.

Rookie infielder Ray Jablonski tripled and homered to aid Deal's four-hit hurling in the Wing-Leaf opener, and Harry Walker had four safeties, including a four-bagger and a triple, in the afterpiece as Faszholz three-hitted the losers.

Syracuse's Arnie Landeck tossed the four-hit shutout that prevented the Royals from completing a sweep after the league leaders had knocked out 14 hits to win for Gil Mills.

COME FROM BEHIND

The Orioles put across four runs in the seventh to come from behind for victory in the curtain-raiser, while the Cubs led all the way in the finale with Al Lary going the route for his first triumph.

Ottawa, behind Jean Roy and Joe Murray, went on a hitting spree at Buffalo. Harvey Gentry and Lou Limmer had three hits each in the seven-inning contest, and George Moskovich, former Bison, drove in all the Athletics runs in the second game.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jack Guest of the Don Rowing Club, Toronto, sculled his way to an easy victory in the classic Diamond Sculls at the English Henley, 22 years ago today. It was Canada's third victory in the Diamonds, including Joe Scholes in 1904, and Joe Wright Jr. in 1928.

U.S. CREW LEADS

At Henley-on-Thames, England, the University of Pennsylvania rowing eight bumped rough water skillfully yesterday to win its quarter-final heat in a vigorous campaign to retain the Thames Challenge Cup in the Henley Regatta. Pennsylvania won the cup last year and defended it yesterday against the British University College and Hospital Crew, 'covering the 1 1-5-mile course in seven minutes, one second.

Juniors Smash Records At Track Meet

TORONTO (CP)—With Olympic trials catching most of the limelight lately, Canada's younger athletes had a happy time themselves yesterday smashing 10 records before the half-way mark in the two-day sixth annual Canadian Junior Track and Field Championships.

All but one of the records tumbled in juvenile and midget events. Ron Wallingford, Ottawa Glebe Collegiate, toppled the single junior mark.

T.T.F.C. LEADS

The Toronto Track and Field Club, five times winners of the championships, piled up a heavy early lead with 75 points. Toronto Secondary Schools Club moved into second with 37, Montreal Track and Field 30, Agincourt 27, New Westminster 21, and Sudbury Nickel Teen Club 13.

SETS 2 NEW MARKS

Harry Nelson, 17, of New Westminster, B.C., Olympic Club was responsible for two new marks. He shaved three-tenths of a second off the 120-yard hurdles record set by Toronto Track's Norm Williams last year. In the 220-yard dash he pared one-tenth second off the 22.9-second mark of Peter Sutton also of T.T.F.C.

Nelson's performance was matched by Jerry Zabiyko of Toronto Secondary Schools Track Club.

Zabiyko won the midget high jump with a leap of 5 feet 7¾ inches to knock down the 5-foot 2½-inch previous record. He tossed the javelin 163 feet 1¾ inches. The former standard was 122 feet 9 inches set last year when the event was introduced.

The juvenile running broad jump record fell to Laird Sloan of Montreal Track and Field Club who launched himself 20 feet 9 inches to better by two inches the mark set by T. Whan of Victoria Y.M.C.A.

Headaches Face New Tiger Head

DETROIT (AP)—"The next guy will have a lot of headaches too," says Red Rolfe, who expects to be fired tonight from his $45,000 job as manager of the last-place Detroit Tigers.

Who will inherit his headaches for the rest of the season? Probably first-base coach Ted Lyons. Longshot candidates are farm director Muddy Ruel, coach Rick Ferrell and several others in the Tiger organization.

Prior to tonight's game with St. Louis Browns, the board of directors will discuss the managerial question in President Spike Briggs' office adjoining the grandstand.

Tiger players and perhaps even Rolfe will be dressing for their pre-game workout at about the moment Spike tells newspaper men the board's official decision.

Rolfe hasn't been told by club officials that he'll be fired. But Red knows Spike will make such a recommendation. Briggs will also recommend that third-base coach Dick Bartell be fired. Tiger spokesmen said irritated fans asked for removal of both men.

Brooklyn Boys Turn Back New York Giants By 5-1

By RALPH RODEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

If Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees clash in the 1952 world series it will make the fulfillment of an old baseball tradition for the first time in three years. According to tradition, National and American League teams holding first place after games of July 4 will win the pennants.

The Dodgers and Yanks lead their respective leagues today but they're not counting the World Series cash yet. Last year the Dodgers led the National League at this stage of the grind and Chicago showed the way in the American. Both missed the boat.

The last time the leaders in each league after games of July 4 went on to win the pennant was in 1949. They were the current pace-setters, the Dodgers and Yanks.

BROOKS THREE UP

Brooklyn yesterday turned back the runner-up New York Giants 5-1 in the opener of a doubleheader. The game was called after eight innings because of rain and the second game was postponed. The victory, gained at the expense of Sal Maglie, an old nemesis, moved the Brooks three games ahead.

The Yanks safeguarded their 2½-game edge by tripping Washington 9-4 and 4-3 while the second-place Chicago White Sox defeated St. Louis Browns 3-1 and 2-0 and the third-place Cleveland Indians trounced Detroit 11-0 and 10-1. Boston Red Sox whacked Philadelphia 10-5 but the A's bounced back to win the second game, 4-3.

Pittsburgh, St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves all won doubleheaders in the National League. The Pirates brushed back Cincinnati 4-2 and 5-2, the Cards whipped Chicago 13-7 and 4-1 to take over third place from the Cubs and the Braves downed Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 and 3-2.

Maglie, who boasted a string of eight straight victories over Brooklyn, including three shutouts, this season, lasted only two innings. He walked home a run in the first and was tagged for a two-run homer in the second by Pee Wee Reese. Relief ace Clem Labine blanked the Giants on five hits after spelling Preacher Roe in the first inning. The largest National League crowd of the season, 49,433 fans, turned out.

16 HITS FOR CARDS

The Cardinals, victorious in 15 of their last 19 starts, creamed five Chicago pitchers for 16 hits including a grand-slam homer by Hal Rice and a two-run blast by Dick Sisler in the opener. Gerry Staley shut out the Cubs after Gene Hermanski's first-inning homer in the second game to run St. Louis' winning streak to six games.

Rookie shortstop Dick Groat clouted a two-run single in the ninth inning to beat the Reds in the first game at Cincinnati. Recruit Harry Fisher gained his first big league victory for the Pites in the second.

Yearling Ed Mathews homered in the 11th inning to beat Karl Drews and the Phils in the first of two at Boston. The blow was Mathews' 14th. Vern Bickford bested Ken Heintzelman, making his first start of the season, in the second.

TOPS IN RELIEF

Air-tight relief pitching by former Brownie Bill Kennedy figured prominently in Chicago's sweep over St. Louis. Kennedy surrendered only two hits in 5 1-3 innings in the first game and yielded one blow in two innings of the second.

Early Wynn allowed Detroit only two safeties and his mates backed his strong pitching with a 14-hit assault that included home runs by Jim Fridley, Merril Combs and Harry Simpson. Newcomer Joe Tipton drove home six runs on a bases-loaded homer and single to ease Bob Lemon to victory in the second game. The twin bill probably marked the end of Red Rolfe's tenure as Tiger manager. He is expected to be replaced today.

To Slow Down Immigration After November 1

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament is adjourned until Thursday, Nov. 20.

The lawmakers headed home from Ottawa's mid-summer swelter after a closing rush of work ending in a non-stop Commons sitting yesterday of 7½ hours just before getting Royal Assent to the late-session batch of legislation.

Major items in the legislation were the controversial Redistribution Bill—increasing Commons reshuffling ridings—and the first pension plan for long-service members of the Commons.

Other developments at the closing sitting:

1. Immigration Minister Harris announced that numbers of immigrants for the first five months of this year are well ahead of the corresponding period in 1951, but it is expected the 1952 total will be below the record 194,391 of last year. The Minister said the entry of workers will be slowed during the cold-weather period of reduced employment, starting Nov. 1.

2. Revenue Minister McCann announced the CBC will add an Ottawa television station to its proposed Montreal-Toronto network, and the capital's station should be in operation by next spring. It will cost 300,000.

3. The Commons cleaned up the final millions in the $4,412,000,000 spending program set out in departmental estimates for 1952-53. Estimates of several departments were approved.

DREW CRITICAL

In a lengthy debate on immigration, members heard criticism from George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, of the visa frauds disclosed some months ago in the smuggling of Italian and German immigrants into Canada.

Mr. Harris said an R.C.M.P. investigation is about completed and the Justice Department is considering what action should be taken against those involved. Some Immigration Department employees in Canada and abroad have been reported as participating in the irregularities.

The Minister said immigration for the first five months of this year was 82,088, well above the 60,636 for the corresponding period last year. But he expected it to start slowing down this month.

The fall-winter curb on workers coming to Canada, he said in an interview after the House rose, will be applied to the general run of labor, particularly persons without definite job commitments here. It will be eased when the labor market picks up with warm weather.

LABOR FAVORS MOVE

The move is partially in line with representations made to the government by Labor organizations following last winter's increased unemployment. Some labor bodies wanted immigration banned altogether during the winter months.

In his television announcement, Revenue Minister McCann said it had been decided to go ahead with the Ottawa transmitter, before reaching into the Maritimes and Western Canada.

Plans for expansion into the other areas have "by no means been rejected," he added, but the government feels they should have further study.

After the final clean-up, legislation approved was given Royal Assent by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin of the Supreme Court of Canada, acting administrator. The session was opened by the Governor-General, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Feb. 28—the first time a native Canadian Governor-General performed this function.

Parliament is now adjourned until Nov. 20, though Prime Minister St. Laurent has indicated members may be summoned earlier if developments warrant.

Every Family's Duty To See Chlidren Able To Swim

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Mother, may I go out to swim?"
"Yes, my darling daughter,
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb
But don't go near the water!"

When summer approaches boys and girls look forward eagerly to swimming. Unless they are at home in the water, they are apt to be very much out of things with their own age group.

Even the small youngster is keen about going swimming. It is every family's duty to see to it, that the children learn to swim. Parents should not neglect children's training in swimming—and the younger they begin the better.

A summer camp is one place where almost every camper graduates as a swimmer. Swimming classes are sponsored by Service Clubs and other public minded groups in a great many areas. A splendid job is done by most instructors. The child in a class has the fun of learning to swim beside other youngsters. He passes from the simplest beginner's test, through the other stages. His interest is not likely to flag. Mother's and dad's pride in his progress is an incentive to go right ahead.

If the class is held some distance from the child's home, parents may have to co-operate in transportation plans. Sometimes two or three mothers take turns in getting their children to and from the pool or beach where the youngsters are learning to swim. In one rural area last summer, a special effort to include children from farms in a swimming class was made by providing bus service to the swimming park. A large number of country children graduated out of the non-swimmer's class.

In some small communities there are no swimming classes. If that is the case, parents should get together to talk over the need for this. Perhaps they can plan and start one with a qualified teacher. There are very few communities with no adult who can teach swimming. Sometimes this is a volunteer service or given for a comparatively small remuneration, considering the time and skill it takes.

The Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A. Recreation organizations, Playground and Parks Committees, the Canadian Red Cross, and the Royal Life Saving Society have given outstanding leadership in this field. If consulted, they can often offer suggestions about the organization, and conduct of a class as well as mentioning qualified teachers.

If swimming classes are out of the reach of a family, parents can still help their child. This is particularly true if they are enthusiastic swimmers themselves, even if they are not experts.

The biggest hindrance to learning to swim is terror of drowning or ducking under the surface. A little child must overcome his fear of the water. Play-time wading, floating a celluloid fish, or pulling a wooden boat help him in this. When walking on all fours, pretending to be a bear or another animal in the shallow water, the child discovers, to his surprise, how buoyant he is. The well-padded, roly-poly child, with a little help from mother or daddy, may learn to float quite easily.

Breathing correctly is very vital in swimming and a child gains confidence with practice in inhaling through his mouth and blowing bubbles out through his nose. This can be done in a wash basin as well as in the lake or river, or pool.

Propelling one's self through the water is a matter of balance. A parent can show a child with a rubber doll, that if the shoulders rear up out of the water, the rest of the body sinks. Keep shoulders under the water is a rule of first importance. The child who knows how to breathe when swimming, is less apt to go heaving his shoulders up, in a panic for fear he cannot get his breath.

An inflated inner tube is often used at a summer cottage for a child to play in and hang on to in the water. Care must be taken that he does not relax his hold and get a ducking in deep water, or be blown out into the lake on a windy day. A wooden "Kicking Board" about 18 inches by 10 inches and 1½ inches thick is a better support for a child who is practicing his kicking strokes. A strong rope fastened at the water line of the dock, can also be grapsed. This makes a good support for the beginning swimmer.

A good swimmer is relaxed and unhurried. Many a parent urges a child too much and the youngster tries too hard for too long a time in the water. A swimming lesson should be short. Stop as soon as the child is fatigued or chilled. If mother or daddy can occasionally give the child a little support, (no more than necessry) by placing a hand under his chin or tummy, then the child can practice co-ordinating arm and leg strokes.

Children love to do what is satisfying. A child will make much faster progress if his parents will show him how to make a stroke or how to breathe, or how to float. Just talking about it is a poor substitute for illustrating a method. Getting into the water with him makes it much more fun than yelling instructions from the bank. Many a child delights in play in which daddy tows him through the

A People Without A King

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

In view of the sanctity traditionally attached to kings, emphasized in some Old Testament passages referring to the King as "the Lord's anointed," it is interesting to note how much else in the Bible is decidedly at variance with any such notion of right and divinity.

Judges 17:6 and 21:26 of a time when "there was no king in Israel, but every man did what was right in his own eyes." The implication, though it is not very clear, seems to be that it was rather a good time despite the lack of a king.

When the Israelites eventually did demand a king, Samuel evidently regarded the demand as a repudiation of his own spiritual leadership, and, though the records are conflicting, thought of it also as a virtual turning from God. He seems to have given reluctant religious sanction to an act of coronation which he had sought to avoid.

The plea of the people was that they needed a king to lead them in battle, like the peoples surrounding them, but the fact was that under that first King Saul, himself a suicide on the field of battle, Israel suffered a crushing and disastrous defeat.

The future history of most of the kings of Israel and Judah makes sorry reading, and even Solomon's glory was tarnished by the rebellion that broke out upon his death on the part of a people demanding that the burdens and oppressions under which they had suffered should be lightened by his son, and successor, Rehoboam.

Kings do not shed much glory in the pages of Samuel and Kings, and as for New Testament times, Jesus called His own King "that fox."

Kings in later history, and among all peoples, with some notable exceptions, do not loom up much better, and I think that American democracy is well rid of them; though it might be well to ponder about some of the advantages that Canada does enjoy under a limited monarchy, for in some respects Canada enjoys more real and effective democracy in the working of its political institutions than is found in some aspects of American politics.

But let us look back to that time when there was no king, and the people did what was right in their own eyes. It was the time of the Judges, when Israel had come out of the bondage in Egypt and the wandering in the wilderness into the land of Canaan.

One can sense some of the problems with which they were confronted, but one thing that stands out very clearly is the sense of unity, the responsibility of the individual to the community, and the realization that every weakness and every sin is an offense against the common welfare. It is the idea of a commenwealth.

It is pleasant to remember that perhaps greatest of all the Judges of the time was a woman—Deborah. So notable and strong was she that, as she set up her court under a famous tree, people with any cause turned to her. Even Barak, the military leader, wouldn't go to fight unless Deborah went with him.

ANOTHER LARGE 'LUNGE

FOUR-LEAF CLOVERS

Mrs. Frank Adams of Roseneath while picking strawberries in her garden on Thursday found a clump of four-leaf clovers. In a matter of minutes she picked eighty-seven four-leaf clovers. Mrs. Adams carried them into the house where they are on display.

Mill Worker Killed By Rip Saw

Slashed To Ribbons At Kinmount Knocked Into Saw

LINDSAY (ENS).—Laurie Austin, 47, was slashed to ribbons and killed instantly by a circular lumber saw Friday afternoon.

A sawyer at Austin's lumber mill near Kinmount, Austin was working on the lumber conveyor that carries logs from the boom in the river into the mill to be sawn.

He stopped the carriage to pick up a plank that had fallen in front of it. In doing so, he accidentally tripped the lever that puts the carriage in motion. He was knocked onto the log conveyor which quickly carried him into the teeth of the circular saw blade, spinning at high speed.

Austin is the father of two children, a boy nine, and a seven-year-old girl.

Farmer Convicted For Not Spraying

LINDSAY.—A Mariposa farmer was convicted on a charge of violating the Warble Fly Act by Magistrate E. A. Gee in Lindsay Friday.

The Crown charged that Beverley Webster refused to allow Department of Agriculture representatives to spray cattle and refused to do it himself on the grounds that the spray was dangerous to the cattle.

His defence counsel, W. J. Arthur Fair, Q.C., of Peterborough argued that the warble fly bylaw was not valid until registered with the department. He said a copy of the bylaw had not been sent within seven days of passing as required.

Crown Attorney L. W. Jordan Q.C., countered that sending a copy of the bylaw to the department was not necessary for the bylaw to be in force. He also said township clerk George Greenway had not testified he had not sent a copy to the department, but that he could not remember whether it had been sent or not.

Magistrate Gee said he concluded that since department men had come to the farm, the department must have had notice of the bylaw. Mr. Fair held that the Magistrate could not draw such an inference, but must decide on the facts presented in court.

Webster was fined a nominal $10 and costs.

A. McConnachie Retired Minister Dies In 82nd Year

The Rev. Arthur Hamilton McConnachie, retired United Church minister and one of this city's beloved clergymen, died early today in hospital after a lengthy illness. Born in Ayr, Scotland, 81 years ago, Mr. McConnachie was educated in his native land and there commenced his life work in the Christian ministry. His first service was mission work in the poorer areas of the city of Ayr and it was here he established himself as a friend of man.

Searching for wider fields of Christian endeavor he and his family came to Canada in 1913 and he receive a call to the Presbyterian Church, Centreville. Here he labored for 12 years, being the minister of the pastoral charge of Centreville and Stewart Hall. At the time of church union he resigned and was called to Springville where for four years he served as minister of the charge of Springville and Fairmount. He continued his ministry in the Ottawa district serving at Westmeath, Beachbury and Frankville, retiring to Peterborough jn 1946.

Following his retirement he supplied for some time at Bensfort and also at Mount Pleasant. He was often in demand as supply in the various Peterborough churches.

Mr. McConnachie, serving congregations in Peterborough which were without ministers, was ever welcome in the home of the members. He was known as the minister with the smile and will be best remembered by the host of people who met him, although they possbily have forgotten his name, for his friendly smile, his helpful words, his love for his fellowmen and his devotion to his calling.

There are left to revere his memory two daughters, Mrs. Laurence Finnie (Annie) of Peterborough and Mrs. O. A. Robertson (Connie) of Montreal; one son, Arthur of Ottawa; one sister, Miss Rosina McConnachie of Paisley, Scotland, and one brother, George McConnachie of Dublin, Eire.

The funeral will be held in the Comstock funeral home on Monday at 2:00 p.m. with the Rev. William McDonald officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Turtle Trapping Season Opens, 26-Pounder Best Yet

HIAWATHA — (Staff)—Floyd Maybaugh, the turtle-trapping fisherman from Beach City, O., is back again at Rice Lake with his trap nets. His luck is just fair so far because he thinks that the water has not warmed up sufficiently this year to bring the reptiles to surface. He and his friend, Cletus Zingery of Brewster, have been fishing guests of George Robinson's Elm Grove Camp for the past 10 years. In that time they estimate they have captured 500 large and small snappers, the largest of them 40 pounds.

Last year was good. From 76 turtles butchered, 347 pounds of meat were taken, which they kept at a Keene freezing plant until they were ready to go home.

Mr. Maybaugh is past treasurer and Mr. Zingery, secretary, of the Sugar Creek Valley Farm and Game Club in central Ohio. They contribute the turtle meat to their club festival in mid-July. It is turned into gallons of soup which brings a good price per bowl and helps to swell the club's funds.

HAVE OWN RESERVE

Their sporting organization owns about 30 acres of land where pheasant and rabbits are stocked and distributed to Ohio sportsmen. They also have built a spacious club house, 30 by 80 feet, and have trap, skeet and rifle shooting ranges.

The 500 members throughout Star County favor the Kawarthas as a summer playground and Mr. Maybaugh estimates that more than half of them and their families visit these parts each year.

The largest turtle they have caught this year, now crawling about the cage, is 26 pounds. They claim a snapper contains seven kinds of meat with as many different flavors. The ugly-looking neck is the most tasty portion or at least as toothsome as the tenderloin in the top of the Carapace (upper shell).

Although it would seem that all the meat is very tough, on the contrary when it is pre-cooked in a pressure cooker for 15 minutes and then fried for ten more they say it is "as tender as chicken". They count on getting a return of 40 per cent meat from the total weight of a live turtle.

The turtle hunters from Ohio have done the mouth of the Otonabee River area of Rice Lake immeasurable good over the past decade in ridding the shallow waters of these predator reptiles. Turtles destroy game fish fingerlings and wild ducklings in undetermined numbers each year. If it were not for the great amounts of turtle eggs that are eaten in the nests by skunks the sporting lakes in the Kawarthas would be overrun by the ugly brutes.

Not Lost, Strayed

There's golf widows, hockey widows and fishermen's widows; these are women deserted by their hubbies for their favorite pastimes. A Peterborough housewife for a few hours Friday night thought she actually became a widow. Her hubby, Don Smith, Rogers St., went fishing early Friday evening. When he didn't return in the wee hours of today, she became worried, fearing the worst had happened to him. While police were hunting him, neighbors consoling Mrs. Smith, he walked into his home at 6 a.m., relieving everyone, to say the least.

Wheeling Bicycle Nurse Knocked Down

Eileen Barton, a nurse in training at Civic Hospital, was knocked down and slightly injured Friday while wheeling her bicycle across Park and Charlotte Sts.

Robert Clark, of John St., Lindsay, was driving west on Charlotte and slowed at the Park St. intersection when the traffic light changed to red. Miss Barton stepped off the northeast curb and the front bumper of the car touched the side of the bicycle.

The impact knocked Miss Barton to the ground and she received a bruise on her right hip. She continued on downtown to keep an appointment and was later examined by Dr. Leslie J. Calvert.

Constable Jack Wilson investigated.

Blind Begin To Prepare For Exhibition

Plans for the display and demonstration booth of the Canadian Institute for the Blind at the Peterborough Exhibition this year are well underway.

Colin McEachern, district field representative for the institute, said today that the booth had netted $200 for blind people in the city and district in 1951, and the Peterborough Advisory Board of the institute are hoping it will be increased to $250 this year.

The booth will be situated in the northwest corner of the Manufacturers' building and will be staffed by volunteer workers. The majority of the workers are members of the advisory board.

Blind people of the city and district will also be in the booth working at various kinds of handicrafts. It is hoped that an assembly line machine may be obtained from a local factory to demonstrate the efficiency that can be achieved in industry by visually handicapped persons.

As in other years, handicrafts and other articles made by the blind of the district will be on sale. These will include all types of leather and basket work, knitted articles and novelties such as stocking dolls.

NEW DESIGNS

Mr. McEachern explained that this year new patterns had been obtained for this work, so that the articles, especially leather goods, will have entirely new designs.

The money which is collected from the sale of these articles is turned completely over to the blind people who made them. In many cases the sale of these goods is the only source of earned income these people have.

The costs of operating the booth are paid for from the sale of articles such as aprons which are manufactured in the institute's white-wear department of the Toronto workshop.

The space for the booth is donated by the Peterborough Exhibition Board.

Modest Man Saves Child From Drowning, Asks People To Say Nothing

Girl, 7, Going Down For Third Time In Otonabee River Near Home Man Fully-Clothed Plunges In

After saving seven-year-old Helen Marie Fennell from drowning Monday night, a 59-year-old Norwood man urged the few people who knew of his heroism in rescuing the child to say nothing about it. In spite of his modesty however, the story was revealed today, of how Wilfred Throop jumped into the Otonabee and rescued the child after she had gone down for the third time.

Although he had not swum for five years, Mr. Throop plunged fully clothed into the river when he saw the small girl in difficulty in the water.

LOST FOOTING

She had been watching some boys fishing when she lost her footing on a small dock at the foot of McKellar St. and fell in. Her companion, Sheridan Ann Horton, was helpless to assist Helen Marie who was floundering over her head in about eight feet of water.

Mr. Throop was watching his grandson who was also fishing and without hesitating, Mr. Throop dived in He had a good deal of difficulty hanging on to Helen Marie with one hand and swimming with the other and said afterwards he was afraid for a few seconds he would not be able to make it.

He was almost exhausted when he finally reached the pier. He gave the other girl's father, Frank Horton, a neighbor of the Fennell's who live on Montrose Ave., a good deal of credit for helping him complete the rescue.

Mr. Horton arrived just in time to take Helen Marie from Mr. Throop and pull her out of the water to safety.

It was the third time Mr. Throop has saved a child from drowning. Some years ago, he rescued a child at Cobourg and a few years ago, he saved a Norwood youngster.

Mr. Throop was in the city visiting his son, James Throop, 634 Montrose Ave.

Hotels Dwindle Through County

Hotel keeping as a business has dwindled in city and district since 1917. In that year 22 standard licenses were applied for but today, not including summer resorts, only 13 of the original listing are intact. In some cases the names and ownership have changed several times.

Those surviving of the city are: Empress, Windsor, American, Queen's (Montgomery House), King George, McGillis (White House) and Montreal House. The Oriental, Albion, Munro House and Snowden House are no more.

In Smith township there are still Buckhorn Lodge (House), and Mount Julian Hotel in Burleigh township. Lakefield House (Kearney's) at Young's Point and Carleton House do not exist as hotels. The two originals in Lakefield, Lakefield Hotel and Commercial Hotel, still stand.

The King's Hotel in Norwood still stands under the old name but under new ownership, but the Royal George has disappeared. Havelock Hotel—the old Armstrong House—is still in business but the Dineen House is not, nor is the Apsley House at Apsley.

No Place To Park Say Citizens Given Tickets

Irate citizens who have no place to park their cars except in front of their homes are criticizing council for passing the recently approved four-hour parking by-law.

It is being branded as "unfair, impractical and discriminatory," as it only affects residents who do not have a private garage or use of a laneway.

One night this week seven cars on Dublin St., between George and Water St., were tagged.

One of the car owners who had to pay a $1 fine at the city hall today emphasized he was not criticizing the police, "they are just carrying out orders," but he said council should never have passed the by-law.

NO PARKING SPACE

"There just isn't any garage or parking space available in the area," he said. The by-law does not affect several members of council whom he named and who voted for it, he said, but it does affect everyone who does not have a private garage or access to a laneway.

Another man in the same block said he had a garage for his car but he added, "I don't think it's fair."

"The only recourse I see to it," he said, "is for everyone who cannot obtain garage accommodation to drive their cars up on their lawns."

He added that the restrictive parking by-law would only encourage residents to "disfigure their lawn frontages by driving over them."

SOME SENSE IN WINTER

He said that the by-law might have some value in winter to facilitate snow removal but said he could see no sense in it "at this time of year."

The first man termed the by-law discriminatory in that it is not being enforced uniformly throughout the city. To prove his point, he mentioned that cars are being left all day, parked on both sides of streets around the C.G.E. plant.

He said he knew it would be practically impossible for the police department to keep close tab on every car parked on city streets, but that this only pointed up the fact that the by-law was impractical, and that council should have had more sense than to pass it in the first place.

Ignore It, The Heat Isn't As Bad As You Think

In a shirt - wilting heat wave, what is the best way for a man to beat the humidity and keep cool?

The ladies have largely solved the problem of keeping cool in summer by adapting their wardrobes to the weather. When warm weather comes, the majority shed their stockings and are the picture of coolness in backless sun tan dresses of light material. Taken altogether, the weight of their clothing including shoes is probably less than two pounds on the average.

However, many men, particularly those engaged in business and professional work, are still slaves to convention. Regardless of how high the humidity and mercury soar, they trudge to work garbed in a heavy suit, plus a necktie tied tightly around a tightly-buttoned shirt collar to keep that well-dressed look.

IGNORE HEAT

How do they stand it? Well a number of Peterborough men interviewed who work at a variety of occupations seem to agree that the best way to get through warm, sultry days is to ignore the heat.

"During the day, I just ignore it and keep working," said one. "The more you sit around and moan, the worse you feel," he opined. "After work, I go home and take a shower or go for a swim — and then — just take it easy."

Another man, slightly on the portly side who perspires freely advises that perspiration is nature's cooling system. "Don't wipe it off, he says, that's nature's way of keeping you cool."

However, he added that the best way he had found yet of beating the heat was to hurry home after work and relax in a cold tub of water, while his wife keeps it that way by dropping in ice cubes as fast as she can freeze them in the refrigerator.

"If you can look forward to getting out fishing or out to the cottage in the evening, you can usually struggle through the day somehow, regardless of how hot it is," said a salesman.

ALL IN THE MIND

A construction worker ready to pop rivets into a steel girder that had been heated by the sun until it was too hot to touch, gave more weight to the theory that feeling the heat is all in an individual's mind.

"I don't notice it when I'm working up there," he said, pointing to a network of steel beams overhead. "Even when the sun is hottest in the afternoon, but when I stop for ten minutes, I start looking for shade."

Like several others, he agreed that there was not much use of drinking cold drinks as it only made a person mind the heat more. But a long cool one after work, that he hastened to say was the best way to cool off on a warm evening.

A policeman who patrols a beat every day of the year said he would rather be pounding the sidewalk on the hottest day of the summer than during the winter.

"Walking ten blocks in summer is as easy as walking one in winter," he said, because streets are often treacherous with snow and ice and it's a good deal more difficult ploughing through snow-clogged alleys to try doors in winter than it is in summer.

In his off-duty hours, he said beating the heat is no problem because his house is surrounded by shade trees and is always cool.

BUSMAN'S HOLIDAY

Asked what his formula for getting relief from the heat was, a bus driver who has been driving buses and transports since 1919 said, "Believe it or not, I like to go for a drive." Generally, he said, he does not mind the heat at all, but said it had been a bit uncomfortable the last couple of days. However, he added philosophically, "There isn't much we can do about it."

Everyone probably has their own solution to getting relief from the heat when it becomes unbearably warm in summer, but the bus driver's summing up of the situation is perhaps the best way of looking at it.

It may help, the next time you are tempted to complain about the muggy, hot, sultry heat of a Peterborough July day to remember how you felt last January when you had to shovel the snow out of your driveway that cold morning and then had to walk to work because your car refused to start. Cold, wasn't it?

Floor Repair, Maintenance Helps House Stay Beautiful

Floors have been increasing in decorative importance for many years. Nowadays they're not just something underfoot, never noticed except when they obviously require attention. They'll give you greater satisfaction and longer wear if you keep them in the best of condition at all times.

Concrete basement floors are subject to ruts and cracks, and as a result are not only hazardous but dirt catchers of the worst sort. Especially if you are planning to paint your concrete floor, these ridges and pitted places must be filled in. Shallow holes and depressions can be quickly repaired by a ready-mixed plastic patching material which dries in from two to twelve hours, depending upon the thickness. Clean the area first with a wire brush, then scratch in the patches with a trowel, bring it to the level you want, and smooth it off.

For deeper cracks, dig out all loose concrete with cold chisel or similar tool. Go over area to be patched with a wire brush, then wash out the crack with water. Apply a bonding coat of one of the non-shrinking concrete floor patching compounds. Place small amount in area to be patched. Thin down with a little water and scrub into area with old, stiff-bristle broom. Then fill space with another layer of mixture and work it into the surface. Level and finish with steel trowel.

For a big lift to the dull-looking off-white cement floor, consider a rich burgundy paint job, a deep green, or a black brightened with red border.

Just one word of warning — when painting cement be certain that the paint you use is specially prepared for use on plaster and cement or you may find your work ruined by the burning chemical action of lime in the mortar.

REQUIRE LITTLE ATTENTION

Linoleum floors generally require very little attention if kept waxed and polished. However, should area become loosened, it should be recemented immediately. Use an adhesive recommended by the linoleum manufacturer. If the loose spot is near a seam, lift up the edge and wipe the area underneath with a cloth of brush to remove loose matter. Then cut a piece of cardboard with a saw-toothed edge and use it to trowel the paste onto the floor. Replace the linoleum and weight down the spot evenly with a book or heavy object. Allow to dry for three or four hours.

If a blister or loose spot shows up in the centre of the floor, the linoleum should be cut around a design. Proceed as above.

TOUCHING UP SPOTS

Perhaps your wood floor has merely become worn in spots, due to the wearing off of varnish. There's a "mop-on" type of varnish especially prepared just to touch up these spots.

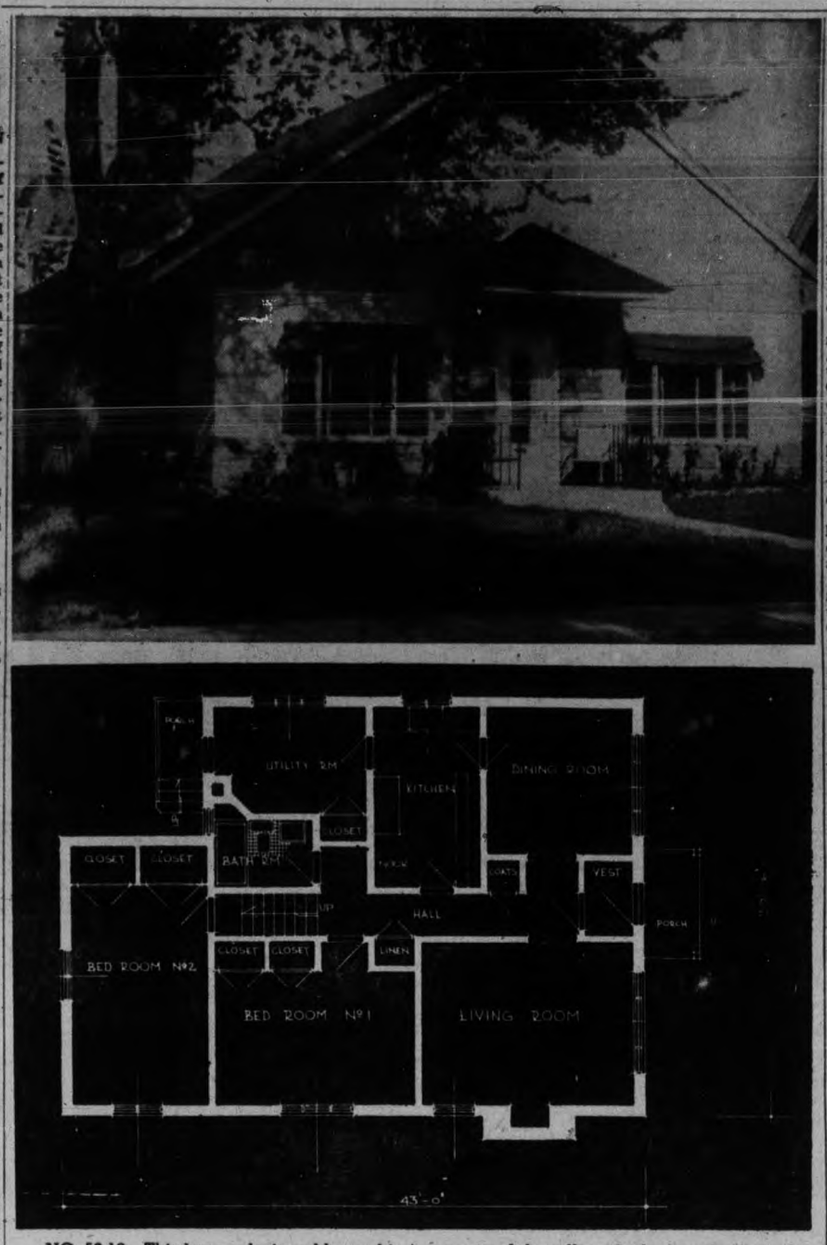
Volumes have been written about the care and upkeep of floors but one fact applies to all types of flooring. They are all improved by careful waxing and never helped by a soap and water bath. Most of the newer floor polishes clean as they polish, building up a protective coating which takes the wear and saves the surface. Don't bog down on the idea that wax is limited to use on wood alone. Tile, linoleum, terrazzo, brick and cement are all aided by the soft but brilliant luster which only wax can give. Whether you select the old reliable paste waxes or one of the easy to apply self polishing type, just remember to apply it carefully and often.

When laying a new wood floor lay the boards a hairline crack apart as a precaution against cracking and swelling. This allows room for expansion and improves the appearance of the floor by defining the outline of each board.

All types of flooring should be laid only over a smooth solid foundation. Sound proofing felt is a wise investment and should be laid over the sub flooring.

Old, badly-worn wooden floors can be sanded and refinished, or replaced with linoleum or composition.

Old floor boards should be examined, and worn or broken pieces cut out and replaced. Squeaky or worn-down stair treads are an annoyance which can be eliminated at very little cost.



NO. 59-10—This house, designed by architect Franco Consiglio, is particularly notable for its unusual placement with huge gable facing the street. Construction is of precast concrete slab walls with clapboard effect and concrete floor on the ground (no basement). Roof is of red shingles—the trim, blue. # 2 Germans Make Movie About Canada

QUEBEC (CP)—A German Arctic expert and his tall, blonde wife arrived yesterday aboard the liner Scythia to make a movie and write about developments in Canada's northland for German school children.

Vitalis Pantenburg, former engineer who became interested in the Arctic through dramatizing his travels for radio broadcasting in Germany, said the movie will be called "New Land in North America."

He will also make a report of his trip for the Cologne University Economic and Geographic Institute, sponsors of the six-month expedition.

Pantenburg said Germany is highly interested in Canada, not only as a land of emigration, but also for its industrial development.

His trip includes visits to the northern Alberta oil fields and uranium development, the Yukon, Churchill, Man., and the Ungava iron ore development.

He plans to drive his German-made Ford and trailer up the Alaska Highway to Whitehorse, taking his equipment with him.

Liselotte Pantenburg, who gave up medical studies to marry Pantenburg, her next-door neighbor in Cologne, will write about Eskimo life in Aklavik and at the mouth of the Mackenzie River, N.W.T., for the German Ethnological Museum in Cologne.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (CP)—On the 24th anniversary of Jean Lussier's plunge over the Horseshoe Falls, he reiterated yesterday that he'd like to be the first human to go over the American falls.

Last May the 61-year-old machine operator told a reporter he plans to use a $3,000 three-balls-in-one contraption of cork, aluminum and rubber, with a series of braces.

He repeated yesterday that he needs a sponsor to put up the $3,000 and the $10,000 fee he wants for the jaunt.

Drew Urges Gov't Speed Civil Defence Organizing

OTTAWA (CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, yesterday said in the Commons the government should speed civil defence if the international situation is as explosive as External Affairs Minister Pearson described it in Winnipeg recently.

During discussion of an appropriation of 6,508,000 for civil defence, he said that, if the next two or three months are as critical as Mr. Pearson said, the government should be doing more to tackle the civil-defence problem with urgency and reality.

Health Minister Martin, under whose department civil defence is handled, said the government is trying to model civil defence on the organizations in Britain and the United States.

The aim was decentralization because without good local authorities no amount of central authority could help.

Mr. Martin said he wanted to stress that a considerable amount of civil-defence activity is going on. The government was taking the matter seriously.

The general plans were sufficient to justify the statement that Canada's preparations were comparable with those of any other country.

The strike occurred May 19 after five employees were laid off and most of the 28 workers at the plant walked out in protest.

Heat-Proof Paint For Radiators

To paint radiators or steam pipes you'll get best results by using special heat-proof paints that will not crack or discolor up to 500 degrees. Such radiator and range enamels are available in a wide range of colors and provide a porcelain-like finish. Don't use aluminum or gilt paints, because they tend to insulate and cut down the amount of radiation. Clean the surface well and sandpaper it before painting.

Archaeologists Swarm To New Find

SHEGUINDAH BAY (CP)—Crudely-fashioned stones found along the shores of this Manitoulin Island community have brought archaeologists on the run to look into what may be one of the most important discoveries made in Canada.

Experts believe the discovery is evidence that a mystery tribe existed in this district during the Stone Age. Its members probably were shaping their tools by hand long before the pyramids were built.

Thomas Lee, 38-year-old anthropologist of the National Museum at Ottawa, and a group of experts in less than a week have uncovered more than 1,000 artifacts on Manitoulin.

Mr. Lee said he believes the race he is trying to find lived at least 1,000 years before the bow and arrow was conceived.

Tentatively it is believed the tribe existed 5,000 to 10,000 years ago. Mr. Lee believes that traces of the race should reveal members of the tribe were considerably smaller than the modern human.

Dutch Building Four New Subs

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Vice-Admiral F. Stam of the Netherlands Navy said yesterday the Dutch are at work on something more immediately practical than the atomic submarine under construction in the U.S.

He claimed that the navy is constructing four subs of revolutionary type, which would prove a far more dangerous assault weapon than any contemporary underwater craft.

The novelty is in the design of the hull. Instead of the standard cylinder shape, Stam said, the new subs would consist of three cylinders. A large one would house the crew and armament, two shorter ones, set aslant beneath it, would contain batteries and diesel engines.

Designed by a former naval engineer M. F. Gunning, the new layout would mean more space and speed with less weight and size.

The first of the new vessels, which will weigh 1,000 tons, will be ready in 1955.

FAST TRIP "UPSTAIRS"—Under the thrust of its eight jet engines, Boeing's YB-52 Stratofortress streams black smoke as it makes a fighter-like takeoff at Seattle, Washington. Note the four-piece wing flaps extended for the takeoff. Performance details of the long-range bomber remain in the "secret" category.

Arctic Patrol Ship Returning To Port

OTTAWA (CP)—The C. D. Howe, Canadian government ship which left Montreal on the annual eastern Arctic patrol June 27, is steaming back to Quebec City for repairs, the Transport Department announced yesterday.

The Howe was found to be leaking in one of its forepeak plates after passing through a field of ice off the Labrador coast.

7 Africans Killed In Mine Rockslide

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—Seven Africans were killed and 13 injured when an earth tremor caused a rockslide 8,000 feet underground in the Robinson Deep Gold Mine yesterday.

The men were buried by rock. The tremor was felt all over Johannesburg.

Nickel Workers Ask 28 Cents

TORONTO (CP) — A 28½-cent hourly wage increase is asked by the 16,000 employees of International Nickel Company of Sudbury and Port Colborne in a brief presented to a conciliation board hearing a contract dispute between the company and the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.)

Judge H. E. Fuller of Welland is chairman of the board.

In addition to wage increase, the workers want three additional paid statutory holidays and improved vacation provisions.

The union said net profits of I.N.C.O., which produces 91 per cent of Canadian nickel, last year were almost 50 per cent higher than in 1950.

The brief said the hourly rate for miners is $1.71½, an increase of 42 per cent over 1939 rates. The brief said miners' rates have not kept pace with the cost of living or with the rate of increase in other industries.

Canadians Disturbed Over Yalu Bombing

OTTAWA (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said yesterday in the Commons that Canadians are disturbed over the United Nations' recent bombing of Red power stations at the Yalu River near the Korea-Manchuria border.

"I think that has disturbed Canadians more than anything else has for a long time," he said during discussion of External Affairs Estimates.

"It has also disturbed people in other North Atlantic Treaty countries."

Doctor Says Polio Taken Too Seriously

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. Crawford Anglin of Toronto says the relative seriousness of poliomyelitis has been over-emphasized.

Writing in Health Magazine, official publication of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Crawford says severe paralysis results from the disease only when warning signs are disregarded. Fatigue, he notes, apparently increases the severity of the disease.

Farmer Returns To Canada After 15 Years

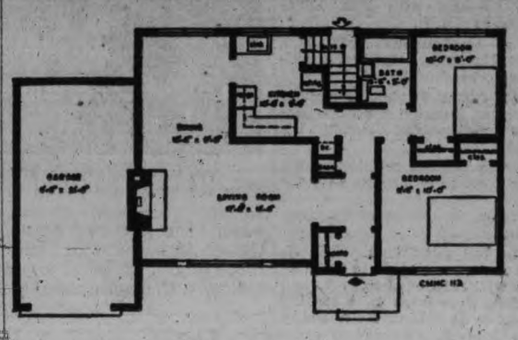
QUEBEC (CP)—A British farmer returned to Canada yesterday after 15 years and made plans to drive his tractor and trailer to a homestead somewhere in Ontario's Muskoka Lakes area.

S. George Pocock, who lived in Canada from 1912 to 1933, said with a shrug that he came back with his wife because of "general conditions on the other side." They arrived aboard the liner Scythia.

The 53-year-old farmer hopes a better life awaits him when he reaches Bracebridge, where friends have been looking for a farm on his behalf. When in Canada previously, he lived in Brandon, Man., and Hamilton, where he farmed and did odd jobs.

His pride is his 24-horsepower tractor which he bought in 1947 and still "runs like a charm." Although his plans are indefinite, Pocock intends to tow his trailer and take his wife on the 265-mile journey. Their other household goods will be shipped by rail.

The Pococks farmed 16 acres in Minsted, Hampshire, England. In the Muskoka district, they will look for a slightly larger farm where they can do "just general farming; no dairy or truck farming."



DESIGN-OF-THE-MONTH — Just off the architect's draughting table and as fresh as Spring itself, here is a new two-bedroom bungalow which should prove popular with many families planning home ownership in 1952.

Ottawa architect M. G. Dixon has designed the house for economical construction and the utmost in living comfort. The interesting treatment of the front of the house, with its large window areas highlighted by a flower box for colour, ensures its suitability for construction in any locality.

The dimensions of the house, excluding the garage, are 36 feet by 23 feet four inches and the floor area is 828 square feet. The cubic measure is 16,145 cubic feet, excluding the garage.

Working drawings for this plan, known as Design 113, are available at minimum cost from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Crazy Shad Ruin Lake Swimming

TORONTO (CP)—"Crazy shad" are ruining swimming along 35 miles of Lake Ontario shoreline, Dudley Hitchcox, Halton county game warden, said yesterday.

The fish are littering the shoreline from Toronto to Burlington. Several beaches have been closed because of the decaying bodies and consequent odor.

Mr. Hitchcox said the shad enter shallow water, swim around in a crazy manner, then die. No explanation has been found for their behavior nor for the cause of their death.

Two Kinds Of Mineral Oxides

Durable Pigment Essential In Making Colored Concrete

A pigment suitable for use in concrete must fulfil the following requirements:

(1) It must be durable under exposure to sunlight and weather;

(2) It must produce intense color;

(3) It must be of such composition that it will not react chemically with the cement to the detriment of either cement or color.

These requirements are best fulfilled with mineral oxide pigments. Other pigments, such as organic dyes, have a tendency to fade and many reduce the strength of concrete. There are two kinds of mineral oxides available that are satisfactory—natural oxides that come direct from the mines and manufactured pigments which are prepared especially for concrete work.

Ordinarily, natural mineral pigments cost less per pound than manufactured pigments and may be used where dull colors are satisfactory. However, where bright colors are desired, manufactured pigments produce best results. It frequently happens that the smaller amount of high-priced, manufactured pigment actually produces the desired results at a lower cost than the cheaper natural pigment.

The following recommendations will serve as a guide in determining proper pigments for use in securing the colors listed:

Buff, Yellow or Red—Iron Oxide Pigments.

Green—Chromium Oxide Pigments.

Blue—Cobalt Blue or Ultramarine Blue.

(The only blue that can be absolutely guaranteed is Cobalt Blue. Ultramarine Blue should not be used unless manufacturer will assume responsibility for color.)

Brown—Iron Oxide or Iron and Manganese Oxide Pigments.

Gray, Slate and Black—Iron Oxide or Manganese Dioxide Pigments.

(Use other types of black only when the manufacturer will absolutely guarantee reliability of the color. For grays and slates, smaller quantities of pigment are used than for black.)

The color which is produced in concrete is determined primarily by the proportion of pigment to cement and not by the proportion of pigment to cubic feet of mortar or concrete. Because of this, modern color specifications give the weight of pigment to be used per sack of cement.

10 PER CENT PIGMENT

It has been found that pigments may be safely used in amounts up to 10 per cent of the weight of the cement — that is, 9 pounds of pigment per 94 pounds of cement. These limits may be exceeded with some pigments and under certain conditions. In such cases the manufactruers' directions should be followed.

The aggregates used in making colored concrete should be as near the color of the mortar as possible. If such aggregates are not available, light colored, semi-transparent aggregates will give best results.

With high grade pigments the amount recommended as a maximum—10 per cent of weight of the cement—will usually produce deep shades of color. Lighter shades are obtained by using less pigment and variations of colors or shades are obtained by mixing two or more pigments.

To obtain maximum clearness and brightness in colored finishes, white Portland cement should be used. White finishes are obtained by using white Portland cement and light colored aggregates.

Variations in the composition of concrete materials as well as in the pigments makes color formulas only approximate. For this reason it is suggested that after selecting the primary color desired the exact shade be determined by preparing a number of small mortar panels with the same materials and proportions as are intended for the finished job. The sample mortar panels should be 6 or 8 inches by 12 inches and about 1 inch thick. The proportions used for the different panels are carefully recorded so that when the correct shade is determined the exact proportion for that shade can be used on the job. The samples are stored away for four or five days under curing conditions the same as those on the job. Then they are dried and wiped off with a rag dipped in equal parts of paraffin oil and benzine, and then inspected. This will bring out the color.

Union Talks Break Down

TORONTO (CP) — Conciliation proceedings over a new contract between nine paper companies and unions representing 8,000 workers broke down here yesterday, union officials announced. A. C. Dennis, conciliation officer for the Ontario Labor Department, recommended that a conciliation board be set up.

The unions seek a 40-hour week week instead of 48 hours with the same take-home pay, overtime after 40 hours and shift differentials. Negotiations began at St. Adele, Que., April 14.

The companies produce fine paper at 14 plants in Ontario and Quebec. They are: Garden City Paper Company, Lyons Paper Company, Interlake Tissue Company, all at Merritton; Provincial Paper Company with mills at Thorold, Georgetown and Mill Rush in Ontario; Howard Smith Paper Company, Cornwall; Don Valley Paper Company, Toronto; E. B. Eddy Company, with mills at Ottawa and Hull, Que.; Rolland Paper Company at St. Jerome and Rolland, Que., and the Vegetable Parchment Company at Merritton.

FARMER FINED

LINDSAY (CP)—Failure to spray his cattle for warble fly cost farmer Beverley Webster of Mariposa township $10 and costs yesterday. He was charged with violating a local by-law.

Lost Sight And Hands Veteran Gets Degree

EDINBURGH (Reuters)—A British veteran who lost his sight and his hands in Libya 10 years ago triumphed over both. He was awarded the degree of Master of Arts at Edinburgh University yesterday.

Two years of intensive study brought this honor to 31-year-old David Bell. Being without hands he could not use Braille and had to relay entirely on memory.

"My friends helped me," he said. "They read to me from text books and talked over their lecture notes. Fortunately I have a good memory."

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—William Tisdall, 67, was killed here last night when his motorcycle crashed into the side of an automobile.

Jailed Two Months Cabbie Loses Licence

KITCHENER (CP)—Clayton Essig, Galt taxi driver whose car struck and permanently injured five-year-old Judy Heer at nearby Kingsdale last Jan. 28, lost his appeal of a dangerous driving charge today.

He will go to jail for two months and lose his driver's licence for two years.

Noted Musician Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Squire Welsman, 79, organizer in 1906 of the original Toronto Symphony Orchestra, died Wednesday at his summer home on Lake Joseph, in the Muskoka district. He was associated with the Canadian Academy of Music and for three years commuted to St. Thomas to serve as musical director of Alma College.

38 Women Are Practising As Dentists In Canada

EDMONTON (CP)—In Latvia, Dr. Anna Gipters Rudovics would be just another woman dentist. In Canada, Dr. Rudovics is the 38th woman among nearly 6,000 practising dentists, the third in Alberta and the first in Edmonton.

"Seventy per cent of the dentists in Latvia are women," she said in an interview. "It is like that in most European countries. In Germany I'd estimate the division is about 50-50.

"In my dentistry class at Riga there were 60 girls and five boys."

The 35-year-old native of Latvia is a graduate in dentistry in the universities of three countries—the Latvian University at Riga; the University of Marbug-Lahn at Marburg, Germany; and the University of Alberta at Edmonton.

WENT TO GERMANY

After the Russians invaded Latvia in 1944, Anna Gipters moved to Marburg where she won another dentistry degree and then, while a member of the faculty, earned a Master's degree.

When she went to England in 1948, she couldn't speak a word of English. She spent a year at London, Ont., as a domestic before moving to Western Canada. She studied a year at the University of Alberta and graduated this spring.

"Progress in dentistry in this country is more pronounced," she said in comparing studies here and in Europe. "Progress in Europe suffered because of the war.

"In addition in Europe dental students took more classes with medical students. We learned nerve, skin, ear and eye diseases. In Canada the technical side of dentistry is stressed more than it is in Europe."

Two years ago she was married to Stanley Rudovics who was a graduate forestry engineer in Latvia and now is working toward a land surveyor's degree.

Daintily wrapped individual birthday gifts were presented by the many members and visitors present. "Happy Birthday" was sung. Completely taken by surprise, Mrs. Timlin replied briefly.

Nine persons were remembered by the good cheer convener, Mrs. Leo Timlin.

The members of the W.A. reported having made a bee and cleaned the interior of the church. A committee of ladies were appointed to clean it next time, namely: Mrs. Arnold Elder, Mrs. Bruce Arthur and Mrs. Reg. Timlin.

There was a display of needlework. The travelling apron is still going the rounds as a means of raising funds. It has many patches on, under each patch is a name and a sum of money.

The hostess, assisted by the lunch committee, served lunch.

Mr. Leo Copp and Mr. Quirt McKinney, pricipal and master of the Peterborough Normal School staff, are leaving this weekend to take charge of the summer school course at Northern Vocational School, Toronto. ## Stress Research In British Carpet Making

LONDON (CP) — Intensive research into different types of yarn and on new methods of weaving and dyeing go into the production of carpeting, of which 39,000,000 square yards roll off British looms every year. To boost their trade, the manufacturers have been educating British housewives in the proper selection and best methods of caring for good carpets

Most British carpetings fall into two categories. One is the loop-pile such as Brussels or tapestry, and the other is the cut-pile of Wilton and Axminster.

The loop-pile is formed on wires (afterwards withdrawn) and mounted on a strong fabric. Quality is determined by the number of threads to the square inch, a high quality having perhaps 90 loops. In velvet tapestry the loops are cut, giving an open pile of richer appearance.

TOUGH, LUXURIOUS

More popular for the home are the cut-pile Wiltons and Axminsters, combining hard-wearing qualities with a luxurious appearance. Axminster patterns are formed by the tufts and individually knotted into the fabric, and the jute weft and cotton or linen warp threads make it stiff across the width and flexible across the length. Axminsters therefore should always be rolled; never folded.

Wilton is sometimes preferred for more imposing rooms, having a smoother and silkier pile, sometimes woven as closely as 14 loops to the inch.

Chenille carpeting, also popular for drawing rooms and bedrooms, has a deep velvety pile woven by a different method than that in most carpets. The Chenille fur is laced on to the fabric backing with strong thread and a high-quality chenille carpet may have 144 tufts to the square inch.

CARPET SHIFTING

All housewives know that a good carpet should be shifted around occasionally, to distribute the wear and tear, or alternatively the heavier furniture should be moved to different spots.

The tendency to "shading" in plain or light-colored carpets can be reduced if the new carpet is laid so that the pile leans away from the light.

Worst enemy of carpets is grit, which if allowed to remain and sink into the pile, causes gradual disintegration of the fabric. A carpet should be brushed towards the direction in which the pile lies. In other words when a sweeper or vacuum cleaner is used, the last stroke should be in this direction.

Dirt marks or stains should be removed as soon as they are noticed—but not with soap, soda or ammonia. There are many soapless lather products sold for washing delicate fabrics, which will not harm a carpet.

DOROTHY DIX

Vicious Man One Who Wins Affections Of Teen-Agers

DEAR MISS DIX: Three years ago, when I was 14, I fell in love with a married man of 35. He said he loved me and would divorce his wife to marry me when I was old enough. Now I am sure I'm old enough to get married, but he evades the subject every time I bring it up. Do you think he is sincere, and should I keep hoping?

ANSWER: The keeper of the nether regions should have a special corner reserved for married men who make a practice of winning the affections of teen-agers, causing untold heartbreak and anguish to these youngsters.

Older women caught in the same situation are at least fully aware of what they can expect, but an inexperienced child has no conception of the villainy lying in wait for her. Young people are, by nature, trusting. It is by contact with the good and bad in life that we learn where to place confidence and where to withhold it.

THERE ARE COUNTLESS VICTIMS

Countless letters come to my desk from young people like this reader, who succumb to the attractions of older men with a fine line of being misunderstood at home, and eager—oh, so eager—to get a divorce. Their protestations of affections, their empty promises are as false as a desert mirage. But how can a young girl, taking her first steps into a mendacious, adult world, recognize such consummate perfidy?

A girl who has had the benefit of a good upbringing and religious background might find it hard to resist the honied words of a suave Casanova; how much more difficult it is for a youngster lacking these advantages!

If I had but one message to give young girls, it would be to stay as far away as possible from them like the plague, and avoid men already married. Avoid also the inevitable heartache — sometimes disgrace—that follows these unholy friendships.

The most hollow promise in the world is the promise of a husband to divorce his wife in order to marry his inamorata. Young, innocent girls—as well as many older women who should be wiser—have spent fruitless, hopeless years waiting for such promises to be kept. When they finally realize that the path of love in their cases has been a path of destruction, they are embittered, disillusioned women who have nothing left in their hearts but the dead ashes of a sordid romance.

Don't let it happen to you, Meg. If you need further help, get it from your mother, a trusted teacher, your minister—anyone who will show you what lies ahead if you continue to love this despicable apology for a man who has no aim in life but the gratification of his own vanity.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very self-conscious about my hair which m ymother insists I keep long. All the other girls have short hair, but I am forbidden to have mine cut.

BROWN EYES

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Long hair, this year, is just as popular as short, and surely you can find a becoming style with long tresses. Your mother probably has a sound reason for wanting your hair long and, although this is a point on which I think parents should let children decide for themselves, you can only accept the family verdict and make the best of it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Two months ago I met a boy of 19—four years older than I—and, though he asked me for a date, my mother wouldn't let me go out with him. So, I met him at my girl friend's several times. Now mother has changed her mind, and will permit me to see him, but he never does come to the house when he promises, and when he does get here he's sometimes been out drinking with his friends.

J. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I'm sure you realize from your boy friend's conduct that your mother was justified in forbidding you to see him in the first place. You were very wrong to do so against her wishes, and I hope you have sense enough now to follow her judgement and stop seeing this boy, who certainly isn't worth your attention.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: I have several friends who seem to have the same problem as I — every time we make a cake with mixmaster it rises perfectly while baking but on cooling falls in a matter of seconds... I follow recipes to the letter... I have often tried baking the cake 5 or 10 minutes longer... that hasn't helped either...would you please print recipe for rye bread. Mrs. A. C. Calgary.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There seems to be a widespread epidemic of fallen cakes. You have stymied me on most counts but there are two questions I want to ask. Have you checked the accuracy of your oven thermometer with a portable oven thermometer? Do you stop beating your cakes under the electric beater after eggs, butter and sugar are thoroughly beaten? If you use the instruction book put out by the manufacturer of your beater be sure not to overbeat your cake after leavening agent is added, watching beating time and speed exactly.

Layer Cake

(Standard for electric beater)

Shortening eggs and milk should be at room temperature.

Two-thirds cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2-3 cup milk, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 4¼ teaspoons vanilla, 2-3 cup milk, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 4¼ teaspoons standard baking powder. Sift flour, measure and sift it together with other dry ingredients. Beat sugar and shortening together at medium speed for 2½ minutes. Add eggs and beat 1 minute. Add dry ingredients and milk mixed with vanilla simultaneously, and mix 1½ minutes using spatula to wipe batter down from sides. Bake in 2 8-inch layer cake tins dusted with flour after buttering, in oven of 375 deg. for about 25 minutes or until cakes shrink slightly from sides of pan.

Try that and let me know if it falls. It is a standby with me and never falls. If yours does it is because you are living in a high altitude and should raise the baking temperature to 400 or 425 deg. Fahr.

Rye Bread

Six and one-third cups sifted rye flour, 4½ cups sifted hard-wheat flour, 5½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 cups lukewarm water, 2 cakes moist yeast, 3 tablespoons sugar, 5 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons melted fat. Sift the rye flour with the white flours. Dissolve the yeast cakes in ½ cup of the required 3 cups. Add the sugar, salt and fat to the remaining lukewarm water and stir until dissolved. Add dissolved yeast. Stir in. Add half of the mixed flours and beat very thoroughly. Cover and stand in warm place to rise overnight. In the morning add the remaining flour to make a firm dough. Knead on floured board until very smooth and elastic and squeaky, about 10 minutes. Cover and stand in warm place until doubled in bulk. Knead again. Mould into long pointed loaves, place on greased shallow pan dredged with cornmeal. Rub fat lightly on top of the loaves. Cover and let rise until bulk has increased by 1¾ times. Slash top of loaf 3 times with sharp knife at an angle. Bake 1 lb. loaves for 30 to 35 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. A pan of water should be placed in oven during baking period. Remove loaves from oven and glaze with mixture of egg white and water or cooked starch paste.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: Could you please send me recipe for cream pie made with cornstarch for 9-inch pie...also meringue that does not stick when it is cut...how to prevent fruit pies from running over in oven. Mrs. J. A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

Cream Pie

One tablespoon butter or margarine, 8 tablespoons flour, 2-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 beaten egg yolks, 2 cups milk (1 cup milk and 1 cup cream makes richer pie), 1 teaspoon vanilla. Melt butter in top of double boiler. Stir together the flour, sugar, salt and when blended, stir the yolks and milk into them and add all to melted butter and stir over boiling water until thick, and cook covered 10 minutes. Add vanilla. Pour into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue made by beating until frothy 3 egg whites with ⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar. Very slowly begin to add 6 tablespoons sugar and beat until glossy and stiff. Spread over filling to completely seal it in at edges. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes.

To prevent pies running over seal edges more tightly, make gashes larger, use more "thickener" mixed with the sugar, and a little less liquid in pie. If frozen fruits are used in pie double the normal required amount of thickener.

THE MOVIE COLUMN:

Chic Actress Wears $8 Dresses

By JAMES BACON
(For Vacationing Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of Hollywood's better-dressed young actresses wears $8 dresses and $2 bathing suits—all made by her mama.

It seems that Terry Moore, freshly-divorced from grid star Glenn Davis, had blossomed into a dramatic actress in "Come Back, Little Sheba." Her role of the coed in the movie version of the famed Broadway play was her first big movie break.

At lunch in the commissary even women were complimenting her on how nice she looked. And female stars interrupted our luncheon several times by gushing:

"D a a h l i n g. Love that dress." Etc.

It became so noticeable that even I asked her how much it cost. It was a simple dress in white something or other. Looked very summery and Terry had a golden tan that set it off well.

"I think this dress cost about $8, all told," she answered.

"Sale?"

MOTHER MADE IT

"No, my mother made it. She makes practically everything I wear."

Terry disclosed that her mother, Mrs. Luella Koford, got in the business of designing Terry's clothes via bathing suits. The shapely actress is tiny ever place but the bust, which measures 36 inches.

"It was a real job buying bathing suits for me," she said. "We'd have to buy two suits—a size 12 and a size 10. I'd wear the size 12 top and the size 10 bottom."

Since bathing suits are a basic commodity among young Hollywood starlets, the necessity of buying two suits to get one can even be too expensive for cheesecake art.

"So," Terry continued, "mother started making my bathing suits."

She owns at least 30 bathing suits and estimates about $60 invested in the lot. Mama's labor comes for free.

Another famous cheesecake artist once told me that she usually paid $80 to $100 apiece for custom-made bathing suits in Beverly Hills shops.

Donald Family Hold Reunion At Snow Lake

About 80 members of the Donald family—originally from Coe Hill but now mostly settled in the Frankford area—met for their third annual reunion this week.

Husbands, wives, children and distant relatives from Prince Edward County, Belleville, Trenton, Coe Hill and the Lakefield district assembled Tuesday at the picnic grounds beside Snow Lake, a mile west of Coe Hill.

Races were run off and there was a dinner served on the lakeshore and finally there were speeches and novelty prizes.

Albert Wease of Smith township was elected president of the family group for the year. Other officers elected were Mrs. Walter Watson of Douro, secretary-treasurer; and two members for the entertainment committee — Mrs. Morley Nixon of Smith township and Mrs. Glen Crapp of Lakefield.

Oldest person on the grounds was Herbert Donald, 78, of Frankford; the oldest married couple were Mr. Donald and his wife, 53 years; youngest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Derry of Belleville; youngest grandmother, Mrs. Richard Derry; and the one who made the longest journey, Wilbert Green of Prince Edward County.

The Donald family reunions began in 1950 when Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Donald of Frankford held their golden wedding anniversary.

Next year they plan to have their get-together at the filtration plant on the northern outskirts of the city, July 1.

Group Of Citizens Ran Playgrounds 35 Years Ago

Recreation in city playgrounds 35 years ago was handled by a group of Peterborough citizens banded into a group called the Peterborough Playgrounds Association.

The association, in many ways similar to today's Recreation Commission, was headed by leading citizens and athletes. But the association handled all the affairs using playground supervisors or of the few playgrounds, without directors.

In 1917 the association was headed by W. G. Morrow, backed by a group of 23 men and women who formed the finance, equipment, appointments, supervision, visiting, entertainment, executive committees.

The aim of the association in 1917 was to improve swimming and dressing room facilities in the playgrounds.

Early in the year a special committee called The Playgrounds Association Special Committee on Public Bathing Houses investigated Inverlea and Little Lake sites as possible bathing beaches, secured estimates for buildings and caretakers.

CHOSE LAKE STREET

Its investigations revealed that the best sites obtainable were at the foot of Lake St., now abandoned for swimming facilities, and at Inverlea park, still in use.

"These are both desirable localities and well situated for the majority of Peterborough citizens," the committee reported.

About the bathing house, the committee said that each site required a building 20 feet by 80 feet, well equipped with all bathing dressing-room features. A city construction company estimated cost of the building at $650 each.

Another $350 was to cover the expense of a caretaker, life-saving apparatus and cleaning the beaches.

The committee asked that $2,000 be allotted for the expenses for both beaches.

When the bathing site and house question was presented at the town council, it was sidetracked, shelved and turned down.

Oshawa Man Ordered To Give Up Gun

OSHAWA (ENS)—An Oshawa mother told in court Friday of her husband firing a shot into the floor of their home then pushing the gun against her stomach and saying, "There is one shot left for you and another for me."

Magistrate Frank S. Ebbs bound the husband, Raymond Pettitt, over to keep the peace for one year when he appeared on a charge of threatening.

Mrs. Pettitt said she saw her husband take his Luger pistol and some ammunition from a bedroom drawer last Sunday night.

"He said he was going to kill me and then he grabbed hold of me," Mrs. Pettitt said. Then, she said, her husband fired another shot into the living room floor. Neighbors notified police.

Det. William Jordan testified that he asked Pettitt for the gun when he arrived on the scene.

"He threatened to let us have it. We tried to talk him out of it and suggested that we all put our guns down. He was agreeable to that but then he went off into another rage and threatened to shoot himself," Jordan said.

Pettitt said he fired the gun to empty it. He added that the gun didn't work properly and firing it was the only way the bullet could be removed.

He was ordered to have no firearms in his house and to keep away from liquor.

Bisley Team Busy With Final Practices

BISLEY, Surrey, England (CP)—With the 83rd annual Bisley competition scheduled to open Monday, Canada's 20-man team of marksmen is putting in its final practices.

Lt.-Col. Jack Steele of Guelph, Ont., commandant of the Canadian camp, said today: "The boys have been doing some encouraging shooting. I look for good results."

Some members of the Canadian team will take part in service type competition early in the week but the major effort won't begin until Friday. The Queen's Prize, won last year by Lieut. Gilmour Boa of Toronto, is the big plum. In yesterday's national small bore rifle competition, a pre-tournament affair, Boa shared third place with 10 other competitors. The winner was a woman from the Dundee Rifle Club.

A team from the Canadian 27th Infantry Brigade at Hannover, Germany, is also on location at Bisley and will take part in the services competitions. Individuals in this group may also qualify for participation in the Queen's Prize group.

Obituary

MISS MARGARET HYNES

A resident of Peterborough for the past 35 years, Miss Margaret Hynes died after an illness of two months Friday in St. Joseph's Hospital. She was 65.

Miss Hynes was born in Lakefield the daughter of the late Maurice Hynes and Catherine Sheehan. She lived there before coming to Peterborough.

For a number of years Miss Hynes was housekeeper at the Sacred Heart Church rectory. In recent years she has been a member of the Immaculate Conception Church and the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Mary Towns of Warsaw and a brother, Michael, of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held Monday from the Duffus funeral home to the Immaculate Conception Church for requiem mass at 9 a.m, Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

Thomas Avery

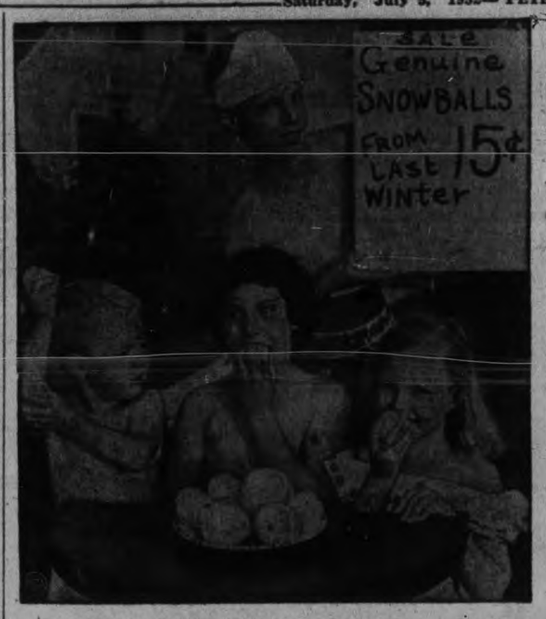
Funeral services for the late Thomas Avery, 185 King St., who died in hospital Wednesday in his 86th year, were held Friday afternoon from the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church officiated. Interment was in Lakefield cemetery.

Pallbearers were: Gordon Mann, Allan Mann, Fred Mann, Charles Moore, Roy Wheeler and Wilbert Abbott.

SCALING HEIGHTS — Maj. Sammy Lee was joined on the ladder by his wife, Rosalind, on hand to watch him compete in the Olympic Swimming and Diving Trials at Long Island's Astoria Park Pool. The 1944 Olympic high-board champion is a doctor at Letterman Army Hospital, Passadena.



SNOWBALL FIGHT IN JULY?—Russel Green, 9, of Levitton, N.Y., holds a placard advertising his unique summer treat—nice, cold snowballs, which he's been hoarding in the family's deep freezer. Russel only intended to sell them for cooling-off purposes, but the little boy at left thinks it's a fine time to revive a favorite winter sport.

C.C.F. Leading In B.C. Election Social Credit Party Close On Heels

VANCOUVER (CP)—Results in four Vancouver seats may decide whether the socialist C.C.F. or conservative Social Credit forms the next provincial government in British Columbia. Either way it will be a minority government—neither can command a majority in the 48-seat Legislature.

Early today, final returns had been tabulated for 32 seats. In another, the unofficial count immediately after the election, decided the outcome. Fifteen were in doubt.

As returning officers began the third day of counting, this was the party standing compared with results of the 1949 election (number of candidates leading in the 1952 election shown in brackets):

| | 1952 | 1949 |
|---|---|---|
| CCF | 14(6) | 7 |
| SC | 14(3) | 0 |
| Lib | 2(4) | 26 |
| PC | 2(2) | 13 |
| Lab | 1 | 1 |
| Ind | 0 | 1 |
| Totals | 48 | 48 |

(In 1949, Liberals and Progressive Conservatives ran as coalition candidates. The parties broke off the coalition last January.)

The four key seats which may settle the issue are the two-member constituencies of Vancouver-Burrard and Vancouver Centre. The C.C.F. led after the second counts in the Burrard seats and in the unofficial first count in Vancouver Centre. However, second-choice counting in Burrard indicated that Social Credit candidates had a chance to move out in front.

POSSIBLE 20 SEATS

If the C.C.F. holds all four and if other leading candidates go on to win election it will have 20 seats to 17 for Social Credit. But if Social Credit, which holds power in neighboring Alberta and never before won a seat in B.C., overcomes the C.C.F. lead in two of the Vancouver seats it could wind up with 19 seats to 18 for the socialist party.

Of the 15 seats still doubtful when counting broke off last night, 11 are in the big-city constituencies of Vancouver and Victoria. In most, a final decision is not expected for another week.

By last night, five had not completed the count of absentee ballots, first stage in completing an official count under B.C.'s alternative voting system, used in this province for the first time in this election. The next stage is to count second or further alternative choices until one candidate attains a majority over all his opponents. The low man is dropped on each count and his alternative choices distributed among remaining candidates.

There was no official report from Vancouver East, where C.C.F. leader Harold Winch won re-election on the basis of the unofficial count immediately after the election.

In the doubtful seats, 40 candidates were still in the running. Thirty others had been knocked out or were certain to go. The casualties were: Progressive Conservative 12; Christian Democrat 6; Independent 4; Labor-Progressive 2; C.C.F. 2; Liberal 1; Social Credit 1; Labor 1; Socialist party 1.

PREDICT NEW ELECTION

Liberal Premier Johnson, beaten personally in New Westminster, announced that as soon as results are complete he will recommend that the lieutenant-governor call on the party with the largest group in the Legislature to form a government. Observers predicted that a minority government would not last long and that a new election would be held within a year.

The Liberals and Progressive Conservatives, who broke an 11-year coalition partnership last January to go their separate ways, both fared badly. Like the premier, Progressive Conservative leader Herbert Anscomb met personal defeat.

Social Credit, though it may be the largest group, has no leader. The party's B.C. president, Lyle Wicks, said a party caucus July 15 would select a House leader. Yesterday Mr. Wicks denied that the caucus would discuss the possibility of coalition. He was quoted by the Canadian Press Thursday night as saying the subject would be discussed although his personal view was that chances of coalition were "very remote."

PARTY GAINS

Starting from scratch, Social Credit gained 14 seats—10 from the Liberals and four from the Progressive Conservatives. The C.C.F. made six of its gains at the expense of the Liberals, taking one seat from the Progressive Conservatives. The Liberals and Progressive Conservatives each gained one seat from the other.

The long count resumed again today but returning officers will break off for Sunday before settling down to work again on Monday.

Three Women Remain In Air Race

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. (AP)—Two of three remaining competitors in a 1,195-mile all-woman's air race left here today for Buffalo, N. Y., in their competition for $2,000 in prize money.

Four women left St. Augustine, Fla., yesterday in the all-women international air race to Welland, Ont.

Miss Betty Haas, of Scarsdale, N. Y., the 1950 winner, took off a few minutes before 8 a. m. EDT from Westchester county airport and said she hoped to reach Buffalo in about two hours 10 minutes.

Taking off at the same time, Mrs. Blaine Mogelvang of Lockhart, Fla., expected to reach Buffalo in about three hours.

PLANS REFUELING STOP

Mrs. Dorothy Rungelling, of Welland, is the third remaining contestant. The airport here said she spent the night at Millville, N.J., and would make a refueling stop at Westchester before going on to Buffalo.

Another contestant, Peggy Lennox of St. Petersburg, Fla., was forced out of the race early yesterday when she ran low on fuel and crash-landed in a pasture near South Boston, Va. She was unhurt.

Miss Haas had been in the air only about 6½ hours on her arrival here. She was the only one flying without a co-pilot.

Air-time for the other two contestants was not available.

U.S. Swimmer Gives Up Close To Goal

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP)—Plucky Florence Chadwick, two-time conqueror of the English Channel, gave up to the choppy Pacific yesterday after coming within three-quarters of a mile of swimming Catalina Channel.

The 32-year-old swimmer from San Diego was hauled from the water 15 hours and 50 minutes after she plunged off the isthmus of Santa Catalina Island Thursday night. She swam at least 20 miles.

Miss Chadwick fought a four-knot current for the last three hours.

She was able to swim to the accompanying rowboat and grasp her mother's hand before being pulled out and wrapped in blankets.

A waiting crowd estimated at more than 50,000 was strung along Cabrillo Beach and surrounding bluffs for a distance of several miles.

On shore, one admirer thrust a bouquet of red roses in her hand. She was able to smile and walk to the shower room where she used up all the hot water.

Her manager, Ted Bentley, estimated that she swam nearly 28 miles in a zig-zag course. A beeline course from the isthmus to Cabrillo Beach is 21 miles.

A late check disclosed that Cataline Channel has been swum by at least seven persons, the first being Toronto-born George Young in January, 1927. The claimant to the record, however, is Byron Summers of Los Angeles, who swam the 21 miles in 13 hours, 35 minutes April 24, 1927.

The late Mrs. Martha Huddleston of Long Beach is believed to be the only woman to have swum the stretch. It took her more than 20 hours, also in 1927.

Bowmanville Roses Down Cobourg 9-5

COBOURG — Cobourg Legionnaires gathered five runs off Lefty Dick Buttonshaw in the first innings here last night but it wasn't enough and Bowmanville Roses came on to win over the Cobourg crew, 9-5. Bryan Hart started for the Legionaires but gave way to Jim Ingamells in the fourth frame aftr he had allowed the winning run and given up six hits. Four walks hurt Hart's chances of coming through as three of them turned into runs. Shortstop Hooper of the winners weighed in with a homer, a triple and a single to lead their 10-hit attack. Sonny Beckstead had two blows for the Cobourg crew.

Speedway Starter Killed By Stock Car

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Ed Bellefleur, official starter and flagman at the Jacksonville Speedway, was killed last night when he was struck by a racing stock car at the track.

The 48-year-old French-Canadian, who used to race under the name Ed (Speedy) Eng, was former Florida big car racing champion. He was a native of Nashua, N.H.

Bellefleur was struck by a car driven by Marvin Gilhousen which went out of control after a sideswipe by another racing stock car. Bellefleur was thrown 50 feet.

TWO OF CANADA'S Olympic basketball team are seen soaring as they try for possession of the ball during a wild play in a game against the All-Stars at Mont St. Louis gym. Bob William (7) and Harry Wade, both six-feet-five, are the flighty boys, while at left is Syd Strulovitch of the Stars. Bob Simpson (14) at extreme right, was top scorer for the Olympians. Nearest him is Sheldon Merling and All-Star teammate negro Vic Richardson in the background.

Kesselring Captures Ontario Open Crown

TORONTO (CP) — Long-hitting Gerry Kesselring defied high winds and big pro names yesterday to capture the Ontario Open golf championship.

The 23-year-old Kitchener amateur, only player to break par in the last round of the tournament over the tough 6,395-yard suburban Weston Club layout, beat off a determined threat from veteran pro Bob Gray.

Kesselring's score of 211 was two under par for the 54-hole medal-play tournament. Gray was five strokes behind with 216.

WINS TROPHY

Kesselring, who won the Ontario amateur crown in 1949 and 1951, took the Carling trophy yesterday and a $100 camera. Gray, from the Toronto Scarboro club, won $705.

Kesselring, playing out of two Kitchener clubs, Westmount and Rockway, was the first amateur to win the $2,000 Open since Windsor's Nick Weslock did it three years ago. Weslock, still an amateur, was third yesterday with 217. Fourth was Murray Tucker of London, whose 218 score took $400.

Tied for fifth at 219 were pros Willie Lamb of Toronto Lambton and Bob Burns of Ridgeway's Cherry Hill, and Bruce Castator, Islington amateur. Lamb and Burns received $250 each.

The sensation of opening day, Bill Thompson, assistant pro at suburban York Downs, finished just in the money with a 222. He won $25. On Thursday he led the field with a sparkling 67.

SCORES HIGH

High winds caused scores to soar in yesterday's final round.

But Kesselring said later he likes it "when it's blowing and windy. It adds a bit of skill."

Kesselring was eight strokes up on Gray at the 17th tee. He was aided greatly by an eagle three on the 525-yard 16th when his drive and a two-iron shot rolled within two feet of the pin. Gray had a par five.

A two-over par by Kesselring on the next hole, when he overshot the green for a six, cut the margin to five when Gray birdied the hole. It stayed that way when they both parred the final hole.

It was Kesselring's eighth major championship. Ranked as Ontario's leading amateur on his 1951 play, he is the fourth amateur to win the open since its inauguration in 1923. Others were Henry Martell, now an Edmonton pro, in 1939, Phil Farley of Toronto in 1942 and 1952, and Weslock in 1946 and 1949.

HIS FIRST OPEN

But it was the first important Open crown the Kitchener player has won. His record: Ontario amateur twice in 1949 and 1951; Ontario junior in 1945, 1946 and 1948 and the Canadian junior in 1946 and 1947.

Of the 66 qualifiers for yesterday's final 36 holes only three players equalled or bettered par during the day.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Allie Reynolds, ace hurler of New York Yankees, is lost to the club for an indefinite period with a sprained right wrist. Reynolds requested that Manager Casey Stengel remove him from the American League All-Star game squad.

Scheduled to pitch against the Senators in Washington yesterday, Reynolds said he didn't know how he suffered the injury but believed it might have happened while carrying his luggage off the train upon arrival in Washington. He has a record of 10 wins against four losses this season.

DOUBLES DECIDED

Brendan Macken of Montréal and Lorne Main of Vancouver won the doubles title in the Quebec tennis championships yesterday at Montreal, defeating Jim Macken of Montreal and Don Fontana of Toronto 6-8, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. The women's doubles crown went to Mrs. Louise Brown of Toronto and Dorothy Hurst of Toronto who defeated Mrs. Hanna Sladek and Pat Macken of Montreal 1-6, 6-2, 7-5.

The finals in both the men's singles and women's singles will be played today with the Macken brothers fighting it out for the men's crown and their sister meeting Mrs. Sladek for the women's title.

MAYER, KROLL TIED

Dick Mayer and Ted Kroll yesterday took over joint leadership of the $15,000 motor city open tournament at Detroit with 11-under-par 133s for the halfway mark. Mayer fired a seven-under-par 32-33—65 over the Red Run Golf Club course to add to his previous 68. Kroll did just the opposite, adding 35-33—68 to his first-round 65. Only two strokes back of the two leaders was defending champion Lloyd Mangrum with rounds of 68 and 67.

MISS PEPSI WINS

Miss Pepsi, the Dossin brothers' sleek speedster, won her second straight Detroit Memorial Trophy Race yesterday on the Detroit River. Miss Pepsi captured all three heats of the 45-mile race as driver Chuck Thompson set a race record of 93.197 miles an hour and finished the race with the fastest lap of the day at 97.694 miles an hour. Miss Great Lakes was second and Jack Schafer's Such Crust IV finished in third place.

EIDSVIG WINS

Harold Eidsvig, Winnipeg Niakwa pro, yesterday won the Manitoba open golf championship with a one-over-par 141 for the final 36 holes of the 54-hole tournament. Eidsvig turned in a disappointing 80 Thursday over the par 70 Winnipeg Elmhurst course, but yesterday he came from far back to post rounds of 71 and 70 for a total of 221.

FAVORITE LOSES

At Inglewood, Calif., Admiral Drake won the $50,000 American Handicap before 52,000 fans yesterday, with Sturdy One second and the heavy favorite, Intent, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, third in the Hollywood Park Independence Day feature. The win was worth $32,700 to Abe Hirschberg, owner of Admiral Drake.

COBOURG — Cobourg backed a good pitching effort by Stu Lingard and won 5-2 over Port Hope in a Lakeshore Baseball League juvenile contest. Lingard fanned nine, including the side in the seventh and held Port Hope to just five hits, no more than one to any Port Hope batter.

Ridley Downs Bermuda Cricketers

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Showing too much power and aggressiveness, Ridley College of St. Catharines yesterday defeated St. George's Dinghy and Sports Club by 123 runs in their first completed game of a Bermuda cricket tour.

The first scheduled game of the tour Tuesday was rained out with Ridley having 38 runs without loss when the match against the pick of Bermuda's schools was abandoned.

In the match against the St. George's club, Ridley declared their innings closed at 207 for the loss of only five wickets and then skittled out St. George's for 84 runs.

A feature of the Ridley innings was the batting of Edward Burn, master at Ridley and cricket coach. He made 101 not out. In the unfinished fifth-wicket stand with Tom Storm the score was carried from 148 to 207.

In the whirlwind innings he hit two sixes and six fours.

Jim Chaplin, Ridley's opening batsman and captain of the team, scored 23 and Skippy Barnyard 14.

St. George's could do little against the bowling of Norman Stewart and John Storm.

Only two batsmen were able to reach double figures, J. Hopkins with 37 and Roddie Christensen with 13.

Stewart took five wickets and 42 runs in 14 overs and Storm had four wickets for 12 in eight overs.

MAJOR NET UPSET — Jim Macken, brother of Davis cupper Brendan Macken, scored an upset win over Canada's top seeded player and also a member of the Davis cup squad, Lorne Main. The victory moves Macken into the finals against his brother who eliminated Henri Rochon in the Quebec Provincial Championships. In the photos above Macken sets for a backhand return while on the right Main has just driven one of his two-handed specialties.

Russians Spend Millions On Athletics

By TOM WHITNEY

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians, who make their first appearance this summer in the Olympic Games at Helsinki, have become a sports-minded people.

While exact figures aren't available, it's believed the Russians spend more than 1,000,000,000 rubles a year, that is more than $250,000,000 to promote their athletic programs.

In 1951 sports equipment produced by Soviet industry cost 2,000,000,000 rubles — more than $$500,000,000.

A large part of this money comes from Soviet trade unions, which support a far-flung array of sports clubs.

GOVERNMENT AIDS

The Soviet army also spends large sums for promotion of athletics on its own fields and the government appropriations for physical education in schools and universities are huge.

The supreme authority on all sports in the U.S.S.R., no matter where played, is the Sports Committee.

The full title of this important organization is "The All-Union Committee of Affairs of Physical Culture and Sport of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R." Its name makes clear it is a branch of the Soviet government and its appointments are approved by the powers that be.

The committee's present chairman is Mikolai Romanov, a man of wide experience in the organizaton and control of athletic activities. He and his committee sets the rules for all sports and organize all major competitions and meets.

CONTROL EVERYTHING

The committee has joint supervision with education authorities over education of trainers and coaches. It is the supreme authority on questions of registration of records.

However, in the field of Olympics organization the Soviet Olympics Committee is supreme. But the Olympics Committee of the U.S.S.R. is made up of sectional heads of the Sports Committee.

This body maintains and supervises referees, judges and other officials. It supervises all the important leagues, such as the soccer leagues and the hockey leagues.

Trade On Your Reputation In Mid-East Gem Business

By L. S. CHAKALES

KUWAIT (AP)—A man walked into the dusty little office of the Middle East Diamond Company the other day, laid a bundle of rupees worth $40,000 on the desk and said he wanted that amount in small diamonds.

He left his name and address and walked out. He didn't ask for a receipt. None was offered. That's the way the diamond trade is conducted in this oil-rich desert town on the Iranian Gulf, where a lot of diamonds are bought and sold.

Kingpin of the precious stone business in Kuwait is William de Mouche, 36, "Bill" to his friends and customers. In fact, Bill de Mouche, of Portland, Tex., is the kingfish in the gem trade in the whole Iranian Gulf and one of the biggest operators in diamonds in the entire Middle East.

TRADE ON REPUTATION

"Very little of the gem trade in the Middle East is recorded and receipts are seldom given," said Bill explaining that $40,000 deal. "You trade on your reputation."

Bill's gem business is an outgrowth of a hobby he acquired just before the war.

"I've been interested in precious stones for years," Bill said. "But I really didn't concentrate on them as a business until 1948. I've been out here in the Middle East for more than 10 years with the army and the oil companies. I was a private contractor in oil when I decided to quit dabbling in stones and give them all my time. I've done pretty well."

He wouldn't say how well. In fact he's like diamond merchants the world over. He won't divulge the source of his diamonds, nor to whom the big sales have been made.

"That's one of the reasons a lot of people come all the way to Kuwait to buy from me," he explained.

The biggest deal he ever made was on an 82 carat silver Cape diamond (canary stone in the trade).

He admitted the transaction involved around $250,000 but identified the buyer only as an "eastern potentate" and wouldn't say where the giant sparkler came from.

The prettiest stone I ever handled was one of 12 carats. It was a deep blue, pure stone that just blazed with fire. I just couldn't afford to keep it. I really was sad when I let it go for $40,000.

Bill relaxed his secrecy to say that particular beauty came originally from the Russian Czar's crown jewels. "Until I got it," Bill said, "it had been in the hands of a dealer."

Sees No End To Smuggling

OTTAWA (CP)—Revenue Minister McCann today said cigarette smuggling will exist as long as there is a difference in price between Canada and the United States.

Dr. McCann said in the Commons that there was a slight decrease in the number of cigarettes seized in May following a three-cent tax reduction in the budget brought down in April.

He said police seized 14,375,891 cigarettes during 1951. In the first five months of this year seizures totalled 7,052,000. Police seized 1,494,000 cigarettes in April and 1,319,160 in May.

Dr. McCann said in reply to J.M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) that seized cigarettes are distributed to veterans hospitals.

He said it is almost impossible to estimate the loss to the treasury from smuggling cigarettes One measure of the decline in smuggling might be the substantial increase in consumption and production of cigarettes.

Consumption of cut tobacco also increased substantially indicating more people were rolling their own.

Committed For Trial In Manslaughter Case

HAMILTON (CP)—Following the completion of a preliminary hearing in the case of Joseph Leblanc, 42, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Reginald Ouellet, of Waterdown, Magistrate John E. Robinson committed Leblanc to trial. Bail remains at two sureties of $2,000 each.

Frank Vine, Leblanc's counsel, argued that there was no evidence that anyone saw Leblanc strike the deceased. The magistrate was of the opinion there was evidence to warrant a commitment, it would be up to the grand jury to decide.

Ouellet died at his Waterdown home June 22, after complaining of illness and bleeding from the ear. Police inquiries led to the charge against Leblanc.

Fire Destroys Mill

Penmen Show How To Improve Handwriting

Handwriting teachers and penmanship experts from Canada and the United States, attending the third annual convention of the International Association of Master Penmen and Teachers of Handwriting, being held at Gil-Mar Lodge, Dunsford, this week, presented a demonstration of handwriting and penmanship at the Peterborough Business College Thursday night.

Herbert J. Walter of Chicago, top United States forgery expert, described the part he played in identifying handwriting exhibits at the Lindbergh murder and kidnapping trial and in the Al Capone case.

About 25 of the association members attending the convention took part in the demonstration of various handwriting techniques and outlined how handwriting skill can be developed in schools.

Two mayors attended the demonstration, Mayor Hugh Waddell extended greetings on behalf of the city, and Mayor Parker Bloser of Upper Arlington, a suburb of Columbus, Ohio, one of the convention delegates, demonstrated how old English script is written.

Part of the demonstration was broadcast over station CHEX.

The demonstration was held at the invitation of J. A. McKone, principal of the Peterborough Business College.

One of the local people interested in penmanship who attended the demonstration was Elmer Curtis who brought along his graduation certificate from the college, dated June 18, 1893.

Following the demonstration, Mr. and Mrs. McKone entertained the visiting penmen at their home.

Trade Unions Guard Interest Of State, Which Is Employer

By HUBERT HARRISON

VIENNA (Reuters)—The people's (Communist) democracies of eastern Europe have a new kind of trade union. It works just the opposite from the way labor unions the world over worked in the days before Communism.

In the west the function of a trade union is to watch the interests of the workers and seek better wages and better working conditions from the employers.

In the peoples' democracies, however, trade unions guard the interests of the state, which is the employer, and force the workers to work harder.

The "new" functions of trade union leaders and officials was highlighted in a recent article on "the important task of the trade union in the fight for the consolidation of work discipline," published in the Hungarian trade union organ "Nepszava."

MUST SET EXAMPLE

"The trade unions which are the schools of Communism must also become the schools of socialist work discipline," the newspaper wrote. "It is a fundamental task of trade union organizations to propogate the spirit that inefficient work and unwarranted absenteeism bring shame."

"Trade union officials must set an example," it said. "They must explain and convince those who are slack as regards work discipline, who hinder work by unauthorized absenteeism, by late arrival, by not working their hardest during work hours, by leaving work arbitrarily, or by doing bad quality work that they are thereby damaging the country and their own families."

Canadian Troops In Korea At Last Get Summer Gear

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP) —It's soon going to be a little cooler around the legs for the Canadian soldier in Korea.

Supplies of Canadian Army summer pants have arrived finally and soon will be issued throughout the brigade.

The summer gear the troops have been wearing since the latter part of May has been half United States-made, half Canadian. The bush jackets were Canadian, the pants American.

But the 10,000 pairs of pants incredulous officers discovered when the shipments arrived not only were American, they were winter pants—the light windproof variety chemically treated to retain body warmth.

DOFFED BATTLEDRESS

While cable exchanges flowed between Korea and Ottawa, the brigade doffed its battledress and, for the time being, wore the warmth-retaining pants.

Senior officers here are reluctant to discuss how the U.S. pants came to be sent. It is known that they were purchased in the United States for the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps and that they were sent to the central ordnance depot, from where they were trans-shipped to Korea.

One senior officer said only: "All we can say here is that Ottawa was told, and when it was told, Ottawa moved fast."

The natty bush jackets have been the sensation and envy of the theatre, together with the dark olive-colored summer shirts the Canadians are wearing.

Meanwhile, the War Office in London has been busy on next winter's clothing for British elements of the Commonwealth Division.

Several Canadian wrinkles have been adopted.

British troops next winter will wear Canadian-type string vests of cellular cotton. Their parkas will be cut more along Canadian lines. And their sleeping bags, while not of nylon, will embrace the Canadian idea of an inner washable bag that may be removed for cleaning.

Lawyer Found Guilty In Baby Ring Case

NEW YORK (AP)—Marcus Siegel, 53-year-old lawyer accused of heading a black market baby adoption ring, last night was found guilty of inducing others to commit perjury and illegally placing a child for adoption.

Siegel was found innocent of 16 other counts—three charges of forgery and 13 charges of subornation of perjury. Two other charges were dropped earlier.

He was continued under bail until sentencing. Under the verdict he could get a maximum of six years in prison and a $5,500 fine.

Siegel was accused of masterminding a baby adoption ring in which babies were taken from unwed mothers and sold for fees up to $4,500.

Mild Invasion Of Raccoons Evident In Suburban Toronto

Written for The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Black bears, a grizzly bear on occasion, moose, red deer and elk are more or less taken for granted as visitors in Banff, Jasper and other Rocky Mountain centres. After all Canada is their native land and the creatures of the wilderness, theoretically at least, have a right to wander at will.

But even Banff folk have been more than a trifle surprised recently to see a coyote squatting patiently by a roadside near town, and at the same old stand, awaiting motorists who produce chocolate bars, cookies, and other delicacies. This self-elected member of the clan of mendicant bears declines to let bruin monopolize the business. He has won a lot of friends by his gnetleness.

INVASION BY RACCOONS

Suburban Toronto is currently seeing a mild invasion by racoons. One of the ring-tailed fellows visited the writer's garden and goldfish pool the other day. Deserted by their mother, 4 baby raccoons were found atop a cold stove in a gospel hall. Residents of some parts of suburban Rosedale and Hogg's Hollow, report raccoons as "common." Garbage cans in other suburbs have been raided by the animals.

Happiest of all the memories of this Toronto observer of wildlife was a magnificent golden eagle, flying low over a valley just beyond the city limits. Even in the Canadian Rockies where such a sight is not uncommon, the close-up view has always eluded observation to some extent. But the Toronto visitor, flying west, was flying so low that the very hues of the sunset, reflected on the eagle's plumage, could be seen plainly without binoculars.

A CANADIAN ROSE

There is a Canadian rosebush that grows so near to tree size that it may reach a height of 12 feet at its tip and at shoulder height it may be close to 15 feet wide. A conservative estimate estimate would be that it bears 500 creamy-yellow roses of exquisite fragrance.

It is a hybrid-rugosa rose named Agnes. It is a creation of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, and because of its extreme hardiness and pest-resistant qualities should be more widely known and more widely planted.

Nor should this planting be confined to gardens, for it is admirably adapted for naturalizing at the fringe of farm woodlots or for roadside decoration. It has been so successfully used to adorn sections of the beautiful river road, bordering the Niagara river from Niagara-on-the-Lake to Fort Erie.

Just how far its range could be extended across Canada has not been learned. Inquiries to the experimental farm receive prompt and courteous attention.

Every true naturalist is interested in making the roadside scene in Canada more attractive. Hybrid-rugosa Agnes, with its glorious, if brief period of bloom and fragrance, is one of the better ways of acheiving that aim.

water, or mother shows him how to take a deep breath, duck and grasp both ankles in the Jelly Fish Float.

What the child needs most of all is to overcome his fears and feel the water is a friend not a foe. Once he learns to float with his face down, one parent can "send" him to the other through a short space in the water. Then he can try to swim this small distance, by dog paddle, or any other stroke he finds easiest. The space between the parents can be gradually lengthenend as the child becomes more expert. Then on one Red Letter Day he will exclaim, "I can swim Now!"

Aircraft Sinks In Lake 2 Fliers Swim To Shore

BREAKS RECORD—The new super-liner United States set a record for her Atlantic crossing, making the trip in three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes. This was 10 hours and two minutes faster than the Queen Mary. The 1699 passengers included Margaret Truman.

New US Liner Smashes Record

ABOARD THE S.S. UNITED STATES AT SEA (AP)—The sleek new super-liner United States completed her maiden Atlantic crossing today in a record three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes, copping the trans-Atlantic speed ribbon for the U.S. for the first time in 83 years. The first run of the U.S. merchant fleet's pride was 10 hours and two minutes faster than the record set 14 years ago by the British Cunard liner Queen Mary. The United States raced past the finish line—Bishop's Rock off the English coast—at 5:16 a.m. G.M.T., 1:16 a.m. E.D.T. as a dawn gale of 60-knot winds whipped her. The ship's band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," and her 1,700 passengers capped their champagne with a cheer. The wind and rain kept most of them off the open decks, however.

AVERAGED 35.59 HOURS

The 53,000-ton United States averaged 35.59 knots—about .41 land miles an hour—on the 2,938-mile crossing from Ambrose Light outside New York. The Queen Mary had averaged 31.69 knots on her record trip.

Among the excited passengers this morning was Margaret Truman, who stood on the captain's bridge.

GOING TO FRANCE

The passengers were to be at Le Havre, France, for lunch. The ship will call tomorrow at Southampton before the return trip to New York.

"I feel like a pitcher who has pitched a no-hit game," the ship's jubilant captain, 55-year-old Commodore Harry Manning, told reporters.

Helicopter Rescues Surveyor Nurse Parachutes Into Tree

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 20-year-old surveyor who lay injured on a mountain top for 52 hours in the wild Pitt Lake region 40 miles northeast of here was rescued by helicopter yesterday. A nursing sister, one of three persons who parachuted to the scene Saturday night, was suspended 100 feet above the ground for three hours when her chute caught in a tree.

Ken Northcote and Joe Chamberlain were working on Mount Coquitlam for the British Columbia Geological Survey Friday when Northcote missed his footing and plunged down a cliff, suffering a possible fractured back.

He lay helpless at the 2,800-foot level of the mountain.

Chamberlain stayed with Northcote throughout Friday night. At dawn, he began to hike out.

Chamberlain walked from 4 a.m. until 1 p.m. when he reached civilization and notified the R.C.A.F. The air force picked up Chamberlain and flew over the area, pinpointing the spot where Northcote lay. On his return, he collapsed from exhaustion.

Nursing Sister Grace Woodman hit the silk with Sqdn. Ldr Dick Wynn, an R.C.A.F. doctor, and Sgt. Red Jamieson, a veteran of rescue jumps.

Wynn and Jamieson landed safely and scrambled through the bush and over rocks until they found Northcote an hour later.

NURSE FREES SELF

But Miss Woodman landed in a tree and was suspended 100 feet above the ground. She worked frantically to free herself. After banging for three hours, she made a rope from the shrouds of her chute and slid to the ground, suffering hand burns.

The R.C.A.F. called on the United States Coast Guard for help and they sent a helicopter to Vancouver.

The helicopter landed half a mile from the camp. It took four hours for Wynn and Jamieson to carry Northcote on a stretcher from the camp to the helicopter.

It was nearly 12 hours before Miss Woodman made contact with the other members of the party, lugging 60 pounds of medical equipment.

Chamberlain was open-mouthed at her exploit.

"I was in the plane when they jumped," he said. "That nurse sure had a lot of nerve to jump into that country. I wouldn't like to try it. I didn't do anything much. But that nurse, I was glad to hear she got out O.K."

Feared Voodoo Witness Silent

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Murder charges were filed today against a woman who, police said, slew her husband and then kept the only witness silent for six years through "voodoo" and "magic powers."

Mrs. Cora Lee Nash, 53, was charged after Joe Nash, 56, told authorities he watched while she felled Luther Nash with two blasts from a shotgun in a swamp area Sept. 6, 1946.

"Then she put me under a spell and made me bury him," police quoted Joe Nash as saying.

His testimony sent officers early today into the swampland behind the Nash home. At a spot pointed out by Nash, police dug up one bone which they sent to the state medical examiner.

Police said Mrs. Nash held the White Oak community virtually "under a spell" and that residents thought she had voodoo powers which came from "magic roots" in her possession.

Bad Storm Strikes South Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP)—A storm damaged crops and buildings and disrupted communications over a wide area in southeastern Saskatchewan and southwestern Manitoba Saturday. Winds up to 80 miles an hour were accompanied by rain and hail.

At Estevan the wind wrecked the grandstand at Nicholson Field, ripped a portion of the roof from the railway station and shunted a railway car through three switches onto the main track of the Soo Line.

At Oxbow, the roof was torn from the Alexander Hotel. Heavy rain and hail flattened crops at Carlyle, 45 miles east of Estevan.

Cite Canada Good Example

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Chamber of Commerce yesterday cited Canada as an example of how a country, without price control, can curb inflation, balance its budget and reduce its debt.

The chamber issued a report which compared the economies of Canada and the United States.

It said Canada, between 1946 and 1952, cut its net national debt 17 per cent to $11,000,000,000. This compares with the United States debt of $260,000,000,000.

Higher sales and excise taxes, credit restrictions and increased interest rates were called the pay-as-you-go tools with which Canada curbed inflation "in spite of a 50-per-cent rise in government expenditures since Korea."

At the same time, the chamber contended, "the United States has been hampered with all the uncertainties, confusion, costly red-tape procedures, discriminations and labor strike generated by price and so-called wage controls."

Plan Inquiry To Begin Immediately

Know No Reason For Outbreak By Reformatory Men

GUELPH (CP)—An investigation will be started immediately to determine the causes and ringleaders of the 12-hour riot which rocked the Ontario Reformatory here this weekend, Reforms Minister Foote said yesterday.

At a press conference Mr. Foote said: "This reformatory is one of the finest in the country. I don't see any reason for the rioting."

A prison chaplain and other officials agreed with the Minister when he added that the province was forced to place too many men at Guelph who were too tough for a rehabilitation school of this nature.

"This is the best living some of these men have ever had," Mr. Foote said, showing reporters menus providing macaroni, soup, beefsteak pie, mashed potatoes, gravy, rice pudding, tea and bread for dinner.

Murray Gaw, a social worker-student from Toronto, was just finishing up six weeks study at Guelph when the riot started.

"My general impression," he said, "is that discipline has been very low. I have had the feeling something was going to happen ever since I arrived. Other members of the staff have felt it too. We just didn't know when it would be.

"The inmates have been making a farce of the rules and staff. The men have no fear of being put on charge."

Slo-Mo-Shun Cracks Record

SEATTLE (AP)—Stanley Sayres today whipped the screaming Slo-Mo-Shun IV to a world hydroplane speed record of 178.497 miles an hour. It cracked the mark set two years ago by more than 18 miles an hour.

It was the fastest man ever has travelled on water.

Lake Washington's narrow east channel was choppy from a sharp breeze as Sayres came out at 8 a. m. PDT (11 a. m. EDT) for his try at the record.

With the wind at his back, he ran the first mile of the test in 185.567 miles an hour. On the return against the wind he was clocked in 171.428.

The average for the two runs was taken as the official time.

Simmons And Raschi All-Star Pitchers

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Curt Simmons for the National League and Vic Raschi for the American League will be the opposing pitchers in the 19th annual All-Star baseball game at Shibe Park tomorrow.

Simmons, fireballing left-hander of Philadelphia Phillies who returned to major league baseball from the armed services at the start of the 1952 season, has a record of seven victories and two defeats. He has hurled four shutouts.

Raschi, bellwether of the world champion New York Yankees' pitching staff, has an eight-win and two-defeat record to carry into the dream game.

DIES SUDDENLY — Senator Gordon Fogo, president of the National Liberal Federation, died suddenly in a Quebec hotel where he has been attending business meetings.

Senator Fogo Dies Suddenly At Conference

MURRAY BAY, Que. (CP)—Senator J. Gordon Fogo, 55, top-flight steel executive and president of the National Liberal Federation, died here last night.

He died shortly after 11 p. m. at a resort hotel where he had been attending business meetings.

The cause of death was not immediately known, but Senator Fogo for several years had been suffering from a heart condition which sent him to hospital for prolonged rest on several occasions.

NATIVE OF HALIFAX

A native of Halifax and vice-president of Algoma Steel Corporation, Senator Fogo would have been 56 on Wednesday.

He became president of the National Liberal Federation in 1945, after years of efficient organizational work within the Liberal party, and was appointed to the Senate four years later.

Senator Fogo maintained an office in Ottawa where he acted as a liaison man between Algoma Steel and the federal government, specializing in labor questions.

He went to Ottawa from Halifax first in 1942 as associate co-ordinator of controls in the wartime Munitions Department. He later became one of the government's ace trouble shooters on the production side of the war effort, specializing here, too, on labor problems.

Senator Fogo was born at Halifax July 9, 1896, the son of Alice Hanway and Adam G. Fogo, a locomotive engineer on the old Inter-Colonial Railway. The family later moved to Sydney, N. S., and young Fogo left school at the age of 16 to work in the big Dominion Steel plant there.

He later finished his schooling, attended Provincial Normal School and began teaching in the Nova Scotia mining town of Stellarton. In 1919, he took up the study of law and eventually went into partnership with James L. Ralston, later to become federal defence minister.

SERVED OVERSEAS

During the First World War, Senator Fogo served overseas for three years with the 2nd Canadian Siege Battery.

For a time during the early 1920s he worked as a reporter and editor on the Sydney Post to help pay his way through Dalhousie university.

Chinese Halt U.N. Advance

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—A large Allied raiding party, supported by tanks and flame throwers, was beaten back early today by Chinese entrenched in log pillboxes two miles east of the Panmunjom truce-talks site.

Associated Press correspondent Sam Summerlin at the western front reported the United Nations infantrymen jumped off against three Red outposts at 10 o'clock last night under a brilliant moonlit sky.

Summerlin said the raiders were pinned down by Communist mortar shells and grenades at the first outpost. Two squads clawed to the top of the Chinese hill outpost but their flame-throwers and rockets failed to dislodge the Reds.

On the flanks of the attack, flame-throwing tanks and infantry hit Red positions to prevent Communist reinforcements from moving up.

A few hours after midnight, Allied reinforcements rushed in and helped the embattled troops withdraw.

At dawn Allied planes pounded the Red outposts while the tired infantrymen and tankers fell back.

Lumberman Hauls Out Plane Later

Say Aircraft Stalled While Pair Taking Photographs

A Piper Cub aircraft, equipped with floats, crashed into Harcourt Lake late Saturday and two Peterborough fliers had to swim to safety.

The $2,000 aircraft, reportedly piloted by Ken Wyatt of River Rd. S. and with Douglas MacPherson of 168 Brock St, stalled as the two were taking aerial photographs. Wyatt managed to crash land near the shore of the lake but the aircraft broke up as it was later hauled out of the water by a nearby lumberman.

Sunday morning the plane was hauled by truck from Harcourt Lake some miles to Orillia where it was left on the grounds of the Orillia Air Services Ltd.

Manager Stirk of Orillia Air Services said that the airbase was closed but two student pilots who were about helped the men unload the truck.

"I don't know who brought it there, who it belongs to, or the names of those who helped unload it," he said. The plane is completely wrecked, he declared, and he is awaiting instructions on what to do with it.

"Wings, fuselage and pontoons are badly damaged. It looks like a complete write-off to me."

Department of Transport officials in Toronto have not been notified of the crash and Tuesday they are sending up Terry Sanderson, inspector of civil aviation to investigate.

An era of mystery surrounds the whole flight and the subsequent crackup.

The light plane is owned by Richard Elmhirst of Asphodel township. He moors it out on Rice Lake and has it for is own personal use and occasionally rents it to small airlines companies.

The reconstructed story of what happened is this:

Wyatt and MacPherson, who form the newly-organized Peterborough Aerial Photography Co., borrowed or rented the float-plane from Elmhirst on Saturday. Presumably they were on an aerial-photography job.

Over Harcourt Lake, located in Haliburton County, the engine stalled as they skimmed over the

Texan Hopes To Find Mother

TORONTO (CP)—Robert Keith Gordon of Fort Worth, Texas, hopes that perhaps in a small town near Toronto he may meet his mother whom he has travelled 3,500 miles to find.

The 35-year-old air force procurement employee began his search early this year, shortly after the death of his foster mother.

Soon after his birth in a Chicago hospital, Mr. Gordon was adopted by a Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fravel Gordon who moved to San Antonio, Tex.

His birth certificate shows he was born June 13, 1917, and gives his father's name, Robert Frank Fairbarn.

Mr. Gordon believes his mother went to Chicago to have the baby delivered by her family doctor, Dr. S. Walkowisk. His parents were believed to have lived in a small town near Toronto and operated a store there.

Hold-Out Rioters See 50 Policemen Take Away Food

GUELPH (CP) —Without food or weapons, about 450 Ontario reformatory rioters moved sullenly about in two outdoor compounds today while police and guards watched and waited. Officials at the big prison, scene of a $200,000 riot during the weekend, said the men will probably remain in the two yards until hunger and the burning sun dampen their desire to make trouble.

Shortly before noon, 50 shotgun - wielding provincial police officers formed a flying wedge to enable police and guards to retrieve looted cans of food from one of the yards in which 250 of the rebellious prisoners were massed. A similar operation was carried out later to make sure about 200 men in the other yard had no food for a defiant stand.

WILD MELEE

Much of the bedding, chairs and other furnishings that would normally be used by the 450 men inside the prison was destroyed in the wild melee Saturday night and early Sunday.

Reform Institutions Minister Foote said today that the 931 prisoners, most of whom took part in the destructive flare-up, will have to repair the damage themselves. Hundreds of windows must be replaced, scores of cell doors repaired. In some sections, cell-block living quarters were made temporarily uninhabitable.

(A Toronto paper says today in a dispatch from Guelph that an estimated 600 of the 931 prisoners participated in the riot, not all of their own volition. It says one prisoner, who gave signs of bolting a mob, was picked up and hurled into the flaming kitchen and a guard said the rioters were ready to roast the man alive "as an example of what rats would get.")

Guards were quoted as blaming "mollycoddling" of prisoners for the outbreak. They said removal of the threat of the strap, now applied only when sanctioned personally by the minister, has ended effective discipline.

Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said late Sunday two men in one of the compounds offered to give him the names of all ringleaders of the rioting gangs.

KNOW LEADERS' NAMES

"I told them to go back," he said. "They only wanted protection for themselves. We know already the names of 18 gang-leaders in both compounds and we know the role each has played."

One leader was reported by other sources to be a man who cannot read or write.

Some of the prisoners were heard to boast: "This is the biggest darn riot in Canada." Most of the rioters had read newspaper ac-

Second Set Of Quads Born In New England

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—Quadruplets—three girls and a boy—were born early today to 35-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Pinkham, wife of a Standish carpenter, in the Osteopathic hospital here.

Dr. Duncan Morse, head of the obstetrical department of the hospital, who delivered the quads, said the condition of Mrs. Pinkham and the babies is "very good."

The babies, born within 45 minutes, were placed in incubators.

The first one, born at 3:31 a.m., was a four-pound, one-ounce girl. The second a boy born 36 minutes later, weighed four pounds, 15 ounces. The other two babies were delivered at 4:12 and 4:16 a. m. and weighed four pounds, and three pounds, 14 ounces, respectively.

The couple has one other child.

This was the second set of quads born in New England within 19 days.

Quadruplets—three boys and a girl—were born to Mrs. Marion L. Manning, 27, at South Shore hospital, Weymouth, Mass., on June 18.

The Manning quads are still at the hospital and are reported in "good condition."

Mossadegh Gets Premiership

TEHRAN (AP)—Iran's legislators yesterday overwhelmingly approved the reappointment of Premier Mossadegh to another term at the helm of this crisis-ridden country of virtually padlocked oil riches.

The under-strength Majlis—lower house of parliament—with only 76 of its normal 130 seats filled, gave the fiery Nationalist leader a majority of 52 votes. Two other votes went to former Premier Ahmed Qavam and another to the former Iranian Ambassador to Washington, Nasrollah Entezam. There were 10 abstensions and 11 deputies were absent.

Backers of the aged and ailing premier hailed the secret vote as a mandate from the people to continue Mossadegh's policies, under which he pushed through nationalization of the vast oil resources once operated by British authorities.

Mossadegh's opponents were stunned by the big majority he had chalked up. They are bitterly opposed to his policies on the grounds that his failure to settle the oil dispute with Britain had resulted in almost total loss of the huge oil revenues which once supported the country. They had hoped the anti-Mossadegh forces in parliament would put up a better fight.

According to the tradition accompanying the opening of a new parliament, Mossadegh resigned Saturday. But he made a strong appeal in a country-wide radio address for reappointment. He was not in the Majlis when the vote was taken. The Majlis last week declared itself formally open for business despite the fact that not all the seats were filled in the national elections which started last December.

Hear Rebel Movement In De Gaulle's Forces

PARIS (Reuters)—A rebel movement was reported Saturday in Gen. Charles de Gaulle's political party—Rassemblement du Peuple Francais.

Leaders of a rebel group of Gaullist deputies announced that "an important number" of their men had decided to quit De Gaulle's rightist party.

The statement came after a private meeting of about 20 Gaullist deputies and senators who said they were dissatisfied with a decision by the party Congress that all deputies must toe the party line in important National Assembly votes.

It was believed some 30 to 35 deputies out of 115, and some 20 Senators out of 70, probably would resign and form a new group in Parliament in the near future.

Charges Spy Ring In Canada Reporting On Immigrants

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—A Ukrainian priest told his congregation yesterday that Canada has a Red spy ring which watches Ukrainian immigrants and reports on their activities.

Canon Emmanuel Korduba said the ring's headquarters are in Toronto.

Because of this ring, he said, it won't do any good for Ukrainians to go to Canada or the United States to try to get away from spies watching their activities in Britain.

He said Ukrainian refugees now in England, and others who have fled from Russian-occupied territories, appear to be under surveillance by persons well posted on their activities. Many refugees had received letters urging them to return behind the Iron Curtain.

In Ottawa, an official source said it was likely Canon Korduba's statement applied to the Association of United Ukrainian-Canadians, a Communist-dominated group with headquarters in Toronto.

It was understood here government authorities have received complaints about the A.U.U.C.'s activities from displaced persons arriving in Canada from the Ukraine in the last few years.

It was believed the anti-subversive "special branch" of the R.C.M.P. has this group under observation along with other Communist-influenced bodies.

On Oct. 8, 1950, a home-made gunpowder bomb, filled with spikes, was exploded in the Ukrainian Labor Temple at Toronto, sending nine persons to hospital. At that time officials of the United Ukrainian Association blamed a Fascist organization of former Ukrainian S.S. members for the blast. Other spokesmen suggested that Communist agitators who wished to discredit Ukrainian displaced persons were responsible.

Police questioned more than a dozen persons but, despite a reward offer of $1,500, no arrests were made and no clues uncovered.

Immigrant Tosses Machine At Staff

TORONTO (CP)—Police today arrested Mikalag Czuchajda, 28-year-old jobless immigrant. They said he tossed a wastepaper-basket and an adding-machine at employees in a downtown office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Police said Czuchajda was turned away from one lineup after a short interview with employment officer Roy Gregory. He then was said to have stepped into a second lineup. Gregory saw him and told the officer in charge not to bother with the man as he had just been turned away.

Police said Czuchajda then picked up an adding-machine and made a motion toward Gregory who ducked behind a counter.

Expect Fight At Convention

CHICAGO (CP)—Eisenhower forces faced today's Republican party convention with prayers for a dramatic shift in the political winds.

Nothing less than a sensational swing of pledged delegates could make Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower the Republican Presidential candidate.

A convention floor fight looking toward such a shift was in the making and was expected to break out soon after the convention got going at noon.

Senator Robert Taft, cool, smiling and confident, yesterday told reporters that he has the necessary pledged delegates to win—604—and some to spare.

Gen. Eisenhower was on record as not knowing how many delegates were pledged to him, and apparently not caring. He seemed to be depending on a swing of sentiment created by resentment at what he describes as old Republican machine tactics to keep delegates supporting him out of the voting positions in the convention hall.

Shooting War In India Just Like Movie

NEW DELHI, India (CP)—The shooting war going on in the desert wilderness of western India might raise the envy of any Hollywood movie writer.

The war is the government's campaign against India's Dacoits—blood-thirsty, hard-riding bandits who for decades have infested the former princely states of Jodhpur, Jaipur and Bikaner.

The war goes on before a backdrop of camel-riding gangsters, night raids, murders, kidnapped women, and straight-shooting policemen.

BRING THEM IN DEAD

Twice recently Prime Minister Nehru commended police heroes in the struggle, determined men who followed their quarry for days and finally brought them in dead.

The last commendation came after police trapped and killed bandit leader Pabudan Singh and five of his gang after a six-hour gun battle. The police fired more than 700 bullets into the bandit hideout, and faced more than 400 shots in reply before all six Dacoits died.

The anti-crime war drove India's most famous Dacoit across the border and into a Pakistan prison cell. He is Bhupat, sometimes called Robin Hood of Saurashtra state. India placed a reward equal to $10,500 on his head and jailed several minor princes for assisting him and his gang.

Modern police methods play a minor part in the desert warfare. Pursued and pursuers alike ride camels or horses. Motor vehicles find it hard going in the deserts. Occasionally airplanes help locate fleeing gangs.

Both fear and hero worship have figured in the successful operations of such bandits as the now dead Pabudan Singh. For more than 16 years he led a band of outlaws through the Rajasthan deserts, hiding with friendly villages whenever pursuit became too close.

Beautiful women have been a normal target of these raiders. Many a dark-haired dark-eyed Rajasthan beauty has been carried away on the camel of some bandit leader.

140 Prisoners Stage Riot At Jackson

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—One convict was shot last night as 140-odd rioting prisoners grabbed two guards as hostages, threatening them with death, and wrecked their cell block at [illegible] prison.

It was in this same prison the world's largest, that a bloody mutiny and riot in April, brought death to one convict, wounds to eight others and close to $1,000,000 worth of damage. The leaders of the new outbreak were among those being disciplined by solitary confinement for their participation in the April rioting.

ACCEDE TO DEMANDS

Now as then, the rioters had complaints. And again, prison authorities agreed to these demands.

Both hostage guards were freed unharmed, but only after state police troopers had been withdrawn from the cell block. The rioters shouted they'd throw the guards off a fifth-storey cellblock balcony to a concrete floor below if they weren't.

In their first move into the cellblocks of shouting, cursing, knife- and club-wielding convicts, the troopers fired an estimated five to 10 shotgun blasts.

Convict Carl Bradford, 24, serving one to four years for theft, fell wounded.

The new rioting followed complaints from prisoners held on two lower floors of cellblock 9 since April 21, without dining room, yard exercising or visitor privileges.

PRIVILEGES RESTORED

Deputy Governor Seymour Gilman promised the mutinous group that its members would have all three privileges restored immediately, but that they would eat and exercise in small groups at first.

The rioting which lasted two hours and 35-minutes, climaxed disturbances throughout cellblock 9 during the day. Finally, some convicts on the first two floors beat their bars loose at the bottom and pried them back with chairs or other furniture to make openings.

Rushing out, they grabbed guard Sgt. Burt Myron, 57, and guard William Blair, 34. They held them there until Myron was sent down to convey the prisoners' demands to Gilman.

Canadian Dollar Moves Closer To All-Time High

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar, moving closer to its all-time high, today was quoted at $1.04⅛ in terms of U.S. currency.

The dollar, which has been rising steadily since last year, was quoted by foreign-exchange dealers as 9-16 cents higher than its close in New York last Thursday. The market was closed Friday and Saturday. The all-time high of the Canadian dollar is $1.05 which it held briefly during a period of fluctuation in 1933.

Bankers generally agree that the climb of the Canadian dollar is the result of heavy movement of capital from the United States into Canada.

33 Fatalities Over Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Week-end accidents claimed 33 lives in Eastern Canada. Nineteen persons were drowned as citizens sought relief from the heat in rivers and lakes.

A Canadian Press survey today showed that Ontario had 13 deaths, Quebec 9, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia each 5, and Prince Edward Island 1.

It was the blackest non-holiday weekend this summer, overshadowed only by the 100 deaths recorded during the four-day Dominion Day weekend.

Traffic accidents took 10 lives. This was one of the first week-ends when drownings outnumbered traffic fatalities.

7 ONTARIANS DROWNED

L. A. Taschereau Ex-Premier Dies In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—Louis-Alexandre Taschereau, 85, Quebec premier between 1920 and 1936, died here yesterday.

A key figure in the province's modern political history, the former Liberal Premier was the descendant of one of Canada's most distinguished families and held the premiership 16 years less a month, a record in Quebec.

His three sons, two daughters and their families were at his bedside when death came. They had kept constant vigil since his health waned following the death of his 81-year-old wife Jan. 24.

FAMILY AT BEDSIDE

At the bedside were Robert, justice of the Supreme Court of Canada; Paul, Quebec lawyer and Charles, Montreal designer; and his daughters, Mrs. Cortland Fages and Mrs. Louis Gelinas of Montreal.

The funeral will be held here Wednesday.

During Mr. Taschereau's political career he sat 36 years in the provincial Legislature for Montmorency riding and held the portfolios of Public Works, Provincial Treasurer and Attorney General.

His administration—from the booming years after the First World War to the difficult depression period—sponsored the bulk of legislation which now stands in Quebec's statute books. Among his achievements were the province's basic farm, mining and liquor laws, the Press Act, organization of Quebec's coast road network, establishment of settlers and the opening of northwestern areas.

RETIRED IN 1936

Although he retired from politics following defeat in 1936 at the hands of Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale party, Mr. Taschereau continued to keep an eye on what went on at the Legislature, near his home on tree-lined Grande Allee.

He died when the campaign was hottest in preparation for the July 16 elections with the Union Nationale opposing a revamped Liberal party.

Before becoming bed-ridden, he continued his law practice and often met Premier Duplessis near the Parliament Buildings as they went to their respective offices. They always exchanged greetings and sometimes stopped to chat.

Son of a justice of the Supreme Court and of the daughter of a Quebec Lieutenant-Governor. Mr. Taschereau was the ninth of 11 children.

ST. LAURENT MOURNS

The name Taschereau runs prominently through Canadian history since the days of the French regime and the former Premier was praised by Prime Minister St. Laurent for adding laurels to an old and well-known family.

Mr. St. Laurent heard of Mr. Taschereau's death at his summer home at St. Patrick, Que., and said it was "a personal grief."

Stock Market Prices Show Little Trend

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market prices showed little trend today in slow early afternoon dealings.

Activity dwindled from a steady opening. Volume for the first three hours was 872,000 shares.

Constructions and refining oils posted a scattered list of fractional advances to form industrials' strongest sections. Papers, utilities and banks held gains and losses in balance but agricultures, steels, liquors and manufacturing companies dipped.

Western oil leaders were steady but lower-priced issues posted a broad list of penny losses. Anglo-Canadian, Canada Southern, Central Explorers, Husky and New Concord eased.

Base metals were mixed East Sullivan, Falconbridge, New Calumet, Quemont and United Keno Hill strengthened while Barvue, Consolidated Smelters and Hudson Bay weakened.

Senior golds were firm. Bralorne, Malartic and Teck Hughes showed strength. Junior producers and prospects held gains and losses in balance but holding companies sagged.

The exchange's 1 p. m. indices showed industrials down .44 at 319.54, golds up .48 at 91.62, base metals up .20 at 187.52 and western oils down .01 at 137.17.

A lumberman was later hired to haul the wreckage of the plane out of the water. And it was trucked to Orillia next day where it has since lain unclaimed.

Both O.P.P. Corporal Archie Grayling of Bancroft or Constable Al Edwards of Haliburton said the crash had not been reported to them.

counts of recent prison riots in Montreal and Jackson, Mich., and, when questioned, they insisted their night's work constituted the worst jail riot in Canadian penal history.

Today's raid to remove the rioters' food supplies was swift and effective. Before the police went into the yard Superintendent Gerald Wright ordered the unruly [illegible] to line up. The prisoners formed four ranks and put their hands behind their necks in the fashion of prisoners-of-war.

The superintendent warned that any man who moved toward the centre of the yard would be fired on from the rooftops by guards with riot guns.

PRISONERS QUIET

A group of sullen, weary prisoners remained in the "B" yard but they were quiet.

As police and guards regained control in "C" yard, they moved out anything that could be used as a weapon.

Down came the makeshift tents, fashioned from timbers and blankets, which the rebellious prisoners had erected. Cans and jars of jam and fruit were carried away.

About the same time, a start was made on cleaning up the prison and repairing riot damage, estimated by officials at upwards of 200,000.

The violence started about 8 p.m. Saturday.

The snarling, cursing prisoners wielded knives, wrenches and meat cleavers, surging through dormitories, kitchens and cell blocks to smash furniture and windows, wreck plumbing and set fire to stores of food and clothing.

Last night armed guards watched from the tops of walls and through some of the thousands of broken windows while several hundred prisoners slept in the open. They were herded in the two compounds of the prison.

Peace was restored early Sunday after a hastily-mobilized force of guards and police charged into the convict ranks with tear-gas guns, fire hoses, clubs and fists. One guard and one prisoner were reported seriously injured while scores on both sides were cut and bruised.

Apparently no prisoners escaped. The prisoners couldn't get any of the outside doors open.

NO EXPLANATION

There was no immediate explanation for the outbreak. Officials said the food was good and the men had no known complaints.

Water was doled out to the prisoners late Sunday but there was no ration of food. The situation lent ironic emphasis to comment of Superintendent Gerald Wright that the prisoners were hurting no one but themselves. They had destroyed their bedding and enough food for 3,500 meals, the institution's daily average.

At one stage of the battle the convicts gained complete control of the building. They armed themselves with knives and cleavers seized from the kitchen, pipes from demolished plumbing fixtures, scissors, lengths of wood and bricks.

In Sunday's early dawn, with streams of water from fire hoses playing on the milling rioters in the central courtyard, one prisoner yelled: "We're packing it up. Turn off the water."

Superintendent Wright shouted back: "All right. Put your hands behind your heads and line up."

That signalled the end of the riot.

STARTED SATURDAY NIGHT

It began about 8 p.m. Saturday as the prisoners were returning from evening exercises.

To reach their cell blocks they had to cross the visiting room where Guard Ted Brett was stationed. Before he could move the men were upon him.

"I could see there was something wrong when they came in," said George Lillice, turnkey guarding the main door. "Brett was in between two of the visiting tables. The leaders in the column seemed to slow down, then they suddenly surrounded Ted. I saw a chair raised, then it came down on his head. He fought his way toward me. They hit him three more times before I was able to slip him through the door to safety."

Guards said the screaming prisoners caught up others who showed no inclination to riot. Some 600 swept into the main dormitory building. Guards scrambled to safety but from one of them the rioters snatched a key that unlocked every main door inside the dormitory.

Chairs, toilet bowls and windows were smashed, furnishings destroyed, piles of mattresses and blankets set afire.

KITCHEN WRECKED

Scores of other rioters broke into the kitchens to cause more of the damage that officials called fantastic. For Sunday lunch they were to have had pork chops, for supper, picnic ham. Chops by the hundreds littered a corridor floor. Hams worth $25 apiece floated in the water from the fire hoses. Great steam tables and stoves were overturned and battered. Canned goods were taken out to be used as missiles.

Superintendent Wright took 26 guards and went to the rescue of six of his men who were trapped, four of them in the kitchen.

He caught a blow from a pipe wrench hurled through a window and later discovered a piece of glass had cut through his shoe and nipped off the tip of his big toe.

Harold Whiteside, 40-year-old guard, fell in the onslaught and was treated at hospital for concussion, head and face cuts. The squad released Guard Frank Thornton, who had locked himself in a corridor in the east cell block.

The four in the kitchen and another in the western wing of the prison were freed without much difficulty. The latter, F.A. Lamb, trapped by the onrush of convicts through the wing, was reported hidden by older prisoners, who disguised him as one of themselves.

REINFORCEMENTS RUSH IN

Meanwhile 65 Ontario Provincial Police and 20 Guelph policemen as well as firemen had reached the reformatory on the eastern outskirts of Guelph. By midnight the situation had quieted down and at 2 a.m. officials said the demonstration was "practically over."

In a previous riot in 1937 at the 1,000-acre farm, 700 prisoners rampaged for five hours in demands for better food. They set fires which caused damage estimated at $200,000. Twenty-two prisoners who escaped were recaptured or surrendered.

Remand Davies To July 22 Over Passport

OTTAWA (CP)—Raymond Arthur Davies, former executive officer of the Communist party's political arm in Canada, today was remanded to [illegible] on a charge of passport fraud.

[illegible] was released without plea on $1,000 cash bail.

Davies, born Rudolf Shohan of Polish parents, was arrested in Whitby last week and charged here before Magistrate Glenn Strike with making false or misleading statements when he applied for a passport in 1936.

Peter Newcombe, appearing for Davies' Montreal lawyers Walker, Martineau, Chauvin and Walker, asked that the $1,000 cash bail posted last week by Davies' wife be changed to property bail.

OPPOSES APPLICATION

Raoul Mercier, Crown attorney, opposed the application and Magistrate Strike said the matter could be settled when Davies appears again.

The charge said Davies stated in a passport application that he had no other name than Raymond Arthur Davies, that he was born in Montreal March 15, 1908, and that his nationality was British.

Maximum penalty on conviction is two years in penitentiary.

Davies, neatly dressed in a blue suit, leaned nonchalantly against the prisoners' box while the Crown and defence argued over changing his bail from cash to property.

He is a former leader of the Young Communist League, the Communist party's youth organization. Later he was an executive officer of the Labor-Progressive party, the Communist political group.

Fire Chief Urges Use Less Water

Chief George Smith of the Fire Department today endorsed the appeal of the Utilities Commission to householders for their help in maintaining water pressure in the mains and at the hydrants of the city's fire protection system.

When fire alarms sound, pressure is boosted in the mains, but to be on the safe side in this weather, Chief Smith said that people could do something in community spirit by following the directions of the Utilities Commission.

"Everybody knows that if a fire breaks out anywhere, the Department needs all the pressure it can get," Chief Smith said. "These days there is a heavier demand for water in uses of it in the homes. There is no curtailing of that need, but lawns and gardens are not likely to suffer much with the restriction the Commission is announcing."

U.S. Liner

Earlier he had said the liner's performance had exceeded even his own expectations. He added she would be doing her best again on her home voyage, but that adverse winds on the westward trip would tend to cut her speed.

The weather had been fine for most of the maiden voyage. Even dense banks of fog she hit off Newfoundland her second night out did not slow her down. She did better than 35 knots, guided by Radar.

The United States' 160,000-shaft horsepower motor had worked perfectly on the entire trip. So powerful it stirred a foamy wake a mile astern, the motor smoothly pushed the ship along and passengers felt hardly a tremble at the fast clip.

MET QUEEN MARY

Practically all the other ships in the Atlantic family radioed their greetings to the United States. Among those welcoming her was the Queen Mary, whose record was shattered. The two big ships—the Mary bound for New York—met dramatically Saturday in mid-ocean.

The last record-breaking run by a U.S. ship was in 1851, when the S.S. Pacific made the crossing in nine days, 19 hours and 25 minutes.

That record stood until 1869, when the British City of Brussels crossed from Ireland to New York in seven days, 22 hours and three minutes, an average speed of 14.65 knots, Since then the blue ribbon has been held by German, British, Italian and French ships, but no Americans.

Trans-Atlantic Records Change Hands

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Here is how the trans-Atlantic speed record has changed hands by nations, over the last 100 years:

1851—S.S. Pacific, U.S., nine days, 19 hours, 25 minutes.

1865—City of Brussels, British, Ireland to New York, seven days 22 hours, three minutes, average speed 14.65 knots.

1897—Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, German, New York to England, five days, 15 hours, 25 minutes, average 22.51 knots.

1908—Lusitania, British, Ireland to New York, four days, 15 hours. Average 25.57 knots.

1929—Bremen, German, France to New York, four days, 17 hours, 42 minutes, average 27.83 knots (maiden voyage).

1933—Rex, Italian, Gibraltar to New York, four days, 1 hours, 58 minutes, average 28.92 knots.

1935—Normandie, French, France to New York, four days, 13 hours, 13 minutes, average 29.98 knots (maiden voyage).

1936—Queen Mary, British, France to New York, four days, 12 hours, 24 minutes, average 30.14 knots (maiden voyage).

1938—Queen Mary, New York to England, three days, 20 hours, 42 minutes, average 31.69 knots (present official record).

The British liner Mauretania held the record longest, from 1910 to 1929.

The Mauretania crossed from Ireland to New York in four days, 10 hours and 41 minutes, a distance of 2,780 miles.

Oil Production Down In Alberta

CALGARY (CP)—Crude oil production in Alberta for the week ended June 30 was down more than 23,000 barrels daily from the previous week.

The Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board said in its weekly report that daily average production was 163,681 barrels compared with 187,198 barrels daily for the week ended June 23. Daily average output for the corresponding week a year ago was only 110,053 barrels.

Reason for the decreased production was an end-of-the-month cutback to hold output within the monthly allowable set for June by the board.

Greater production is expected in July with a daily average allowable of 194,000 barrels against June's allowable of 186,000.

Production in the week ended June 30 came from 3,155 wells either producing or capable of producing, an increase of 16 over the previous week.

12,000 Throng Convention For Nominations

By RELMAN MORIN

CHICAGO (AP)—More than 12,000 Republicans thronged into Convention Hall today to begin the torturous process of nominating a candidate for President.

Some are angry, many are [illegible] party, and most of them are plagued with the devils of indecision.

There are two pictures here today.

ONE SIDE VISIBLE

The one you can see has been building up for a week. All the organized nonsense of a national convention has been going on, full blast, in the Conrad Hilton hotel, and in the streets around it.

There are the swirling crowds with their banners and placards, whooping and shouting, chanting their slogans and campaign songs.

All of that moved today to Convention Hall. It is the visible side of the picture.

But there is another side. And not even the professional politicians can see this side, nor gauge it with any accuracy, nor control it beyond a certain point. It has them worried.

Call it crowd psychology.

RULES VOTE LIKELY

Before the Republicans begin voting on a candidate, they probably will be called on to vote on the rules of the convention.

There is a straight-out fight at hand between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Senator Robert A. Taft on this question of the rules.

It is tied to the whole bitter struggle that arose over the seating of rival delegations from the same states, one group demanding the right to vote for the general, the other for the senator.

The Republican National Committee decided the big majority of these contests in favor of Taft. Eisenhower's leaders now are prepared to appeal those decisions to the full convention.

Both sides are fully alive to the potentialities. Both know that hundreds of delegates might swing, caught up in a wave of feeling, to the side that wins the battle on the rules.

Taft appears to be holding an edge over Eisenhower in delegate votes. He seems to have well over 500 of the 604 needed to win the nomination. But an Eisenhower strategist estimated that Taft's total would drop to 420 if he lost the preliminary fight.

FOUR VETERANS OF THE DE LAVAL Company who have given 25 years' continuous service were honored at the annual picnic on Saturday when each was presented with a handsome silver tray from the president, C. L. Upper. Shown above are three of the veterans and their wives, left to right, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Flemming, Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Weston, and Mr. and Mrs. George Lindsay and Mr. Upper.—(Parks Studio Photo).

Foote Receives Shock At Riot

GUELPH (CP)—Reforms Minister Foote thought for a minute the worst had happened when he saw what looked like a lengthy line of corpses on the grass as he drove up to the administration office of the Guelph Reformatory during the height of the riot there Saturday night.

The headlights of his car picked out forms lying in white hospital clothing. But they were only patients from the reformatory's hospital, rushed to safety as soon as the guards regained control of the tower.

"I was sure, for a minute, they were bodies," the Cabinet Minister said later.

Sixty head of cattle also were rushed to safety. The farm superintendent turned them out of their barns for fear the rioters would destroy them.

5,700 Workers Back On Job

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 5,700 textile workers return to work today in plants here and at Valleyfield, Que., bringing to an end a three-month wage strike.

A new contract providing, among other things, a general wage increase of 11 cents an hour, was signed Saturday by representatives of the United Textile Workers of America (T.L.C.-A.F.L.) and Dominion Textile Company plants here and at Valleyfield.

Decision to end the strike was reached by the employees themselves in a secret ballot Friday, voting on an agreement reached earlier in the week between union representatives and company officials.

In addition to the general wage boost of 11 cents an hour, the contract provides an increase of 10 per cent retroactive to September, when the last agreement expired; two cents an hour, in addition to the 11 cents, for 600 maintenance workers and skilled help, and an increase in statutory holidays from six to seven.

Four Veterans Honored De Laval Annual Picnic

Blue skies and sunshine welcomed the throng of families who crowded Nicholls Oval Saturday afternoon for the annual De Laval picnic. Fun and frolic was the order of the day.

The usual races and contests were entered by young and old with unexcelled enthusiasm. The kiddies quickly located the booths dispensing ice cream cones, soft drinks and chocolate bars, and the strips of tickets provided for these goodies gradually vanished. The pony arena was also a source of delight, and Doug. Landry kept them constantly amused with his "lightning" cartoons.

Immediately following the supper hour the usual presentations were made by the company president, Mr. C. L. Upper. Thomas B. Fleming, George H. Kingdon, George Lindsay, and Henry D. Weston were the recipients of handsome silver trays, emblematic of their initiation into the Silver Circle Club representing 25 years of continuous service with the company. Each lady present received a set of "Glass-Bake cooking dishes and the gentlemen, smart neckwear.

The special registration prize of a Kenwood blanket was won by T. Kennedy and the four lucky prizes of $5. each for the attendance draw went to D. Devlin, A. Pickles, F. Bridcott, M. Burdett.

Bombed Japan During War Now Missionary To People

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

OSAKA, Japan (AP).—No man of God draws bigger crowds in Japan than Rev. Jacob DeShazer, Christian missionary.

His theme is "hold no bitterness in your heart." For three years the people of this country have flocked to hear his remarkable story.

As a member of the U. S. Air Force, Sgt. Jacob DeShazer bombed Japan spectacularly in the early days of the Pacific war —and then endured 42 months as a Japanese captive.

Missionary DeShazer says Sgt. DeShazer was "quite a rough character" back on April 18, 1942 when 16 B-25 bombers carrying 80 men took off from the deck of the aircraft carrier Hornet. They flew 800 miles, gave the Japanese an explosive taste of what was to come, and roared on to China to land.

THREE BEHEADED

DeShazer's plane ran out of gas, over Japanese-held Chinese territory. The crew parachuted in the dead of night. Bombardier DeShazer and the others in his crew were picked up the next day by the Japanese, with three survivors of another crash. The pilot and rear gunner of DeShazer's plane were beheaded. So was the pilot of the other crashed plane.

DeShazer and the four others were held captive in prisons in Japan and China. There were months of grilling and 36 months of solitary confinement.

One day the Japanese told the five prisoners they could have one book—to take turns reading.

"We chose the Bible," said DeShazer, "because it has lots of words. We wanted to read all the words we could get."

LORD CALLED HIM

"For the three weeks that it was mine to read, I devoured it and suddenly God gave me a repentant heart. I was able to read the Bible and I understood it.

"While I was in prison, the Lord called me to come back to the Far East and teach the Japanese people. When God speaks to a fellow, the fellow knows it!"

Freed at the end of the war, DeShazer entered Seattle Pacific College in 1945 and began studying for the ministry. He came back to Japan in December 1948 —with the wife he had met in college.

Today, Rev. DeShazer, representing the Japan Free Methodist Mission at Osaka, travels to all parts of Japan.

USES AN INTERPRETER

He uses a car equipped with loudspeaker to drum up attendance for nightly meetings. "I say a sentence and the interpreter repeats it. It sounds like a slow business but the Japanese will go to hear an American in greater numbers than they will go to hear a Japanese preacher.

DeShazer's ex-prison guards now are his good friends. "One of the guards visits at my home in Osaka for a week at a time. He brings his little girl and she plays with my sons." DeShazer has two sons, Paul, 4, and John, 2.

One Japanese woman went to the DeShazer sermon in an angry frame of mind.

Her husband had been killed by U.S. bombs. She carried a knife to one of DeShazer's meetings, planning to slay him.

"At the meeting," he smiled, "she had a change of heart. Later she visited my home and brought flowers. She finally married a Buddhist priest but she still prays now and then."

Recognition of Adoption

Looking through a copy of the London Times today we saw a notice at the end of the "Births" column, under a subheading "Adoption"; it recorded the fact that a married couple had adopted a child who was born in November, 1951, and gave the child's Christian names. So far as we can recall, we have never seen such a notice before, but we shall be happy to see it many more times in the future, for it is significant of the modern attitude toward adoption.

* * *

Adoption is, of course, a very old practice but in Britain it had no legal status until 1926, and our own laws respecting it, and those of the U.S.A., date from roughly the same time. Children were adopted, in the sense that legal guardianship over them was established, but there were complications which distinguished them from the other children of the guardian in matters of inheritance. But now, a child, once adpoted, is for all legal purposes the child of its adoptive parents.

* * *

The manner of adoption has changed, also. Childless couples, or couples who for one reason or another wish to do so, now make known their desire to adopt a child to one of several agencies which care for children. When a suitable child is available, it is given to the prospective parents for a period of trial, and only when the agency is certain that all will be well is the adoption made valid. So far as possible children are given to their adoptive parents in infancy, so that they know no other care and are, in environment if not in heredity, the true children of the household.

* * *

Many children are put in the care of adoption agencies because their parents—usually the mothers—cannot care for them, for any of a number of reasons. The existence of such agencies relieves many a mother of worry about the future of her child for, however loathe she may be to give it up, she knows that it will have a good home, and will not know the wrench of leaving one mother for another. Modern processes of adoption are a blessing to many worried women.

* * *

Most of all, however, they are a blessing to scores of children who might otherwise, through no fault of their own, suffer the hardships of poverty or illegitimacy. People who adopt children are, by definition, people who want children and who feel a deep responsibility toward them. Though little fuss is made about it, the modern method of adoption is one of the most humane and intelligent advances in the social system of our time.

The Republican Convention

Delegates of the Republican Party from all over the United States are assembled in Chicago to stage one of the great political spectacles which occur every four years in that country. A majority of them will elect the Republican candidate for President in the November election, and, as the convention opens, the prime question seems to be whether or not the decision will split the party so badly that it will be unable to win in the most favourable circumstances in which it has found itself in twenty-odd years.

The struggle between the Taft and Eisenhower factions lately became marked with bitterness which will be carried on to the convention floor. Earlier in the campaign, each candidate pledged himself to support the other, if the other were nominated. There has been none of that spirit in the disputes which have arisen since charges of stealing delegates were first heard. Each faction now declares that victory for the other means disaster for the Republican Party—a fair intimation that neither side will support the other's successful candidate.

Briefly, the situation is that Taft supporters control the convention machinery and the National Republican Committee. There are seventy contested delegates from five States, and the issue of seating these delegates has greatly increased tension within the party. With the refereeing in the hands of Taft supporters, General Eisenhower's supporters suspect that he will get something less than a fair deal. There are indications that there is some foundation for the suspicion.

Twenty-three of the twenty-five Republican State Governors share that suspicion. In an unprecedented move, they sent a declaration to Senator Taft, vigorously expressing the opinion that the Republican nominee must enter the Presidential fight "with clean hands". The implication was clear: the tactics of Taft supporters were considered dirty fighting by the Governors. It was a damaging, though not necessarily fatal, blow for the Taft forces. Their tactics, however, remained unchanged at the weekend.

The Republican Presidential nomination is still a guess for political observers anywhere. The most definite prediction we have read is that if Senator Taft wins, it will be in an early vote, and that he will lose strength as the number of ballotings increases. If all the reports of the week could be taken at face value, eventual victory for General Eisenhower is indicated, but face value may prove a treacherous yardstick when applied to politics.

One Session A Year

Prime Minister St. Laurent seems to have set his face against the post-war practice of holding two sessions of Parliament a year. The fact that the House sat into July, and was not prorogued for a second session in the Fall, shows which way the Government wind is blowing on Parliament Hill.

When two sessions were held, the Members of Parliament drew almost a double stipend: a total of $10,000 a year instead of the normal $6,000--$4,000 as sessional indemnity, and $2,000 tax-free allowance. Backbenchers were in favour of holding two sessions a year. Now their desire for this has slackened, because of the Government's opposition to it; and in view of the new pension scheme for M.P.'s. This is equivalent to a rise in pay of no mean proportions. One M.P. with insurance company experience is said to have estimated that the pension bill for Members made each potentially $50,000 richer; even though they are themselves contributing $240 or six per cent. annually of their $4,000 sessional indemnity, (for a minimum of three Parliaments).

As we have said before in these columns, we dislike backdoor methods by which Members of Parliament raise their own pay. The two-sessions-a-year way is not self-respecting.

Hypnotism As Entertainment

A committee of the British Commons has been discussing the rather odd subject of hypnotism as stage entertainment. Some physicians, and others who use hypnotism in various therapeutic techniques, want to banish hypnotism from the stage altogether. They say that it is dangerous. They cite cases in which people who have been hypnotized by entertainers have shown some instability subsequently. One case was brought forward of a man who was told by a hypnotist that he would immediately fall asleep whenever he heard a popular song called So Tired; apparently he continued to do this after the entertainment was over. The usual bugaboo has been revived about girls who may fall under the spell of wicked hypnotists and yield to their lewd suggestions. However, some excellent common sense was injected into the discussion by the Under Secretary to the Home Office, a gentleman called Sir Hugh Lucas-Tooth, who said that hypnotism on the stage, like everything else on the stage, must be governed by good taste and good sense. The committee has agreed to recommend a bill giving local authorities power to control demonstrations of hypnotism, and forbidding the public hypnotism of persons under 21 years of age.

The public as a whole both fears and delights in hypnotism. And yet it is by no means as mysterious or powerful as it appears. It is principally a matter of persuading people to accept suggestions from the hypnotist; public speakers, advertisers, writers, preachers and everyone whose business is to persuade or instruct deals in hypnotism to some degree. Stage demonstrations are a spectacular form of a common thing, and no stage hypnotist can stay in business long if he abuses his power; he must have his audience in agreement with what he does. Furthermore, it was shown many years ago by the French physician Jean Martin Charcot that people cannot be persuaded to do anything under hypnotism which they would refuse to do when fully alert; in other words, girls do not yield to wicked hypnotists who are not of a yielding disposition.

This matter is of interest to the Canadian public because last month a hypnotist named Robert Morton was able to demonstrate for three weeks in the largest theatre in Toronto, drawing big audiences who were greatly pleased by what he did. He was also visited by people who wanted him to treat various organic and nervous diseases, which he refused to do, very wisely. Hypnotism is both useful and popular; to forbid it seems as needless as forbidding exhibitions of conjuring.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Our perusal of Hansard shows us that personalities and ugly scenes are becoming more frequent in Parliament since the onset of hot weather. Common humanity suggests that the M.Ps turn off the tap, and go home.

An observer assures us that women strike matches away from themselves, men toward themselves. What this means we don't quite know, unless perhaps it means that women recognize the foolishness of getting burned up for a trifle.

Who Will Succeed Stalin?

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

ON BOTH SIDES of the Iron Curtain recent purges of the most notorious and loyal of the Moscow-trained Communist leaders have stirred up speculation, never long out of mind, about the succession to Stalin. We know that inside the Kremlin there are various clashes of opinion; we can take it for granted that there are fierce conflicts of conviction and ambition behind the blank facade of unanimity; we know that in all matters of real importance Stalin has the final word.

Many expect that as soon as he dies these conflicts will break out in public, or at least that there will be a life and death struggle behind the scenes for the leader's mantle. The recent purges have suggested to some that the overthrow of trusted favourites like Anna Pauker, in Rumania, and Rudolf Slansky, in Czechoslovakia, reflect the victory inside the Kremlin of one faction over another. In the sense that every action taken by Moscow Politburo has its opponents as well as its advocates this is probably true. But we have no justification for saying that the triumph of a certain line of policy at any one time means the permanent triumph of a certain faction.

WHAT SO MANY FAIL to realise is that Stalin and his colleagues are even more interested in what will happen when Stalin dies than we are. They are also interested in seeing that nothing violent and dramatic happens. They want to keep the Soviet Union on an even keel.

The contention that because Stalin secured and consolidated his own personal rule by fighting and killing off his rivals the same sort of thing must happen when he dies simply will not hold water. When Lenin died Stalin held a very powerful position in a Government which was far from united, a Government, moreover, of professional revolutionaries most of whom had no experience of administration, were not Russian patriots, and had no conception of the problems involved in running a modern state—above all of industrialising a backward state like Russia. Stalin has changed all that. He had made the Soviet Union into a great industrial power, by bending circumstances to his will. He has been assisted by a group of men who share his general ideas, are deeply immersed in the problems of economy and government, and whose destinies are inextricably linked up with the destiny of their land. When Stalin began his climb to power conditions in the Soviet Union were still largely anarchic. There was very little to lose. There was a clear-cut choice of direction. Stalin chose the direction of socialism in one country or state capitalism and the restoration of the Russian empire. Those who disagreed with him were killed.

WHEN HE DIES he will leave behind him a mighty apparatus, a modernised state which is a going concern. Its policies may be changed or modernised in detail; but without another revolution the general direction cannot be changed. Stalin's colleagues have no quarrel with this direction; they know no other.

Furthermore, for many years past, these men—above all Molotov, Malenkov, and Beria—had had a far greater responsibility for running the country in committee than is commonly realised. At one time Stalin certainly thought in terms of a personal successor to inherit his mantle. His first choice was Kirov, whose assassination in Leningrad was the signal for the great purges of the thirties. His second choice was Zhdanov; but he seems to have been discarded long before his death. For some years Molotov has been regarded as the heir, with the much younger Malenkov as a fierce competitor.

BUT IN FACT there seems to be no justification for assuming that there will be a single successor to Stalin. In the 30's Stalin was not the figure he is today. He was General Secretary of the Communist party, running the country very much from behind the scenes. The man who succeeded him as General Secretary could be expected to carry on his work. And, had Stalin died in the middle of the thirties, there would undoubtedly have been a tremendous struggle for control of the party, and through the party of the Soviet Union.

But all that has changed. In 1939 Stalin assumed the office of Prime Minister, displacing Molotov. Later, he became Minister of Defence and Commander-in-Chief. During the war, he began to build himself up as the father and protector of the Soviet people, so that today he is revered as a demi-god. And nobody, nobody at all, shares this glory, though both Molotov and Malenkov (particularly the last named on his 50th birthday) have been increasingly presented as Stalin's closest and most trusted fellow workers—and with them, to a lesser degree, Beria, the chief policeman.

STALIN HAS THUS come to occupy a position which nobody can inherit. My own guess is that when he dies, or before, there will be a public reversion to committee rule. The mantle of Stalin will be divided. Thus Molotov may very well become Prime Minister once more; Malenkov General Secretary of the party and so on.

There is every reason to believe that this rule by committee has in fact been practised under Stalin's remote control for a number of years. It was during the war that Stalin's health first began to cause serious concern. Since then he has spent a great part of the time far from Moscow and there have been periodical serious illnesses. Nobody knows how well or how badly Molotov, Malenkov and Beria get on together. Nobody knows who commands the most useful personal following in the Politburo, in the party's central committee and in the party throughout the countryside. All we know is that Molotov is Stalin's first deputy as Prime Minister and acts as head of the Government in his absence; that Malenkov commands the party; that Beria commands the vast police force. These three men have for some years shown sufficient unity to keep Russia going during Stalin's increasingly long absences and to carry the Politburo with them; and we may assume that in sheer self-preservation they will continue to do so for some time after his death.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE REAL PROBLEM about Stalin's successor, moreover, is not who is on top in the Politburo now but for how long the committee rule without a hero figurehead to command the loyalty and reverence of the people will be able to inspire the Russians, as they need to be inspired. Unless Stalin's successors are willing and able to relax the great strain under which the people of the Soviet Union have laboured for so long, sooner or later a crisis will arise which can be settled only by ruthless and decisive action. In such a crisis the Politburo might well split irrevocably. Whether any single individual would show himself in such circumstances to be capable of eliminating his opponents and imposing his will not only on the party but on the people as a whole remains to be seen. But we can be fairly sure that it will be some time after Stalin's death before any such crisis will arise. The men who follow Stalin will be far too deeply concerned with preserving the machinery of Government to go out of their way to provoke it.

PLAY SLIGHTY MORAL

Sir With all due respects to a wearer of the cloth, I rather think our ministerial friend is in a bit of a dither over nothing.

As for the play reeking with immorality, I am reminded of Mrs. A. who said to Mrs. B., "Isn't that man immoral!" "Oh, no!" replied Mrs. B. "Don't you mean just slightly moral?"

After all, it's all in the point of view a person takes on such matters, and what may seem evil to one may not to another. No matter how bad a thing is, there is always some good to be found in it, if one looks hard enough. There is a great deal of truth in the saying, "There is good in the worst of us and bad in the best of us."

In England we use certain words and expressions that in common every day use—even in the best of circles—but which in this country have an entirely different meaning.

I shall never forget the time a friend of mine just out from England, was asked how she felt on the voyage over. She used the English equivalent for feeling poorly or seedy, and the expression on the faces of her listeners was one of shocked surprise.

She said to me afterwards, "What did I say wrong?" So I told her that while the expression she used meant, in England, that she felt poorly, in Canada it meant she was going to have a baby. Fortunately she had a sense of humour and she laughed and laughed till the tears ran down her cheeks!

Now, thanks to that letter in the Press, I would be willing to bet that if "Clutterbuck" was put on again, twice as many people would be there to see it. Furthermore, I don't think anyone of marriageable age will be led astray by "Clutterbuck". They must surely have their hippens off by this time!

On the other, why blame immorality and promiscuousness all on the theatre? What about the story of David and Bathsheba in the Bible?

If our good friend was to go out almost any night to Armour Hill, Green Hill or some of our local sideroads, and see the sights, he might find that he'd need not only a bath, but a jolly good disinfecting.

Your "slightly moral" co-respondent,
G. F. Tully

GUARD YOUR HAPPINESS

Sir: What do we do with happiness once it is ours? That's a question worth turning on yourself—like a searchlight. For the man or woman who can honestly say that he enjoys his happiness to the full is as wise as he his rare—and he deserves all the joy that has come to him. But many a happy person is culpably careless with this greatest of all treasures. He may have so much that he lets slip some of it—like sand through idle fingers (like you for instance). I for one, have often caught myself wasting a moment of contentment, a moment of gladness, by some unnecessary act or word or thought and I'm on the watch for it now. We are not to expect happiness in this life. Only to profit by it when it arises. That, in the stresses and conflicts of responsible adult life, takes a conscious exercise of good sense and thoughtfulness. Yet man who will watch his investments closely will waste happiness shockingly. We've all seen it. The hour of tranquil contentment marred by the introduction of worry—a day of married companionship blackened by sulks. Even a whole rich life poisoned by self pity or jealousy, or bickering with all the good luck denied by emphasis on the bad. So the bright passing hours of this life, our only earthly one, it may well be are dulled and tarnished.

One may have sympathy with the boy who came downstairs one gray morning and said: "It aint a nice day and the birds sing awful." He was happy in his way, and those of us who live in families may well take warning. Home experts on accident insurance say is the most dangerous place in the world for life and limb. So it is for the heart. Here, more often than anywhere else in the world should care be exercised for the happiness of others—and one's own too—where the affairs of the heart are concerned. The conversation should never be allowed to dwell upon controversy or unpleasantness.

Yours truly,
H. GILBERT

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master, and honorable, because by him the Lord had given deliverance unto Syria; he was also a mighty man in valour, but he was a leper. And the Syrians had gone out by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and she waited on Naaman's wife. And she said unto her mistress, Would God my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria! for he would recover him of his leprosy. And one went in, and told his lord, saying, Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel.

So Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha. And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean.

But Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said, Behold, I thought, He will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper. Are not Abana and Pharper, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them, and be clean? So he turned and went away in a rage. And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, Wash, and be clean?

Then went he down, dipped himself seven times in the Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God: and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean. (II Kings 5:1-4, 9-14.)

Mr. Taft Can't Win In November

(New York Times)

Nearly 25 years have passed since the Republican Party has elected a President of the United States. This year the Republican Party has a real chance to return to power. The question is whether the party will seize this chance by nominating a candidate who has an excellent chance to win—Dwight Eisenhower—or whether it will muff this chance by nominating a candidate who is almost certain to lose—Robert A. Taft. In a series of editorials, of which this is the first, we shall offer the evidence on which we base our judgement that Senator Taft, if nominated in July, cannot be elected in November. We think it is a logical deduction that the Republican Party has a far better chance to win next November with General Eisenhower than with Mr. Taft.

Unconsidered Trifles

She was fat and over forty, but still kittenish. The young man she had cornered at the party was thinking hard for some excuse to escape. At last he murmured: "Do you remember the youngster who used to tickle you under the chin at school?"

"Oh," she exclaimed gushingly, "so that's who you are!"

"No," he said blandly, "that was my father."

Strong Canadian Dollar Causing Some Headaches To Citizens

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Canadians, long-accustomed to seeing their dollar in second place, are understandably proud that today it is worth nearly four cents more than the American dollar.

At the same time, there are some embarassments in the changed situation, and some misunderstandings about it.

Perhaps the most puzzled person is the American visitor, who is not inclined to think that any "buck" is worth more than his "buck."

HE'S RIGHT

To a considerable degree, the American is right. In a limited sense, the Canadian dollar is worth more, but this doesn't mean that it has become an international currency in the sense that the American dollar occupies that position.

The American dollar, in most parts of the world outside the Iron Curtain, is virtually the same as gold, and will purchase almost anything. The Canadian dollar has not yet achieved that position.

The American dollar is backed by the most self-sufficient and productive country in the world. The Canadian dollar is backed by a rich and prosperous country, but one which has a small population, and one which is dependent to a large degree on what the rest of the world, including the United States, buys from it.

For the moment, the strength of the Canadian dollar is perhaps best expressed by saying it is a matter of "supply and demand."

We are a country of 14,000,000 people and, though relatively we have a lot of currency, the amount is designed to take care of the normal transactions of our population.

DEMAND CREATES SCARCITY

In such a situation, if a country of 150,000,000 people, such as the United States, and a considerable part of Europe get interested in Canadian enterprises and develop an enlarged need for Canadian money, there isn't enough of it to go round.

The situation is much the same as in a shortage of any other commodity. If 100 persons each want a pound of tea, and they find that only 75 pounds are available, those who really like tea are likely to offer a higher price for it.

Having said that the Canadian dollar is strong because it is scarce, we must ask: "Why is it scarce? Why are so many people in other countries bidding for it?"

The shortest answer is that Canada, particularly in the present world situation, has what others need, especially in basic and strategic materials. And they are more easily and safely available here than almost anywhere else.

Added to this is the fact that the United States has used up a considerable part of its basic materials and Canada is the next logical storehouse to which to turn.

CANADA STABLE

Added is the fact that, while we are not yet a self-sufficient economy, we are much more self-sufficient than we used to be. We have a growing population, increasing industrial power and are a stable people politically.

All that looks good to other peoples in this troubled world, and adds up to what looks like a continuing bright picture for Canada which may one day make her currency indeed an international one.

What are some of the embarassments of a high-priced dollar?

For one thing, the long-existing fact that the Canadian dollar has been priced below the American has become embedded into our price structure in our sales abroad.

It is not only that our dollar now is selling at a three- to four-cent premium. As late as October, 1950, it was at a 10-per-cent discount, and was at about a five-per-cent discount for some time after that. So the change in value is not only three to four cents; it is 9, 10, 13 and 14 cents.

NEWSPRINT HURT

This certainly embarassed the Canadian newsprint industry recently when it found its returns from United States buyers cut by about $10 a ton in a year, purely because of the change in exchange rates, at the same time that costs were going up. The newsprint makers solved that one in part with a $10 increase in price, amid great protests from across the border.

Canadian gold mines have been hit, too. The price of gold is $35 in U.S. funds an ounce and whereas they got $38.50 Canadian when the Canadian dollar was at a 10-per-cent discount, they now get less than $34. Exporters of base metals also face reduced earnings.

The tourist industry was apprehensive that fewer Americans might visit Canada. Apparently that hasn't happened so far. To a large extent, Canadian hotels and resorts are taking the American dollar at par and absorbing the loss. To a large extent, too, Americans seem to understand the situation when it is properly explained to them, and feel resentment only when some restaurant or other charges them more than the current bank rate. In this situation, Canadians can lose friends if they don't handle it with fairness and diplomacy.

Some Canadian exporters feel concern. Generally, however, Canadian exporters of finished goods are suffering more at present from import restrictions in other countries than they are from price considerations. Additionally, the bulk of Canadian exports is in materials which are needed badly enough that a slight change in price is not likely to affect sales.

84 People Held In Raid On Cock-Fighting Event

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Seventy-nine men and five women were arrested yesterday in a raid on a London township farm where police charge cock-fighting was in progress.

More than 70 of the fighting cocks were seized and turned over temporarily to the Humane Society in London.

Headed by Inspector W. G Tomlinson, of the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad, the 40 raiders included members of London township police, Provincial Police from district points and city police.

Owners of the farm, at the sixth concession and Highbury Avenue, Harold and Lloyd Shoebottom, were charged as keepers of the cockpit. Magistrate Donald Menzies released the brothers on their own recognizance of $1,000 each.

The others were charged under a section of the Criminal Code which provides penalties for persons who "encourage or assist in the fighting of cock-birds."

District property owners in this group were released on their own recognizance of $800.

Last man brought in was one whose car was left at the scene when everyone else was gone.

Police gained entry to the locked vehicle and started to tow it to London.

A man stood up in the hay field and said: "Hey, that's my car."

"Fine," the officers answered, "come on along."

Finishes First In Powder Puff Air Race

TETEROBOR, N.J. (AP)—Isabelle McCrea of Lemon Grove, Calif., landed at Teterboro airport yesterday, first of the powder puff pilots to finish the 2,700-mile, all-women trans-continental air race.

She nosed her Beechcraft Bonanza to a stop at 11:11 a.m. EDT, just three minutes ahead of her closest rival, Doris Thorkildsen of Newport Beach, Calif., in another Beechcraft Bonanza.

Race officials said Miss McCrea's actual flying time since taking off from the Santa Ana, Calif., starting point Friday was 17 hours, 20 minutes.

The planes are judged on a handicap basis, with the accent on flying ability and not necessarily speed.

Twenty-eight more planes still are in the race.

The contestants are not allowed to fly at night. Officials said they expect all planes to set down here by Wednesday night. The winner won't be known until then.

Ahead—the Nicest Miles in the World!

Well, the day has come! You have your beautiful Golden Anniversary Cadillac—and are off on that cross-country journey you've so eagerly awaited.

You're full of hope and anticipation—but almost afraid it's too good to be true. Can any car perform and handle the way people say this one does?

You come to the end of the street that opens into the crosstown thoroughfare—and the big, easy-acting brakes settle you down to the softest, smoothest stop you ever experienced in all your life.

You touch the throttle, and the great engine starts you out like the flight of an arrow—smoothly and swiftly and quietly.

Almost before you know it, a light turns red—and, once again, that easy, velvety stop. And then the green—and again that swift, eager move into action.

Stop and go—red and green . . . and pretty soon it dawns upon you that you never dreamed of driving a car that handled and performed like this.

Wonderful in city traffic—no doubt about it!

And then the cars thin out about you—the traffic lights stretch farther and farther apart—and you find yourself on the open road.

Instinctively, your foot goes down on the throttle; but, quickly, it eases up again. For you find yourself really rolling in a couple of hundred feet! So you do a little experimenting until you find the spot where the accelerator belongs for sane and sensible driving—and then you settle back and relax.

You scarcely seem to be moving at all. You handle the wheel with the weight of your hand. You're comfortable—resting—at peace with the highway! The sun rises higher and the road beckons on.

"Where did we plan on stopping tonight?

"Better take a look at the map and see what's on down the line. We're going to get a lot farther than I ever dreamed we could!"

Yes, it's true what they say about Cadillac.

Better come in and see it—and drive it—while you're in the mood!

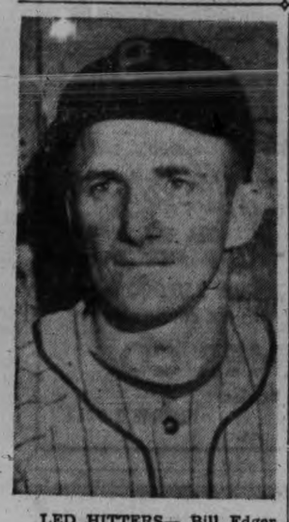
Petes Stop the Monarchs In 6-1 C.O.B.L. Fray On a Five-Hitter By Clancy

Behind five-hit hurling by young Phil Clancy, the Petes hit in timely fashion against Wally Stinson and cashed in on Kingston errors to beat the Monarchs 6-1 here Saturday in a C.O.B.L. fixture. It was a 1-0 ball game till the seventh when Petes added a pair, the K's getting their loner in the ninth after Petes had run in three more in the eighth. Clancy allowed but two hits till the eighth as he pitched a fine game, fanning three and walking one. His support was generally good. Stinson went well for Kingston till the late heats, but his mates let in two unearned runs.



LED HITTERS— Bill Edger took over at first base for the Petes here Saturday when they beat Kingston 6-1, and showed that hurlers can hit, too. He led the club at bat with two bingles in three times up.

Bill Edger led the locals at bat with two for three, while Freddy Garvey had two in four to drive in a pair of runs, Joe Lowrey banged out two in five trips, and Arn Dugan drove in two with his hit. Al Menzies and Joe Stewart got the other bingles. Joe Levandoski hit two in four to lead Kingston, one being a triple. The Petes came up with a snappy double-play to end the speedy game (it lasted but 1:40), while catches by Joe Stewart, Al Menzies, and Arn Dugan were among the defensive features in a neat tussle.

STOLE THREE

Lowrey got on in the first on an error and promptly stole the first of his three bases of the night. He scored later on Garvey's single. They twice had men as far as third after that inning, but did not score again till two tallied in the seventh. With two away, Lowrey singled and stole going to third on Edger's hit. They then pulled a double steal in smart fashion. Edger went to third on a wild pitch and in on Garvey's second hit. Three counted in the ninth on a hit batsman (Menzies), a single by Stewart, Young's sacrifice, and a timely single by Dugan. Pagett was safe on an error but later was nicked at the plate on a hit by Lowrey.

In the second frame, Kingston got a runner to third, but they did not get a man then to second till the eighth. Their lone run was notched in the ninth with one out when Levandoski tripled to right and scored on a hit by Carnegie. Harry walked, but Stinson hit into a double play to wind up the smart encounter before a slim crowd. Box score:

U.E. Captures Big One Over Kingston

Peterborough U.E.W. soccer team, provincial intermediate champions last year, turned in their best effort of the season on Saturday in Kingston to down Kingston United 4-3. It was the first round of Dominion Cup playdowns and the game was packed with action and fine play on both sides throughout.

Kingston opened the scoring after 10 minutes but Cumersky soon evened it up with a first-time shot that the rival goalie didn't even see. Holroyd of Peterborough was injured and Allen took his place on righ wing halfway through the half. Neither side could score again and the half ended with a 1-1 count.

A QUICK ONE

U.E. really hustled after the interval and Cumersky scored from a pass from Robertson after just 15 seconds of play. Kingston fought back to finally equalize it once more. Ryan put U.E.W. in front then and it looked like anyone's game as both sides battled hard in the hot going. At 15 minutes from full time, G. Smith of the Petes scored the finest goal of the game with a long drive to put the visitors in front 4-2. Kingston roared back in a desperate thrust and scored with but three minutes left to make it 4-3. This proved the last goal of the game as U.E. held their opponents off the rest of the way.

U.E. are still unbeaten this season in league or cup games and on Saturday's showing gave indication that they will do even better than last year. Cumersky, Ryan, Smith and Robertson were all outstanding against Kingston but the whole team stood out in the important match. U.E. will now go into further Dominion Cup competition.

CANADA BEATEN

At Bisley, England, South Africa beat Canada in a close match Saturday for the British Dominions Trophy in the Bisley small-bore rifle meeting. South Africa scored 1,554 points and Canada 1,549 of a possible 1,600.

NEW YORK (AP)—For the last several years young jockeys have come from out of the west to thrill easterners.

Lately, however, it hasn't been young squirts from California like Gordon Glisson, Willie Shoemaker or Ray York, but 44-year-old Nick Wall who has been booting home those winners at Aqueduct.

The story of Nick "The Nerve" is one of the most fascinating human-interest stories of the turf which abounds in rags-to-riches and riches-to-rags tales.

THROWN FROM MOUNT

On Oct. 29, 1946, Nickie was riding at Bay Meadows. Thrown from his mount, Nickie wasn't able to roll clear and the freightened thoroughbred rolled over him.

Doctors found 12 ribs broken, both lungs punctured and a collar bone separation.

"Nick," they said in effect, "you're very lucky to be alive. You're going to be all right now, but your riding days are over."

The future seemed dreary. He was in hospital for months.

MOVIES AID COMEBACK

He got a job as a patrol judge at Tanforan and watched the races as an official. As part of his job he watched the motion pictures of each race. Oddly, this gave him the idea of a comeback.

"Those pictures were an education in racing," Nick explained. "I saw mistakes that I used to make myself, but they convinced me the back of a horse was the place for me."

It wasn't until July 1949, that he started exercising horses at the Hollywood Park meeting at Santa Anita. In time he got a few mounts, but although he was famous as the winner of two Santa Anita Handicaps—Stagehand in 1938 and Bay View in 1941—Nickie found the going tough.

Tough, that is, until he brought home a 15-to-1 long shot, Sassanid. That convinced the skeptics that Nickie was back on the beam and again could ride with the best. That's just what he is doing now at Aqueduct.

Win or lose "The Nerve" is worth a two-buck bet anytime you're at the track.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

There will be no bowling on local greens Tuesday evening. The greens will be closed in preparation for Wednesday's all-day open tournament.

The draw has been made and is posted in the club rooms, for the annual novice singles competition. Players are requested to keep in touch with G. Freeman or R. Freeman. This contest is sponsored by The Examiner and the main prize is the beautiful trophy donated by The Examiner. These games will be watched with interest by the older members.

The winning rinks in Saturday night's tournament were skipped by C. Lawrence, J. Adams and H. Taylor.

Any bowler who wishes to go in the provincial playdown games, please make your entry to secretary of games committee, singles, doubles or rinks. Fee is $1. per member.

Ross Hopkins skipped a rink at High Park Club, Toronto, on Saturday.

Len Bearne skipped a rink at Cobourg mixed tournament on Saturday. Both skips report good bowling and a good outing.

Today's thought—The man who has done less than his best, has done nothing.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Some time ago we did a piece on Jack Adams, manager of Detroit Red Wings in the N.H.L., concerning the season in 1917 when he played for Peterborough. Several former local residents have written in for a copy of it in the past month or more. And a man in Cobourg called Saturday to say he had mentioned the item to Harry Thornton and the latter would like a copy. Harry and his brother Pete—who died quite a while ago—played here at that time, and they ran a men's clothing store on George St. Big Harry now has a fine position in the personnel department of Westinghouse in Buffalo, and he is also a director of the Buffalo auditorium. Many here will remember him.

* * * * * *

Alex Sinclair and a number of interested fathers of minor ball players are lining up the P.M.B.A. nicely now, even if the season is well advanced. A good start, anyway. Some solid citizens have agreed to direct the kids, peewees under 13 and bantams under 15. Something which has been needed here for several years if the larger diamond sport is to survive. The northend peewees are asked to attend drills at 6.30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday this week at the Bonnerworth. Other sections also are hopping right to it, and the schedules are being drawn up for immediate action. More again on this shortly, kids.

You Pay Your Money

Several spots to visit tonight, weather permitting for your favorite sport. A Lakeshore Baseball League fixture at 6.30 in Riverside, Colborne Dodgers vs. the Young Petes—the latter beating 'em here last start. A twin bill in girls' softball playoffs at the Bowl d'Ashburnham, commencing at seven. Also a juvenile "A" lacrosse playoff at nine in Miller Bowl, Long Branch vs. Peterborough. Latter must win this to stay in the O.L.A. juvenile "A" hunt this semester. You pay your money and you take your choice. Senior Petes won't be playing this p.m. in Kingston as originally scheduled. So that's Monday setup.

* * * * * *

A swell ball game at Riverside on Saturday night but not many fans on deck. What do they want? The Petes trimmed Kingston Monarchs in a C.O.B.L. fixture 6-1 and the classy contest was reeled off in an hour and 40 minutes. Excellent fielding plays by Joe Stewart, Al Menzies and Arn Dugan, among others; smart base-running by Joe Lowrey; and top twirling by youthful bespectacled Phil Clancy. This young American hit his form Saturday to throw a five-hitter—in fact a two-hit game till the eighth—to earn the win. Stinson gave up nine bingles, yet some were timely thumps and the K's let in two unearned runs. The fans on hand liked this number.

Refs Penalty Happy?

In a bruising junior O.L.A. joust at Brampton on Saturday, the top-ranking Excelsiors downed the local Filter Queens 22-13 to keep atop the heap in the scramble toward a Minto Cup playoff trip. It was close enough most of the way, but the husky young rivals really mixed it in the hot tilt to draw more than two dozen penalties, fairly evenly divided. Three match penalties, two misconducts and two majors were handed out in the free-thumbing exhibition put on by Refs Rusty White and Ed Sandford. Carl Brioux led Lou Vitarelli's squad with three markers. Locals go to Dundas tonight, have a four-pointer at St. Kitts on Wednesday, and meet Mimico juniors here Friday.

* * * * * *

It was 4-3 for Peterborough U.E.W. soccer team in Kingston over the United on Saturday in the first round of the Dominion Cup playdowns. A nifty victory after a hard-fought tilt and the classy U.E. footballers had to show all their wares to capture this important decision. They should go a long way this semester to follow up their Ontario intermediate title of 1951. While Cumersky, Ryan, Smith and Robertson starred for the local squad, all the players from goal out turned in a solid effort. They haven't been beaten yet this summer. Haven't heard yet when they play again.

Brampton Gets O.L.A. Win In Junior Fray

BRAMPTON — (Special). — Paced by Jack Bionda who led his team through a dusty maze of penalties, arguments, fights and misconducts, the Brampton Excelsiors topped the Peterborough Filter Queens 22 to 13 in a rugged exhibition of junior lacrosse in the Rose Bowl here on Saturday night.

Ridley Trails By 46 Runs

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Ridley College of St. Catharines was trailing by 46 runs at the end of nine wickets Saturday when their cricket match with Old Boys of Bermuda was called because of darkness.

Old Boys, comprised of graduates of Ridley, St. Andrew's, Trinity, and Upper Canada colleges who played in the Little Big Four league, batted first and made 188 runs, all out.

An eighth-wicket stand by Ridley's master and coach, Edward Burn, and John Storm saved the game for the touring team by playing out their time for 142 runs.

Storm took four wickets for 43 runs and Burn netted one more for his four. Ridley was in a precarious position when Burn, who scored 101 not out in a match Wednesday, went to bat with sixth wickets down.

He carried his bat for 67 runs and gave only once chance in a fine all-round performance. Storm, who made only four runs, stonewalled and was not dismissed until last over.

Other Ridley scorers were Norman Stewart, with 26 runs, Dick Hutchinson, 14, and Ronald Frosbrook, 12.

Bill Brewer, best bowler for Old Boys, took five wickets for 45.

15 New Junior Track Champions Pick Up Laurels At Toronto Meet

TORONTO (CP)—Canada today has 15 new junior track and field champions.

They picked up their laurels during the two-day, sixth annual championships which ended at Varsity Stadium here Saturday. Some 300 athletes from many parts of Canada competed.

Nine records tumbled during the opening session and seven more Saturday.

Harry Nelson, a tall, 17-year-old representative from the New Westminster, B.C., Olympic Club, racked up two records to pace the out-of-town competitors.

EQUALS OWN RECORD

He did the juvenile 120-yard low hurdles in 15.0 seconds to slice 3-10 of a second off the old mark. He then equalled his record in winning the finals Saturday. In the juvenile 220-yard dash he cut 1-10 of a second off the old mark of 22.9 seconds.

Another two-time record-breaker was Jerry Zodiyko of Toronto Secondary Schools Track Club, who made a toss of 163 ft., 1¾ in. in the midget javelin competition. The old mark was 122 ft., 9 in.

In the midget high jump he beat the previous leap of 5 ft., 2½ in., by 2¼ inches.

Probably the most sensational event of the meet was the 440-yard juvenile dash Saturday which saw Don Aitken of Toronto slice one-tenth of a second off the previous record—51.5 seconds. Aitken crossed the line inches ahead of Laird Sloan of Montreal.

Another record fell Saturday when Gwen Hobbins, 14, of Toronto ran the 60-metre junior dash in 9.0 seconds, just six-tenths of a second less than the old mark.

Despite the scorching heat, Murray Cockburn of Toronto won the junior 880-yard event in 1:59.9. The old record was 1:58.6.

Two records were set by Peter Stranger of Montreal and Norm Williams of Toronto.

Peter covered the midget 120-yard low hurdles in 15.0 seconds to better the old mark of 15.8.

T.T.F.C. WINS AGGREGATE

Final two records to fall were in the junior hop, step and jump and juvenile 440-yard relay. Agincourt Spikes Club won the latter event by setting a record of 44.6 seconds. The previous mark was 47.9. In the hop, step and jump event, Bob McLaughlin of Toronto reached the 45 ft., 1⅛ in. mark. The old record was 44 feet.

Final aggregate scores gave Toronto Track and Field Club first place by a wide margin. They had 260½ points with Montreal Track and Field second with 81. Agincourt Spikes Club had 61; Toronto Secondary Schools 54, New Westminster Olympic Club, 51; Sudbury Nickel Teen 43.

Syracuse Beats Royals 4-3 In Weekend Tilt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There is little a baseball player likes more than to come back to haunt a club he once played for.

Johnny Welaj is no exception. The outfielder who played for Montreal and Toronto before going to Syracuse had the pleasant experience of driving in the winning run as the Chiefs beat the league-leading Royals 4-3 yesterday.

Welaj's ninth-inning single was the telling blow as Syracuse came from behind a 3-0 deficit to overtake Montreal.

The Montreal loss served to keep the Royals from pulling far out in front of the International League race.

They lead by three games over Rochester Red Wings who remained in contention with a 5-3 victory over fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs. George Condrick won his fifth straight for Rochester with relief aid from Bob Tiefenauer and good hitting support from Don Richmond's two-run homer.

OTTAWA SPLITS

The weekend was a comparatively happy one for Ottawa Athletics because it lifted them out of the cellar ahead of Buffalo Bisons. They beat the Bisons 9-5 Saturday and then split a Sunday doubleheader, winning the first game 6-3 but blowing a four-run lead to drop the second 5-4.

Marion Fricano staggered through to the Ottawa first-game victory although he gave up 13 hits. George Moskovich and Harvey Gentry delivered three hits each as Buffalo engineered a relief triumph for Babe Birrer in the nightcap.

Baltimore Orioles won two from Springfield Cubs, 2-1 and 1-0. Roy Weatherley drove in the winning run with a single in the first game which went 14 innings. Bob Miller won in relief. George Byam's third-inning single drove in the deciding tally in the second game, won by Blix Donnelly with Kent Peterson's help.

In other Saturday action Montreal beat Syracuse 4-2 in 11 innings, Springfield defeated Baltimore 6-3 and Toronto edged Rochester 4-3.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Satchel Paige, who had won fame in 23 years of barnstorming, was signed as a relief pitcher by Cleveland Indians of the American Baseball League four years ago today. Paige, still turning in fine performances for the Browns, came up from the Kansas City Monarchs of the Negro American League but had been making money and fame on exhibition tours for years.

Fred Hutchinson Succeeds Rolfe—Surprise

DETROIT (AP)—Robert (Red) Rolfe, who skippered Detroit Tigers to within a breath of the American League pennant in 1950, was fired Saturday and relief pitcher Fred Hutchinson promoted to manager.

Hutchinson's selection was a surprise. President Walter O. (Spike) Briggs, Jr., said the new manager's contract will run only to the end of the current season.

Hutchinson's appointment brought jubilization in the Tiger clubhouse but there was no outward show of bitterness toward Rolfe.

As the change came the Tigers were mired in the American League cellar 21 full games out of first place and 7½ behind the seventh-place St. Louis Browns.

Hutchinson's first start as manager was a winning one as Detroit beat St. Louis 5-0. They won again yesterday, 8-6.

Fired with Rolfe was his third-base coach, Dick Bartell. Briggs announced both would be paid until the end of the season. Rolfe drew $45,000 a year—one of the highest in the majors—as manager.

Vic Wertz, rightfielder, told reporters: "The players are all for the guy (Hutchinson). They couldn't have picked a better man. We'll play for that guy."

Briggs made his announcement to a score of reporters.

Yanks-Athletics Divide Twin Bill, Shantz Injured

By RALPH RODEN, Associated Press Sports Writer

It looks as though the pitchers are in for a tough time in the major league's 19th All-Star game at Philadelphia tomorrow. Five of the 12 pitchers on the dream squads saw action yesterday in the final games before the mid-summer classic—and all were beaten. The sluggers, on the other hand, came through with flying colors.

The American League suffered the biggest blow when Bob Shantz, the scale-model lefthander of Philadelphia Athletics, was forced to retire after four innings because of a muscle pain across his chest in the first game of a doubleheader against the pace-setting New York Yankees.

Shantz, the major's top winner with 14, was counted on to start against the National Leaguers. Cleveland's Bob Lemon now may draw the assignment.

The Yanks clipped Shantz for four runs during his stay and went on to defeat the A's 5-2. All-Stars Gil McDougald and Mickey Mantle led the Yank drive with home runs.

Philadelphia bounced back to win the second game 7-6, scoring the winning run with two out in the ninth inning when Ferris Fain doubled home his All-Star teammate Eddie Joost. Fain collected five hits during the twin-bill to extend his hitting streak to 21 games. Fain, the league's top hitter, takes the highest batting mark, .336, into the All-Star game.

The split enabled the Yanks to retain their three-game lead. Chicago White Sox took over second place from Cleveland, edging the Indians 3-2 in 13 innings on All-Star Minnie Minoso's homer. All-Star Mike Garcia was the losing pitcher.

SENATORS 4TH

Washington Senators clung to fourth place, beating the fifth-place Boston Red Sox 5-2, and Detroit Tigers came from behind to defeat St. Louis Browns 8-6.

Brooklyn opened a 4½-game lead in the National League, trouncing Boston Braves 8-2, while the second-place New York Giants divided with Philadelphia, winning the first game 2-0 but losing the second 4-1.

The torrid third-place St. Louis Cardinals ran their winning streak to nine games by sweeping a pair of games from Pittsburgh, 6-5 and 6-4. The fourth-place Chicago Cubs took two from Cincinnati, 5-1 and 2-0.

Satchel Paige, expected to work in relief against the Nationals if the situation arises, was the loser in Detroit. The Tigers hopped on the St. Louis star for four runs in the seventh inning. Jerry Priddy doubled home two runs for the winners but he suffered a broken right leg while sliding home with the fourth tally and will be lost for the rest of the season. The victory was the second straight for Detroit since Fred Hutchinson was named manager Saturday.

DODGERS BLAST SPAHN

The Dodgers blasted Warren Spahn, one of the Nationals' six All-Star pitchers, for five runs in four innings. Gil Hodges, the dream team's first baseman, sewed it up with a three-run homer in the eighth.

Max Lanier turned in his first complete game of the season in besting Philadelphia's Robin Roberts. Roberts was expected to start for the National League tomorrow but it appears now that teammate Curt Simmons will draw the nod.

In the second game, despite a home run by All-Star shortstop Al Dark, Sal Maglie, one of the National's aces, suffered the first defeat of his career at the hands of the Phils after nine victories.

Stan Musial, one of the National's starting outfielders, won the first Cardinal-Pirate game with a home-run in the ninth inning, his 11th of the campaign.

Ralph Kiner, another All-Star National League slugger, clouted his 13th homer in the second game.

Hank Sauer, who leads both All-Star teams in home runs and runs batted in, cracked a homer in each game for Chicago to boost his output to 23 and his R.B.I. figure to 69.

Heat To Test Stamina Of Two Fighters

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Steaming heat may put the premium on stamina tonight in the welterweight title bout between champion Kid Gavilan of Havana and Gil Turner, the 21-year-old challenger from Philadelphia.

Some 40,000 fans are expected to pay $300,000 to see the latest hometown sensation bid for a world's title.

With prospects of hot, muggy weather and daytime temperature around 95, this could build up into another Sugar Ray Robinson-Joey Maxim duel of survival. However, there will be no glaring television lights at ringside because radio, TV and theatre TV all have been barred.

Unbeaten Turner, with 25 knockouts in 31 straight wins, brings a sensational record into the ring. But he must face an experienced veteran of 98 fights who has been knocked down only once in his 10-year pro career. Gavilan's record of 82-12-4 lacks the glamor of Turner's perfection but it reflects the 26-year-old Cuban's willingness to fight 'em all.

Gavilan has beaten middleweights Paddy Young, Laurent Dauthuille, Rocky Castellani, Eugene Hairston and Walter Cartier, Robinson wasn't able to floor him in 25 rounds in two fights. In fact, Ike Williams in 1948 was the only man to put him on the deck. He got up at eight.

Turner's path has been much easier. He has knocked off Beau Jack, Charlie Fusari, Bernie Docusen and Williams—after they were past their peak. He is confident he is ready for the big test. Only two fighters knocked him down—Fusari and Irish Jimmy Sanders. Each time he got up and knocked out his man.

Gavilan is an 8½-to-5 choice.

Eva Peron's Book Focal Point In Drive Against United States

By STANFORD BRADSHAW

BUENOS AIRES (AP). — Eva Peron's book, "Razon De Mi Vida," is becoming the focal point of a new Argentine campaign against the United States.

The essence of the campaign is that publication of the book was banned in the United States, and that, therefore, there is no real liberty of expression in "Yankeeland."

As explained in the controlled government press, which got the campaign rolling in June, what happened was this:

After it became known Senora Peron was going to publish a book called "The Reason For My Life," various U.S. publishers, possibly under the impression it would be an autobiography, expressed an interest in acquiring the North American rights.

But after the book made its appearance in Argentina—and the publishers found that it was a highly personalized statement of belief in Peronista policies—negotiations went into a decline.

Questioned about their intentions, the Argentina papers said, the unidentified publishers replied they were sorry.

WOULDN'T SELL

"Commercial reasons," they were quoted as saying, made it impossible for them to publish an English version of "Razon De Mi Vida" at this time. They may have felt it wouldn't sell.

But in Argentina, where the highly eulogistic tome became required party reading, the sale went into the hundreds of thousands.

In view of this local success, the pro-government press agreed, there must have been a "ban" from somewhere to have prevented publication in the United States. Without exception, the papers said the "ban" came at the orders of the White House and the State Department.

Spokesmen for the White House and the State Department denied knowledge of any ban.

SUGGEST U.N. PROTEST

The denials were ignored by the Argentine press. It began carrying indignant statements from various groups denouncing the "ban."

The Argentina National Cultural Commission suggested the "ban" against the book be protested to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization as an act of cultural aggression.

There the matter stands. But whatever else results, one idea has been planted in the minds of most Argentines:

The United States, the self-styled "Guardian of Freedom," had banned Eva Peron's book.

Find Shy Man Planner Of New German Army

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BONN, Germany (AP). — The shy Herr Blank, planner of the new German Army, has come out of self-imposed obscurity into the public eye as number one salesman for German rearmament.

Once Blank ducked the cameras, kept sealed lips and ran for cover when spotted by reporters.

That was while he was negotiating with the delegates of five other countries on the creation of the European Army.

His personality was as anonymous as his name. Reporters quipped that perhaps he didn't really exist — but was just the ubiquitous Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in disguise.

It's different now. West Germany has signed the treaty to set up the European Defence Community which still must be ratified by the parliaments of all six countries.

DOUBT COURSE

Many people in West Germany doubt the course their government has charted for them. Public opinion ranges from tepid acceptance and hesitation to outright opposition.

So Theodor Blank, a man of the people, has become Adenauer's foremost salesman of the idea that Germans should rearm to defend themselves and their free western neighbors.

In folksy broadcasts, at public meetings and in a new affable attitude to the press he is trying to put over the notions that rearmament is necessary and won't be so painful as it sounds.

A complaint often heard is that stern old Chancellor Adenauer is too aloof from the people, so Blank is trying to fill that gap. He aims at mothers in "fireside chat" broadcasts.

"I know you feel strongly about having your sons taken into the army again," he said, "but this is why we must do it . . ." And then he goes on with a simple point-by-point explanation of why West Germany must take up arms again.

YOUNG MEN TARGETS

Another of his targets is young men who will be conscripted. He goes to universities where he gets big audiences for a preliminary talk and a discussion period.

Blank is nothing like the Prussians who did the job for the Kaiser and Hitler. He's no stiff-backed, heel-clicking militarist. Blank is short and stocky. His suits are always rumpled and he wanders around Bonn in a grubby mackintosh, with no hat.

Now 43, he introduces himself as "son of a worker." He left school at 14 but completed his education at night schools. In the Second World War he was drafted and promoted to lieutenant. Until elected to Parliament as a Christian Democrat deputy he was an official of the important miners' union. His voice and idiom are those of the Ruhr workers.

COUNT ASSISTANT

Blank's military assistant is Count Johann Adolf von Kielmansegg whose ancestor fought on the British side at Waterloo. At a recent meeting with foreign correspondents, Blank introduced Kielmansegg as "an aristocrat, general staff officer — and he's from the cavalry."

He held up his workman's hands, split his large mouth into an impish grin and said: "As for me I am working class, a carpenter, a trade-union man and now a member of Parliament."

When the defence community is set up, the opinion here is that Blank will stay on as first defence minister of the federal republic.

Report Voting Quiet In Mexico

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—A series of preliminary official estimates indicated that Adolfo Ruiz Cortines, candidate of the government-backed Party of Revolutionary Institutions, was leading his combined opposition more than 5 to 1 in Sunday's national election in Mexico.

The election was one of the quietest in Mexico's history. Not a single death or injury attributable to the balloting had been reported as the voting reached the halfway point. Only a handful of arrests had been made through the country. In the pre-election campaign since June 1, three persons were killed.

Estimates prepared by the presidential press office on the basis of reports received from various state governors gave Ruiz Cortines 23,000 votes in the early count to 2,600 for Gen. Miguel Henriques Guzan, leading opposition candidate. Efrain Gonzales Luna of the extreme right had 1,100, according to this estimate, and Vicente Lombardo Toledano, extreme leftist, 600.

JULY'S MOON FULL

The midsummer moon is at the full tonight, spreading paths of reflected effulgence across all the lakes of the Kawarthas. It is just the same moon and the same resplendence from McDonald's Point across Little Lake to the cemetery and Crescent St. shore. Rising a little later than at the weekend, it should be a passing attraction from the Hunter St. bridge.

GIFT OF THREE DOLLARS

James Turnbull of the Utilities Commission staff recently received a letter containing three dollars, signed by P. Smith, for the Nicholls Park Trust "for helping the upkeep of the Nicholls Parks". It was addressed to the Nicholls Park Trust, and was manifestly an appreciation of the beauty of these parks and their advantage to the public.

Bus Crowded Into Ditch

LINDSAY—A bus on the Toronto-Lindsay run was crowded into a ditch on Highway 7, west of Manilla, last week.

Two of the passengers, Alfred Brown and his son Charles of Sunderland, were thrown to the floor by the impact and suffered bruises and a shaking up.

The bus was travelling along the section of the highway which is under repair, when it drove up to a maintainer at work. One of the passengers claims the maintainer crowded the bus off the road and over the embankment. The maintainer then pulled the bus back onto the highway and the bus continued on its way.

The passenger that reported the accident claims that proper precautions are not being taken in this section where the road is being repaired.

Oil, Rubbage On Water Of Little Lake Fail To Discourage Crowds Of Swimmers

Rumor has it that there is too much oil and filth in Little Lake, especially off the T wharf, for the lake to be good for swimming. According to Sanitary Inspector Ronald MacPherson who has made a recent water test the bacteriological count is satisfactorily safe.

Since this spot is not a supervised swimming area, homeowners on Crescent St., are complaining that the crowds of weekend swimmers at [illegible] noisy, use bad language and because there are no dressing rooms, dress and undress in parked cars along the waterfront. They swarm to the lake in spite of the scum.

A year ago Alex Sinclair, city recreation director, proposed to the council that this popular swimming spot should be developed and supervised. No funds were set aside then, nor has anything further been done about it, Mr. Sinclair says. He considers it a fine place that should be developed by the city for recreational purposes.

Lawn And Garden Watering Restricted To Hour Daily

Utilities Commission is appealing to the citizens to restrict the use of water on lawns and gardens to one hour daily in specified sections of the city as an emergency expedient and directive while the present period of insufficient rain continues.

The announcement issued today is as follows: "Lawn and garden watering will be permitted from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. every day except Sunday in the following districts:

Monday and Thursday: All of Ashburnham.

Tuesday and Friday: All west of the river north of Sherbrooke St.

Wednesday and Saturday: All west of the river, south of Sherbrooke St.

No watering will be permitted on Sunday."

"The extremely hot weather coupled with the prolonged lack of sufficient rain has forced the Commission to appeal to the public as they did in 1949," Ross L. Dobbin, manager, explained to the Examiner today.

"The announcement in that year was on July 7, the same date as today, Since then, as the city continued its expansion, the Commission has laid large mains and installed larger pumps at the waterworks plant in an effort to keep up with the increased demand and consumption of water."

AMPLE RAIN IN PAST

"In ordinary weather we can meet the requirements from domestic, industrial and other consumers. In 1950 and 1951 the Commission had the advantage of ample rainfall throughout both summers. But, as farmers know to their regret this is a dry summer, and the effect of drouth has been increasingly manifested of late at the waterworks.

"We thought last week we would have to put some restriction on the watering of lawns and gardens, but it rained on Thursday, and it was thought that we were due for a continuing break in the weather.

"The maximum rated capacity of the filtration plant is some 6,000,000 gallons a day. As compared with that figure the demand during the weekend has increased 50 per cent and the Commission realized that some action had to be taken to maintain the ordinary water services to the public.

Friday, July 4, the peak pumpage was at the rate of 10.2 million gallons a day; on Saturday it was 11.1 million, and on Sunday, usually the lowest day in the weekly record of the plant, the maximum was at the rate of 10 million gallons."

TEMPORARY EMERGENCY

Mr. Dobbin said this was a temporary emergency confronting the Commission.

"The restriction of the watering of lawns and gardens will be lifted as soon as possible," he said.

Actual pumpage at the waterworks last week was: 6.4 million gallons Friday; 7.24 million on Saturday and 6.65 million on Sunday; obviously exceeding the rated capacity of the filtration plant.

"Peterborough householders and most of our industrial plants have a reputation of keeping their lawns trim and green," Mr. Dobbin remarked. "Many citizens have flower and vegetable gardens, and the Commission is mindful of their needs, but there are other primary needs which have to be considered.

"The public co-operated with the Commission in the extreme weather conditions of 1949, and it is fully expected that they will again comply with this appeal to them during the present temporary emergency. We hope there will soon be sufficient rain."

Members Only Danny Kaye BarredFromClub

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (Reuters)—Comedian Danny Kaye today was refused admittance to the exclusive Royal and Ancient Golf Club in this mecca of golf.

The doorman barred him after he had stepped from a Rolls Royce and entered the club waving cheerfully to a large crowd which had gathered to welcome him.

Members only, the doorman said, explaining that Kaye could not get in without an introduction from a member.

Kaye swung round and walked out. "It is all very embarrassing," he said. "No one told me when I phoned from London to reserve time that I needed an introduction."

But Kaye found a way to play. John Kinnear, captain of St. Andrews new golf club, offered him the hospitality of his club.

Kinnear explained that the course itself belongs to the town of St. Andrews though the Royal and Ancient clubhouse is private.

Find Two Safes Near Pefferlaw

PEFFERLAW (CP)—Two heavy safes, stolen in the Oshawa area more than three months ago, were accidentally recovered by workmen here last Saturday.

Police said the damaged safes were covered with cedar boughs and contained bonds, stamps, cheques and a traffic summons left behind by the thieves.

They were stolen from the offices of the Coca Cola Company and Silverwoods Dairy Company at Uxbridge and Port Perry respectively.

Pefferlaw is 25 miles west of Lindsay.

Youngster 9, Runs Into Side Of Car

Nine-year-old Marien Vinette, 16 Lisburn St., was slightly injured Sunday evening when she ran into the side of a passing car on River Road.

Charles Hall, R.R. 3, Lakefield, told police he was driving north on River Road. He had just passed an oncoming car, when the girl ran from behind another car, into the side of his car.

She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and treated for scratches and bruises. X-rays are being taken today, to see if she received any serious injuries.

U.S. Tourists Pile Up Record

WINDSOR — (CP) — American tourists piled up a record for July 4 weekend traffic in Windsor and Essex county, crowding border crossing points to capacity and jamming all available tourist facilities.

In Kingsville, Leamington, Harrow and Wheatley, and along all highways in the county, the visitors took up all cabins, motels and tourist homes. They slept in cars, slept on the beach, or didn't bother to sleep at all.

At the Ambassador bridge, a total of 60,960 cars crossed in the period from Thursday evening to Sunday midnight. Heavy traffic was also reported this morning across the bridge as the last of the holidayers returned to the U.S.

The 60,960 figure is a record for July 4.

Figures of weekend traffic at the Detroit-Windsor tunnel were not immediately available but a spokesman said he expected the totals to be a July 4 record.

No Relief Due As Mercury Soars Toward 90

No relief is in sight for the sticky heat wave that is blanketing most of the province.

A 90 degree high is predicted for today which is 12 degrees above the average for this month. The weather man terms the weather "about normal" for July. That's quite a bit above average but that average is over a 100-year period," the forecaster added. At noon today the thermometer had six degrees to climb to hit 90.

The sticky heat drove hundreds of city residents to seek relief in a cooling swim in nearby rivers and lakes. In Eastern Canada, 19 people were drowned over the weekend but there were no drowning fatalities in the Peterborough district.

HIT 88

In June, the maximum temperature of 88 on June 26, was seven degrees above the 1951 maximum of 81 for the month, recorded June 18.

The low for June was 45 on June 3, three degrees above the 1951 minimum of 42 on June 29 last year.

The average temperature for June this year was 67.5, which is 5.4 degrees above the average for June 1951 of 62.1.

Rain continues to be badly needed throughout the province as the long dry spell is damaging farm crops.

Only .77 inches of rainfall fell in the county during June, as compared with 3.17 inches last year.

While a high of 90 is predicted for Peterborough, Trenton, St. Thomas, Hamilton and St. Catharines, Windsor and London will fare even worse, as residents there will be sweltering in the 95 degree heat.

The site has been donated for the past five years by the owner, W. Wallace of Oakville.

The day's program included contests and picnic supper with Magistrate W. R. Philp acting as master of ceremonies.

Prize winners were: Frank Simmons, Earl Schwanz, Kenneth Bishop, W. Whitehouse, T. McQuigge, Mrs. Mary Delorme, Miss Noreen Fraser, Miss Myra Baird, all of Peterborough; Miss Elizabeth Parkin, Mrs. Stella Murphy, Charles Burrows, all of Lindsay.

British Physicians To Keep Own Secrets

DUBLIN (Reuters)—British physicians decided today it is not their moral or social duty to protect the public by giving away a patient's secret.

The annual convention of the British Medical Association passed a resolution that doctors need not tell the authorities—even if his patient is a criminal.

Welcome Governor-General At Informal Reception

PORT HOPE—Informality was the feature of the official reception for Canada's first Canadian Governor General, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey here on Sunday.

Mr. Massey has been a familiar figure to the townspeople and surrounding district for the last quarter century, since he established his summer residence at Batterwood Farm, north of the town.

However, the town council and other civic organizations decided that Mr. Massey's first return to his summer home since becoming Governor General merited a civic reception and Sunday was chosen, because it would permit more people to attend.

Mayor W. N. Moore and the other members of council drove out to Batterwood and His Excellency accompanied them into town in the official car.

INSPECTS REGIMENT

At the edge of the town park, Mr. Massey inspected Port Hope company of the Midland Regiment under the command of Major C. C. Snowden.

Then, the Governor General went into the town hall and signed the brand new visitors' book and obligingly did it again for a photographer who failed to get a picture the first time.

Representatives of the federal, provincial and municipal governments in attendance then filed into the council chamber and shook hands with Mr. Massey, and in spite of the heat, he looked cool and comfortable and appeared to be enjoying the reception.

Mr. Massey then went outside again and inspected units of the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and Brownies. The official party then assembled on the band stand before the town hall and Mayor Wilbur N. Moore gave an address of welcome to Mr. Massey and His Excellency made a brief address in reply.

He was then presented with an honorary membership in the Brigadier General Ralston branch of the Canadian Legion by President Gerald Trew.

GIVES AWARDS

In his capacity as Chief Scout, Mr. Massey then presented five Boy Scouts with their Queen's Scout parchments. Gordon Croft, the first scout to receive his certificate became a bit confused and offered his right hand to the Governor General, but Mr. Massey smiled and held out his left hand in the traditional scout handshake, then presented the other scouts, Bob Croft, Bob Linton, Ralph Skinner and Art Armstrong with their awards.

Following this ceremony, leaders in the industrial and agricultural life of the community were presented to Mr. Massey. The extreme heat of the afternoon kept the ceremony informal and two of the men presented to Mr. Massey were wearing open-necked shirts.

When the crowd showed itself to be a bit reluctant to accept Mayor Moore's invitation that anyone who desired to meet Mr. Massey could come forward and introduce themselves the Governor General began walking across the park and stopped to exchange greetings and shake hands with several in the crowd whom he knew as neighbors and acquaintances.

The reception ended with Mr. Massey placing a wreath on the cenotaph. He stood at attention while the bugle sounded, then stepped into his car and drove home to Batterwood, where he will spend the summer months.

Five Detained As Textile Strike Ended

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (CP)—Five persons, including R. Kent Rowley, head of the Canadian Textile Council, were detained by police early today as textile workers returned to work at the Montreal Cottons Company plant here after a three-month strike.

The others were Mrs. H. Duranceau, 29, Jeanette Lamoureux, 26, Mireille Halle, 23, and Raymond Cote, 22, all of Valleyfield.

They were expected to be arraigned later today. The charges were not immediately announced.

The arrests took place as Rowley supporters picketted the front gates of the Montreal Cottons plant, a subsidiary of Dominion Textile Company.

Mr. Rowley was dismissed recently as Canadian director of the United Textile Workers of America (T.L.C.-A.F.L.) by the union's international executive for communistic leanings. Eleven other members of the Canadian staff were dismissed with him.

The new union executive since has negotiated a wage agreement which provided the basis for today's return to work of the approximately 6,000 employees in the Dominion Textile plants here and at Montreal.

Colonel's Wife Goes On Trial

WIESBADEN, Germany (AP)—A United States colonel's wife went on trial today on 17 charges of violating U.S. currency and rationing regulations in occupied Germany. The first prosecution witness, a German servant, testified he acted as a black market go-between for her.

Mrs. Katherine G. Reed, buxom, dark-haired social leader of Wiesbaden when her air force husband commanded the military post here last year, pleaded innocent on all counts.

She nodded and winked at friends in the small U.S. courtroom after arriving with her husband.

An amendment to the charges stated that she was assisted by her husband and her mother, Mrs. Howard V. Groesbeck, in the illegal importation of coffee into Germany.

2 Knocked Off Motorcycles, Car Hits Tree, Family Escapes Serious Injury

One Motorcyclist In Hospital For X-Rays After Crash At Nassau, Car Brakes Fail In Second Accident

Three men were injured Sunday night in two district accidents. When they attempted to make a left turn at Nassau, two motorcyclists were knocked from their vehicle onto the highway. They were in collision with a car. Ronald A. Lanciault, 20, of River Rd., Toronto, driver of the motorcycle, told provincial police that he was just shaken up and had a few scrapes. Later however he was taken to hospital where he is being X-rayed today to determine if he has a broken back.

RESTING AT HOME

The passenger on the motorcycle, 23-year-old Ross Dulmage of 485 Donegal St. is today resting at home from shock, and bruises on his left leg and foot.

Lanciault and Dulmage were coming south and started to make a left turn at Nassau, three miles north of Peterborough on Highway 28, to go down to the river for a swim.

Norman J. Farthing, 39, of 575 Gilchrist St. was driving north in his 1948-model car and he told O.P.P. Constable John Gray that he thought the motorcycle driver had changed his mind about cutting across the highway for a left turn. At the last moment, said Farthing, the motorcycle made the turn and the two vehicles collided. The impact threw the youths onto the highway.

The car received $125 damage and the mtotorcycle about $50 damage.

A 1948-model car, owned by Harry Lynch, 30, of 168 Stewart St., went out of control Sunday night at the end of the Flat Road in Otonabee township, and struck a tree.

Lynch, a C.G.E. draftsman, received a cut on the head but his wife Agnes, and two daughters—Mary, 13 months and Margaret, two years and four months—were just shaken up.

The cut was stitched up by Dr. Bob Young and Lynch went to work today.

Lynch was making his turn at the junction of the Flat Road and the base line of Otonabee township, five mile south of Peterborough, when the brakes failed to hold.

The car veered off to the left and sideswiped a tree, shattering the windshield and damaging part of the top and left side of the car.

O.P.P. Constable John Gray investigated.

W. S. Whatley Drowns In Rideau Canal

William Sidney Whatley, 21, formerly of Peterborough was drowned at Kingston Sunday evening in the Rideau River, just north of the Highway 2 causeway bridge at the east end of the city.

Crowds of curious spectators and passing motorists who stopped on the bridge caused a traffic jam that tied up east-west traffic for more than two hours until the body was recovered by police and firemen at 9.35 p.m.

A witness, Bob Carageorge, 15, of 152 Johnston St., Kingston, who saw the youth swimming in the river and then disappear, turned in the alarm.

He was the son of Mrs. Ada Whatley, 618 St. Catherine St., and the late Sidney Whatley.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced as soon as they are completed by the Belleghem funeral home.

Humane Inspector B. Menzies Resigns

Duplessis Says Election Most Important

MONTREAL (CP)—The July 16 Quebec election will be the most important held in the province since Confederation because "the whole future of our province is at stake," Premier Duplessis said in an election speech last night.

Speaking at Mont Laurier Mr. Duplessis said the choice voters would have to make election day was between a party with experience and an enviable record and a group of inexperienced men who made promises they knew they could not fulfill.

In La Tuque, meanwhile, Georges Lapalme, Quebec Liberal leader, promised that supporters of l'Union des Electeurs will have a chance to put forth their views—along the lines of Social Credit principles—before a legislature committee if the Liberal party is elected.

The Liberal leader said the group was "ridiculed" by Mr. Duplessis but "we wish to live in an era of freedom and the first freedom is freedom of opinion on social and economic questions."

Orange Lodges March To Church In Marmora

MARMORA (ENS) — The annual church parade of Marmora L.O.L. 319 took place on Sunday, the morning service at St. Andrew's being attended by the Lodge, Harmony L.O.B.A. 600, Pride of Marmora Juvenile Girls' Lodge No. 329 and Marmora Juvenile Boys' Lodge No. 38, besides visiting brethren from Havelock and Springbrook. Music for the parade was furnished by the Spencer Kilties Band, the principal streets being covered in the parade from the Orange Hall to the church and back.

The service was conducted by the Rev. William Parker, of Napanee, who spoke on "Liberty" based on Galateans 5.1.

During the service, Jack Grant sang the solo "Just a Touch of Thy Hand, Dear Lord." Upon return to the hall, short addresses were given by Deputy Grand Master R. Sanderson, of Havelock, Burton Bateman, of Springbrook, Mrs. Eva Post, W.M. of Harmony L.O.B.A., Cecil Holland, W.M. of Marmora L.O.L. 319, and Past County Master W. J. Cottrell. The four local lodges are attending the county celebration at Springbrook on July 12.

5,000 Czechs Pledge To Fight Reds

TORONTO (CP) — More than 5,000 former Czechoslovakians now living in Canada and the United States gathered at Masaryktown in suburban Scarboro during the weekend and pledged themselves to freeing their native land from Communism.

Labor Minister Gregg, principal speaker, said "eternal vigilance" is the price of freedom not only in Canada but in other lands of the world.

Joseph Triner, president of the Czech National Council of America, urged fighting of Communism throughout the world.

During a speech by Rudolph Frastacky of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Council of Free Czechs, four young Czechs threw ripe tomatoes at the speaker, all missing their target. The quartet was escorted from the grounds.

Groups taking part in a gymnastic display came from Winnipeg, Montreal, Ottawa, Kitchener, Waterloo, Cleveland, Detroit, Toledo and Chicago.

California 'Teen-Ager Wins Title For First Time In 65 Years

WIMBLEDON, (AP) — Maureen Connolly, petite powerhouse from California, whipped Louise Brough, 7-5, 6-3, Saturday to become the first teenager in 65 years to win the coveted women's singles title in the All-England tennis championships.

The 17-year-old bombshell, also holder of the U.S. singles crown, surged from behind twice to end the comeback hopes of the veteran Miss Brough, three times Wimbledon champion from 1948 to 1950.

Not since 1887, when Lottie Dodd, the 15-year-old girl wonder, won the women's title here has the queen of the courts been someone of such tender years.

GIVEN OVATION

Playing with the precision of a mechanical doll, Miss Connolly cut down Miss Brough, a fellow American, with a display of faultless ground strokes and uncanny anticipation. As she slammed home the winning point, the crowd of 13,000 jammed into the famed centre court rose and gave her an ovation.

While she received from the Duchess of Kent the silver plate that goes with the title, Maureen bubbled with laughter and joy—just like any other teenager caught in a moment of excitement.

Miss Connolly was not the only one to harvest tennis glory for Frank Sedgman, Australia's magnificent Davis Cupper, completed a "triple" by sharing in the doubles and mixed doubles title.

The Aussie teamed with countryman Ken McGregor to retain the men's double crown. They scored a thumping 6-3, 7-5, 6-4 victory over Vic Seixas of the U.S. and Eric Sturgess of South Africa.

Then Sedgman joined with Doris Hart of the U.S. to take the mixed doubles title. They defeated Enrique Morea of Argentina and Mrs. Thelma Long of Australia 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, to hold the crown they won last year.

LOSES IN DOUBLES

The 24-year-old Sedgman won the men's singles Friday in four sets over Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt. He also holds the U.S. singles crown—which makes him the No. 1 player in the world.

Miss Connolly had less success in the finals of the women's doubles. She teamed with Miss Brough but the two singles finalists were beaten by Miss Hart and Shirley Fry of the U.S., who retained their title 8-6, 6-3.

Here And There In Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cary Middlecoff won a sudden-death playoff from Ted Kroll on the first hole yesterday to win the $2,400 top prize in the Motor City Open Golf Tournament at Detroit. The two had tied with 274 at the end of the regulation 72 holes.

Lloyd Mangrum missed a playoff berth by one stroke, taking third-place money with a 275 total. Dick Mayer, another contender through the four-day tournament, tied with Roberto De Vicenzo of Buenos Aires for fourth place. Each had 277 and shared $1,200 fourth money and $1,000 fifth money.

MACKENS IN ACTION

Brendan Macken and Mrs. Hanna Sladek, both of Montreal, won the singles crowns of the Quebec Tennis championships at Montreal Saturday. Macken defeated his brother Jim for the men's crown, winning 6-3, 6-1, 6-1, while Mrs. Sladek whipped their sister Pat 6-2, 6-1 for the women's title. The winners won the Ontario singles titles the previous weekend in Toronto.

SET RECORD

BLUE MAN WINS

Blue Man, heading towards the 1952 three-year-old championship, displayed his delayed-action stretch drive at Aqueduct to win the $57,000 Dwyer Stakes Saturday at New York and become the leading money-winning horse of the year. The victory added $39,300 to Blue Man's bankroll which now totals $259,585 for the season. Blue Man, ridden by Conn McCreary and owned by A. W. Abbott of Rye, N.Y., drew away to a five-length win over Mrs. Ben F. Whitaker's Hitex. Golden Gloves was third.

P.-W. Club Defeated By Toronto Avro "A"

By C. H. IRESON.

The local cricketers lost 117 to 52 to the Avro A team in council play Saturday in Toronto. Wallace and Band with 15 each did much to take the score to 52 for four in their inning, but seven wickets were down for 67. Foster came through then for 19 and Brazier for 23 to take it to 96 and the total was 107. Extras were added to this. F. Booth had four wickets for 20, F. Dyer three for 46, and B. Smith three for 17. Good fielding had all wickets, but one falling to catches—and that one was lbw.

The P.-W. team opened with B. Roberts and F. Booth, leading batsmen, out without a run being scored, and seven wickets were down for 16. Good batting by the tailenders helped and the total reached 53 on good work by Boardman 15, Illingworth 10 not out, H. Dibben six, and W. Cridland. The total reached 58, larger than expected. Martingale had three for 19 for Avro and Cathcart four for 19. Seven of the Avro A team had appeared in their B lineup here the Saturday before.

In a series of trial matches in Toronto on July 1, F. Booth and B. Roberts played on the combined team from the Godin Division against Parkdale. Booth took three wickets for six and Roberts scored 27. F. Dyer also took part in the trials. Saturday's score:

Combines Win

OMEMEE (ENS) — Whitmore-Weir Omemee Combines trounced Quaker Oats in an exhibition softball game here Saturday evening to the tune of 18-3.

Steady pitching by Reg Gordon, backed by heavy slugging, proved too much for the visitors. Gordon whiffed 13, allowed but six hits, and walked three.

Haggarty, starting the mound for Quakers, was no obstacle for the O's, and lasted only three innings. He walked three and yielded six hits, one a circuit clout by Orlie Crawford which drove in three runs. Prescott followed Haggarty, but was notched for 12 safe hits. Frank Shine, an ex-Omemee hurler, pitched the last inning for the Peterborough crew, allowing two hits and striking out a pair.

N. Thompson led Quakers at bat with two hits and two R.B.I.s. B. Thompson, with a pair, was the only other visitor to collect more than one safety.

For Omemee, Orlie Crawford had three hits and drove in six runs. Jamieson, Mitchell, Craig and Gerry Bryans each had three hits.

Olympic Team In Helsinki Has Headache

By JACK SULLIVAN

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada's Olympic team arrived here by plane from Montreal late yesterday and ran smack into a large-sized official headache.

Awaiting the 70 athletes and accompanying officials at the huge Kapyla Village in the northern section of the city was Jack Burney of Vancouver who paid $100 out of his own pocket to come here from Germany, where he is stationed with the United States army.

He believed he was on the Canadian team as one of its entries in the 400-metre hurdles. He was in for a big disappointment—the entries for the Games closed Saturday and his name was not listed.

TIMED IN 53.8

The 24-year-old athlete said he has done the 400-metre hurdles in 53.8 seconds "at least eight times this year"—well under the 54.5 second standard set by the track and field committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

He had the news broken to him that he was not on the team by this reporter and almost broke into tears. Talks with Bruce Humber of Vancouver, men's track coach, and Jack Davies of Montreal, assistant team manager, did not bring him any solace. Humber has nothing to do with selection of the team and Davies said it is "too late to do anything.

"I've been training for the last six months," said Burney. "I've sent my times to Bob Osborne of Vancouver (A.A.U. past president) and it looks as if somebody pulled a fast one.

"The United States army gave me a 30-day furlough to come here. I turned down a chance to go to the United States to compete in the American Olympic trials—the army volunteered to pay my expenses—because I wanted to compete for my own country. And now I get this."

Burney produced a letter signed by Osborne and dated May 22 saying he attended a meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association a week earlier and obtained "what might be called temporary approval for your inclusion on the team."

The letter added:

"Definite recommendations will have to be made at the next meeting of the C.O.A. . . therefore I would suggest you proceed to make necessary plans to be in Helsinki if you are willing to take a reasonable gamble. Although I cannot give you the official green light at the present time I believe that if your progress continues there'll be no doubt."

(A. Sidney Dawes, president of the C.O.A., said Thursday in Montreal that a complaint had been made that Burney and John Turner of Toronto, now studying at Oxford University in England, should have been placed on the team. Dawes said neither was present at the Olympic trials in Hamilton "and the C.O.A. refused to alter its policy that only those who made the standards at the trials would be selected.")

Burney, called into the U.S. army 14 months ago when attending the University of Washington, said:

"I wasn't told I had to be in the Hamilton trials in order to qualify. Canada does not have an entry in the 400-metre hurdles and I'm in a position to help. Now I give up."

'The Drunkard' Begins Its 20th Year

By JACK QUIGG
(For Bob Thomas)

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"The Drunkard," a revered Hollywood institution whose patrons have guzzled 4,000,000 beers and munched 70,000 birthday cakes during its record run, begins its 20th year today.

It will be performance No. 7,085 of the local run of the 19th-century temperance melodrama, which has been presented nightly, come flood or earthquake, since July 6, 1933.

When the play opened, during the depression its backers hoped it might run four weeks, with luck. Last week the 2,000,000th customer came to hiss its villain. "The Drunkard" has long since passed the former long-run champion, "Life with Father," 3,218 performances.

BUSINESS BOOMING

Mrs. Mildred Ilse, one of the original backers and now sole owner of the enterprise, reports that as usual, business is booming. The 350-seat house is sold out three weeks ahead and she can foresee no end to the marathon run.

Film colony celebrities return again and again to the show. Mrs. Ilse says she can't think of a star that hasn't seen it. The late W. C. Fields attended more than 30 times. James Gleason, Boris Karloff, Mary Astor, Irvin Cobb, Harold Lloyd, Janet Gaynor, Dick Powell and Billie Burke have come 10 times or more. Ed Wynn, a staunch fan, will be guest of honor at the anniversary.

Why is the play such a hit?

"There is no simple answer," Mrs. Ilse says. "We try to create an atmosphere of sociability, like in the old English music halls. People don't come just to see a play. They come to have a good time, just as they would go to a nightclub."

BEER SUPPLIED

One intangible that delights "Drunkard" fans is the paradox of drinking beer at a temperance play. But there were no refreshments when the play opened. The audience sat in straight-backed chairs—and squirmed.

"We put in tables," says Mrs. Ilse, "but a table's no good unless there's something on it. We decided to try beer, the symbol of conviviality."

Since then the average customer has consumed three bottles of brew during the festivities. There's root beer, for youngsters and teetotalers, pretzels, and coffee and sandwiches between acts. All refreshments are included in the admission price—$2.50 to $3.50.

Other lures are free cakes for birthday celebrants and flowers for wives on their wedding anniversaries.

The show has gone on through an earthquake, in 1933, and a flood which cut off all power one night in the winter of 1938. On that occasion the performance was completed under the rays of flashlights.

"When the show was young," Mrs. Ilse says, "we were told we were doing everything wrong. We're still in business. Many of our critics aren't."

DONT'S THAT SAVE LIVES—Last year thousands of persons lost their lives by failing to observe simple safety "don'ts," according to Red Cross water safety experts. Pictured above are five of the most commonly flouted safety rules. At upper left: oarsman should make sure his hands are free before entering boat, should step in centre of boat (not on seat), and should have one passenger seated in bow of boat; at centre: pair risk cracked skulls with horseplay at concrete pool's edge; at lower left, oars are adrift, everyone is moving at once and standing too high and no one is holding on to boat's sides; and at lower right: a swimmer, who did not wait after eating before entering water, risks cramps. At upper right, diver risks broken neck for leaping without looking.

Canada Raises Some Bars On Immigration

OTTAWA (CP).—Canada is tightening her bars against entry of unskilled workers from Europe in reaction to demands from Canadian labor ranks.

Revised regulations tabled in the Commons Friday by Immigration Minister Harris will stop the flow of Italian workers altogether and spell out just what type of immigrants may be admitted under various regional headings.

This marks the first time the department has formally listed entry classifications country by country.

The ban on Italian workers started with the end of June but close Italian relatives of people already in Canada will still be admitted.

There are reports that the ban is associated with the discovery of racketeering in Italy in trying to gain illegal entry to Canada. The official explanation, however, is that there are enough close relatives wanting to come here from Italy to keep Canadian immigration authorities in Italy busy.

DOOR WIDE OPEN

The new rules leave the doors pretty well wide open for any Commonwealth, American or French people who want to enter.

From Belgium, Luxembourg, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, and Switzerland, Canada will accept nationals in certain trades who can pay their way here and maintain themselves until they get jobs; close relatives of Canadians and "cases of exceptional merit."

Holland will be allowed to send farm workers, some artisans and workers selected under agreement with The Netherlands Government as well as close relatives and meritorious cases.

Germany, Austria, Greece and Finland will be allowed to send farmers and farm workers, domestics, nurses and nurses' aides as well as close relatives and meritorious cases.

Israel, Turkey, Syria, Lebanon and Iran will be allowed to emigrate close relatives and meritorious cases.

All other European countries can send only close relatives.

India, Pakistan and Ceylon can send husband or wife and children of Canadian citizens plus 150 Indians, 100 from Pakistan and 50 from Ceylon.

QUEEN ON DECK—Gerard Patry, of Montreal, first Canadian winner of the $1,000 Nickel Cup, sits on deck of his winning boat with Norine Logan, Queen of the Thousand Islands. Patry, in his 266 Class craft, nosed out Bernard Daoust, of Lachine, in the annual Gananoque regatta.

Think St. Laurent Leads Liberals In Next Election

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal party strategists are finding one consolation in the series of defeats their forces have experienced lately in both the federal and provincial fields.

They are virtually satisfied now that Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent is going to lead the party in a 1953 general election.

The 70-year-old Prime Minister has been careful to make no outright commitments that he will run and unforseen circumstances could rule him out. But, as one informed source put it: "There is very much more confidence now that he will run again."

This arises partly from indications Mr. St. Laurent has given the Liberal caucus in the wake of Progressive Conservative victories in four of six federal by-elections.

With additional setbacks in the Saskatchewan and British Columbia provincial elections, Liberal morale has slumped and key figures have been arguing that the party would stand good chance of losing the next general election unless Mr. St. Laurent leads. The Prime Minister is aware of this apprehension.

He has been taking an interest in the current Quebec election campaign but will participate directly only to the extent of voting July 16. Another sharp Liberal defeat would reduce even further the odds against Mr. St. Laurent withdrawing from the federal field

OCTOBER ANNOUNCEMENT

It is felt in some quarters that Mr. St. Laurent will make his position clear in October when a postponed annual meeting of the National Liberal Federation is held in Ottawa. His answer to reporters' queries these days is blunt: "When I have made up my mind, I will announce my plans immediately."

Meanwhile he is at his summer home at St. Patrick, Que., and will spend some weeks between there and Ottawa. Trade Minister Howe is acting as Prime Minister.

LIVES IN OPEN

Officials Still In Dark As To Guelph Riot Cause

GUELPH (CP)—What caused the Riot?

Why did the prisoners in a "model" reformatory, almost to a man, join in a 12-hour orgy of window-smashing, incendiarism and general mayhem that caused some $200,000 damage to the institution?

Penal officials, newspapermen and the general public were still in the dark today, 36 hours after the outbreak at the Ontario Reformatory, as to what brought it on.

They knew it was similar to other prison disorders in Canada and the United States. Newspaper clippings found in the possession of Guelph prisoners showed their interest in these disturbances.

But there appeared to be no parallel in the grievances that touched off the earlier riots, most of them brought on by prisoners' complaints about poor food or harsh treatment.

As yet, the Guelph prisoners' complaints were known only to prison officials. The prisoners had not been allowed to communicate with the outside world.

FOOD GOOD

But Reforms Minister Foote, police and the reformatory staff agreed that the prison fare and treatment of the prisoners left few grounds for discontent.

Keith Childerhouse, staff psychologist, echoed the feelings of his baffled colleagues when he told reporters:

"The men have everything they could expect and more."

Like everyone else in the reformatory, he had seen the trouble coming but had been at a loss to explain it.

The heat could have had something to do with it. The best of prison menus and prison amenities can pall in 90-degree temperatures.

One thing appeared to be clear. The prisoners were more interested in destruction of property than in violence against their captors. A few guards were injured by flying debris, but the one guard held was well treated throughout his confinement.

London Bids Farewell To Faithful Old Trams

LONDON (AP)—Londoners bade farewell yesterday to their faithful old trams.

At the controls of the last tram —No. 1951—was the deputy chairman of the London Transport Company, John Cliff, who started as a tramcar conductor 52 years ago.

When one old tram broke down Saturday, tangling traffic for blocks, nobody got angry.

Passersby scrawled message on its side like "Goodbye love," and "Wait 'til the fog comes, then call us back."

Legal Status Of Canadians Now Problem In Japan

By BILL BOSS

TOKYO (CP)—Red tape experts here are trying to establish the legal status of the Canadian soldier in newly-sovereign Japan.

The question is: Who is to try and punish him if he commits offences against Japanese civilians?

The Japanese claim the right, since they now are a sovereign power.

Canada maintains the right to jurisdiction over her own troops. She says they are in Japan in consequence of Canada's participation as one of the United Nations defending Korea.

UNITS IN JAPAN

Actually, the number of Canadians stationed in Japan—mostly in Kure on the inland sea—is seldom more than 2,000. They comprise administrative, reinforcement and training units, together with medical and ordnance corps detachments attached to larger Commonwealth installations.

Japanese newspapers recently claimed Commonwealth troops w conducting a "reign of terror" in the city of Kure, where most are stationed and singled out Canadians for particular complaint.

However, a Japanese Foreign Office spokesman said the reports were greatly exaggerated and that most of the offences charged against the troops were minor ones.

The question of jurisdiction was foreseen long ago, before the conclusion and ratification of the Japanese peace treaty. When other Allied powers learned that the United States was concluding an administrative agreement with Japan, they pressed for one too.

They allowed themselves to be put off by the United States which suggested that its negotiations continue and the resulting agreement become the pattern for their own negotiations.

RETAINS JURISDICTION

The result was that the return of sovereignty to Japan, May 1, found the U.S. retaining legal jurisdiction over its troops, but the others without an agreement. Since then Japan has said she will negotiate on jurisdiction only with the Commonwealth countries, not with other U.N. powers.

Hence two U.N. soldiers leaving Camp Drake outside Tokyo on their holiday leave are on a different legal basis if one is in the United States Army and the other in the Netherlands'. The one, if he gets into trouble, returns to the custody of his unit, is tried by its court and punished by it. The other is detained by the Japanese and is liable to trial in a Japanese court and detention in a Japanese prison.

U.N. authorities here say the situation is manifestly unfair.

Representing Canada in the discussions are Hon. Arthur Menzies, charge d'affaires at the Canadian Legation, and Brig. Alan B. Connelly, chief of the Canadian military mission.

Pending an agreement the Canadians have a verbal understanding with the Japanese Foreign Office and the attorney-general's department that when Canadian soldiers are arrested they will be returned to Canadian custody and tried in Canadian courts.

To impress the Japanese with Canadian determination not to tolerate misconduct against Japanese ment has authorized the Commission has laid down the policy that such offences will be tried by general courtmartial.

GENERAL COURTS

Offences which usually might be dealt with summarily by commanding officers, or by district courtmartial, since May 1 have been tried by general courts.

The first courts, headed by Col. C.R. Boehm of Ottawa, sat in Tokyo. They tried two soldiers for robbery with violence. Pte. A.A. Churchill of Carleton Place, Ont., pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four years' imprisonment. Pte. F.J. Chapman of Toronto was acquitted after a three-day hearing on the same charge, but convicted of occasioning bodily harm and sentenced to six months' detention.

In cases heard in Kure, Able Seaman D. Blair of Toronto and B.M. Goleskie of Oshawa, Ont., pleaded innocent to robbery with violence. Blair was convicted of robbery with violence and sentenced to 3½ years.

There is a slate of 16 cases still to be heard in Kure, ranging from attempted rape and robbery with violence to simple public nuisance through drunkenness.

Although the Japanese government has authorized the ZCanadians to try each of the Canadians so far courtmartialled, the procurator of the Kure prefecture made what appeared to be a local challenge of the court's jurisdiction by refusing to produce witnesses on the first day of the Kure sessions.

Rogers, Q. C., and Mrs. Rogers of Toronto, were united in marriage.

Good Hot Weather Lunch Suggestion

Sometimes hot weather tends to dull our imagination, particularly when it comes to cooking. There are days when we just can't think of what to have for lunch or dinner.

An inspired meal for just such a day—suitable for either lunch or dinner—is Fray Bentos and Corn Casserole. The tempting goodness of corned beef combined with whole kernel corn and other ingredients makes a meal both delicious and satisfying. We like this casserole served with potato chips, either cold or hot, and a tossed green salad.

Your salad can be tossed with a delicious French Dressing or, if you prefer, a tangy homemade mayonnaise. An interesting trick to add interest to any salad is to throw in a few sprigs of fresh mint.

FRAY BENTOS AND CORN CASSEROLE

1 12 oz. tin corned beef
2 cups cooked whole-kernel corn
½ green pepper, chopped.
Salt and pepper
2 cups medium white sauce
Crumble or mince corned beef. Mix corn, chopped green pepper and salt and pepper. Place alternate layers of corned beef, corn mixture and white sauce in casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Serves 4-5.

Food Allergies

There are good nourishing foods that commonly disagree with some people. There is nothing wrong with the food but the individual is allergic or oversensitive to some foods which cause him to have stomach upsets, head colds, skin irritations.

Foods that commonly disagree with people are wheat, onions, cabbage, apples, milk, eggs, fats, cantaloupe, beef, strawberries coffee, lettuce, dried beans, cauliflower, melons, pork, corn, pickles.

Foods that commonly agree with people are lamb, gelatin, butter, sugar, rice, rye, barley, arrowroot, pineapple juice, beets, turnips, peas, potatoes, cooked pears, weak tea.

Patricia La Force Becomes Bride Of Wm. Sullivan

Nuptial mass was said at the Immaculate Conception Church Saturday morning for Miss Patricia Grace LaForce, Reg. N., and William Joseph Sullivan and their marriage was solemnized by the Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac LaForce of Gravenhurst and the groom is son of Mrs. Regina Sullivan and the late Mr. John Sullivan of Peterborough.

Roses and delphiniums decorated the altar table. Mrs. C. O'Donnell played the wedding music and Mr. Anthony DeNoble sang during the mass and at the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was gowned in Chantilly lace over net in ankle-length bouffant style with long sleeves and a high neckline. Her fingertip veil of tulle was caught to a mohair headdress with lily of the valley and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Jack Sullivan as matron of honor was gowned in yellow net over taffeta and wore a matching lace cape and picture hat of mohair. Her bouquet was of yellow roses. The groomsman was Mr. Jack Sullivan and ushers were George Sullivan and Michael Crebar.

Take Plenty Water

The majority of people do not drink enough water and yet water is needed for so many different parts of the body processes that from a pint to a quart should be taken daily.

The only individual who needs but a small amount of water daily is the one who is over-weight. The fat covering the overweight holds three times its own weight of water so that if not too much water is taken some of this excess water held by fat tissue will be used and weight reduced.

Baby's Comfort

Since the centre of the room usually has a better circulation of air, a baby's cot should be placed there during the very hot weather. The infant will usually require three times as many drinks of water during the hot weather. The water should be at room temperature, never cold, and, if at a summer resort where the water is not filtered, it should be boiled before being given to the baby.

CHERRY QUEEN—Ruth Madonna Belanger, 18, of Lake Lelanau, Michigan, will reign as queen of the 1952 National Cherry Festival, which begins on July 9. Queen Belanger won the title in competition with 17 other northern Michigan girls.

She attended school and was employed in Peterborough until a few years ago.

Jessie Dawson And N.Y. Man In Millbrook Church Rites

Delphinium, pink peonies and roses, and hydrangea formed the setting in St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, Saturday for the marriage of Jessie Caroline daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce B. Dawson of Millbrook to John Whitney Reichert, son of Mrs. George Reichert and the late Mr. Reichert of Lewitson, N.Y.

The Rev. A. M. Butler officiated. Miss Estella Hetherington played the wedding music. Before the bride entered the church Mrs. G. A. Spicer sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register she sang "Until."

The bride was charming in a gown of white bridal satin with tight-fitting bodice buttoned down the front with tiny self-covered buttons. The long sleeves were satin to the elbow ending in lace with scallops over the hand. The Elizabethan collar was also of lace, and the full skirt ended in a long train. Her long veil of embroidered nylon net was caught to her head with a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white gladioli.

She was given in marriage by her father. Wedding attendants were two sisters, Miss Anne Dawson, as maid of honor and Miss Dorothy Dawson as junior bridesmaid. The maid of honor's gown was of pale green with short puffed sleeves, and with the long tight fitting bodice of lace joined with a ruffle to the full net over taffeta skirt. The gown of the junior bridesmaid was of mauve embossed taffeta with sash of black velvet. Both wore heart-shaped headdresses of net and net mittens matching their gowns. They carried bouquet of blush pinks and yellow gladioli.

The groomsman was Robert Millville of Niagara Falls, and the ushers were Brenton Dawson of Ida, brother of the bride, and Harold Lunney of Port Hope.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where her mother received, dressed in blue-flowered white nylon with navy hat and accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother chose a dress of Alice blue, figured in white, with white hat and accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She also received.

To cut their wedding cake the bride and groom used an heirloom knife which had been used at the wedding of the bride's grandparents, at the wedding of her parents and of her two brothers and her sister.

Feminine Look

DALLAS.—One designer expresses his belief in the return to the feminine look promoting a beige tissue chambray with full lantern sleeves softly corded at the seams. The skirt billows gracefully and the hem has rows of cording around it to give a rippling effect. And international atmosphere has been added to this feminine feeling with a Belgian linen sheath beneath a sheer silk organdy plaid imported from Japan. But the frock still manages to be thoroughly Texan in execution.

DOROTHY DIX

Un-Social Wife Needs Companionship

DEAR MISS DIX: All of my 38 years I have wanted a companion my own age. I had no brothers or sisters, all my childhood playmates lived quite a distance from me so I grew up very much alone. After high school I had to be serious about earning a living as I supported my mother, so missed most of the fun 'teen-agers normally have. I thought I would achieve my ideal of a companion when I married, but it hasn't worked that way.

My husband's job was quite a distance from home, and he put in long hours, so we had little time together. That went on for ten years, then he was in service for four yars during World War II., during which time I went to work and had a small room to myself. I made friends easily, but was never invited to people's homes since they seldom welcome a third party. Now my husband is back from the war, we live in another town and I still have my full-time job. I see little of him since he goes to night school and has frequent business meetings on other nights. I can't join clubs, as he wants me home at 9:30 to give him a snack. On weekends he works in the garden in order to get fresh

I meet many interesting people but they won't invite us to visit when they find out my husband is seldom available. Here again, being a lone woman is a liability. I am incredibly bored with life as it is, and has been. All my activity is some form of work or study. What I want is fun, entertainment and companionship. Am I a case for a psychiatrist?

SHARRY.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Unfortunately, you do fall into a most difficult category, Sharry. A lone, attached woman has practically no niche at all into which she can fit. You are out of place in single groups and out of place with married couples since your husband is unable or unwilling to participate in their activities, or accept their invitations.

HE IS SELFISH

First of all, he is most selfish to expect you to be in every night at 9:30 merely to serve a meal he could easily manage for himself occasionally. Since he has his evening pleasures, you are certainly entitled to participate in club work, this being one of the few activities open to you.

The fact you have no children is also a handicap, since it is through youngsters that most friendships are made after marriage.

There is one course I could recommend most heartily as a change from the monotonous path you have been threading these many years, but it requires patience, courage, and optimism. If it is not absolutely necessary for you to keep your job, why not give it up for a time and join the Foster Parent movement?. By taking a child into your home under this plan you are under no obligation to keep him should the arrangement prove too difficult for you, yet you are giving yourself the joy of having a child in the house and helping a youngsted adjust himself to a troubled world. Your telephone book will give you the name of the agency nearest you — and so will your minister. There seems to be nothing wrong in your household that would make you unacceptable as foster parents, and the experiment will lead to worthwhile friendships for you, and give you a purpose in life—the lack of which is actually your crying need rather than lack of entertainment or friends. Try it, and let me know if the project is successful.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I was married for many years, until I found my husband guilty of infidelity and we were divorced. Now I have met a man who has become a very good friend. He thinks I am about five years older than he—actually the span is ten years. Do you think telling him the truth will make a difference between us?

IRENE G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It might, but the chance must be taken. Since his intentions appear to be serious, he is entitled to know the truth.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend is a very nice, handsome young man of 17—the same age as I. We have known each other five months and are very devoted, but I seem to doubt his affection. Sometimes I feel he is just making a fool of me. All the girls in school like him, and perhaps that is what worries me.

J. R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You worries are the natural and inevitable result of going with the handsomest boy in school. All the girls are bound to envy you and make a fuss over him. If you like him, have faith in his loyalty to you.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Increase Life Not Getting Too Fat

Overweight women between the ages of 20 and 64 have a death rate 47 per cent higher than their normal - weight contemporaries. (With overweight men the death rate is 50 per cent higher.)

So, my sweets, when you reduce to look beautiful and slim and young you are increasing your chances of living to a ripe old age and dandling your great-grandchildren on your skinny knees.

And do you know what? If you are overweight you can't blame your glands (1 case in 100,000 might). You can blame yourself —for you overeat.

Our reducing following in this column is like a band-wagon jammed to capacity, but we'll add another coach — for old-age's sake.

Diets for overweights that take only a certain number of days are of no permanent help. Face your overweight problem squarely: you have to eat moderately all of your life to keep your weight at normal—and choosing the basically nourishing foods is fun for you learn a lot.

Here is a guide for those who are amateurs at the reducing game: To maintain present weight multiply your weight by 15. This equals the number of calories you may have daily. (For instance I weigh 128 lbs. so I should have 128 times 15 which equals 1,920 calories, to stay at 128 lbs.—it's hard going, too!)

To lose weight subtract 500 calories from this number to drop 5 lbs. per month, which is safe in most cases. Your doctor should give you a go-ahead signal before you do any drastic dieting.

BREAKFASTS

(1) 8-oz. glass orange juice, 1 slice whole wheat toast, ½ pat butter or margarine; 1 egg; not fried; clear coffee or coffee with skim milk and sucaryl. (2) Half-grapefruit with no sugar, poached egg on unbuttered ½-slice whole wheat bread; ½-slice rye or whole wheat toast with ½ teaspoon butter and 1 teaspoon jam, clear coffee. (3) 1½ cups fresh raspberries without cream or sugar, boiled egg, 1 slice toast with ½ pat butter, clear coffee or cafe au lait (half strong coffee and half hot milk).

LUNCHES

(1) One 6-oz. cup clear jellied or hot consomme, salmon sandwich on 2 slices whole wheat with lemon and pickle and ½ pat butter, 8 oz. skim or buttermilk, 1 medium-sized ripe banana. (2) Canned apricot and cottage cheese salad on lettuce (8 apricot halves, ¼ lb. cottage cheese, 3 large lettues leaves 8, 8 oz. skim or buttermilk, 1 slice dark rye bread with ½ pat butter, 20 sweet cherries or 1 large orange. (3) Ham sandwich or rye, mustard and lettuce but no butter, 8 oz. skim or buttermilk, 1 tomato, 1 medium-sized ripe banana.

(1) Cream of spinach or celery or pea soup; 4-oz. slice lean broiled steak, 1½ cups tossed green salad with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise, 2 fresh fruits—apple and cherries or orange and raspberries, but no sugar, clear coffee. (2) Shrimp cocktail, 2 lean ¾-inch broiled lamb chops, 1 small baked potato, jacket on, ½ pat butter, 1 cup new peas (no butter), ½ celery heart, 2 large dessert plums, clear coffee. (3) Broiled liver and crisp bacon, 1 cup cooked wax or green beans, ½ pat butter, ¾ cup diced beets with lemon, radishes and carrot sticks, apricot or orange sherbet, clear coffee. (4) Broiled whitefish, broiled tomato halves—no limit, boiled new carrots, ½ pat pat butter, head lettuce salad with cottage cheese instead of mayonnaise, mixed fruit cup of unsweetened fresh fruits: banana, raspberries, orange, grapefruit. Clear coffee. (5) Roast chicken, spinach with lemon, boiled rice —¾ cup —with ½ pat butter, dessert fruit salad of fruits in season with white cream cheese instead of dressing, clear coffee or cafe au lait.

If you want my calorie chart write to me enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope, in care of this paper.

New Toni WITH PRICELESS PINK LOTION
Holds the set longer than any other permanent!

Which Twin's Toni was set a week ago—and which was set today?

Yes, both twins have Toni's. Julia Lacy, on the left, had hers set just before this picture was taken—Cynthia, on the right, had her Toni set one whole week before and never re-set it! You can't tell the difference. Here's proof that Priceless Pink Lotion gives a wave that stays lovely without re-setting!

You'll forget all other ideas about permanents the first time you use New Toni with Priceless Pink Lotion. For the new Toni process is faster, gives a wave with the vibrant spring and silky-softness of a natural wave. Yes, and it holds the set longer than any other permanent you've ever had!

Never a lotion so wonderful! You've never used anything like Toni's new Priceless Pink Lotion! It curls more completely—yet is kinder to your hair! And that means a lovelier, livelier wave for you. Less re-setting. New freedom from the nightly chore of pin curls.

Never a neutralizer so fast! You save 20 minutes with the new Permafix method of neutralizing. And because Permafix neutralizes more thoroughly, it "locks in" your Toni wave so it can't come out. New Toni means all day—every day beauty for you month after month.

Never a guarantee so complete! If you don't say your new Toni looks lovelier and holds the set longer than any other permanent you've ever had, the Toni Company will cheerfully refund your money. So try New Toni—and you be the judge.

6—In Memoriam

COPPAWAY—In loving memory of my dear brother, Chief George Coppaway, who was drowned last 6th July.
Short and sudden was the call,
Of one so dearly loved by all,
The blow was great the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near,
And only those who have parting can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
—Ever remembered by his sister, Esther Mae Taylor, Mrs. George H. Taylor.

COPPAWAY—In loving memory of our dad, George Coppaway, who was drowned July 6, 1951.
Gone dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
If we could speak with dad today,
Laugh with him in the same old way,
And hear his voice and see him smile,
Then life indeed would be worthwhile.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by his son and daughter-in-law, Eldred and Dorothy of Curve Lake.

COPPAWAY—In loving memory of our grandpa, George Coppaway, who was drowned July 6, 1951.
We miss you grandpa since you went away,
The once blue skies have turned to ashen gray,
Seems to dim the sunshine from the range,
But our memories of you will never change.
—Remembered by his grandchildren, Clarion, Delma, Ellen and little Jimmie.

COPPAWAY—In memory of my husband and a dear father, the late Chief George Coppaway, who passed away July 6, 1951.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought the end was near,
And only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
More each day we miss you, father,
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

Japanese Paper Says Terror Exaggerated

TOKYO (Reuters) — The independent newspaper Shimbun reported today that an alleged "reign of terror" by British Commonwealth troops in southern Japan was exaggerated by other newspapers.

The newspaper said its reporter found in a private investigation that of four alleged rapes by Commonwealth soldiers three of the complaints were made by prostitutes.

It added that minor offences during troops' sprees had been described as "crimes."

The reporter said: "The average citizen in Kure (the British Commonwealth base) has no fear after dark."

Parliament, however, has decided to send its own delegation to Kure to investigate the wave of press reports alleging rape, murder and assault by the Commonwealth soldiers.

Negotiations began today for an agreement with Japan to cover the position of Commonwealth forces here. A United States delegate, representing Canada, Britain, Australia and New Zealand will discuss jurisdiction, expenses, taxes, customs exemption and employment of Japanese labor with a Japanese Foreign Office official. U.S. troops are already covered under the U.S.-Japan security pact.

8 Go On Trial For Forging

LONDON (AP)—Eight persons went on trial in Yugoslavia today on charges of forging orders to get Roman Catholic priests out of prison.

Belgrade radio said the priests were "war criminals" and that the eight defendants had "composed forged decisions of the presidium of the Yugoslav National Assembly" to free them. Five of the defendants are Catholic priests, the broadcast said. The trial is taking place in the town of Mostar in Herzegovina.

The broadcast said the chief defendant was Father Smiljan Zvonar, guardian of the Franciscan monastery in Mostar, and that he pleaded guilty.

Woman Operates Tobacco Farm

VITTORIA (CP) — Blonde, 24-year-old Frances Feargue is believed to be Ontario's only woman tobacco grower, and she says she doesn't need a man on her 100-acre farm.

She does all her own hiring and firing of crews at harvest and hoeing time, but the rest of the year handles the farm by herself.

She took it over on the death of her father, Lindon Feargue, who had operated it for 19 years.

Frances was helping on the farm even before her father died. Last year she had 34 acres in tobacco and made a success of it.

Miss Feargue had been a stenographer in Toronto before she took over the farm. When her father died and she saw what plans he had made for the farm she determined to carry on.

Besides tobacco, she has 22 acres of oats and several acres of rye. The household chores are attended by her mother, Mrs. Annie Feargue, and her sister sister Imogene. But most of the farm work is left to Frances.

She makes only one concession to men: She says they are best suited for the heavy work.

Denmark Rejects US Protest Will Deliver Tanker To Reds

COPENHAGEN (AP)—Denmark today rejected an American protest against the proposed delivery of a Danish-built tanker to the Soviet Union. The move risked cessation of all U. S. economic and military aid to Denmark.

Foreign Minister Ole Bjoern Kraft had forecast the rejection in a statement last night saying there appeared to be no legal basis for halting delivery of the 13,000-ton tanker.

Kraft announced the decision to reject the U.S. protest after an hour-long meeting between Cabinet ministers and party leaders.

SOVIET CREW ABOARD

He said the tanker, the Apsheron, was free to leave for a Soviet port whenever the Russians want to pull anchor. The tanker is standing by with a Soviet crew already aboard.

Kraft said the leaders of the non-Communist political parties had given unanimous backing to the government's stand. He stressed that careful consideration had been given to the U. S. note, which had threatened to cut off all military and economic aid if the tanker was delivered.

Kraft said the tanker is being delivered under a three-year-old contract impossible to scrap.

Another tanker of the same tonnage as the Apsheron is being built here for the Soviet Union. Kraft said last night that work on it will continue since it is not due for delivery until September, 1953. By that time, he added, the Korean War may be over and a general relaxation of tension may occur.

Obituaries

WILLIAM HUGH CRAWFORD

Foreman of the toolroom of Western Clock Company for 20 years, William Hugh Crawford, formerly of Peterborough, died Thursday, July 3, in Plymouth Masachusetts, and was buried this afternoon in Detroit, Mich.

Surviving him are two sons, Chester of Detroit, and Emmons W. Crawford with Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Bowmanville.

Mr. Crawford lived for years in the house now occupied by Norman Armstrong, west of Crawford's Grove. Identity of family name was only a coincident. During his residence in North Monaghan township, Mr. Crawford met the two elderly sisters of the same name, but were not related to him. They were the last members of the family after whom Crawford's Grove acquired that name. The house of that Quaker family was on the east side of Monaghan Road at its extreme south end. Their property fronted on the Otonabee River.

William Hugh Crawford was the first man engaged in 1920 for the tool room department of Western Clock Company. Six weeks later Harry Baptie, now head of the company's personnel department, joined him. Mr. Crawford remained foreman until his retirement in 1939.

He was born in New York State, in the vicinity of Olean, Mr. Baptie informed The Examiner, and was employed with Canadian General Electric Company before transferring to Western Clock. He lived in Monaghan until his wife died.

WILBERT ALEXANDER DAVIDSON

A resident of Peterborough for nine years, Wilbert Alexander Davidson of 598 Sherbrooke Street, died early today in hospital. He was at a summer resort north of Peterborough Sunday when he was suddenly stricken with a heart attack.

Mr. Davidson was the Ontario representative of the Canada-West Indies Molasses Co. of Montreal. eH is best known locally for his connection with Timber Structures of Canada Ltd. He was one of the original partners of the firm and was manager in 1950.

Mr. Davidson was born and educated in Kemptville and spent the early part of his life there. His parents were the late Gilbert W. Davidson and Annie E. Powell.

Before coming to Peterborough nine years ago he lived in Perth.

He leaves his widow, the former Edith King, three daughters Phyllis, eBth and Marilyn, all at home, a brother Gordon of Toronto, two sisters Mrs. Bruce Percival (Veleda) and Mrs. Alvin Ralph (Mabel), both of Kemptville.

Mr. Davidson was an active member of Trinity United Church and a member of Prince of Wales Lodge, A.F. and A.M., Perth.

The funeral will be at the Comstock Funeral Home, 2 p.m., Wednesday, the Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MISS BEVERLEY M. GIBSON

Miss Beverley Mildred Gibson, 25, daughter of Lawrence Gibson and the former Lillian Routley, 483 Parnell St., died Saturday after a lengthy illness.

Miss Gibson was born in Peterborough and has lived here all her life. She attended King Edward School and P.C.V.S. and was employed at Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. before her illness.

A member of St. James' United Church, she was a C.G.I.T. leader and former president of the Junior Mission Circle.

Besides her parents she leaves, two sisters, Mrs. L. Prophet (Mae) and Anne, and one brother, Jack, all of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the Kaye funeral home. The Rev. H. D. McCormack of St. James' United Church will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

2 Canadians Take Port In Tie Shoot

BISLEY, England (Reuters)—Two members of the Canadian rifle team will take part in a tie shoot tomorrow after dead heats in two of today's service rifle events.

In the "kneeling" competition, seven shots at 300 yards from a kneeling or sitting position, there was a tie with 33 out of a possible 35 between Maj. T. W. Hall, New Westminster Regiment, Flt. Lt. R. J. T. Hardyman, R.A.F., and Cpl. B. R. Creasy, R.A.F.

In the difficult 500-yard shoot for the B.S.A. prize, Cpl. W. S. Marshall, 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade, put all seven shots into the bull, to find afterwards that his highest possible score had been equalled by SSM. S. E. Taylor, Royal Engineers.

Senator Duffus Welcomes News Of Federal Bldg.

"The calling of tenders for the Peterborough postal-customs house is of special interest to me because it is the culmination of a project on the Charlotte Street location which was begun when I was a member of Parliament," Senator J. J. Duffus commented today to the Examiner.

"I have continually kept in touch with Mr. Fournier, Minister of Public Works, as well as with the Deputy Postmaster, Mr. Turnbull. More than three years ago Mr. Turnbull informed me of the plans for the federal building that was to be built here, and the intention of the department to provide latest facilities in its equipment as a school of instruction for postal officials from all over Canada."

"I would like to have the public know that I have been actively interested in this government project," Senator Duffus said. "It is not a matter of looking for any credit, but simply to indicate that I try to carry out my responsibilities in so far as I am able."

The Charlotte St. site was purchased in 1938, but construction was placed in abeyance at the outbreak of the Second World War. More space was required than was available at the north-east corner of Water and Sherbrooke Streets.

"We are in the second generation since the original site was bought by the government when the late J. Hampden Burnham was the member of the Commons from Peterborough. The intention of the department to erect a postal-customs building had to be postponed by the war in which Germany and Austria threatened the world in 1914. It is to be hoped that the government will be able to proceed with the construction of the Peterborough building and without any further interruption of its plans."

Marmora C.W.L. Holds Meeting

MARMORA (ENS)—Members of the Catholic Women's League met Wednesday at the summer home of Mrs. B. W. Hughes on Crowe lake.

Mrs. Hughes, as president, conducted the meeting. Mrs. Rose Johnston reported that several boxes of used clothing and used stamps had been forwarded to the western missions and a thank you had been received.

Mrs. E. D. O'Connor and Mrs. Ford Woodhouse reported five visits made to sick and shut-ins and Mrs. Joseph Doyle and Mrs. P. Browley volunteered to make the visits during the summer.

The C.W.L. will cater to the Chamber of Commerce meeting in September at which Premier Leslie Frost will be guest speaker and 300 guests are expected.

Past president, Mrs. Cooke, presented with a crystal table centre and matching vases. Mrs. Hughes was presented with a cup and saucer for her hospitality.

Mrs. Hughes then gave the Rev. J. A. O'Neill a cheque for the second installment on the hall chairs and a personal cheque.

Mrs. Hughes reported on events at the Diocesan conventions in Kingston in June.

Mrs. Donald Shannon, program convener, presented the following program: a piano selection, The Petite Waltz by Mrs. E. Shannon; a reading by Mrs. J. McCrodan; a quiz contest in which the winner was Mrs. H. English.

A pot luck dinner was enjoyed and some games played.

After the C.W.L. meeting, the Altar Society held a brief meeting at which secretary-treasurer Mrs. A. M. Jones, reported on the year's activities. A cheque was presented to Father O'Neill. Father O'Neill thanked the members for the cheque and for looking after the altar linens and decorations.

It was decided that the present executive would remain in office for another year. They are: Mrs. C. Crawford, president; and Mrs. Jones, secretary-treasurer.

New Minister Inducted At Camborne

COLDSPRINGS (ENS). — The congregations of St. Paul's United Church, Coldsprings, Camborne, and Bethel Grove welcomed their new minister and his wife, the Rev. V. M. and Mrs. Gilbert, at the induction service on Friday night in Camborne church. The Rev. Gordon J. A. Whitehorn of Seymour, was in charge of the service. The Rev. A. C. Luffman of Baltimore, gave the address.

The Camborne choir with Mrs. William Jibb, organist, led in the service of song. Mrs. Allan Bowman sang a solo. The Rev. Whitehorn gave the charges to the new minister and to the congregations. Assisting were the Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of Campbellford, and the Rev. A. C. Luffman, Baltimore, representatives of the Cobourg Presbytery.

The church was tastefully decorated with a profusion of summer flowers.

600 Americans Die Over Holiday

CHICAGO (AP)—More than 600 Americans died violent deaths during the four-day Independence Day week-end. The toll was far from a record for a holiday week-end.

Traffic accidents took 346 lives —far short of the 430 the National Safety Council had predicted and 17 less than the number who died on the highways during a similar 78-hour Memorial Day period.

But 185 drownings helped boost the total well beyond the Memorial Day figure of 519.

Deaths from miscellaneous accidents amounted to 69.

READY FOR THE BIG SHOW—Interior of the Convention Hall in Chicago, Ill., shows the floor seating for delegates in the foreground, the platform in the mid-dleground, and the seats for spectators and guests in the background. The hall will be filled to overflowing when the big job of nominating a G.O.P. candidate for President gets underway today.

Dunford Reunion Held In Apsley

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — The Dunford reunion, held at Apsley Parish Hall, was a most successful occasion with 188 attending. Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Boord and their daughter, Miss Parthena Boord, of Indiana, were the family attending from the farthest distance and Mr. W. J. Dunford of Lakefield, who is 91 years of age received congratulations on being the oldest member present at the reunion.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent renewing old acquaintances and a program of races was run off. A delicious supper followed.

Results of the races were as follows: girls 5 to 8 years, Dianne Northey, Joan Crawford; Boys 5 to 8 years, Gordon Coons and the Dunford twins, Garry and Charlie; girls 9 to 12 years, Carroll Hopkins, Pauline Dunford; boys 9 to 12 years, Brian Dunford, Johnnie Dunford; girls 13 to 15, Carroll Hopkins, Donnie Dunford; boys 13 to 15, Peter Dunford, Bobby Dunford.

Single women's race, Miss Elaine Wasson; married women's, Hazel Drum; single men, Hugh Dunford; married men, George Hopkins; sack race, Elaine Wasson; three-legged race, Max and Colleen Dunford.

The prize for the couple married the longest time went to Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips of Toronto and the couple married the shortest time to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jeff of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dunford of Bryson's Landing took the prize for the largest family with 11 children, all of whom were at the reunion. The oldest lady present was Mrs. C. Brown of Alpena, Mich. and the youngest baby was Heather Dunford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dunford of Lakefield.

Officers for the coming year elected during a short business meeting were: president, Gordon Dunford of Lakefield; vice-president, Mrs. G. A. Boord of Indiana; secretary, Miss Ora Dunford of Lakefield.

Expect C.C.F. To Place 20 Members In B.C. House

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia today still wearily awaited the outcome of its general election held 26 days ago.

After a Sunday break, counting of alternative choices, which started last Thursday, resumed. The C. C. F. and Social Credit are staging a photo-finish drive to collar the largest group of seats in the 48-member Legislature and form a minority government.

When returning officers resumed tabulation in the 10 seats still to report final returns, this was the standing:

| | ELECTED | | LEADING |
|---|---|---|---|
| SC | 15 | CCF | 6 |
| CCF | 14 | SC | 2 |
| Lib. | 6 | PC | 2 |
| PC | 2 | | |
| Lab. | 1 | | |

So far, 38 of the 48 seats have been decided, including the Vancouver East seat of C. C. F. leader Harold Winch. His election, based on the unofficial first count election night, must still be confirmed by complete first count figures, including absentee votes. The 10 seats still outstanding are all in Vancouver with the exception of Delta and Comox ridings.

If current leadings hold up, the C. C. F. will place 20 members in the House and Social Credit 17. However, second count returns in two-member Vancouver - Burrard showed Social Credit gaining on the C. C. F. leaders. If they could overtake the C. C. F. in Burrard and hold their two current leadings, they could take 19 seats to the C. C. F.'s 18.

NEED 25 seats

Neither party would be able to command 25 seats, necessary for a bare majority.

New counts were required under the alternative voting system, where a candidate must have a majority of votes to win a seat.

So far, alternative choices have upset the result in five seats from what it would have been if the simple "X" system had been used as in all previous elections. On completion of the first count, the Liberals were ahead in New Westminster, Fort George and Yale. New counts lost them these seats, including Premier Byron Johnson's New Westminster riding. The C. C. F. was leading on the first count in Nanaimo and Similkameen but lost the former to the Progressive Conservatives and latter to Social Credit on new counts.

Ohio Visitor Dies On Holiday

The body of Robert Lewis, 51, of Lima, Ohio, who died suddenly here Friday night, was returned to his home by C.P.R. train Saturday evening for burial.

Mr. Lewis suffered a heart attack in a local hotel room about 9 p.m. Friday. Dr. Herbert N. Young reported that death was caused by coronary thrombosis, and that Mr. Lewis had a heart condition for some time.

He was accompanied by his wife, his brother, and sister-in-law for a vacation in the Kawarthas. The party had arrived by car late in the afternoon, and put up here for supper.

Death abruptly cut short the holiday outing of the Lewis party just as it was beginning, and severed one of two ties of matrimonial relationship. The two Lewis men were married to sisters.

Killed In Fall From Car Girl, 2, Buried

A large crowd of relatives filled the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jackson, Paudash, with friends standing outside to pay final tribute to Shirley Irene Jackson, aged 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jackson, Paudash.

Born at Honeywood, the family moved to Paudash last November, and two months ago to the Marriott home at Paudash Lake where Shirley died June 30.

Having spent a few happy moments with her grandparents she was returning home in the car driven by her mother when the door suddenly opened and Shirley toppled to the road, striking her head and died almost instantly.

Besides her parents, she leaves a brother Bobby, aged 1, her grandparents, Mrs. Wilson, Bolton, Ont., and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jackson, Paudash.

The many beautiful floral tributes showed the love of a saddened community where the little girl will be sadly missed by all who knew her.

A comforting message was delivered by Rev. K. Cutler of Bancroft United Church.

Bearers were Don Woodcox, Don Vader, Ray Horsepool, Gary McKenzie, David Martin, all of Paudash and Billy Jackson of Toronto. Burial was in Mount Pleasant cemetery, Bancroft.

Won't Attempt To Beat Record

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters)—George E. Cove, captain of the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth, said last night his ship will not attempt to set a speed record for a transatlantic crossing.

"You can take it for granted that there will be no attempt to beat the S.S. United States," he said after the 83,000-ton Elizabeth docked here.

The United States completed the Atlantic crossing early today in three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes—10 hours and two minutes faster than the Queen Mary.

In the Queen Elizabeth's most recent crossing she covered the 3,125 miles from New York to Cherbourg in four days, 12 hours, 33 minutes at an average speed of 28.79 knots.

Diligenti Quintuplets Go To School Attend 5 Different Boarding Schools

By ROMAN JIMENE

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Argentina's most famous team has been broken up for disciplinary reasons. The Diligenti quintuplets, now in their eighth year, have been sent to five different English boarding schools.

Father Franco Diligenti, the well-to-do, Italian-born factory owner who since the quints' birth has been sheltering them from the glare of publicity, quietly decided earlier this year that the children should be treated as single units.

"They were becoming an increasingly serious problem," he said in an interview. "Their team spirit, a wonderful thing in most cases, was just too much for their mother and myself and their teachers and servants."

DEVELOP INDIVIDUALITIES

Diligenti, a busy man who has little time to spare, and Mrs. Diligenti, whose restraining influence was strained no end, agreed that, harsh as it may seem, the best for the kids was to have them separated.

"Besides," Diligenti explained, "we wanted the children to be educated as any other boys and girls. We wanted their individualities developed. When they went to the same school, the teachers and the other pupils could not help treating them as the quints."

It's different now, said Diligenti, who has firmly requested headmasters and headmistresses to be more stern with his children than with other pupils.

The five now study, play, eat and sleep in schools miles apart. They get together only on rare occasions on week-ends—but never the five of them at the same time.

Their father takes them out for a couple of hours, singly or, at most, by twos, every Saturday.

Franco, junior, who has not yet decided what to be when he grows up, and Carlos Alberto, the prospective airman, met only once in the last three months.

CHANGING IDEAS

Their three sisters—Maria Cristina, Maria Fernanda and Maria Esther—have changing ideas about their wishes for later in life.

Diligenti said this is the beginning of proof that he was right in splitting the team apart. Before, he said, the five were apt to keep to a thought-pattern when one of them had any idea.

He plans to keep them segregated for years. By contrast the 18-year-old Dionne sisters of Callander, Ont., the world's only other quints, have always been together.

The plan to keep the five young members of the Diligenti family in their distant schools all year is so strict that even the traditional birthday party, a lavish affair every July 15, will be skipped this time.

The earliest date contemplated for a full family reunion is sometime in December when the quints will take their first communion.

Diligenti said he chose English schools for the quints because he thought they offered the best chances of a stern discipline and he wanted the children to learn English correctly.

Besides, he commented, their old team spirit should serve them well in sports such as practised in English schools.

QUINTUPLETS SEPARATED — Father of the Diligenti quintuplets has sent them to five different boarding schools. He feels their personalities will develop and they will get better discipline. At right: two of the quintuplets, Maria Esther, left, and Maria Fernanda, both dressed in uniforms of schools which they attend, leave the Diligenti home in Belgrano, a suburb of Buenos Aires, after a visit. At left: Maria Cristina, who attends the same school with her elder sister, Mayda, 13.

ARGENTINE QUINTS—Argentina's famous Diligenti quintuplets—Franco, Jr., Carlos Alberto, Maria Cristina, Maria Esther and Maria Fernanda—for the first time in their lives won't pose together when they become nine years of age July 15. Their father, Franco Diligenti, a well-to-do Italian-born factory owner, has sent them to five different schools. Two of the Diligenti quintuplets, Maria Fernanda and Franco Jr., get together during a brief visit to the Diligenti home at Belgrano, a suburb of Buenos Aires. Bottom: Carlos Alberto gets a school insignia from a matron at the St. George school he attends in Quilmes, a Buenos Aires suburb.

New Bathing Suit Shows Take Over On Broadway

NEW YORK (AP)—Water, water everywhere is a new Broadway theme song as a batch of bathing-suit shows moves into the entertainment spotlight for the summer tourist season.

In recent days three items stressing the great outdoors and the old swimming hole have settled down with every indication of healthy runs. One of them is actually in the traditional theatrical section of Times Square, while the other two have stretched out as far as the sand dunes on Long Island's south shore.

[illegible]'s swimming and diving aquashow is at the old World's Fair site in Flushing Meadow Park, and Mike Todd's gondola-and-song spectacle "A Night in Venice," in the new $4,000,000, 8,200-seat Amphitheatre at Jones Beach.

Both shows are ideal for youngsters for there's never a hint in either of the sophisticated or risque which sometimes cause a hit of family concern on Broadway.

The Aquashow is the eighth annual outdoor edition put on by Murphy who concentrates on water ballets, high-diving exhibitions and zany antics by a batch of aquatic clowns—all set to music.

The Jones Beach spectacle, "A Night in Venice," is basically an 1883 Johann Strauss operetta never performed before in this country, with extravagant variations interpolated by the spectacle-minded Todd staf.

On Broadway proper at the Imperial Theatre is the third wide-open-spaces show, "Wish You Were Here."

This Leland Hayward-Josh Logan production tells of athletic and romantic doings at Camp Karefree, a summer camp for adults.

Piece de resistance of the show is the first-act finale performed in a mirrored swimming pool actually built into the stage for this production. There is also a full-fledged basketball game.

3 Men Killed In African Riot

JOHANNESBURG — (Reuters)—Three Africans were killed here yesterday in a riot between native vigilantes and Basutos of the New Clare native township.

The dead were members of the native civic guard, an unofficial body formed by the Africans themselves to protect the township.

A few minutes before the clash a riot squad of white police was rushed to a church being stoned by friends of a drunken native who had been thrown out.

The police left 20 African constables guarding a bridge which divides the part of the township occupied by a Basuto faction know as the "Russians."

Civic guards, seeing the riot squad leave, invaded the "Russian" territory. When police returned both warring factions had vanished, leaving the dead behind.

The planes were on the second lap of a 9,000-mile mass flight from Albany, Ga., to Japan.

The Air Force said success of the mission so far proved the "global mobility" of the Strategic Air Command.

Discount Trend As Dollar Climbs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Should Canadians accept the United States dollar at par value when their own dollar is quoted on a higher level? Most Canadian businessmen have done so until now, but with their dollar reaching new heights at New York, there are signs today of a change. At New York yesterday the Canadian dollar for a time hit its highest point in terms of United States funds in 19 years, reaching $1.04⅝. It dropped at the close to $1.03½. A Canadian Press survey showed many Canadians are being forced to reassess the situation.

The problem was expressed by George Matthews, secretary of the Retail Merchants Association at Vancouver. He said: "We accepted the U.S. dollar at par until now as a goodwill gesture. But the discount has increased so sharply our members are taking too much of a financial beating."

Others, who remembered the time when Canada's depreciated dollar was accepted at par at border points, looked for ways out. The Victoria Chamber of Commerce decided yesterday to recommend that merchants wait until banks discount the U.S. dollar a full five per cent before following suit. The Ontario Hotel Association decided on a similar course last week.

A survey at that time in Toronto showed U.S. tourists could still get full value for their money.

At Ottawa the specialty shops section of the city's Board of Trade yesterday suggested that stores discount U.S. money on all sales under $5 but give full value on sales over that amount.

In Montreal, the tourist and convention bureau and the Hotel Owners Association said they no longer are urging their members to accept American funds at par.

FOUR P.C. DISCOUNT

Halifax reported that large stores accept currency at par and absorb the loss. But some 6,000 men of a U.S. naval force there were hit for a four-per-cent discount for paper currency at restaurants and small stores. Tourists are treated like the sailors.

In the west, Edmonton's stores accepted U.S. funds at par. One big store said it will stop when the discount reaches five per cent.

A quirk of the exchange problem turned up in Ontario where a survey of border cities showed that most stores in Detroit, Port Huron, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and other places accepted the Canadian dollar at par. Only banks and a few gas stations paid the premium. Some Detroit businessmen still insisted on taking Canadian money at a discount.

Once Kidnapped, John S. Labatt Dies In London

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—John S. Labatt, wealthy London brewer who was the central figure in Canada's most celebrated kidnapping for ransom, died today at his summer home at nearby Port Stanley following a heart attack.

Death came to the former president of the Labatt Brewing Company of London almost 18 years after he was kidnapped—on Aug. 14, 1934—on a deserted road near Sarnia and held for $150,000 ransom. The money was never paid and he was released on Aug. 17 after being held captive at a summer cottage in the Muskoka district 130 miles north of Toronto.

THREE CONVICTED

Three men served penitentiary terms on charges connected with the kidnapping. Jack Bannon of Windsor and Russell Knowles of Detroit each was sentenced to 15 years. Michael McCardell, a native of Dublin, Ont., who was arrested at Crown Point, Ind., got a 12-year term. Gerald Nicholson of Windsor was given a suspended sentence on a charge of being an accessory for driving the car which

Engine Fails, Pilot Rescued

NORTH LUFFENHAM, Rutland, England (CP)—A pilot of Canada's No. 439 Sabre jet squadron was rescued today about eight miles off The Wash after his engine failed, forcing him to bale out.

The pilot was picked up by a United States amphibian plane and taken to a U. S. Air Force hospital. His injuries were slight.

The pilot was in one of four jets on a routine flight commanded by FO. Tom Wheeler of Winnipeg. Wheeler saw the pilot blown clear of the plane and sent an SOS. Later, with Flt. Lt. Bill Bliss of Port Arthur and Toronto and Wing Cmdr. Bob Davidson of Vancouver, Wheeler helped locate the pilot in The Wash.

The rescue by a U. S. Albatross aircraft took less than two hours from the time of the SOS.

No. 439 squadron recently flew from Canada to join No. 1 fighter wing here. A pilot of the same squadron disappeared with his plane last week.

Liquor Buying In U.S. Reaches High Level

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans spent almost one-half as much on alcoholic beverages last year as they did for the things they wear.

The Commerce Department said yesterday $9,150,000,000 was spent on liquor, wine and beer, an average of $59.80 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

At the same time they spent about $20,000,000,000 for shoes and clothing.

Report Mossadegh Refuses Accept Decree

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Informed sources said today that Mohammed Mossadegh has refused to accept a royal decree reappointing him premier of this near-bankrupt country because the Senate failed to give him a clear vote of confidence.

There was no official confirmation of the report, which came from persons close to Mossadegh.

The Senate yesterday postponed a vote of reappointment until after Mossadegh formed a government and presented his program. But it advised Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi to continue the aged nationalist leader in office.

The Majlis, lower house of Parliament had voted overwhelmingly to reappoint Mossadegh, who had resigned in accordance with tradition when a new Parliament opened last week.

Police Patrol Mexico City After Riots

3 Killed, 200 Injured In Aftermath Of Election Count

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—Soldiers and police patrolled the streets and blocked all roads leading to Mexico's capital city today in the wake of political riots which left at least three killed, 200 injured and another 300 under arrest.

Similar outbreaks were reported in other Mexican cities. All apparently were quelled quickly, however, and there were no indications of any deaths or injuries.

Further outbreaks were feared today. Government sources said last night's riots were only the rising by supporters of anti-government candidates running far behind in the counting of votes from Sunday's presidential elections.

The disorders ended the political peace which had reigned since the polling began.

DEATH TOLL 15

Although there were only three known dead, official sources estimated the toll might reach 15. Thirty-two of the injured were listed as in serious condition.

Scores of United States tourists were reported affected by tear gas fired by police as the fighting swirled near the Del Prado hotel.

Gen. Leandro Sanchez Salazar, Mexico City police chief, blames "Communist students" for the bloodshed. He said they refused to disperse and threw stones at police.

The rioting began last night when police attempted to break up a "victory celebration" called by supporters of Gen. Miguel Henriquez Guzman. He is running far behind the government candidate, Adolfo Ruiz Cortines, in unofficial returns on the two-thirds of Sunday's vote so far reported.

Two Children Die In Flames

BRIDGEWATER, N. S. (CP)—Two young children were burned to death today despite heroic efforts of their mother, critically burned as she tried to carry a baby from their flaming home at New Germany, 18 miles from here.

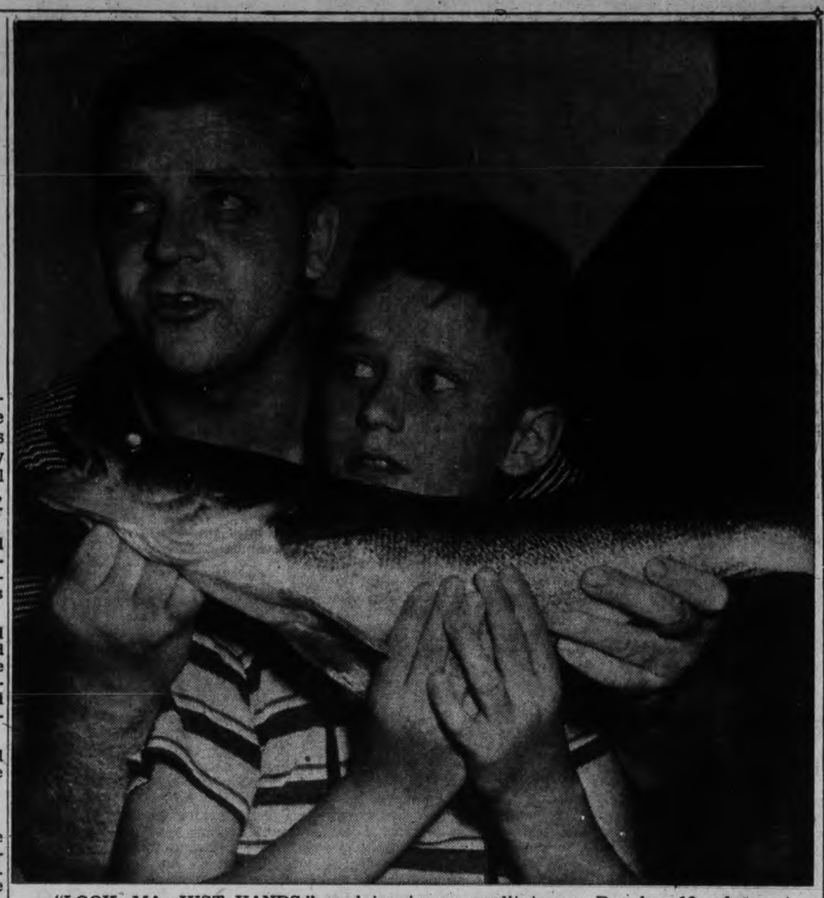
Dead are Diane, 9, and Wayne, 8, children of Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Conrad.

Mrs. Conrad is in critical condition in hospital here along with a son, James, 2, whom she was carrying from the burning house when she collapsed.

On two previous trips she carried Dale, 7, and Marion, 12, from the building uninjured.

Her husband, rushing to the house from a nearby field, suffered serious burns as he pulled his wife and son James from the house.

Geraldine, 12, was injured when she leaped from the second-storey window of the frame farm home.



"LOOK, MA, JUST HANDS," explains Toronto fisherman George King who caught a 4½-pound pickerel on Monday afternoon by the believe-it-or-not method of snatching the fish from the Otonabee River below the London St., dam. George gave credit to son Douglas, 10, who spotted the pickerel in the first place. Perhaps the heat made the fish lethargic or perhaps the hand is deadlier than the hook, after all.

Top German Kidnapped In U.S. Zone

BERLIN (AP)—Dr. Walter Linse a top official of the West Berlin Free Jurists, was kidnapped this morning and driven off to the Soviet zone amid a flurry of gunshots.

The head of the economics department of the Free Jurists, Dr. Linse was attacked by three men shortly after he left his home in the United States sector. He was dragged into a car which drove at high speed into the Soviet zone.

BERLIN (AP) — The West Berlin city government decided tonight to blockade all roads leading into the surrounding Russian zone to prevent kidnappings by the Communists.

Several people who noticed the kidnapping and pursued the car were shot at.

The kidnappers threw hundreds of nails out of their car. One of the pursuing cars had to give up the chase when a tire was punctured.

RAISE BARRIER

When the car containing the kidnapped official reached the border the Communist peoples police raised the barrier and let the car pass. The car had a West Berlin licence plate.

The West Berlin Free Jurists is an organization of democratic lawyers which attempts to keep tabs on what is going on in eastern Germany, particularly concerning the legal rights of the population.

Earlier today, French officials announced that the Russians had nabbed one of their high officials, Jean Benoir, as he strolled along the Soviet zonal border and held him in captivity for 24 hours.

14 Red Tanks Thrown Back

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Fourteen Communist tanks—the heaviest concentration of Red armor in a month—supported a probing attack last night by a Chinese company against United Nations positions on the Korean central front.

About 200 Chinese were thrown back in the one-hour fight which closed to hand-to-hand combat. Allied troops counted 39 Reds killed and estimate 30 others died in the battle.

The tanks and Communist artillery pounded U.N. positions along the Nam river valley in the Kumsong area with 1,570 shells.

U.N. troops hitting a Communist-held hill on the central front were repulsed by 200 Chinese using automatic weapons, artillery, mortars and a flame thrower.

2 Girls Beaten With Gun In 100-Mile Abduction Ride

GODERICH (CP) —Two young girls were in hospital here today following a 100-mile ride last night with an abductor who beat them over the head with a gun after he tied and blindfolded them. Muriel Campbell, 13, of Kitchener and Carol Parkinson, 12, of Guelph, are being treated for slight head injuries.

Kitchener police arrested a suspect about 40 years old early today at his home about 12 miles from Kitchener in Waterloo county.

Police said the two girls were swimming at Eramosa, just north of Guelph. As they came out of the water a man asked them if they would like to go for a ride and when they refused he struck them each five or six blows on the head with the barrel of a revolver and forced them into a motor car.

Police reported that the man tied and blindfolded the two youngsters and beat them during the drive. They said he tried unsuccessfully to rape the two girls.

DUMPED ON ROAD

After hours of riding, the girls were dumped on a sideroad 12 miles north of here last night.

They wandered to a farmhouse where Roderick McKenzie and his wife took them in, gave them food and phoned for medical aid and police.

Dr. Norman C. Jackson, who treated them at hospital, said their abductor was definitely a psychopath.

A psychopath is a mentally deranged person.

Mr. McKenzie said the girls were "scared kids" when they reached his farm.

"They knew it was a late-model car but that's about all, they were so scared and had been beaten so much."

He said the girls were wearing sweaters and shorts. They walked into the yard at dusk, carrying their bathing suits.

"We had no idea what had happened at first. My wife gave the girls something to eat while I called a doctor and Provincial Police."

17 Resigning Committee Jobs

OSHAWA (CP)—The Children's Aid Society here has announced resignations of 17 members of its house committee.

A rift is believed to have followed a recent meeting where complaints of "shocking" conditions at the shelter were heard.

Mrs. I. Moss, vice-chairman of the committee, said she understood investigation of the complaints had turned up "practically no foundation for the complaints."

Resignations of seven more committee members are expected.

The committee's work entails visits to the children's aid shelter, sewing layettes and preparing a summer cottage for the children.

Evict Airman, Family Legion Pickets House

AJAX (CP)—R. C. A. F. Cpl. James Livingstone and his family of four were evicted from their home last night by bailiffs working under orders from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Today members of the Canadian Legion picketed the home in protest. Livingstone said the eviction was ordered because the house had been sold. He had made first bid to buy the house but was refused. He said his wife and children probably will have to return to Alberta.

Ajax is 15 miles east of Toronto.

Children Found In Toronto Park; Seek 2 Other Men

TORONTO (CP) —Frank Jollymore, 28, was arrested and charged with kidnapping early today just a few hours after two young girls, missing for nine hours, were found in west-end High Park. Police are continuing their search for two other men who are believed to have been in the car which stopped to pick up the girls, aged 9 and 12, as they played near their home. The girls, dazed and sobbing, were found wandering about the park early today.

Search for the girls started when a playmate, who refused to go "for a ride" in the car, reported the incident. She had taken the car's licence number. The girls said the men kept them in the car until 5:30 a. m. and then left them in High Park.

Labor Peer Asks Red Dean Curbed

LONDON (AP)—A Labor peer today called on the government to take legal action against Dr. Hewlett Johnson. Almost at the same moment the self-styled "Red" dean of Canterbury was telling a press conference here he was convinced the allies are using germ warfare.

Lord Ammon, a former Labor party leader, filed a question in the House of Lords sharply attacking the dean for statements "reflecting on the conduct of British troops liable to create ill-feeling with other nations. . .and to bring the church into disrepute."

Dr. Johnson, one of the directors of the Communist Daily Worker, of London, returned today from an eight-weeks visit to Communist China. During his tour he was quoted by the Communist Chinese news agency as saying he had found "most damning" evidence of Allied germ warfare in China.

Eighteen months ago a similar call for government action against him was refused by former Prime Minister Clement Attlee.

Husky Quadruplets Take Milk Formula

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—Maine's husky quadruplets took a milk formula today and cried for more within 24 hours of their unexpected birth yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilas Pinkam's babies continued thriving in a special nursery at a hospital and their 35-year-old mother was on her feet.

Mrs. Pinkham, who declined an anaesthetic during the delivery, probably will leave the hospital in a week but the quads are expected to stay two weeks. Her husband, 45, is a carpenter.

American Team Leads 2-1 In Fourth Inning

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia (CP) —Curt Simmons, the 23-year-old left hander who only three months ago was a United States army sergeant in Germany, took the mound for the favored National Leaguers today against Vic Raschi of the American League in the 19th annual all-star baseball game.

The start was delayed due to rain.

The weather was hot and humid and rain still threatened as baseball's finest talent took the field before a capacity crowd of 32,750, and a radio and television audience.

An early-morning downpour threatened to force postponement of the game for the first time since its inception in 1933.

NO BATTING PRACTICE

Neither team was able to take batting practice as a heavy protective canvas was left on the infield and the wet outfield grass was given a chance to dry out. Despite the rain and threat of more, half the bleacher section was filled several hours before game time.

The starting line-ups:

Will Reject Claim By Sask.

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott indicated today the federal government will reject Saskatchewan's claim that $1,500,000 was withheld illegally from final payment to the province under a federal-provincial taxation agreement.

In an interview, Mr. Abbott said an arbitration board had upheld the federal government's view that final payments should be adjusted on the basis of the 1951 census figures.

Under the agreements, covering the five-year period ended March 31, 1952, the provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec—agreed to give the federal government almost exclusive use of the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields. In return the provinces were to receive payments based on population and the value of gross national production.

In Regina recently provincial treasurer C. M. Fines said the federal government withheld approximately $1,500,000 from Saskatchewan's final payment because of a difference between the estimated population figures and the 1951 census figures.

Churchill Rejects Economic Federation

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill today poured cold water on a proposal by Labor member Frank Beswick for an economic federation of the Commonwealth.

Churchill said he does not regard the proposal as practicable because economic federation would not be possible without a political federation.

"That would involve surrender by every Commonwealth government including the United Kingdom government, of such a wide range of economic powers that every member of the Commonwealth would cease to be a sovereign state," he said.

"Even if the United Kingdom were prepared to face this possibility it is clear other Commonwealth governments would not."

Canadian People Nice

But Russians Don't Like Government Of Canada

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—The Russians are always careful to say Canadian people are a very nice lot, but that doesn't go for the Canadian government.

Canada comes up quite a bit these days in the Soviet press and radio commentators also talk about it considerably over the Moscow radio.

There seems to be rather a fixed idea about the Canadian government, or what the commentators call: "Canada's ruling circle."

They say emphatically that these Canadians are just stooges of the U.S.A., and that they follow almost to the letter the policies (particularly foreign) of the Americans.

Note was taken here of Canada's protest to Washington of the transferring of Canadian troops to Koje Island without prior consultation.

JUST A "MANOEUVRE"

One commentator scoffed at this and said it was just a "manoeuvre" on the part of Canadian officials to give the impression that they were free to do what they wanted to with their forces in Korea, whereas everyone really knew it was up to the Americans.

Much criticism has been levelled at the Canadian government recently for allowing American military units and experts into Canada's northern areas. Soviet commentators have gone so far as to say Canada is just a dependency of the U.S.A.

Month after month the Soviet press hammers away at this idea of northern bases and the arrangement whereby Canada allows it. The Canadian government is also denounced for its membership in the North Atlantic Alliance.

Canada's leaders are often called "aggressive" and devoid of friendship towards the U.S.S.R.

B.C. CASE

Russian newspaper readers have recently noted with what must be considerable indignation a case of what was described as a Soviet citizen being killed in Canada and the person responsible let off with light sentence. This has been played up prominently.

(The case referred to is apparently that of a Polish-born immigrant in British Columbia who died of a fractured skull after being struck by a man who objected to him speaking Polish. The assailant was convicted of manslaughter, fined and sentenced to one day in jail. On appeal by the Crown the jail term was raised to 18 months.)

The commentators have often told their readers and listeners, however, that the doings of the Canadian government do not coincide with the likes and wishes of the Canadian people.

They express the view that there are many persons in Canada friendly towards the U.S.S.R. and that better relations would exist if it were not for that Canadian government.

One Of Best Navigators

Never Got To College But Now Expert

By H. DENT HODGSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The navigator's navigator for the free world in 1952 is Sqdn. Ldr. K. R. Greenaway, from Woodville, Ont., who never got beyond high school but found his way around places and problems the ancient mariner never dreamed about.

At 36, Sqdn. Ldr. Greenaway recently received at San Francisco the Thurlow award, given annually by the United States Institute of Navigation to the man who has made the greatest contribution to navigation.

He is second Canadian to win the award during the seven years it has been presented. The other is Wing Cmdr. K. C. Maclure of Westmount, Que. Both are R.C.A.F. officers attached to the Defence Research Board.

The Thurlow award has also been won by a Briton, an Australian and three navigation experts from the United States. All were civilians. The two Canadian winners are the only servicemen.

ARCTIC EXPERT

Sqdn. Ldr. Greenaway's special field is Canada's backyard—the Arctic. Navigationally speaking, the Canadian Arctic presents problems not encountered in any other part of the world, which makes it a perfect laboratory.

The Woodville native who joined the R.C.A.F. in 1940 now has a job few men could hold down without a PH.D. degree. He's not sure, but he thinks he got his junior matriculation. After that, it was simply midnight oil; no tutors, just textbooks and on his own.

An association at D.R.B., Miss Moira Dunbar, a scientist in her own right, edited his book, "Arctic Air Navigation." It is full of high level algebraic equations and graphs. It is used as a military textbook by the U.S. Air Force and the R.A.F.

The main problem of the Arctic is still the fact that the north magnetic pole, roughly speaking, is half-way between Churchill, Man., and the North Pole. This makes navigating by compass relatively easy in any part of the world but Canada's Arctic.

In those parts, fliers go by gyroscopic instruments, which they correct by the stars or the sun.

EASY FOR RUSSIANS

Significantly, Russia, just across the Pole, has no such problem. Russian pilots in their own part of the Arctic Circle are as well off, from a compass point of view, as a man flying in Texas. For this reason, much of Sqdn. Ldr. Greenaway's work is on the secret list. An unpracticed Russian navigator, untrained in the ways of Canada's northland, could lose his way.

Sqdn. Ldr. Greenaway, with D.R.B.'s Arctic section since 1948, is credited with much of the work which has kept Canada in the forefront of Arctic navigation—particularly important with the new emphasis on the north.

He joined the R.C.A.F. as a radio man, with little more than a knowledge of electronics and an interest in geometry and geography. He spent most of the Second World War instructing in radio and radio navigation.

Among his achievements are the discovery in April, 1947, that Borden Island, named after Sir Robert Borden, is really two islands. One of them was named Mackenzie King Island.

And while he modestly lets it go, D.R.B. men say there was some publicity recently about the Americans discovering three "ice islands" drifting in the northern sea. Sqdn. Ldr. Greenaway discovered one of these, and 30 others.

Ike's Forces Score First Victory

MacArthur Criticizes Policy Leaving

CHICAGO (CP)—Two five-star generals held the interests of the Republican National Convention today. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who wants to be the Republican nominee for President, went into the convention's second day with a psychological victory over the forces of his chief opponent, Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who was removed from his job 15 months ago as Supreme Commander in the Far East, and who then announced he was going to "just fade away" like the old soldier song, rocked the convention with his oratory in the keynote speech last night.

MacArthur is not a candidate and there was no complimentary demonstration suggesting his candidacy, although delegates and spectators in the crowded stockyards amphitheatre cheered his oratory loud and long.

DIDN'T START

Eisenhower's workers, led by young Senator Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, did not even have to precipitate the fight they won on the convention floor yesterday over the disputed delegates from Texas, Louisiana and Georgia.

For a reason not explained the Taft forces brought up the hot issue, rising from the claims of Eisenhower forces that the Republican machine had prevented the popular delegate from these states, 68 of them, from selection as delegates because they were largely supported by Democrats who would turn Republican for Eisenhower.

The Taft forces, making what they claimed was a magnanimous gesture, offered a resolution which would have prevented certain of these delegates from voting on their own right to be seated as delegates.

The Eisenhower forces refused half a loaf, and in amendments moved for removal of all 68 from the privilege of voting on their own right to be seated. The Eisenhower people won a 658-to-548 victory.

TAFT CONFIDENT

Pro-Eisenhower forces immediately seized on this as an indication of how the vote will go when the balloting for a candidate starts. But the Taft forces claimed the 548 are the hard core of the Taft support and will remain through enough ballots to gain the additions to give the Ohio Senator the necessary 604 votes to win.

The real meaning of the vote will not be known until the nominations Wednesday night.

The candidates do not go near the convention hall until after the nomination. Thus the delegates have no chance to be swayed by the personalities except in the meetings constantly going on in hotel rooms.

But their workers do the spell-binding for them and the Eisenhower orators in yesterday's scrap seemed to have the edge from every point of view.

MacArthur, not quite the dazzling figure in mufti that he presented in his war togs, was eloquent and impressive in his keynote speech. He is for Taft and there has been considerable questioning about the selection of a keynoter so strongly committed in advance to a candidate for nomination. He never mentioned either candidate.

CRITICIZES IKE

But the general did make an indirect attack on Eisenhower when he criticized the war policy which left Russia in such a strong position in Europe.

"We practically invited Soviet dominance over the free peoples of eastern Europe through strategic disposition of Soviet force at the close of the European war," he said.

"We foolishly permitted the encirclement of Berlin by Soviet forces, rendering almost inevitable the tragically-high cost we have had to pay to force open lines of supply and communication between our zones of occupation there and in West Germany."

Eisenhower was the Supreme Commander in Europe.

Eisenhower and Taft headed toward another clash over delegate contests today. The big convention seemed triggered to explode over a Credentials Committee report on the seating of 93 delegates from seven states, most of them Taft backers.

Of these, the 68 from Georgia, Louisiana and Texas were barred from voting on any seating contests until their own status is decided finally.

CONTROLS COMMITTEE

Although Taft was beaten on that issue he bounced back to capture control of the convention's Credentials Committee. This group named former representative Ross Rizley of Oklahoma, a Taft backer, as chairman.

Some Eisenhower leaders feared the committee would bring back to the convention—possibly today but more likely tomorrow—a report giving the Ohio Senator the bulk of the contested delegates. They promised a bristling floor fight in that event.

Eisenhower and Taft leaders were revising their strategy as a result of the 658-to-548 vote on the rules change.

The latest Associated Press tabulation of delegates gives Taft 534, Eisenhower 429, other candidates 131 and leaves 112 uncommitted. A total of 604 is needed for election.

PRISONERS RIOT—The Ontario reformatory at Guelph, 70 miles west of Toronto, was taken over Saturday night by almost 1,000 surly, cursing prisoners. The prisoners, wielding knives, wrenches and meat cleavers, took command within half an hour. At least four guards were hurt, none seriously, by thrown pieces of tile and plaster. Shown here are two of the reformatory's three compounds, with rioters milling about Sunday morning. The last 450 holdouts surrendered Monday afternoon.

Last Of Rioters Surrender

GUELPH—(CP)—Another night in the open behind them, some 900 prisoners buckled down to a temporary outdoor life at the Ontario Reformatory here today while repair crews worked to fix buildings damaged during the weekend's $200,000 riot. Last traces of the disturbance petered out late yesterday when 450 surley, bedraggled prisoners were disarmed, searched and given water. Later they had a bread-and-milk supper. The complete surrender came almost some 40 hours after the prisoners had wrecked dormitories, furniture and stores of food, clothing and equipment. Last night, the prisoners slept in jail compounds as they did Sunday night.

Ten men accused of leading the riots, which suddenly broke out Saturday night, gave themselves up yesterday. They stepped out of the compound ranks after their names were called. They were quickly marched to new cells.

MAY LAY CHARGES

Prison officials said charges of assault, threatening and unlawful assembly may be laid against the prisoners who instigated the break.

Earlier in the day the prisoners in the outside compounds were ordered to behave while police officers and guards searched them —20 at a time—for weapons. The search yielded a small harvest of razor blades, wrenches, knives and keys.

Meanwhile Premier Frost called for punishment of the riot leaders without making them heroes.

TO PUNISH LEADERS

He said they will receive "justice tempered with understanding" but ringleaders will pay the penalty for their misdeeds. One of the things which "appalled" him was the wanton destruction of foodstuffs.

Prisoners told reporters they had planned to take over the prison to draw attention to food grievances, treatment by guards and lack of machinery for airing complaints.

Although some guards said discipline broke down after Reforms Minister Foote insisted that no prisoner be strapped without his approval, Maj. Foote denied that the new rule was an attempt to "mollycoddle" prisoners. Three prisoners were strapped last week.

The temperature in the yard where prisoners remain reached the 80s yesterday. Huddling under blankets in an effort to escape the broiling sun, they yelled for water.

Guards handed small paper cups to them through an opening in a ripped screen. Each contained about a mouthful of water.

SOME FAINT

Several older prisoners fainted from the heat and thirst and were promptly evacuated from the area by guards. When a few of the younger prisoners tried to act out heat prostration they were severely dealt with.

The riot broke out about 8 p.m. Saturday when prisoners returning from their evening sports period slugged a guard and armed themselves with tools, baseball bats, chair arms and metal bed legs. From there they ran rampant through the reformatory wrecking everything in sight.

Hint Nehru Peace Plan On Truce Being Studied

LONDON—(AP)—An informed source said yesterday the United Nations are in close consultation on an offer by India to help negotiate a settlement in the Korean truce deadlock. Prime Minister Nehru of India said June 21 he would be "happy to offer our services" in finding a way out of the Korean deadlock. At Ottawa, officials declined comment.

In Washington, the report was denied by the State Department.

"It's simply not true," a spokesman told a reporter.

OTHER ITEMS

Monday in the House of Commons, Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd, said the U.N. were consulting on more than just the Communists' repatriation offers as a means of breaking the deadlock.

"We are in touch with U.S. Government and other interested governments on the latest proposals to resolve the deadlock," he said in a discussion of the Communist repatriation offer. He added:

"We are also in touch on other proposals designed to achieve the same objective."

He did not explain the other proposals.

Lloyd told Commons in a brief discussion on Korea that the new Communist proposals should be carefully considered.

Lloyd also agreed with Labor M.P. Woodrow Wyatt that "these proposals represent a slight advance and should be followed up rather than damped down."

Russians Protest Killing Of 2 POW's

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The chief Communist armistice negotiator today protested that the United Nations Command killed two Communist prisoners of war and wounded eight on Koje Island last week.

The protest coincided with an official U.N. announcement that two North Korean P.O.W.s were killed and nine wounded on the prison-camp island last week in a series of isolated incidents.

The delegations held their fifth successive secret session on the truce-blocking issue of prisoner exchange. The delegates will meet again tomorrow.

Railway Union Begins Parley

MONTREAL (CP)—Union representatives of 125,000 railway workers and officials of Canadian railways opened negotiations here yesterday on a new collective agreement to become effective Sept. 1 next.

The unions, whose strike two years ago halted Canada's railways for nine days, want an increase of 45 cents [illegible] cost-of-living [illegible] a union shop and [illegible] union dues.

The meetings, being held in private, are expected to continue for several weeks.

A joint company statement Friday said the 45-cent increase would cost the two principal companies —the Canadian National Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway $150,000,000 a year. If non-union groups were included, cost would be $167,000,000 a year, they said.

1,000 Japanese Riot In Nagaya

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese police clashed with 1,000 rioting Communists last night in a 3½ hour pitched battle in Nagoya, Japan's third-largest city.

Kyodo news agency reported one person was killed and at least 63 injured, including 56 policemen. At one point police fired into the mob of demonstrators as they hurled stones, wielded bamboo spears and tossed fire bombs.

The riots started after a three-hour demonstration at Osu baseball stadium, where 7,000 turned out to welcome two Japanese who recently returned from a visit to Communist China.

Jimmy 2, Promised Cigars For Birthday

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Little Jimmy McLaughlin has exacted a solemn promise from his mommy for his second birthday Aug. 3—a big box of Italian stogies just for himself.

Jimmy was getting a little tired of mooching his father's cigars. He began smoking when he was eight months old.

"He picked up daddy's cigar one day," said his mother, "and there's been no holding him ever since. He's unbearable all day long unless he has his early-morning cigarette."

She estimates his daily consumption at six cigarettes and one cigar.

Jimmy, who has been carrying on conversations since he was one says he likes fun and girls in addition to cigars and wants to play baseball for the Giants.

Stock Prices Show Moderate Decline

TORONTO (CP)—Prices showed a steady but moderate decline today in slow early afternoon stock market dealings.

Activity dwindled from a dull opening. Volume for the first three hours was 826,000 shares.

Utilities, liquors and refining oils led industrials lower with a scattered list of fractional declines. Foods, textiles and manufacturing companies also slipped.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 25 cents. Britalta, Central Explorers, Gridoil, Husky, Devon-Leduc and Gas explorations were among the heaviest losers.

Base metals were mixed. Dominion Asbestos, Hudson Bay, Opemiska and Sherritt-Gordon strengthened while Consolidated Smelter Torbrit and United Asbestos weakened.

Senior golds sagged as Giant Yellowknife, Hollinger and Teck Hughes turned downward. Secondary issues showed little trend.

The exchange's 1 p. m. indices showed industrials down 1.00 at 318.47, golds down .01, at 91.93, base metals down .14 at 187.30 and western oils down .35 at 136.57.

Man Goes For Taxi Ends Up In Hospital

Beaten up when he went into a taxi stand office to obtain a cab about midnight Monday night, Thomas Waterfield, 31, Wenona Cabins is in Civic Hospital recovering from facial injuries and a possible fractured jaw.

Conflicting stories about the fracas told by Waterfield, and his companion who waited outside while Waterfield went into the office and taxi drivers who witnessed the incident are being investigated by police but no charges have been laid as yet.

CAR UPSETS

John Charles Greenfield, address unknown, was not injured Monday when his car upset in the ditch, a half mile north of South Monaghan village on Highway 28. The car reportedly went out of control and rolled over upside down in the east ditch. The roof and one side of the car were damaged. Provincial Police from Cobourg investigated.

OFFICIAL DIGNITY

None of the members of the council skipped last night's regular meeting, although some of them shed coats and loosened ties. The others followed the example of Mayor Waddell through the session from 7:30 until nearly 10 p.m. The mayoral dignity offered no concession to the July humidity and atmosphere. He also wore the gold chain of his office as usual over his jacket.

Once Kidnapped

brought Mr. Labatt to Toronto for his release.

Another man—David Meisner, Cincinnati bookmaker—got a 15-year sentence following his conviction on charges of abduction, detention and armed robbery. Meisner was freed after McCardell confessed that the kidnapping was carried out by himself, Bannon, Knowles and Albert Pegram. Pegram was never captured.

SUCCEEDED BY BROTHER

President of the Labatt Brewing Company at the time of the kidnapping, Mr. Labatt retained that office until 1950 when he became a director and consultant on brewing to the company his grandfather founded in 1832. He was succeeded as president by his brother, Hugh. The brothers had been active in the firm since 1900.

Born at London, March 10, 1880, Mr. Labatt attended Trinity College school at Port Hope and McGill University, where he obtained the degree of Bachelor of Science.

Mr. Labatt was kidnapped as he drove from his summer home near Camlachie, not far from Sarnia, to London. In his abandoned car was found a note, signed "Three Fingered Abe," demanding payment of $150,000 ransom. It directed Hugh Labatt to go to the Royal York hotel in Toronto, where the kidnappers would get in touch with him.

RELEASED IN TORONTO

He was released in Toronto, about four miles from the centre of the city, his eyes taped. He removed the tape and got a taxi to the hotel. Later, it was disclosed that he had been chained to a bedpost during his detention. The Ontario government offered $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the kidnappers.

After studying Detroit police photographs, Mr. Labatt named Meisner and Albert Pegram as two of his kidnappers. Meisner surrendered to police at Detroit, waived extradition from the United States and was tried at London.

His trial brought out stories on earlier Canadian kidnappings—all of brewers. One was Charles Burns, president of Carlings brewery, who was said to have paid $25,000 for his release in 1931. Another was the case of Sid and Moe Nathanson, formerly in the brewery business in Windsor, who were reported to have paid ransom of $30,000 in 1927.

Mr. Labatt was an officer of the order of St. John of Jerusalem, a member of the art museum board of trustees of London public library, a director of Beck Memorial sanatorium, an honorary member of Ontario Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion and, during the Second World War, a member of executive of the national war finance committee and London citizens' rehabilitation committee.

He was a member of the London Hupt and Country Club and of the London Club. An Anglican, he was a member of St. Paul's cathedral.

Surviving are his widow, the former Elizabeth Anne Lynch of Ottawa, a daughter, Mary, and two sons, John and Arthur.

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, archbishop of Canterbury and highest-ranking prelate in the Church of England, said no disciplinary church action could be taken against the dean for his personal opinions.

Less than 12 hours after returning to London from his Chinese trip, the "Red Dean" called a press conference today to put forward what he described as "irrefutable facts" about germ warfare.

He read a long prepared statement saying he had visited several places in north China where he claimed germ bombs had dropped on Chinese territory.

PARRIES QUESTIONS

The dean said he examined some of the insects in test tubes but parried all questions about them with the statement, "I am no bacteriologist."

He admitted that he had not seen anyone who had contracted any disease through germ warfare.

"Immediately after an air raid warning has sounded," he told the conference, "masses of children go out in the fields and swarm through them picking up insects with chopsticks."

Town Refused Financial Aid Erect Blinker

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS). — The Campbellford town council met on Monday evening with all present and Mayor W. A. Kingston in the chair.

A letter was received from W. A. Anderson, division[illegible] of the cost of establishing a blinker light on Bridge St. E., on a bad curve on the outskirts of the town. The curve has been the scene of one or two bad accidents and numerous minor crashes have occurred at the spot.

Council asked to have a blinker light installed at the curve, or to have a 15-mile-per-hour speed limit set for that particular stretch of highway. The curve is not a true engineering curve, but was referred to as a 'kink' by the department. Council decided to take no action regarding the blinker light, but felt the 15-mile-per-hour speed limit should be laid down. Proper signs and a reflector will be erected.

P. G. O'Sullivan, local insurance agent, asked about the liability insurance the town carried. He said it was too low and the present policy had 11 restrictions and exclusions. He outlined a new and broader policy the town could buy at an additional premium of $130 a year, and after much discussion council decided to take out the new policy at a premium of $369. The new policy covers the community arena, town employees and councillors and anything the town might be held liable for by law.

TRAFFIC BYLAWS

Discussion regarding the enforcing of bylaws relative to traffic regulations brought forth many varied opinions. Councillor Maybee and Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason complained that they are being blamed for having the parking bylaws enforced and were very upset over the criticism being levelled at them, when they have nothing to do with it. Councillor Maybee said he did not think the parking problem was serious enough to necessitate both policemen patrolling Front St., while cars sped across the bridge on Bridge St. on open nights "at 50 and 60 miles an hour." He felt the police would do more good checking speeders then they would chalking tires.

Councillor A. F. Collette, chairman of the police committee said that if any member is blamed for enforcing the bylaws to send the person making the complaint to see him, as he was enforcing the traffic bylaws and would continue to do so with the support of council.

Councillor Isobel Tatham said she did not see why anyone had to make apologies for enforcing the laws, and said to Deputy Reeve Mason and councillor Maybee that for every person who criticised the efforts of council, there were a hundred or more who congratulated them. She said that traffic conditions in the town were better now than they had been in many months and she wanted to see the police continue to enforce the traffic regulations.

Councillor Collette said that it was impossible to work the two policemen eight hours a day each and still give the town 24 hour police protection. He said there was a need for another man on the force.

Councillor Tatham said that if the two councillors were to take the attitude that they did not want the laws enforced that they might just as well tear up their bylaws and let motorists do as they like. Deputy Reeve Mason said he wanted to see the laws enforced, but did not want to accept the whole blame for enforcing them. Councillor Collette said he would have a notice published in the local press saying he was responsible for enforcing the bylaws and this will be done next week.

Councillor Free reported for the legal committee, and read a report from the town solicitor N. Alex MacColl, stating the town was not liable if a pedestrian were struck while crossing the street within one of the painted crosswalks. Councillor Maybee asked for the report as he claimed the town would be responsible if a pedestrian were struck, due to the fact council had painted the crosswalks on the roadway for the protection of the public. The present bylaw will be amended to include the two recently painted crosswalks, one on Front St. north and one near the post office, and this will be submitted to the Department of Highways for approval.

Councillor Free also reported on the progress made in drawing up the restricted industrial areas of the town. He said a bare minimum estimate of the cost of zoning the town would be about $250 according to the town solicitor, and asked council whether or not they wanted to go ahead with the plan this year. Councillor A. F. Collette was in favor of shelving the plan until council found out more about it, but as the plan of fact finding is part of the ground work of the project, council decided to go ahead with the groundwork and to eventually draw up and pass the bylaw restricting certain classes of building in various sections.

J. C. Birmingham, tax collector, reported he had collected $63,848.46 in 1952 taxes as well as $5,096.98 of arrears which he considered better than last year at the same time. This represents over half the taxes.

Permission was granted to the Campbellford Rotary Club to use Bridge St. E. for their street carnival on the three nights of July 10, 11 and 12.

A civic reception committee consisting of Mayor W. A. Kingston, Reeve R. J. Locke and Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason and Councillor Isobel Tatham, was named to look after the entertainment and welcoming of three double deck buses from London, England, which will be in the town on a goodwill tour on Wednesday, July 30. Councillor Tatham said she would prepare tea for the visitors and Mayor Kingston said that all members of the council would be expected to meet the buses on the outskirts of town, and accept a ride on them.

Dates for the August and September meetings of council, which would ordinarily fall on the first Monday, were changed to August 11 and September 8 due to the holidays which fall on the regular meeting dates.

A grant of $500, which had previously been approved and budgeted for was made to the Campbellford Hospital and added to the pay sheet on a motion of Reeve R. J. Locke.

Reeve Locke said he believed the town should have a smoke bylaw and as this had been discussed in the past with the town solicitor, the legal committee was instructed to prepare a bylaw for presentation at the next meeting.

Council adjourned after passing the pay sheet.

Canadian Theatre Seen At Its Best In "Streetcar"

While the object of a theatre is to entertain, its reputation is made and sustained on those occasions when it undertakes to entertain its audience with first-rate plays. The Summer Theatre has entertained its audience through the past two weeks with a couple of plays of trivial quality; this week it tackles one of the most demanding plays in the modern repertoire "A Streetcar Named Desire," by Tennessee Williams (whose name, through an inexcusable oversight, did not appear upon the program). The quality of the Summer Theatre may be measured by the admirable manner in which they rose to the challenge which the play presents.

Briefly, the play tells of the last stages in the destruction of a woman who is not equal to the problems with which her life presents her. Unskilfully acted and directed, it could be sordid, but as this company plays it, the sordidness is always secondary to the poetic feeling of the play. I have seen this play performed by a New York company with far less sensitivity and true appreciation of its pitying comment upon life than is displayed by the local company. All of them, and Michael Sadlier as director, are to be congratulated on a strong, yet delicate, handling of a difficult and eminently worthwhile play.

EMOTIONAL RANGE

The heaviest burden of the acting falls upon Betty Leighton, who as the unfortunate Blanche Dubois shows a big emotional range, allied with a fine artistic command which keeps her from overstepping what Hamlet calls "the modesty of nature"; the pity which she arouses in us is the finest tribute that can be offered to an actress. Second only to her is Gerry Sarracini who, as her brutal but vital brother-in-law gives the finest performance which we have ever seen from him, and far above the standard which may reasonably be expected even in such a good stock company as this one. Here are two performances which would draw praise far beyond the bounds of Canada.

Limits of space forbid careful consideration of all the cast. Kate Reid is excellent as Blanche's sister, who lives in thrall to Kowalski; a little more restraint in the last moments of the play, when the emphasis should be upon Blanche's pathetic exit, would put this performance on a very high standard. Peter Mews gives a sensitive and moving performance as Mitch; he has the great and rare gift of mingling comedy with pathos.

The production is excellent and the setting and lighting are distinguished. The music is sometime obtrusive; it should be a hint, rather than a bold statement.

The first night audience received the play with enthusiasm, and this production deserves the fullest support of lovers of first-rate theatre. It is obvious that a summer company, playing a new play each week, cannot do a play of ths magnitude every week, nor would a season or plays of this sort makes ideal summer entertainment. Nevertheless, it is such productions as this which raise the local summer theatre above the level attained elsewhere. It is a compliment to the Peterborough audience that a production like this, of a play like this, should be presented for its consideration; it is up to the Peterborough audience to return the compliment by going to Queen Mary auditorium to see how good Canadian theatre can be, at its best.

Faulkner Leads Golfing Field

ST. ANNES-ON-SEA, England (AP)—Defending champion Max Faulkner of Britain led the field today as a third of the competitors completed two qualifying rounds in the British Open golf championship.

Faulkner carded a 68 on the 6,512-yard Fairhaven course for a two-round aggregate of 137. He had carded a 69 yesterday on the tougher 6,657-yard Royal Lytham course.

Frank Stranahan, Toledo, O., amateur, was in danger of failing to qualify with rounds of 75-77—152.

One stroke behind Faulkner at 138 was another British Ryder Cup player, Reg Horne, with rounds of 71-67.

Argentina's Antonio Cerda was in third place with 139 after shooting an impressive 71 at Lytham, to go with his 68 yesterday.

To Try Spray As Way Chase Starlings

COBOURG— (ENS) — Trees which are chosen by the starlings as overnight roosts are going to be sprayed with a solution which proved effective in Peterborough, it was revealed at Monday night's council meeting. Mayor Jack Burnett stated that the accurate were doing some high altitude bombing with effective results on his own person. They have tried shotguns and almost every form of noise making on Chapel St. and other streets of the town but the starlings just sit there and laugh. If the spray proves effective, there will be some very satisfied citizens at least along Starling Boulevarde, as Chapel street has been named by its residents.

Cobourg Urged To Market Debentures

COBOURG — (ENS). — Sale of Cobourg's $109,000 worth of debentures should be made at once, a representative of a bond house advised council Monday night in submitting his bid, the only one filed. The debentures cover cost of a grader, new fire pumper, a water main on D'Arcy and the new sanitary sewer on D'Arcy Street.

The bond market was very soft and might not stabilize until September, the bond salesman said. American investors who bought Canadian bonds when the dollar was at a discount were taking advantage of the increased value of the Canadian dollar. The salesman said that the bid of his firm was very attractive in view of the situation and would have to be taken up immediately. Council referred the matter to the finance committee to decide on the following day.

A letter from the Cobourg Insurance Agents' Association told council that the insurance on the town hall was only $160,000, a building worth almost half a million and should be at least $250,000, and even then in the case of a total loss, the town would only collect 50 per cent of the value of the building. The position of the council is that there is no money in the estimates for the extra premium. However, it was decided to get a price on the increased risk and refer it to next year's council.

Accounts pased at the meeting totalled $38,131.78.

Queen Elizabeth Holds Palace Investiture

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen stood on a dais in the state ballroom of Buckingham Palace today and with a long-bladed sword gave the accolade to 53 new knights.

The Queen tapped each knight lightly first on the right and then on the left shoulder then, returning the sword to her left hand, she shook hands with him.

More than 250 men and women passed before her to receive awards and honors at this first of five investitures to be held at the palace during the month. Many were receiving awards conferred in the Queen's first birthday honors list last month.

The new knights included Carol Reed, a motion picture producer; author Compton MacKenzie and several members of Parliament.

The Queen was dressed in a white taffeta frock. The Duke of Edinburgh, still convalescing from jaundice, was not present.

Tourist Statistics

COBOURG (ENS)—Two thousand, two hundred and twenty-nine stayed overnight or longer in the week of July 1 to July 6, according to tourist registrations at motels, cabins and tourist homes. A large percentage of this total came through the tourist office of the Chamber of Commerce. In the same week there were 888 tourist enquiries at the Chamber of Commerce office, as compared with 704 for the same period last year; an increase of 184.

Hospital Supt. Plans Call 300 Witnesses

WINDSOR (CP)—East Windsor hospital superintendent Dr. P.J.G. Morgan said last night he intends to call 300 witnesses before a provincial commission which is investigating the hospital's affairs.

He made the statement at a brief meeting of the hospital's governing board.

Earlier yesterday, the provincial commission was told that East Windsor hospital provided an $8,500 insurance policy for Dr. Morgan in addition to regular employee insurance coverage.

Ohio Fisherman Battle, Land 36¾-Lb. Muskie

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Perennial fishing visitors Gordon Paulus and son Floyd, 18, of Kent, O., battled and landed a 36¾-pound 'lunge at dusk on Monday while trolling off Percy Boom, six miles down the Trent River from [illegible] village. They landed the monster after a battle of over an hour.

Floyd hooked the big fellow measuring 52 inches in length and 23¾ in girth, on a Heddon Vamp using a 20 pound test line. Efforts to net the monster proved useless. The fish tore the four foot net to shreds, and not until another fisherman noticed the plight of the two men being towed about the waters of the bay by the huge 'lunge and came to their rescue with a gaff hook, did the men succeed in landing their trophy.

The fish weighed 36¾ pounds when it was officially weighed at the cold storage lockers in Campbellford. Allowing for the fact a fish of its size will shrink about one pound per hour for the first three or four hours, due to drying out, the big fellow must have weighed slightly over 40 pounds when he was taken from the water.

Floyd, who had never landed a 'lunge nearly as large before, can hardly wait until he gets home to have the big fellow mounted, and to describe to his pals the job he had landing it.

Confidences To The Press

An interesting case of contempt of court has arisen in Montreal, in connection with the vice investigation there. A woman journalist was called as a witness, because she had written some articles for the Montreal Standard in 1946, in which she revealed certain information about betting which she had received from informants who wished to be anonymous; the judge asked her for the names of the people who gave her this information, and she declined to reveal them; the judge said that he had no other course than to sentence her for contempt and in a few days he will do so. The law in the matter is clear; journalists do not possess the privilege of refusing to reveal to courts things which have been told them in confidence —a privilege which clergymen, physicians and lawyers enjoy. The question is, should not journalists be permitted this privilege?

* * *

We raise the point reluctantly, because we do not wish to press for special privileges for newspaper people. But in the course of his work a good journalist receives quite as much information which he does not use, as he receives information which he prints. This private information is part of the background upon which his professional knowledge depends. Furthermore, all sorts of people — including clergymen, doctors, lawyers and court officials—give information to journalists which they feel should be made public, but they do so on the understanding that their names will not be printed as sources of the information thus supplied. This is because a free press, working in a free country, is a means of giving information to the public which the public has a right to possess, and which is directly or indirectly to the public advantage.

* * *

Should journalists be privileged to withhold the names of people who give them information? We think so. The occasions when courts demand such information are very rare — fully as rare as those cases when clergymen, doctors or lawyers might assist justice by revealing what they are told in secret; by revealing the names of their informants journalists may cause those informants serious trouble — not with the law but with gangsters, racketeers and others who are the enemies of the law. Provincial and federal authorities would do well to consider this question and make a decision which they feel to be in accord with the rights of the public, and many people who are prepared to assist the law if they are allowed to do it without publicity for themselves. Meanwhile we think that the Montreal journalist has behaved properly, if illegally, by declining to reveal what was told her in confidence and what has, already, in some degree, been of assistance to the law.

Give Them A Surfeit of Comics

Dr. T. H. W. Martin, an inspector of public schools in Toronto, made an interesting suggestion recently to the Ontario Urban and Rural Trustees' Association. Instead of trying to keep comic books from children, he advised that parents cram them with the stuff; all children, he said, pass through a stage where they want that sort of thing, and the more they get of it, and the less difficulty they meet with in getting it, the sooner they tire of it. This sounds to us like good sense; all children like forbidden fruit, and to make comics hard to get is to give them an importance and an attraction which they do not deserve.

We can appreciate the hesitation of parents to follow Dr. Martin's advice, good though we think it is. We have looked at quite a large number of comic books, and at best they are trash; at worst they are illiterate, false in feeling, and corrupt. But children somehow manage to get hold of reading which has all these faults; they enjoy crude sensationalism, and they find ways of satisfying their wants. How many of us have not, as children, read trashy stuff which our parents forbade us to touch? And how many of us can honestly say that it has harmed us? We have to trust children to shake off much that is shabby, or downright bad, which they meet with in life.

Something which Dr. Martin did not say, but which we believe to be true, is this: some people never lose their taste for what is trashy. A majority do, but some do not. Trashy music, trashy pictures and trashy books satisfy them all their lives, and to take from them what is worthless does not lead them to like what is better. It is a question whether, in a democracy, we have any right to deny them what they like, and are fitted to enjoy.

A Good American Ship

How superb a great ocean liner is as she towers over docks and small vessels in harbour. How splendid as she sails down river out to the open sea. And there, while she loses some of her massive proportions in the immensity of the sea she is still a triumph of man over nature; an assertion of the craft of the men who designed and built her, of the confidence of the people who board her. The U.S.S. United States is a supreme American example of ship-builders' art and engineers' skill. A mighty ship, sleek and powerful expression of a mighty nation.

The achievement of the building of this ship, and the ship's own achievement on her maiden voyage eastward across the Atlantic — three days, ten hours and forty minutes between Ambrose Light, New York, and Bishop's Rock, off the English coast; 2,938 miles at an average speed of 35.59 knots, 41 land miles an hour — these make the United States proud, and we rejoice in their reason for pride.

The passing of ships on the high seas is always exciting and somehow heart-inspiring. How dramatic must have been the thrill for passengers on both ships, when the United States and the Queen Mary, heading west, passed each other on Saturday. Since the disaster of the Titanic in 1912, Atlantic liners have vied with each other for safe crossings, rather than for a speed pennant. The Queen Mary concedes, first, that the new ship is smooth and safe, secondly that she has made the fastest liner crossing.

A Man Of Life Upright

The quiet devotion to his God, his rural pastoral charges and his family was a distinction which the Reverend Arthur H. McConnachie wore as unaffectedly as he did his learning. He was a man of cheerfulness and of charity, of simplicity and sincerity; an upright man of God. His friendship and person, as well as his servcie, will be remembered in this city and district far beyond the bounds of his own Presbyterian and United Church communions.

The man of life upright,
Whose guiltless heart is free
From all dishonest deeds,
Or thought of vanity.

The man whose silent days
In harmless joys are spent,
Whom hopes cannot delude.
Nor sorrow discontent;

That man needs neither towers
Nor armour for defence,
Nor secret vaults to fly
From thunder's violence.

Mr. McConnachie has ended his quiet pilgrimage, begun in Scotland eighty-one years ago. The Horatian ode "Integer Vitae Scelerisque Purus" (in Thomas Campion's sixteenth century translation) is a just eulogy.

Thus, scorning all the cares
That fate, or fortune brings,
He makes the heaven his book,
His wisdom heavenly things.

Good thoughts his only friends,
His wealth a well-spent age,
The earth his sober inn
And quiet pilgrimage.

No Contract For Mrs. Engle

We do not know much about baseball, but we know a good deal about women, and we are interested in the case of Mrs. Eleanor Engle, who was given a contract to play infield for the baseball club of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. This contract has now been revoked, for the manager of the team, Mr. Clarence Etchison, has declared that "She'll play ball when hell freezes over; I won't have any gal on my club". We predict, however, that Mr. Etchison will see the day when he has gals on his club, or he will retire from baseball.

Mrs. Engle is apparently a good player. She is 24, a stenographer, and is said to be pretty, but we doubt that; every woman who gets her name in the news is said to be pretty by some short-sighted reporter; we have no belief in baseball as a beautifier. She is not content with the teams which are composed solely of her sex; she wants to play in the Class B circuit, and it seems that she is good enough to do it. But sportsmen are usually extremely conservative in their outlook, and the men who have the say have rejected Mrs. Engle on the basis of her sex.

This is sheer bravado. Women have taken over the barber-shops, which may be described as the parliaments of baseball, and they will not be debarred from the game itself. They will employ the unfair tactics for which they are celebrated, and in five years there will be women on every major team. They will then be described as good sports, regular guys, and key players, and they will be indistinguishable from men. We hope that they will be happy.

Although we believe in such equality between the sexes as Nature permits, we hope that there will always remain a majority of women who are immediately and pleasantly distinguishable from men. If the supply should ever fail the outlook for the human race will be bleak indeed.

Chlorophyll is now being touted as a suppressor of body odours. Grass is full of chlorophyll. Goats eat grass. Speak up, Science!

Beneath Hoopla at Chicago

By KENNETH HARRIS

FROM the opening of the Republican Convention on Monday, onlookers might conclude that the process by which the Republican candidate in the Presidential election is going to be selected is an enormous circus in which singing, cheering, trumpet-blowing and flag-waving are the main items on the programme.

These are just the by-products. The main process, though less obvious, is a good deal more serious and business-like.

It begins on the second or third day of the convention when the chairman calls upon the 1,206 delegates to cast their first ballot. No candidate is likely to get the nomination — requiring 604 votes — on this first ballot, but the spread of the votes gives each candidate and his floor-manager, an idea of how he and his several enemies stand.

✧ ✧ ✧

LET US LOOK at the convention through the eyes of General Eisenhower, his floor-manager, and his "strategy" committee. They see that on the first ballot, they have been supported by 350 delegates. Senator Taft, the main rival has been supported by 400. Governor Warren, of California, has polled 200 votes, Mr. Stassen has got 150, Governor McKeldin has won 50, and General MacArthur has been given the rest. (These figures are not predictions—they are for illustration).

Their job now is to collect the extra votes which will give Eisenhower the necessary 604. They can collect the extra votes from three places:

1. From candidates like Governor Warren, who, deciding after the first ballot, or perhaps the second, that they have no chance of winning the nomination, may ask their supporters to transfer their support to Eisenhower;
2. From those delegates who on the first ballot deliberately refrained from voting for the two favourites, Taft and Eisenhower, because they wanted to see which of them was going to do best; these are the delegates who care only about being on the winning side;
3. From those delegates who voted for Taft on the first ballot because they thought he might win outright, but seeing he is weaker than they thought will now consider changing sides. There will not be a great number of these, so early in the day—perhaps a few, two or three, in each state's delegation.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FLOOR LEADER and the strategy committee now get to work. Either in person, or through "contact-men" in each delegation, they begin to reap the extra votes. To do so they can use one or all of four methods.

There is persuasion pure and simple. They bottonhole delegates and argue that their man is going to win the nomination anyway, that he is the only Republican who can win the election in November, and that in any case he is the worthiest representative of the Republican Party.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEY CAN ALSO bargain. They might, for instance, get the Californian delegation on their side by promising that Eisenhower will support Senator Knowland, a Californian, as candidate for the Vice-Presidential nomination. Or they might promise Governor Fine, of Pennsylvania, who has now swung to Ike the 35 or so delegates who follow his lead, that he will always be consulted about what Eisenhower, as President, would do in Pennsylvania, in the matter, for instance, of appointing Government judges, attorneys, and postmasters.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE THIRD METHOD is hardly a method at all. It might be described as a promise of entree — an implicit, hardly spoken, "merely understood" kind of promise, but a very real one, which probably has more influence at the Convention than anything else. It comes down to this: that if under the blandishments of Eisenhower's floor manager, Mr. Smiles, of Roughshod City, agrees to vote for Eisenhower on the next ballot, he will expect to be able to bring Mr. Smiles and all the little Smiles to tea with Eisenhower at the White House if Eisenhower becomes president. And Mr. Smiles might hope that if there is a bill coming up in the Congress which affects Roughshod City particularly, he might be able to have a quiet word about it with the leaders of the Republican Party.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FOURTH METHOD is rather different. You might call it "stampede tactics." It will be used only when the Eisenhowerites think that they have nearly got enough votes for the nomination, and that one shove will, so to speak, take them over the line. A stampede will usually begin with somebody making a terrific speech in favour of, in this case, Eisenhower, followed by a tremendous demonstration in the galleries and on the floor, creating an impression that the whole country is suddenly clamouring for Ike, followed by a dramatic announcement by a big delegation that on the next ballot they are switching from Taft to Eisenhower. At that point, the floor-manager and his committee and their scouts will go through that hall like wild-fire, warning all non-Eisenhower delegates that Ike is going to be nominated on the next ballot "for sure" and they had better get on to his side while they still have a chance. This technique is usually employed about the third or fourth ballot, depending on the situation. It seldom fails, simply because it is used like the atom bomb, only when you know it will work, and that the enemy will not retaliate with one against you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DILIGENTLY AND SKILFULLY as they may employ these arts, by the time the second ballot is called by the chairman of the Convention, the Eisenhowerites may not have got enough votes to clinch the nomination. All they can do then is hope that Taft has not got enough either, wait until the second ballot has been taken, and start the good work all over again.

In case the Republican Convention draws out into several days, and requires five or six ballots, here are a few points to bear in mind.

1. The more ballots are cast,—in 1924 the Democrats cast 104—the more likely it is that a "dark horse" or "non-favourite" will win the nomination, and the less likely it is that the candidate who led on the first ballot will win.
2. Once a candidate polls less votes on a ballot than he did on the previous ballot, he is as good as finished. For this reason, a floor-manager will often tell some of his most loyal delegates not to vote for their candidate on the first two or three ballots, but to cast their votes for some outsider. Then, the floor-manager can use this reserve to keep his candidate's "stock" steady, or on the up-and-up.
3. From everything we know so far, if Taft is to win the Republican nomination, he must do so on the first or second ballot. He might, conceivably, be able to hold on, and make it on the third, but after that on the basis of what we know now he would be finished.

This seems so because the Senator's whole campaign has been based upon his claim that he has already—before the Convention opens—got nearly enough votes to win on the first ballot, and everybody knows that for eight months he has worked very hard and in great detail and using every personal contact possible to get delegates to plump for him early, if not on the first ballot.

If after all that work, and after all his claims, he cannot win quickly, his stock is very likely to plunge. On the Stock Exchange, a stock that plunges may climb back. But things happen so quickly at a Convention, and it lasts for such a short time, that once a candidate drops from his own peak it is almost impossible to put him back there.

Progress Of A Newspaper

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

Back in 1905 Mr. W. A. Buchanan, a young newspaperman from the St. Thomas Journal, went west and bought a half interest in the Lethbridge Herald, a tiny and unpretentious weekly. Lethbridge then was a dusty cowtown of fewer than 3,000 people.

Two years later, the town still at 3,000, Mr. Buchanan turned his weekly into a daily and acquired the other half-interest. He knew bad times and good, but the town prospered and became a city, the newspaper prospered as it served not only Lethbridge but Southern Alberta with faithfulness and diligence; its publisher served in the Legislature, was a cabinet minister in Alberta, came to Ottawa as M.P. and years ago became a senator.

The other day Senator Buchanan's Herald moved to a new home, a $400,000 building, with appropriate ceremonial and in a flurry of congratulations. Forty-seven years ago Buchanan and one printer's devil were the Herald's staff—this move involved a staff of 80.

In the Regina Leader-Post Mr. Wilfred Eggleston writes of Senator Buchanan's career, calls him "about the last of the great personal newspaper publishers of the Prairies in the tradition of Frank Oliver, Walter Scott and J. H. Wood", tells of the Herald's early and precarious days:

"He found two newspapers, the News, and the Herald. The later had just been started as a weekly, by two men from Cranbrook. All it possessed was a few fonts of type strewn around in a shack formerly used as a Chinese laundry. Buchanan sounded out the owners and made a deal for a half interest. Things began to stir. They moved to a relatively palatial shed back of the Dallas hotel. They financed a small press. They got a type-setting machine. This exhausted Buchanan's modest reserves. But the bank manager saw a future in the hustling editor from Ontario, and when the other half interest of the weekly came on to the market Buchanan became sole owner."

And when the weekly became a daily, people said the young publisher was looking for trouble.

"There were dire predictions of ruin, because Lethbridge already had one daily, the News. But it was the News that folded, a few weeks after the Herald became a daily.

"A couple of years later, the News was revived as a daily, and it cost the promoters a pretty penny to learn that W. A. Buchanan was a tough competitor. Since 1911 he has been alone in the field, and just about without competition in Southwestern Alberta."

The Herald survived and flourished because the paper, like its owner, had courage, vitality, imagination — had, and has.

Letter To The Editor

CANOES ON LITTLE LAKE

Sir. The sparkle of a setting sun on the shining water of Little Lake last evening struck a note of sadness.

Just one boat in slight, and a year or so back one would see a fleet of canoes skimming over the water. I used to enjoy so many summer evenings in a rented canoe on Little Lake.

Is not someone interested in opening up the boat livery in this canoe city? Would not one of the Canoe Companies place a few boats at the disposal of the public for hire?

The movement to clean up such a beautiful spot as own own City Lake would take on a new meaning if one were not confined to the shore.

Yours truly,
BILL

1,000 British Tars Cheer As Ocean Queen Docks

LE HAVRE, France (AP). — The new queen of the seas, the luxury liner S.S. United States, docked Monday night in this war-torn port after a record-breaking Atlantic crossing. She was greeted by rousing British and Gallic cheers.

Early Monday, finishing its spurt in a driving gale, the United States captured the Blue Riband by crossing the Atlantic in three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes. This cut 10 hours and two minutes off the record set in August, 1938, by Britain's Queen Mary.

After laying at anchor off the French coast 4½ hours waiting for a free berth, it was still 12 hours ahead of schedule.

On the Royal Navy aircraft carrier Indomitable berthed nearby, 1,000 men lining the decks cheered in a dramatic demonstration of fair play. The carrier hailed the new queen with repeated siren blasts lasting more than 20 minutes.

About 1,000 Frenchmen were on hand at Le Havre to welcome the superliner which had averaged a record-breaking 35.59 knots, about 40 land miles an hour.

President Truman wired congratulations; a similar message was said to be on the way from Prime Minister Churchill. French dignitaries will board the ship today to pay formal tribute.

Passengers were held aboard because French officials said the vessel's early arrival caught them unprepared to send out special boat trains for Paris.

Meanwhile, F. A. Bates, chairman of the Cunard Line, owner of the two queens, sent congratulations to J. M. Franklin, president of the United States Line, and Commodore Manning.

In a human enough way the British also looked for consolation.

"It is true we have been beaten in speed, possibly in lack of vibration," Don Iddon telegraphed from the American liner to the Daily Mail. "But in comfort, size, food, service, and dignity we are still supreme."

Several newspapers noted with pride that a considerable number of the crew were Britons, trained by the Cunard Line.

Clifford Thomas, a Briton, won the ship's pool Sunday, having made the best guess on the liner's speed. Cunard's loss was his gain. Pocketing about $4,000, he said, "Well, the British have won something."

Another British passenger noted that the fastest airliner in the world today is the British jet Comet now plying between London and South Africa.

Say Quarantine May Be Lifted

REGINA (CP)—Because no new foot-and-mouth disease cases have been found in southern Saskatchewan since May 3, the general quarantine of the 21-municipality quarantined area and the 41-municipality buffer zone may be lifted within two weeks.

But the individual quarantines on the 28 premises where the disease was found and the 12 contact or suspected premises will be maintained after the general quarantine is lifted.

Since the disease was first diagnosed in the Regina area late in February 1,742 head of livestock have been shot and buried in the campaign to stamp out the disease.

Denmark Gives Soviet Tanker, Defies U.S.

COPENHAGEN (AP)—Denmark officially turned over a new tanker to Russia yesterday in defiance of United States threats to cut off military aid.

The Soviet Minister to Denmark, Mikhail Vetrov, proudly watched the hoisting of the red flag of Russia aboard the 13,000-ton tanker Apsheron at the very moment the worried-looking U.S. ambassador, Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, called at the Foreign Office to receive Denmark's rejection of the U.S. protest.

"Now we just want to get home fast," said the Apsheron's skipper, Capt. Balakshei, displaying an unbroken row of gold teeth.

Informed officials in Washington indicated that, although the threatened cut-off of aid to Denmark still is under consideration, the government probably will decide finally that it must continue to bolster this important link in the Western European defence set-up.

The U.S. claimed delivery of the tanker violated an agreement which forbids countries receiving U.S. military aid from sending strategic goods behind the Iron Curtain.

Foreign Minister Ole Bjoern Kraft said Denmark could not violate international trade ethics by defaulting on her contract with Russia.

MacArthur Blasts Democrats As War Party

CHICAGO (AP)—Old soldier Douglas MacArthur last night blistered the Democrats as a blundering "war party" and rallied Republicans to a "crusade" to rout them from office.

The general's keynote address knifed through the strife stirred by Presidential nomination. It united the packed convention hall in a standing ovation as it bit sharply at the Truman administration's policies.

TAKES NO SIDES

The 57-minute speech, punctuated 73 times by handclapping and roars, formally plotted a non-partisan course in the nomination battle between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Senator Robert Taft of Ohio.

MacArthur, who backs Taft and who has been mentioned as a possible vice-presidential running mate for the Ohioan, said:

1. The Democratic party has been captured by schemers leading the United States toward "the socialistic regimentation of a totalitarian state."

2. The Republicans must enlist all kinds of Americans, who are "desperate for a plan which will revive hope," to win the November election.

MacArthur named neither Taft nor Eisenhower. But he hit at the administration's policy of Communist containment which Eisenhower supports, and called for more air power, a Taft objective.

CRITICAL OF TRUMAN

MacArthur spoke slowly and deliberately. He levelled his heaviest blast at the administration of President Truman, who fired him last year as United Nations commander in the Far East.

The administration's foreign policy, he said, "practically invited Soviet dominance over the free peoples of eastern Europe."

In the east, MacArthur said, the U.S. "proceeded with precipitate haste to divest ourselves of our own military strength." This policy caused the loss to Communism of China, North Korea and the Kuriles, he said.

Heat Stops Trains

ROME, Italy (AP)—It's so hot in Italy that even the trains are slowing down. With the mercury climbing to 106 at some points, trainmen found the unusual temperatures had expanded the rails. At Fissa, traffic had to stop until firemen shrank the steel back to size with tons of cooling water.

Add Billion To A-Weapon Program In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 82nd United States Congress added almost 1,000,000,000 to an expanded atomic-weapons program yesterday, and then voted to quit for good.

Unless President Truman calls a special session, the law-making days of this Congress are over. The next Congress convenes Jan. 5, 1953.

Negotiations on two money bills which had blocked adjournment plans Saturday paid off when a compromise was reached and the Senate and then the House of Representatives approved the measures just before sundown.

The bills would provide:

1. $11,793,776,339 to finance atomic expansion, foreign aid and military construction throughout the world.

2. More than $500,000,000 for river, harbor and flood control projects.

Warns Republicans To End Quarrel Or Face Defeat

CHICAGO (AP)—Senator Styles Bridges, Senate Republican leader, told the Republican convention today it must patch up party quarrels or "almost certainly go down to defeat in November."

The veteran New Hampshire legislator appeared on the convention's second-day program along with other party leaders.

In a prepared address, Bridges delivered a scathing attack on the Democratic party. He called for a united front of Republicans, now unsettled by the close race between Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft for presidential nomination.

"The Republican party is beset," Bridges said, "by stormy, bitter wrangling forces. . . This party can not succeed if this bitterness remains after the convntion."

He added:

"Let us heed this warning—unless the Republican party stands in a solid phalanx behind the choice of this convention for the presidency of the United States, we will almost certainly go down to defeat in November."

Juveniles Lose By 9 to 5 To Long Branch

Long Branch Monarchs defeated Peterborough 9-5 at Miller Bowl Monday night in the third game of a goals-to-count juvenile lacrosse playoff series. The final game of the four-game series is slated for the visitors' home nest Thursday night, with Monarchs holding a 13-goal margin.

Curly Mason's local boys put up a fighting two-way game against their strong rivals, particularly in the first three quarters, as the teams fought to a 5-5 deadlock with little to choose between. Monarchs rallied with a strong burst in the final frame, however, rattled in four goals after a scoreless third, to notch their third straight victory.

LED THE WAY

Leading the attack for the visitors was the elusive Peter Ruse, who tallied five goals and had one assist. Other Monarchs shared scoring honors fairly evenly as Howard Smith, Norman Neave, George Kapasky and Jake Rawson each scored one; while Jim Coleman, Florian Tomchisien, Dave Courtmanche, and Gordon Granger each aided on one.

Petes outscored Monarchs 3-1 in the second after yielding a 4-2 edge in a fast first frame, held Bill Johnson's lads scoreless in the third as play hit a terrific tempo, and roughened up quite a bit in spots, but weakened slightly in the finale of a fine struggle. The local marksmen were Bob Allen with a goal and three assists to lead, Bob Hobart with a pair of markers—and good ones, Douglas Hunt and Jack Chapman with one apiece. Carl Simmons played well in the local net and every man gave his best. There were 14 penalties, nine to Long Branch, including five majors in the hectic second and third quarters.

Long Branch — Goal, Russell; defence, Rawson, Rennie; centre, Coleman; wings, Neave, Granger; rover, Smith; alternates, Ruse, Kapasky, Ellis, Tolson, Tomchisien, Courtmanche.

Petes — Goal, Simmons; defence, Scriver, Chapman; centre, Orde; wings, J. Hobart, Sutherland; rover, Foote; alternates, Allan, Holbrook, Drury, B. Hobart, Hunt, Curtis, Mongraw, Ferran.

Referees—Ron Booth and Bun Hill.

Wants Baseball Bonuses Stopped

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said yesterday there must be a "stop to the wild and crazy bonuses" to youngsters starting out in baseball.

Speaking after the joint meeting of the club owners of both major leagues, Frick said there was "unanimous feeling that some rule limiting outlandish payments to untried youngsters must eventually be written into the books."

But Frick added that despite discussion of the bonus rule no move was made to change the present setup which allows clubs to sign a player for a bonus and then farm him out for experience.

There has been criticism that some clubs have been spending large sums for bonus players in an effort to corner good young players.

Frick also disclosed that Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn Dodgers have been given permission for a goodwill tour around the world at the close of the 1952 season.

Players Ask $1,000 Raise

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—American League players yesterday asked for an increase in the minimum baseball salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year.

Freddie Hutchinson, retiring spokesman for the junior circuit players, included the salary boost among 11 demands made to the owners. Hutchinson, only last weekend appointed manager of the Detroit Tigers, said the increase was necessary because of higher living conditions, high taxes and high prices. The $5,000 minimum was instituted in 1947.

The players also ask uniform pitching mounds in all parks; extension of bullpen roofs to keep relief pitchers from getting hit with pop bottles and other missiles; more ventilation in clubhouses and the field clear of fans after a game until all players have reached the dugouts.

Woollens defeated Marines 12-8 last night in their fastball fixture at Quaker Park. They finished strong to grab the decision after scoring a run each in the first, fifth and seventh heats, with four in the third. A five-run outburst in the eighth did it. The losers led for a portion of the tussle with two runs apiece in the first three frames, one next time up and one more in the ninth inning of a good game. Teams:

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

We quite agree with Belleville's Scribe Carver when he says: "In the printing of O.H.A. rules it might not be a bad idea to have the regulations set up in English, so that club officials and others can arrive at the same interpretation as that of the men who write them. And it might not be a bad idea to have the matter straightened out before the season gets under way, and thus eliminate the petty bickerings and creation of hard feelings that inevitably result from protests that are as inevitably thrown out because few understand them, or at least arrive at a different interpretation to those of the parent body." How true.

Men's softball loop plans a benefit Saturday at the Bowl for Johnny Larkman, Lakefield player who suffered a broken leg in diamond action and will be eight weeks in a cast. Mike O'Leary is lining up two teams of oldtime softballers for one part of the twin bill commencing at seven p.m. The other exhibition has the Lakefield team playing Howie Dalton's five-man squad, a takeoff on the King and His Court. Howie does the pitching (legal and otherwise) with Tom Walton catching. Buck Legrow, probably Red Sullivan — replacing Jake Wade — and a fifth fielder make up the team. Haven't the fifth guy's name yet. The double-header should prove interesting.

Invasion From The North

Owen Sound Crescents are here for a midweek O.L.A. senior game tomorrow (Wednesday) night in Miller Bowl. Second and perhaps last appearance of the northerners here this semester, though one never knows what playoffs will produce. Battling for fourth place, the Crescents may prove tough onions to the second-place Timbermen. They have lots of experience and weight in guys like Bill Allum, Harry Kazarian, Johnny Lumley, Norm Shortridge, Jack Foote, Doug Gillespie, Don McWhirter and the rest. The Petes won't be home again this week, so the Wednesday fixture should pack in the fans.

Our junior lacrossers labored right lustily in the heat of Dundas last sultry gloaming ere jerking out a 5-3 O.L.A. win o'er the bolstered Dundas dudes. They now have Piett in goal and he played for a time with Owen Sound seniors. Smith led the locals at bat with two markers, and the whole team turned in a solid effort. They're off to St. Kitts for a four-pointer Wednesday and have Mimico here Friday. Local juves dropped a 9-5 decision in O.L.A. play here last p.m. to Long Branch to trail their series by three games and 13 goals. They're all close enough, but they face elimination in Toronto on Thursday. Bob Allen and Bob Hobart led Curly Mason's lads. Two P.M.L.A. bantam tilts tonight with open workouts on tap all day tomorrow.

Juniors Snatch Another

Quite a climax to the Lakeshore League ball game here last evening. Junior Petes were leading 3-0 going into the seventh and last inning on Jerry Frizzelle's two-hitter when Colborne erupted for four runs to apparently clinch it. But the local lads fought right back in their half to score a pair and grab the duke. Pinch-hitter Ray Pammett, Frizzelle and Gary Kearns, who singled home the winner, were the heroes in this lively frame. A snappy scrap with a lot of good baseball shown on both sides. Frizzelle and Higginbotham each allowed five hits and struck out a bunch, the Menzies' crew fielding better. Al and Shockey Mein are doing a good job handling the Young Petes. It was their second win over the intermediate Dodgers.

In girls' softball playoffs last night, Marines edged Burtol's 4-3 to even their best-of-three senior city semi-finals. Ashby's took Belleville 7-2 to sweep that series in two straight, so they now await a winner of Burtol-Marines for the senior city finals and the right to hit into P.W.S.U. playdowns. Belleville drops back now to play off with the intermediate winner of the Cobourg-Lindsay series, a best-of-five affair. The important playoff twin bill Wednesday has Burtol's vs. Marines, and Cobourg vs. Lindsay. These jousts are hard-fought now and well worth viewing in the Bowl d'Ashburnham.

Goodfellow Resigns As Chicago Coach

CHICAGO (AP)—Ebbie Goodfellow, coach of Chicago Black Hawks, yesterday announced his resignation to accept a position with a motor sales company in Detroit.

Goodfellow, who coached the National Hockey League team the last two years, said in a statement he would like it "distinctly understood" that his resignation was at his own request. He said he considers Detroit his home and intends to make his permanent home there.

His contract had another year to run.

Bill Tobin, Hawks owner, said the resignation came as a surprise and that he accepted it reluctantly.

Sid Abel, retiring Detroit Red Wing centre, and King Clancy, former Toronto star and ex-National Hockey League referee, were reported to be top candidates for the job.

Abel, veteran Red Wing player, is reported retiring to operate a Detroit tavern. Clancy won the American League championship as coach of Pittsburgh Hornets last winter.

Defeated By Champs

COBOURG. — President R. D. Dodge of Cobourg of the Lakeshore Baseball League declared Monday the All-Star game Saturday in Bowmanville was a success, and that the loop will draw close to $100 as their share of the venture.

The park at Bowmanville was crowded for the game and Bowmanville, last year's O.B.A. Intermediate "A" champions, bested the "All-Stars" 8-0.

Four hurlers worked for the Stars, Doug Loucks, last year's most valuable player and Lindsay's number one hurler, started for the visitors. He was followed by Karl Higgenbotham, Negro ace from Colborne, who gave way to Karl Lenahan of Port Hope, with Cobourg's Jerry Lawless finishing up. Higgenbotham was tagged for four runs, the most of any of the heavers.

Legree started for the Bowmanville crew and Cecil Hall finished up.

Marines Beat Burtol's To Even Series

Marines yanked out a 4-3 Girls' Softball League playoff win over Burtol's at the Bowl last evening to sew up their series at a game each, the deciding one being on Wednesday night. The winner of this goes against Ashby's for the senior city title and the right to proceed into provincial playdowns. Cobourg and Lindsay will also clash here Wednesday in their intermediate series.

Last night's fine fray was run off in an hour and eight minutes. Marines got eight hits and Burtol's nine, each side having one error only. Eleanor Whittaker hurled nice ball for the winners with fine backing, Marines reeling off one double play, and J. McIlwaine and M. Behan shining defensively. V. Paige and E. Whittaker had two for four each at bat. M. Selkirk and D. McFadden divided twirling chores neatly for the losers in the close tilt, and M. Selkirk hit three for four, M. Gillen clouting a homer. They also had a double play, and A. Anderson and M. Hawthorne stood out in the field. Teams::

Fain Leading Batting Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Ferris Fain of Philadelphia Athletics, showing one of the most remarkable form reversals in recent years, is back on top in the American League batting race, a spot he held at the close of the 1951 season.

Going hitless in his first 21 trips to the plate this year and unofficially traded to New York Yankees, Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers many times, Fain has battled his way back to hold the No. 1 position with a .336 average.

Fain, with 12 hits in 28 times at bat, picked up 13 points last week to wrest the lead from Al Rosen, Cleveland third baseman. Rosen dropped to third with a .30 average.

Although he lost three points to .333, Stan Musial continues at his familiar top rung in the National League, nine points better than Chicago's Toby Atwell's .324.

Billy Goodman, Boston Red Sox mainstay, is trailing Fain by only one point, at .335.

Vic Wertz, slugging outfielder of Detroit Tigers, is the A.L.'s home run leader with 16.

Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn second baseman, dropped to third from his National League runner-up spot of last week. Jackie collected only six safeties in 27 trips for a 12-point drop to .315.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

All is ready for the big tournament tomorrow.

Over at Port Perry on Saturday, R. F. Downey and N. Routley came in second for three wins; and F. H. Dearborn and C. Williamson brought home the high two wins prize.

It looks like a big time Friday evening. Rinks from all around the district will be here. Get up a rink and swell the entry at $3.00 per rink.

The provincial entries close on Saturday evening.

The men's club singles continue next Monday night.

If you are playing in the tournament tomorrow, be on time—one player coming late throws the schedule back quite a bit.

One sweet young thing to another: "I like the outdoor type of man—the one with a convertible."

Men's scores:

R. Knox 26, R. Dyer 13; W. Jeffries 12, R. F. Downey 14; R. Gamble 14, H. Northrop 11; A. Aitkenhead 19, T. Ryan 24; W. Kay 18, E. Wall 17; G. Coleman 21, R. Hutchinson 14; K. Sloane 9, B. Jeffries 18; H. Freeman 14, J. Fitzpatrick 27; F. Dearborn 12, F. Martin 20.

Ladies' scores:

Miss L. Allen 7, Mrs. W. Hepburn 20; Mrs. L. Ackford 13, Mrs. L. Deyman 11; Mrs. L. Bearne 6, Mrs. W. Whitty 12; Mrs. H. Beatty 15, Mrs. L. Yeotes 13; Mrs. A. Jackson 11, Mrs. C. Willison 8; Mrs. F. Dawe 24, Mrs. W. Welbourne 3.

UNWELCOME MAT—Bobby Thomson of the New York Giants is out at home plate in a cloud of dust attempting to score in the first inning of the first game of a July 4 double header with the Brooklyn Dodgers at the Polo Grounds. Brook backstop Roy Campanella makes the tag after taking a throw from pitcher Clem Labine, who fielded Al Dark's grounder.

Kearns' Blow In Last Heat Gives Juniors 5-4 Tilt Against Colborne Dodgers

Gary Kearns' single to right with Jerry Frizzelle on third and two out in the last half inning here last night gave the young Petes a 5-1 Lakeshore Baseball League victory over Colborne Dodgers. It was the local juniors' second win over this intermediate team in loop play. Peterborough was leading 3-0 going into the seventh frame of the seven - inning game when Dodgers rallied for four runs. But the Menzies' crew came right back to tie it again and win out in their half of the snappy encounter.

GOOD HURLING

Frizzelle pitched two-hit ball till the seventh when the visitors reached him for three to make it a five-hit total in a neat mound performance. He had previously beaten them by a similar score. Jerry fanned seven and walked three, getting good support most of the way. Carl Higginbotham, colored slab ace for Colborne, also allowed but five hits and whiffed nine, as he walked three. His support was shaky in spots.

Pinch-hitter Ken Pammett got a single and scored the tying run in the seventh. Kearns had one in one official trip up. Larry Foley hit safely twice in three tries and drove in two runs. The other hit was by Frizzelle to send in the tying counter. Rowsome led the losers at bat with two for four, driving in a pair, as Lingard, Hall and Irvine got the other bingles. Some neat fielding was seen on both sides.

SCORED FIRST

Peterborough scored a pair in the fourth when Kearns walked and went to third on a two-base error of Bigford's sacrifice bunt. One scored and the other moved to third on a hit by Foley, Bigford later, tallying on a wild pitch. They made it 3-0 in the sixth when Kearns strolled, went up on Bigford's sacrifice, third on an out and home on a blow to left by Foley.

Colborne broke out for four in the seventh on a walk, a fielder's choice on another free ticket, an out, and hits by Irvine, Lingard and Rowsome, the latter driving home two. Young Petes came back to win in their half. Pammett singled to right, stole second, went to third on the catcher's error when he had to throw out Byrne, who fanned, and Pammett scored on a hit by Frizzelle. The latter took second on an infield out, moved up on a wild pitch and tore in on Kearns' solid smash to right. Teams:

Colborne: Lingard 1b, Rowsome, lf; Hill, 2b; Hall, ss; Carter, cf; Irvine, 3b; Cummings, c; Higginbotham, p; Rollings, rf; Ball, rf.

Junior Petes: Langhorne, ss; Kearns, 2b; Bigford, c; Jensen, cf; Foley, rf; Wilson, lf; Cupoli, 1b; Pammett, p.h.; Byrne, 3b; Frizzelle, p.

Gene Sarazen Stars In Play

ST. ANNES-ON-SEA, England (CP)—Gene Sarazen of Germantown, N.Y., who won the British Open golf championship 20 years ago, shot a sparkling 69 yesterday in the first qualifying round for the 1952 tournament.

Sarazen's round was one of the brightest spots of a gloomy wet day that saw records broken for both courses being used to trim the field of 266 to 100 qualifiers.

The 69 put Sarazen in a three-way tie for fourth place in the half of the field that played the 6,512-yard Fairhaven course, which has a bunker for each day of the year. An extra trap was added for this tournament because it is leap year.

Leading the Fairhaven entries was Harry Bradshaw of Ireland with a sizzling 65. He was trailed closely by John Panton of Scotland with 66, also under the previous record of 68.

Harry Weetman, British match play champion, posted a brilliant 68, a record for the tough 6,657-yard Royal Lytham and St Anne's layout where the 72 holes of the regular tournament will be played starting tomorrow.

Ashby's Sweep City Series Over Belleville

Ashby's downed Belleville 7-2 at the Bowl last evening to make it two in a row in their best-of-three Girls' Softball League senior semi-final series. The Quinte colleens now drop back to the intermediate saw - offs while Ashby's go into city senior finals against the winner of Marines and Burtol's this Wednesday. Lindsay and Cobourg clash in an intermediate playoff on Wednesday here, also. Ashby's will be shooting for a chance at provincial playdowns as well as city honors next week.

It was a nifty number last night with E. Brown holding the visitors to five hits, though her support wasn't perfect. C. McGrath, of Belleville, gave up but six bingles, and she had poor backing. D. Smith led the victors at the plate with two for five, as E. Simmonds banged out a three-bagger. M. Boyce and H. Reeves went best defensively for the losers, and L. Hines topped that club at bat with two in four trips. A three-run splash in the fifth by Ashby's pretty well clinched matters in an otherwise pretty even tussle. Teams:

Junior Lacrossers Defeat Dundas 5-3

DUNDAS (Special)—The Peterborough Filter Queens yanked out a 5-3 Ontario Lacrosse Association junior "A" victory over Dundas here on Monday in one of the best games seen so far this season. The bolstering Dundas squad used Piett, former senior Owen Sound goalie, and he was hard to beat in the net all evening, but the Peterborough goaltending was practically unbeatable, also, and both defences checked well.

Smith paced the Petes' attack with two goals, as singles went to Morrissey, O'Reilly and Farley. No Dundas player got more than one marker in the keen, close-checking and fairly clean joust played in the heat. Peterborough and Dundas both have lost close fixtures recently to the power-packed Brampton team. The Petes play in St. Catharines on Wednesday and are at home to Mimico on Friday.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This is the third and last of a series of columns which have, perhaps sketchily, and with omissions, dealt with sport as Canada enjoyed it at Confederation in 1867, and before.

Perhaps you were surprised when, earlier in this series we remarked that on Canadian soil in pre-Confederation days, there had been fought two or three world heavyweight championship fights.

But records prove it. They are not the exact records that have prevailed the last fifty or sixty years, but still records. And here is the story.

"Flaming Ben" Hogan, a picturesque figure, who was a Civil War spy, gambler and oil magnate, claimed the heavyweight fistic title, just about 1867, and fought Bob Donnelly for it at Fort Erie, Ontario.

Morrissey had fought John C. Heenan, "The Benica Boy" for the world title at Long Point, in Canada. John C. Dwyer fought Jim Elliot at the same Long Point in the 70's, in another fight for the heavyweight title both claimed. So even with this sketchy background, you can be sure that some boxing existed in Canada even before Confederation.

Golf was introduced to Canada in the 60's by officers of ships from the Old Country, who played in Montreal and Quebec on 3-hole courses, and in 1873, six years after Confederation, a group of the original players met in Montreal, and created the Montreal Golf Club, since re-named Royal Montreal.

There are no records to prove it, but undoubtedly there was harness racing, for that sport dates back in America to 1776, and the great Flora Temple was history when Confederation took place.

Of course Canada had great winter sports programs, away back beyond, and through Confederation.

There were skating races in the winter, dating as far back as 1859, when officers of the Montreal Garrison raced to Quebec, a tidy run.

The first covered rink built in Canada, according to such records as are available was built in the Ancient Capital, hilly Quebec city in the middle 1850's. Montreal followed dilatorily in 1859, and in the same year organized the Montreal Skating Club. In 1862, there was built in Montreal, in what is now the heart of the Canadian metropolis the Victoria rink, where gala fancy dress balls and carnivals were held. This rink holds hockey history, too, for here the first Stanley Cup games of all times were played, in the dowdy nineties.

And there was football, whether English Rugby or soccer, we couldn't say. But the Montreal Football Club was formed in 1868, a year after Confederation. There was tobogganing, too, and snow-shoeing, with the Montreal Snowshoe Club formed in 1850. And there would be many paddling contests then, certainly not the great regattas of today, but the canoe was then a useful form of conveyance, and tests of speed would be a natural outcome.

So young Canada, in 1867, had plenty of sport, plenty of fun, sport in its truest amateur sense, mostly, and young Canada lived a pretty good life without radios, automobiles, bicycles, and a lot of things which are regarded as essential in these more high-pressure times. It must have been a gobd life then, with no threat of A-bombs or H-bombs, no Communists, and none of a lot of things we could very well do without.

Syracuse Edges Springfeld In 4-1 Triumph

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syracuse Chiefs appear to have hit the jackpot with their latest acquisition—pitcher Lynn Lovenguth. The 170-pound righthander, who carried a 4-6 record with him from Buffalo last week, made his first start for the Chiefs last night and tossed a three-hitter to beat Springfield Cubs 4-1.

In other contests, the league-leading Montreal Royals lost to Baltimore Orioles 6-3; Buffalo whipped runner-up Rochester 11-2 and Toronto rallied to down Ottawa 4-1.

Lovenguth walked only two and fanned six as Springfield's lone tally came over in the seventh on a triple by Glen McQuillen and a long foul fly. Lovenguth also had two of the Chiefs' eight hits.

PAYOFF BLOW

Damon Phillips' grand-slam homer in the first inning was the payoff blow for Baltimore as the Orioles used the pitching of Paul Stuffel and Kent Peterson to halt the Royals.

Milt Jordan yielded 15 hits to Rochester but did not give up a single walk. His Bison teammates chipped in with four double plays and hit freely at the plate to hand Freddie Martin his fourth straight setback.

Duke Markell also turned in a good mound job and drove in a pair of runs to help Toronto overcome a 1-0 Ottawa edge. Ed Stevens belted his 12th homer to drive in the deciding tally.

Ridley Defeats British Team

HAMILTON, Bermuda (CP)—Ridley College of St. Catharines smashed out 104 runs yesterday to defeat Prospect Command, top British army team, by nine runs in a cricket match highlighted by heavy hitting.

Jack Aylott, who scored 50 runs not out, was top batsman for Ridley, who remained undefeated with two consecutive victories.

Team captain J. D. Chaplin of Galt, made 19 runs; R. E. Fosbrook, Curacao, B.W.I., had 18, and E. C. Evans, Montreal, 17.

Prospect lost five wickets for 42 but rallied in a fine sixth-wicket stand which netted 75 runs. They failed after that, however, due to poor bowling by J. Drynan, who took four wickets for 27.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Mathias Betters Thorpe Record In Decathlon

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—They are at it again—those fellows who must argue sports questions to which there are no precise answers. This time the debate revolves around young Bob Mathias and the ancient Jim Thorpe. Which is the greater athlete?

Four years ago at London Mathias, only 17 and a high school athlete, won the Olympic decathlon title. In doing it he bettered five marks Thorpe hung up in winning the event in 1912 and tied the Indian in a sixth. Thorpe was 24 at the time.

Last week Mathias, now a growing 21, won the Olympic decathlon tryouts again. This time he surpassed the Indian's marks in nine events—and compiled so many points he broke the United States record even before toeing the mark in the 10th.

At the trials Mathias piled up 7,825 points, wiping out his own national mark of 7,444 points.

Dan Ferris, national A.A.U. secretary-treasurer who saw Thorpe at Stockholm and will see Mathias at Helsinki, says: "You'd have to say Mathias was the better all-around decathlon man because of his record. But with modern training Thorpe probably would have been as good."

When it comes to other sports, Thorpe must be given the edge.

STAR IN EVERYTHING

Old Jim, whose Olympic achievements were erased because he had professionalized himself by playing pro ball before going to Sweden, was an outstanding football player, reached the major leagues in baseball and excelled in basketball, lacrosse, tennis, handball, hockey, swimming and wrestling.

It was Thorpe who broke up a major league double no-hit game between Cincinnati and Chicago's Cubs in 1917 by beating out a bunt that scored the decisive run in the 10th.

But Mathias isn't a slouch in other sports either. In high school he was a track and football wonder and starred as well in basketball.

It was Mathias, now 6-2 and 200 pounds, who went 96 yards with a kickoff return against Southern California last fall for a touchdown that helped put Stanford in the Rose Bowl against Illinois.

The July 19-Aug. 3 Games will be Mathias' last appearances as a decathlon athlete, he has said. Next fall, for the first time, he is going to give his full attention to football with the hope it will get him some pro offers.

American League Hampered By Injuries For Big Game

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Everything points toward a third straight National League victory in the 19th annual All-Star game today. The Nationals have the pitching, power and a crippled opponent. The only thing manager Casey Stengel of the American League is promising at the moment is to show up. He'll be minus two of his best pitchers and his third baseman and will start with an injured centre fielder. But old Case has proved himself a master at licking adversity in the past. His undermanned lads just might upset the 7-to-5 odds against them.

A capacity crowd of 32,785, paying some $180,000 into the player's pension fund, will be on hand to watch the men more than 3,000,000 fans voted baseball's outstanding players. Additionally, $125,000 will be stashed away in the till from television receipts. If it should rain—the fun will be held over until 11 a.m. EDT tomorrow.

SIMMONS MAY START

If the weather man's prediction of a cloudy, warm, humid day is correct, manager Leo Durocher of the Nationals will start Philadelphia Phillies' fire-balling left hander, Curt Simmons. He'll be faced by the veteran Vic Raschi, Stengel's right-handed money pitcher from the Yankees.

Simmons, a seven-game winner who has been beaten only twice, came back to baseball in April after 21 months' army duty.

Raschi is being used only because Stengel's first two choices, Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz and Allie Reynolds, big Yankee right hander, are on the injured list.

Stengel has lost George Kell, brilliant third sacker of Boston Red Sox, who is out with a groin injury. Dom DiMaggio, also of the Red Sox, will start in centre despite a leg injury.

The American League manager, who has failed to direct a winning All-Star team in two tries, indicated he plans to follow Raschi (8-2) with Bob Lemon (7-7) and possibly Satchel Paige (6-4), the seemingly ageless Negro pitcher of St. Louis Browns.

LOADED WITH POWER

Durocher, who also has failed to win with two National All-Star teams, feels he has one of the best National League dream teams of all time. The Nationsl have power to burn in big Hank Sauer who tops all players with 23 homers; the one and only Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson, Bobby Thomson, Roy Campanella and Enos Slaughter.

The senior circuit has good defence and such pitchers as Robin Roberts (11-6), Gerry Staley (11-6), who probably will hurl the middle three innings, Bob Rush (9-6), Sal Maglie (11-4) and Warren Spahn (7-9).

Figures indicate the National League has the advantage in power with 166 home runs so far this season to 133 for the Americans, and 740 runs driven in to 635 for the underdogs. The Americans will have six .300 hitters in their starting line-up to five for the Nationals.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Way back in the last bare-knuckle fight for the world's heavyweight championship, John L. Sullivan defended the title by winning the decision over Jake Kilrain 63 years ago today. That fight went 75 rounds at Richburg, Miss., and was the last important bare-knuckle fight in the United States. Sullivan lost the title to James J. Corbett at New Orleans in 1892, when both fighters wore big gloves.

Boxers Suffer From Heat At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS).—An exhibition of boxing sponsored by Zigman's Boxing Club of Trenton drew a fair crowd to the community arena here on Saturday night. Local talent as well as pugilists from the Quinte area battled it out, with many of the boxers suffering more from the heat than from the blows of their opponents.

In the main bout, George Polmanter of Zigman's Boxing club of Trenton scored a T.K.O. over Sonny Mondeville of Belleville. Originally scheduled for three rounds, the fight ended during the second.

In the semi-final match, Ray Lucas and Eddie Schamehorne, two Belleville boys battled, with Lucas taking the decision.

Two 45-pound boxers, Terry O'-Sullivan and David Ness of Campbellford fought to a tie, and Campbellford's two boxing brothers, Norman and Michael Runions, in the 50-pound class, did the same. Allen Copperthwaite of Campbellford took the decision over another home town opponent, Ray Petherick in the 90-pound class.

Al Weese of the Quinte area came out on top of his bout with Ron Jones of Zigman's in Trenton.

The bout was held in Campbellford to promote the art of boxing locally. At the close of the contest, a miniature cup was presented to each child pugilist, as a memento of the evening.

Tigers Wallop Thistles 15-4

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tigers defeated Fergus Thistles 15-4 last night in the Ontario Lacrosse Association's senior loop.

Fergus led 2-1 at the end of the first quarter but Hamilton bounced back 5-3 at half time and 7-3 at the three-quarter mark.

Blaine McDonald scored five goals for Hamilton while Tommy Love and George Masters fired two each. Top scorers for the Fergus squad were Gord Steel and Stan Abbott.

Gerry Knetchel Tops Field Of Qualifiers

LONDON (CP)—Gerry Knechtel, defending Ontario junior champion, topped the field of qualifiers in the Western Ontario zone preliminary at Sunningdale Golf Club yesterday with a two-over-par 73.

The Kitchener youngster had a three-stroke edge over his nearest rival, Fred Lehman of Kitchener Westmount, who shot a 76. Bob Dowby of St. Thomas was third with 77.

A field of 46 youngsters ranging in age from 11 to 18 entered the tournament and 16 of them gained berths in the Ontario junior championship, a 36-hole affair, which will be staged at the London Highland Club Friday.

Kitchener golfers dominated Class A for golfers from 16 to 18, sending six of the nine qualifiers in the division into the big meet.

Gavilan-Turner Gate Tops Financial Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Kid Gavilan-Gil Turner fight at the Municipal Stadium last night broke all financial records for a welterweight fight but failed by a few hundred persons to match the all-time high for attendance.

A total of 39,025 fans paid $269,677 to see Gavilan stop Turner in the 11th round. The figures compared with the 39,968 attendance and $194,330 gate for the Jimmy McLarnin-Barney Ross scrap May 28, 1934, at the Long Island Bowl, New York.

Savoie Wins Split Decision Over Greco

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Armand Savoie, Canadian lightweight champion, added the welterweight title last night when he won a split decision over champion Johnny Greco in a rousing 12-round bout at Montreal.

Savoie weighed 135 pounds, Greco 145¾.

Both fighters were on the verge of knockouts during the bout. Spectators in shirt sleeves, were drenched in perspiration in the Montreal Forum, where the bout took place. It was one of the hottest nights in years.

The crowd was 4,690 with the gross gate $12,043.

Savoie's speed gave him the advantage and he outboxed the heavier Greco. The latter used his 10-pound weight edge and in the infighting, which featured most of the bout, he steadily pounded Savoie's left kidney, while Savoie countered with short, sharp uppercuts.

In the fifth round, Greco appeared to lose the steam in his punches, and Savoie pounded him consistently. Greco seemed out on his feet.

In the 10th, Greco came back strongly and drove several hard jabs to Savoie's jaw. Savoie went down against the ropes but bounced back. He was wrestled down again for a no-count before the round ended.

As the 11th round opened, Savoie, realizing his sharp, speedy boxing had piled up the points, stayed away from his heavier opponent and jabbed. He took this round by a slim margin, and hammered Greco in the last round, the Welterweight was almost out as the gong sounded.

In the preliminaries, Bryan Kelly 139¼, of Niagara Falls, Ont., won over Juan Torrens, 137, of Puerto Rico, in eight rounds.

Jean Poirier, 144½, of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Pat Manzies, 145, Syracuse, N.Y., fought to an eight-round draw.

CLOCKERS BARRED

In future, clockers will be refused access to the stabling areas of all Ontario Racing Association tracks. Said S. Tupper Bigelow, chairman of the commission, in Toronto yesterday: "Their presence in the stabling area caused a general inconvenience. They were interfering with horses and horsemen going to the track and to the barns."

Great Britain's Ups And Downs Problem For All To Ponder

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Watching Britain go through her economic troubles is something like listening to the chant of a fight announcer: "He's up! HE'S DOWN He's up!"

When "he's up" we cheer, in this case. When "he's down" someone does something. Old Man Britain pulls in his belt a notch and, if necessary, a helping hand is given.

But it begins to look as though not enough thought is being given by enough people towards making the "up" cry stick.

MUSTN'T GO 'DOWN'

Most everyone in the western world probably feels that Britain always comes through"; we pay tribute to her sacrifices in two wars and commiserate with her people in their austerity programs.

If, on this side of the water, we do lend a hand, it is still without much idea of what the ultimate outcome will be, and is based on the least that will allow Britain to avoid "going broke" as of the moment.

This seems to be the case despite the fact that no country ever before has extended economic help to another country in the measure in which the United States, particularly, has given aid to European countries, including Britain.

Even in this there has been the tendency to cut off the aid at the first signs of recovery, and before there is any assurance that the recovery is definite.

This is understandable, to a degree. The United States taxpayer or the Canadian taxpayer, can't be expected to keep on paying unless he feels there is real purpose.

NEEDS CLOSE LOOK

What bothers one is that little real attempt seems to be made to get a good look at what the problem is, and what is required to solve it.

This is not only a problem for Britain, but for all peoples whose prosperity is tied up with hers, and Canada is certainly one of these.

While one does not know the solution to Britain's problem, one can take a look at its roots:

Britain became wealthy through buying raw materials cheaply and selling manufactured goods; and also selling services—financial services such as banking and insurance; shipping services; all the items which accompany trade. She invested her money in other countries and got back dividends.

Today, she can't buy raw materials cheaply, and it is more difficult to sell manufactured goods at a profit. She has lost, through two wars, much of her income from investments abroad and from services.

PICTURE BLACK

It makes a dismal picture. It is not made less dismal by the fact that the average Briton, observers say, is not aware of how dismal it is.

Prime Minister Churchill described it recently as standing on "a dangerous trap-door." At the same time, he added: "At the moment we are holding our own."

So, maybe, this time, Britain will again be "up" and perhaps "up" to stay. But so far in the post-war years, the "ups" have been followed by "downs."

If this should again be the case, it would seem impossible that Britain can keep on going from crisis to crisis.

One of these days, if the problem is not solved, Britain will get a government which will say, in effect, as part of the Labor party now is saying: "Too bad, boys, but we can't play in world games any longer. We have to put our house in order, even if someone hits us over the head while we are doing it."

SEES WAY OUT

If one is an optimist one may see the direction of a way out, even if not the way itself. One may think that the need of the world for more goods, for a better standard of living, is so great that there is a place for all productive power now existing.

And one could hope that Britain's basic problems could be solved to the extent that she may have a reasonable chance to apply her powers of leadership and enterprise to meeting the world need, and becoming prosperous again in doing so.

Canadians may understand Britains difficulty better by looking at the roots of their own prosperity.

That prosperity is based on selling raw materials—digging minerals out of the ground, cutting down forests, growing wheat. We draw on a bank which nature gave us, Britain hasn't that sort of a bank. As stated before, she depends on selling finished goods and services.

A solution to Britain's problem is not a solution to that problem alone; it is inherent in solving the gulf between the dollar area and other trading areas.

CENTRE OF TRADE

Britain is the centre of the biggest trading area in the world, the sterling area—yet her foreign exchange funds are only about equal to Canada's foreign exchange funds.

We have scarcely dared to think of what would happen to world trade if Britain, the banker for the sterling area, were to collapse. We have scarcely dared to think of what would happen to the world "period."

Believes Russia To Stick With Red Cross

TORONTO (CP)—Jean Duchosal, secretary-general of the international committee of the Red Cross, said yesterday he thinks Russia will stay with the organization.

In a statement he denied a suggestion that the 18th conference of the society, opening here July 23, might mark the end of the International Red Cross because of Russian-bloc abstentions.

Mr. Duchosal said that while Russian delegates didn't participate in the last conference in Stockholm in 1948, Soviet members have taken part since in international committee meetings. Sometimes they walked out, but always returned.

His statement was issued in answer to a New York Times dispatch which quoted unnamed Geneva officials as saying they feared the end of the society because of recent violent Russian press attacks.

Many Divorces Granted

TORONTO (CP)—The number of divorces in Ontario up to June 30 was 12 per cent higher this year for a six-month period than last year. During 1951, 2,098 divorces were granted. In the first six months of this year 1,340 were made absolute, compared with 1,195 for the same period last year.

U.S. Mayor Taken Off List To Keep Out Of Mich. Jail

DETROIT (AP)—Mayor Orville L. Hubbard of Dearborn scratched himself off the list of Michigan delegates to the Republican National Convention yesterday. He did it in preference to going to jail.

Lawyer John J. Fish holds a $7,500 libel judgment against Hubbard which he has been trying to collect since 1950. Hubbard has dodged jail by posting a $5,000 bond, but it requires him to remain at all times within the confines of Wayne county.

Hubbard got himself elected a Republican delegate and proclaimed himself a supporter of Senator Robert A. Taft for the Presidency.

Fish promptly obtained court permission to have Hubbard jailed without further ado, if Hubbard went to the convention.

"It's like this, you see," Fish said. "I like Ike, and I heard Hubbard's alternate leans toward General Eisenhower."

MAIN STREET TOPICS

REPAIR STAIRWAYS

Stairways at the P.C.V.S. are to be resurfaced, probably during the summer holidays. "Tremco" an asphalt mix will be laid and the whole job is expected to come to $500. This was approved Monday night by the Board of Education's property committee.

TWO FIRE ALARMS

Firemen were called out twice Monday night. The first time they had to put out a grassfire that broke out on a city lot behind 379 Dobbin Ave. The second time it was a rubbish fire at the rear of 733 Stewart St., home of Miss Marjorie Cameron.

VISITING LADY FISHERMAN

Mrs. Lillian Fry, the former Miss Franks of Hastings, revisited old familiar fishing spots and landed two black bass off First Island on the Trent River; they weighed 3¼ and 2 pounds, respectively.

GETS FISH HOOK IN HEAD

A wild cast failed to land a fish Monday, but a Pennsylvania man holidaying in the Kawarthas was hooked in the head. The injury, although painful was not serious and Robert Trunwick, 25, of Corapolis, Pa., was given out patient treatment at Civic Hospital where the hook was removed.

CHASED BY FLIES

Deer flies chased huckleberry pickers out of the rock country north of Havelock and around the Blue Mountains east of Stony Lake at the weekend. According to one report these flies appear in swarms every seven years, and with an attraction for berry pickers' epidermis that is sharpened by the absence of seven years.

AUDITORIUM DRAPES

Colorful drapes, in which the school colors of garnet and grey are worked in, will be hung on the four large windows at the P.C.V.S. auditorium. Cost of about $700 was approved Monday by the property committee of the Board of Education. Women members of Principal C. S. Browne's staff made the choice.

DOG SAVES MAN

Goldie, constant fishing companion of John Simons, 78, of Ops Township, sounded enough urgent barks to save his master on Sunday evening. They had been fishing on the Scugog River, and while trying to land at the home wharf Mr. Simons toppled into the water. While the elderly gentleman was trying to crawl out Goldie rushed to the house, warned Mrs. Simmons to come to the dock and give assistance. Aside from a good ducking, Mr. Simons suffered no ill effects except for losing his spectacles.

LAY NEW CORRIDOR

A new ground floor corridor is to be laid at P.C.V.S. The old 96-foot corridor now squeaks and distracts students from their studies. In summertime, being loose, it buckles from the moisture. The property committee of the Board of Education, to remedy the situation, recommended Monday night that some 1,400 feet of double battleship linoleum be laid at a cost of $746. The old wooden floor would be torn up and a plywood base laid, costing an additional $204.

4 Intruders Besmirch Dignity Of Court Shot Without Trial, Removed By Firemen

The last of four gunshot victims was removed from the county courtroom today as the court officials, firemen and police stood by. Altogether the casualty roll as a result of the shooting was four dead—one of whom was carried from the county court room last Friday.

All four of the deceased were pigeons who found their way into the court room and were picked off by Court Constable Carman English, a crack shot with a .22 rifle.

Only a few feathers and a couple of bullet marks inside the tall skylight are left to tell the tale. But it was funny while it lasted.

Last Thursday an overly-curious pigeon, seeing the dignitaries assemble for the induction of Judge John de Navarre Kennedy, flew inside, swooped around a few times, and finally settled up on a ledge inside the skylight.

WHAT IF....?

Court officials were in a tizzy. What if the bird should start doing a few circuits during the ceremony? What would happen to court dignity? Supposing the bird when directly over the judge's bench decided that...but no, everything turned out for the best. The pigeon remained hidden during the swearing-in...

Next day the court room windows were left open so he could clear out. Instead, three other pigeons decided to come in and join their pioneering friend. They began to make a nest. And also, incidentally, quite a mess.

B-B guns failed to dislodge the four birds, so Constable English volunteered to pick them off with his rifle. He did so with little trouble. The only drawback was that only one of them fell to the court room floor; the other three remained on a ledge along one wall of the deep skylight.

Baked by the sun since Friday the three corpses began to get a bit gamey, so it was decided today to put an end to the nonsense. Firemen were summoned and they hoisted a 35-foot ladder and removed the remains.

A cleanup job has still to be done.

U.E. Men Urge NoDiscrimination In Noise Bylaw

George Wallace, president, expressed to the council on Monday night the hope of the membership of U. E. Local No. 524 that there would be no discrimination in any amendment of the anti-noise bylaw. He was accompanied by business agent, Art Hunter.

"We are not opposed to any new steps to prevent unnecessary noises," Mr. Wallace said. "We are citizens as well as union members. But, many of our members were concerned about the report of the council meeting referring only to what was mentioned as noises at the C. G. E. It was said that Chief Thompson found difficulty in getting evidence in that neighbourhood to prove any charges that might be made under the by-law."

OTHER NOISES.

Mr. Wallace said he lived down in the neighbourhood between King Edward and Morrow Park.

"We have been subjected to noises from the Exhibition, carnival shows, sports events and so on, but we realize that these things are probably necessary in a community today. Our own sound equipment has been used only to inform our members of what is going on. The equipment is directed into the plant grounds, and is hardly audible to people near-by."

"In that respect it is not like the C. G. E. whistle that sounded a few minutes after our broadcasts at the noon hour.

"You may say that we are unduly alarmed, that we are are crossing a bridge before coming to it, but our workers have been asking why the report of the council or committee meeting mentioned only C. G. E. in connection with the proposed amendements.

"They said, is it anti-noise or anti-union? I am quite sure that the council appreciates what our union has accomplished in recent years in raising the standard of living in this city.

EQUAL TREATMENT.

"Many of you are business men, and you know the importance of good living standards. We hope there is no intention of the council to infringe upon working class rights, especially as we wish to use loud speaking equipment on only a few occasions during the whole year. We represent some 4,000 workers; we are not here to speak harshly, but only to ask that you treat us as you would other groups."

Briefly, Mr. Hunter added the request that the council would not make the bylaw discriminatory against United Electric Workers.

Mayor Waddell said the proposed bylaw had been referred to the legal committee, that nothing had been decided yet, and reference to its scope was so far only incidental.

3 Cars Tangle At Intersection

Three vehicles were in collision Monday night at Bellevue St. and Highway 7, causing more than $300 damage. Nobody was injured.

The tangle began when Glen H. Hanes, 26, of R.R. 2, Peterborough, slowed his truck while driving south on Highway 7 to make a left-hand turn into Bellevue St. Bellevue is just north of the city limits.

A second truck, driven by John McKeiver of R.R. 10 Peterborough, ran into the rear of Hanes' truck and knocked it into the path of a northbound car driven by William C. McFaul of R.R. 2, Peterborough.

Heaviest damage was to Hanes' pickup truck. The door on the box and the right rear fender were torn off; and the front left fender was caved in. Damage is about $200.

McFaul's car which was scraped down the left side and received $100 damage. The front left fender of the McKeiver vehicle was damaged.

O.P.P. Constable Harold Armstrong investigated.

PYJAMAS PLUS BLANKET

A veracious citizen who has a cottage at Stony Lake told the story this morning that along about midnight last night he had to unroll the light blanket at the foot of his bed. He says there are few nights of the summer that,—well, that the blanket may be ignored. And he says he is no penguin, either.

Rate Of Water Used In City Drops Sharply

A drop of 25 per cent in the maximum rate of pumpage of water Monday night was regarded by the management of Utilities Commission as an immediate effect of the appeal to the public Monday for regulated watering of lawns and gardens.

Just to repeat the proposal, which has tacit sanction behind it, lawn and gardening watering is permitted only one hour a day, from 9 to 10 p.m., in the following sectional arrangement:

Mondays and Thursdays, 9 to 10 p.m.—All of Ashburnham.

Tuesdays and Fridays—All west of the river and north of Sherbrooke St.

Wednesdays and Saturdays — All west of the river and south of Sherbrooke Street.

No watering of lawns and gardens is permitted on Sunday.

R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Utilities, said today the commission appreciated the substantial co-operation of the public on such short notice Monday evening.

Volume of pumpage for the entire day was higher than on Sunday. Factories, stores and offices accounted considerably for that increase, but the maximum rate, that is for the hour of maxi-consumption, was down 28 per cent. The temporary regulation will be cancelled as soon as Ontario, and particularly the Peterborough district, gets a soaking rain.

From police headquarters it was reported that some householders on the west side of the river telephoned that, while they left their hoses idle, neighbors here and there were sprinkling as usual. It was expected that some people would not be aware of the Utilities order so soon after it was issued.

Others pointed at the city hall lawn where a sprinkler was flowing throughout the evening.

Probably citizens will agree that the Utilities Commission should exempt the city hall grounds from the present restriction. That lawn was laid as new sod last October, and is only now becoming established. It has been well watered this season and has shown growth and greenness.

$2,108 In Equipment For Kenner Collegiate

Purchases amounting to $2,108.49—some of the equipment needed in the cafeteria and the home economics department of Kenner Collegiate—were recommended Monday night by the accommodation committee of the Board of Education.

Largest items were for 115 stacking chairs ($690) and 14 enamel tables, seating eight diners, ($496). Chairs and tables are for the new cafeteria.

Other items are 10 dozen cutlery $111.50, 10 dozen crockery $185 and glassware $217.

Borden's are prepared to instal an ice cream cabinet.

Rest of the expenditure was for home economics items.

Far East Dollar Shortage Hits Westclox, Helps Quaker

Layoffs and short time work weeks in some Canadian industries can be traced directly to the critical shortage of dollars in sterling countries, closing export markets to Canadian goods. Only one of several large Canadian firms, Quaker Oats Co., is in the happy position of doing more business in South East Asia than it was doing two years ago.

"We haven't been affected as yet," James Wharry, general manager and vice-president of the company, said today. "We sell in United States dollars in the Far East and our business there is better than it was two years ago."

Mr. Wharry said that this was largely due to the fact that Quaker is now shipping flour to export markets in the Far East and this plus the fact that U.S. dollars are cheaper in terms of sterling than Canadian dollars which are at a premium in terms of U.S. dollars has boosted Quaker's export trade to a "plus position."

"It (the dollar shortage) may affect us eventually," said Mr. Wharry, 'but it hasn't yet."

HARDEST HIT

Western Clock Co., where all except one department have been on a four-day work week for several weeks, is hardest hit of any Peterborough industry by the loss of export markets due to the dollar shortage.

"We have lost quite a lot of business due to the shortage of dollars," J. H. Vernor, general manager and vice-president of the company, said today.

A substantial volume of business used to be done in New Zealand and other countries of the Far East and also in England, but, Mr. Vernor said, the lack of dollars in sterling countries has "submerged" these markets and "resulted in loss of employment in Peterborough."

There is still plenty of demand in these countries but they just haven't the money to pay for Canadian products," said Mr. Vernor.

Elsewhere, the story is much the same.

The Parker Pen Co., in Toronto, is shutting down for five weeks, because inventories have piled up and this is primarily due to the loss of the Far East export market according to company officials.

In addition to the dollar shortage, the drop in rubber prices is another factor which is putting a crimp in Canadian export business.

Indonesia, Burma, Indo China and Hong Kong, all lucrative markets for Canadian goods, have practically dried up, because of the high cost of buying Canadian dollars in relation to sterling.

17 PER CENT HIGHER

Canadian dollars are about 17 per cent more expensive than sterling and some of the markets where Canadian goods would normally be in demand are closed to Canadian goods and sterling countries are trading among themselves to beat the exchange problem.

Today, the U.S. dollar is at a discount of 3.93 in terms of Canadian dollars and this difference has enabled Quaker Oats to maintain its export markets in sterling areas better than some other firms, because it sells its products in U.S. dollars.

Although the Ford Motor Co. has lost some of its Canadian export business, its subsidiary companies in Australia, New Zealand and Malay have enabled it to maintain its position in sterling countries.

Approval Given To Build Junior School

The Department of Education have approved an expenditure of $100,000 for the erection of a four-room school on Cameron St. This was made known Monday night at a meeting of the accommodation committee of the Board of Education.

Board officials hope to have the school—consisting of three classrooms and a kindergarten—open for September 1953. It is designed to relieve the class room scarcity in the rapidly-expanding south end.

HOPE TO SHAVE COSTS

Though the department have sanctioned the spending of $100,000 members of the accommodation committee are hoping to have the building completed for about $85,000.

The committee are recommending that the architect be J. B. Parkin Associates of Toronto. This firm is already engaged on two Board of Education building projects in the city.

Official approval to the recommendation must come at the July meeting of the Board on Thursday night.

BLUE IN THE GARDEN

These are delphinium days in hundreds of gardens around town. They offer a beautiful range of blues, and are one of the most graceful flowers of the summer. Hollyhocks are blooming, thriving as usual in the summer heat. Out Charlotte St. this morning a row of wine red against a cream painted fence was a striking, if casual arrangement.

Council Gives Green Light To Put In Roads, Sewers In North End Subdivision

City Engineer Chalmers Estimates Costs To Be $135,000 Go Ahead On Assurance Of Board's Approval

Estimated cost of roads, sewers and storm drains in the Queen Elizabeth subdivision, north of the city, amounts to approximately $135,000 in the report which City Engineer Chalmers presented to the council Monday night. Preliminary work as directed by the council several months ago has been largely confined so far to the laying of storm drains. Lacking the definite authority of a bylaw, but with the assurance of eventual approval of the Ontario Municipal Board, after annexation by the city of that section of Smith township, Mr. Chalmers asked the council Monday night for instructions as to continuing essential improvements.

He was authorized to proceed with the general program of necessary development of the housing subdivision in the particulars of laying sewers and making gravelled and oiled roads.

Queen Elizabeth subdivision was planned by the council to encourage the erection of houses this season rather than wait until 1953 when the larger area of annexation becomes available.

Details of the total costs are: drains, $44,660; sewers, $61,526.62; roads, $28,257.30. City Engineer Chalmers provides details of the apportionment of costs between the city and prospective houses in the Queen Elizabeth subdivision.

In accordance with the council's order of May 19, he reported, work had been proceeding on the main drainage outlet and the grading of streets. Some of the lots have been improved by filling and cutting. Pipe has been ordered for the balance of the storm drainage system.

WILL BE APPROVED

Mr. Chalmers mentioned the fact, as ascertained by the council in its correspondence with the Ontario Municipal Board, that construction bylaws will be approved by that board, but they may not be passed for some time. Presumably that time is subsequent to annexation of the property from the township.

For that reason, he said, he was applying for necessary direction and authority in regard to the other phases of the whole program of developing the subdivision for eventual housing.

"If all the work was held up for the bylaws, there might be considerable delay in the development of the subdivision."

Streets comprising the storm drainage system are as follows:

Dumble Ave., from Hilliard St. to Barnardo Ave.

Argyle St., from Dumble to the end of Argyle.

Schneider Place, from Dumble north to the end of the street.

Rishor Crescent, from Dumble to Hilliard St.

Nicholls St., from Cluxton St. to the north of Nicholls.

Elizabeth Ave., from Philip St. to the westerly limit of lot 36.

Gilbert St., from Elizabeth Ave. to McClennan Ave.

Philip St., from Elizabeth Ave. to McClennan.

South side of McClennan from the easterly limit of lot one to the westerly limit of lot 21.

"We are also enclosing the open drain outlet from the southerly limit of Nicholls St. at Cluxton St., northerly to Dumble Ave.; easterly along Dumble Ave. to the point where the open drain leaves the north limit of Dumble Ave.; also enclosing the open drain where it crosses Elizabeth St.

The groom was attended by Mr. Elmer Lidtkie of Peterborough and ushers were Earl Guthrie and Dave Johnson. Mr. Sherman Harrison of Omemee was soloist.

Guests came from Timmins, Mactier, Brockville, Port Hope and Bobcaygeon.

The bride and groom will live in Peterborough.

SOMETHING FOR THE BOYS

It isn't sissy. It's just plain consideration for clothes and companions. Men, as well as women (but alas, too few do it) should use a deodorant. One of the easiest is body powder that takes only a quick dash after the shower.

Interesting addresses are the features of the four-day program following which the delegates will relax for a social weekend on Vancouver Island. Sessions will be devoted to discussion and reports of chairmen and presidents.

At the Tuesday evening banquet "The Woman of the Year" will be named and will also be the guest speaker. This title is bestowed by the Canadian Federation of B. & P.W. ## Waistlines Go Up And Down

DALLAS— Waistlines go up and down confusingly. In some instances the merest suggestion of a changed line at the waist is achieved by lowered tucking, or by color contrasts in an Empire line just under the bust line.

This type of line is used successfully in a navy and lime combination. The middy dress (shades of the '20's) has been trying to re-establish itself for several years, and it looks as though it might succeed this season.

In a polished cotton, two-piece dress, one designer does a middy style that has charm. A bias fold marks the bottom of the blouse and a very small collar edged with black velvet marks the neckline. Three-quarter-length sleeves and a full pleated skirt finish the costume.

Another house does well with this look, too, featuring a satin-striped cotton with dropped waist and box-pleated skirt. The satin stripes are up on the flat side of the pleats, giving nice movement to the skirt.

Yellow And White Combine Smartly

NEW YORK— One of Veneziani's ideas for a weekend costume shown here consisted of a bodice and knee trousers of yellow linen. Over these was worn a white pleated coat. The coat could be buttoned down the front and worn with a lastex belt, which made it into a perfect dress— the yellow trousers discreetly hidden beneath its ample skirt.

The combination of corn yellow and white was used in a number of instances througout the collection— a combination always winning in its sunniness and crispness. One of these was designed by Vanna, who used an overcoat in yellow linen, covered in a white cotton scroll of hand embroidery which topped a dress of silk taffeta shot through with flecks of gold.

SWEET AND NEAT

Handiest way we know to carry a deodorant wherever you go — a new creamy lotion deodorant in a plastic "squeeze-me" bottle that makes application easy as anything. Fragrant as a garden after the rain — won't irritate your skin, either.

Roseneath Girl Paris Wed Will Live In West Africa

ROSENEATH — (ENS) — A pretty double ring wedding took place Saturday, at four o'clock in the chapel of the European Bible Institute, Chatou, Paris, France, of Clarice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Atkinson of Roseneath, to the Rev. Donald Stegink, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stegink of Holland, Michigan.

The chapel was decorated with summer flowers and greenery. The Rev. David Cole officiated. Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Merla Baer, Mrs. Grant Crooks was the guest soloist. Preceding the ceremony she sang "Because" and after the vows "The Wedding Song." (In Paris a register is not signed).

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. John Bercot of Paris (in whose home Miss Atkinson has lived.) wore a floor length gown of white Chantilly lace over satin with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, and leg-o-mutton sleeves. The bouffant skirt of lace was made in three tiers, each tier with a scalloped edge. Her finger tip veil of lace was held in place with a tiara of white satin and tulle and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Mildred Davis, of Washington, D.C., wearing a dress of maize taffeta with square neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt, with matching headdress and carrying a bouquet of blue cornflowers.

Mr. David Knowlton of Pennsylvania, was the groom's attendant. Both maid of honour and groomsman are fellow S. I. M. missionaries.

The marriage ceremony was tape recorded to be sent to their relatives at home.

The ushers were George Clarke and Grant Crooks.

A reception was held for 60 guests, mostly missionaries, some working in France, others studying there. The guests were from U.S.A. and Canada, Great Britain, Switzerland and France. Waitresses for the buffet luncheon were fellow school mates of the bride at Briercrest Bible Institute, namely Misses Jean Soutar, Jane Younker, Edith Durst and Mrs. James Cail.

Following the luncheon there was a short program including:

A vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. John Viver. Vocal solo "In Heavenly Love Abiding" by Miss Edith Witherspoon and tape recordings giving congratulations of bride's and grooms' families. A telegram of congratulations was also read.

The bride is a former teacher of Roseneath School and a graduate of Briercrest Bible Institute, Caronport, Saskatchewan. The groom is a graduate of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Minister's Wife Honored At Warkworth Tea

WARKWORTH (ENS) —A delightfully arranged afternoon tea was held Thursday on the beautifully shaded lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Massey under the sponsorship of the W.M.S. of St. Paul's United Church.

Guests had been invited from the Women's Association of St. Paul's, the Dorcas Group of the W.A and Willing Workers, the Norham Group of the W.A., the Dartford W.M.S. and the Oak Heights W.A. all of the Warkworth charge as well as the Morganston W.A. More than 120 ladies registered in the guest book over which Mrs. George Bowen presided; she also presided as cashier for the tea.

Mrs. Albert Harwood was in charge of a what-not table, where gifts, both wrapped and otherwise, brought 25c each, netting a profit of $8.75.

Mrs. Massey, as hostess, and Mrs. H. G. Lester, president of the W.M.S., who is also the wife of the Pastor of the church, received the guests under a beautiful arbor at the entrance to the grounds.

Tall standards of blue canterbury bells, blue delphiniums and pink roses with blue and pink ribbons from the huge maples marked off the dining centre where four tea tables were arranged under the trees. The tables were centred with pink roses and blue delphiniums in silver bowls.

Music floated down from the trees as the P.A. system supplied by George Osborne was used with additional records loaned by Mrs. W. Grant Allen, the convener for the decorative arrangements. She was assisted by Mrs. Joe Greenly and Mrs. Chas. Diamond.

Tea was poured from the silver tea services by Mrs. Martin Peterson, Mrs. J. A. Peterson, Miss N. Ewing, Mrs. A. E. Storie, Mrs. B. Hopkins and Mrs. D. H. Evans.

Waitresses or servieteurs were Mrs. John Bound, Mrs. Don Thompson, Mrs. Howard Evans, Mrs. Douglas Rowe, Mrs. Glenn Hancock, Mrs. Harry Kelly and Mrs. Harold Buttars, Mrs. V. Sinclair and Mrs. Clayton Young.

They were assisted by Mrs. Joe Greenly, Mrs. Charles Diamond, Mrs. Oscar Laver and Mrs. Stanley Brenton, who replenished the plates.

Large polished wooden trays were used to serve the dainty luncheon to the guests.

About four o'clock a highlight of the afternoon program came when Mrs. Lorne Evans on behalf of the various groups of Women's Circles assembled there, in an address to Mrs. H. G. Lester, wife of the Rev. H. G. Lester and also the president of the W.M.S., expressed the regret of all upon their learning of her plans to move to another charge in the near future, and Mrs. F. B. ## To Honeymoon In B.C.

Sacred Heart Church was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday morning when Theresa Chenier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chenier of Peterborough became the bride of Mr. John Kirschner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kirschner of Kelowna, B.C. The Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant officiated.

The church was decorated with large baskets and bouquets of roses, white and pink carnations and blue delphiniums and ferns. Mr. H. Michel was at the organ and Mr. Anthony DeNoble sang several hymns including "Ave Maria" and "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride chose a gown of white net over satin. The fitted net jacket had a fine pleated edging around the neckline and down the front and had large puff sleeves. The moulded bodice of the strapless gown was of embroidered net and had organdy applique. Her bouffant skirt was accented by a crinoline and fell into graceful folds to a hemline of wide embroidered and organdy applique. Her cathedral-length veil of tulle illusion was caught by a bonnet brim cap of lace over satin and she carried a prayer book with white gardenias and bouvardia.

Mrs. Kenneth Speakman was her sister's maid of honor and Miss Lucille Brooks and Mrs. Donald Heffernan, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of turquoise net over taffeta with panels of lace with an off-the-shoulder neckline with wide lace collars. They wore matching bonnet brim caps and they carried cascade bouquets of matching carnations. Little Miss Sandra Johnston, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and she wore a gown and bonnet brim cap identical to the bridesmaids and carried a basket of matching carnations and forget-me-nots.

Mr. David Kirschner was his brother's groomsman, and ushers were Ted Chenier, brother of the bride, and Jack Wakeford.

Large bouquets of pink and white carnations decorated the table at the Empress Hotel where the reception was held. A reception was also held at the home of the bride's parents where Mrs. Chenier received in a gown of French blue taffeta with white and blue accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias.

The bride and groom left on a month's honeymoon motoring to Vancouver and Kelowna, B. C. For travelling the bride wore a two piece white linen suit with white and navy accessories. Her corsage when going away was of red sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirschner will make their home in Peterborough on return.

DOROTHY DIX

Sons-In-Law Are Under Fire Mother Resents Attentions

DEAR MISS DIX: The old "mother-in-law" gags are probably based on sound facts—however, there are a few sons-in-law in my family who ought to grow up and leave my husband and myself alone. We would appreciate being allowed to raise the two children left at home without interference from our married daughters and their husbands. They are constantly dumping their children on us, inviting themselves to dinner and landing on us, bag and baggage, with their friends and brothers in the middle of our vacation. If they would assist in the work involved by their visits and conduct themselves as human beings instead of sharp-tongued critics, they would be welcome.

Our sons-in-law seem to forget they married our daughters, not the entire family. I have never visited our daughters but they have called upon me to act as practical nurse when their babies arrive, even though they are well able to hire a housekeeper or nurse at such a time. I feel that since my daughters have their own homes and families, they should leave us alone and allow us the same courtesies and privacies they extend their neighbors. They think nothing of inquiring into our financial affairs, yet would consider it an encroachment on their rights if we did the same to them.

JULIA J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your in-law trouble stems from an angle of this eternal problem that seldom presents difficulties. Most women get along very nicely with their sons-in-law —provided, of course, they are good husbands—and rarely have complaints. Actually, if one reads your letter for facts, leaving out your own exasperations, it presents a pretty ideal picture of parent and in-law relationships.

THEIR ATTITUDE HEALTHY

Most complaints from parents-in-law concern the fact that the older folks get too little attention. Grandma complains if daughter gets hired help to care for the children instead of bringing them home to mother. The fact that your daughters and their husbands feel so free to call upon you in emergencies, to descend upon you for dinner unexpectedly, and are sufficiently interested in your welfare to make inquiries about various conditions, is a healthy sign, rather than the reverse.

The gravest crime of which the young men are guilty, is, I'm sure, thoughtlessness. They probably think you enjoy having them around so much; in truth, it's a much happier feeling to be overburdened with attention than to be neglected.

Surely your children aren't so obtuse that they can't be convinced of your desire for more privacy! However, please don't insist on your rights to the extent that you hurt the young people's feelings. You will be the loser, in that case. Be thankful for your children's confidence, for the happiness of having your grandchildren near, and for having the opportunity of being part of their growing up. Doting grandparents are a blessed part of a child's heritage; don't deprive either the grandchildren or yourselves of this privilege.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: After going with a boy for six months, we broke up recently because I attended a dance club after he asked me not to go. I still like him a lot and know he likes me. I'd never go to such a place again, but he is afraid to trust me. I'm 16.

ANNABELLE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since the place to which he objected has, apparently, an unpleasant reputation, he was only looking after your welfare and y should have had sense enough to realize it. At 16 you can't be too careful about the places you frequent. One breath of scandal can cause damage that years of irreproachable living won't wipe out. Wait until his anger cools off and perhaps he'll give you another chance.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For the last two years I have supported my husband and two children on very small wages. Now he has a good job and refuses to pay anything for our support. I'm 25, and have not been well.

BETTY A.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your husband is bound by law to support his family. If he refuses, get in touch with the Family Court in your city, or consult the Legal Aid Society.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Raspberry Jam Session

There are three cogent things (about raspberries): (1) fresh in pie they are tops, (2) there is no better jam and (3) for me they tie with strawberries for shortcake.

There is a great stir amongst you readers about best methods of making raspberry jam. Some of you are having trouble with it fading; others say their raspberry jam ferments.

I am giving you the standard method of making raspberry jam; the method taught in Home Economics classes across the land, and basically the method used by manufacturers of pure jams. (Please don't waste your precious fruit and sugar by following old-fashioned methods that claim raspberry jam will keep without cooking.)

RASPBERRY JAM (Standard Method)

(This will answer Mrs. E. J. P., Mrs. Mabel Q. and the others who have written to me about raspberry jam in the past two weeks.)

Four quarts are plenty to handle in one batch. Gently wash 4 quarts choice fresh raspberries. As you wash each quart crush it with potato masher in bottom of heavy preserving kettle. Measure. Bring to boil, and gently simmer for 15 minutes. If you had 8 cups berries when you measured them add 6 cups sugar; (Otherwise figure ¾ cup sugar to each 1 cup of crushed uncooked berries.) Bring to boil and boil to jam stage.

To test for jam stage: remove kettle from heat, dip a teaspoon of jam from it onto cold saucer, and chill this quickly. If jam does not set to desired thickness boil a few minutes longer and test again. Jam thickens considerably on second day so allow for this.

Pour hot jam into sterilized jars, leaving ¼ inch space at top. Cover with double coating of paraffin—one at once and one when cool. Put on cover and store in cool place.

JULY JAM

Wash 2 cups each gooseberries, red currants (stemmed), raspberries, and 3 cups unpitted cherries. Pit cherries and mix all fruits when prepared. Crush in preserving kettle and bring to boil and boil uncovered to jam stage—about 10 to 12 minutes. Pour and seal as for raspberry jam above. (The cherries in this stay quite firm and it is a great favorite.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Now would you like to hear how an old raspberry pie hand makes hers?

EMEM'S RASPBERRY PIE (fresh)

(Who's fresh?)

This gives you a filling for a large 10-inch 2-crust pie. Prepare the glaze first. Mix together 1 cup sugar and 3 tablespoons cornstarch (use 4 tablespoons if pie is to be used within 2 hours of baking). Stir slowly into them 1 cup hot water plus 2 tablespoons. Stir over boiling water until thick. Add about 10 drops red food coloring and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Let cook 5 minutes covered, stirring once. Pour this hot glaze over 4 cups washed and drained raspberries in bowl and let stand while you make pastry for 2 crusts. Pour filling into pastry-lined pie plate that has been sprinkled with 2 tablespoons sifted dry bread or cracker crumbs. Seal well-gashed top crust to edges. Brush top crust with mixture of 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk. Bake 40 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr. Do not cut this pie until it is cooled to room temperature—preferably 4 or 6 hours after baking.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comes now M.G.M.'s answer to Francis the Talking Mule—Fearless Fagan, the wandering lion.

Unless Hollywood tradition reverses itself, that means you'll be seeing pictures with such titles as these:

"Fearless Fagan in Africa," "Fearless Fagan Takes a Mate" and, of course, "Son of Fearless Fagan."

There is no better or more consistent, moneymaker in the business than a series picture with an animal star. Lassie, Rin Tin Tin and now Francis are top examples. Universal-International, the trade reports say, uses Francis to pay off the studio overhead.

FAGAN'S PICTURE

M.G.M. press-previewed "fearless Fagan" the other day and introduced Pte. Floyd Humeston, the real-life owner of Fagan. Although Carleton Carpenter and Janet Leigh were co-starred, it was Fagan's picture. One critic quipped that he would give it a "four roar" rating. Another called Fagan the movie's best grunter since the late Wallace Beery.

But surest sign that the studio is going to give Fagan the buildup is the news that Sidney Franklin, Jr., has been raised to producer status.

Young Franklin, until Fagan came along, had only been an assistant to producer Gottfried Reinhardt.

OVERGROWN KITTEN

Although Fagan is 410 pounds of bonafide lion, he somehow acts like an overgrown kitten around Humeston. The soldier raised the beast from the time it was four days old. He spends every furlough away from Fort Ord with Fagan.

M.G.M. paid $10,000 for the Fearless Fagan story. Humeston got one-third but he said he considered the money of minor importance. The fact that Fagan has a good home at M.G.M. is what's really important.

"The very least I could do for that lion is give it a good home," says Franklin. "Look what he's done for me. He only needs 16 pounds of horsemeat a day. What M.G.M. star works that cheap?"

Two Princes Of Middle East Attending School At Harrow

By ROBERT JONES

HARROW, Middlesex, England. (AP). — Two studious looking youngsters with a lot in common occasionally meet in the narrow winding streets of Harrow. They stop and chat for a while before waving a cheery goodbye and passing on.

Experts in Arabic affairs think that before long the chats may lengthen into talks affecting 6,000,000 Arabs in the Middle East.

Both are 17. One is Feisal II, King of Iraq; the other is his cousin, Crown-Prince Hussein of Jordan.

Both are studying at Harrow, one of Britain's most fashionable schools, while 3,500 miles away political rulers of their two countries are mulling over whether to merge the two kingdoms into one.

KING SINCE 1939

Feisal has been King of Iraq since 1939 when his father, King Ghazi, was killed in an automobile accident. Hussein became Crown Prince after the assassination of his grandfather, King Abdullah, last summer.

Both have the same great grandfather-Hussein of the Hejaz, with whose help Britain freed what is now Syria, Iraq and Jordan from Turkish domination at the end of the First World War.

In the Middle East carve-up that followed the Turkish collapse, Hussein's two sons Feisal I and Abdullah took over Iraq and Jordon.

Feisal has no worries at home. He is popular in Iraq and his uncle, the Emir Abdul Illah, holds the reins as regent.

But for Hussein, life has been getting more complicated since his grandfather's death. His father, King Talal, considered anti-British, is under treatment for a mental ailment and shunned by his queen. In Jordan his cabinet has appointed a council to rule for him.

POSSIBLE ABDICATION

Talal's possible abdication would open the way for Hussein's accession when he comes of age on his 18th birthday next May — or for a merger of Iraq with Jordan.

Feisal has been at Harrow since 1950 and for two years before that at a preparatory school near Salisbury. Hussein was sent to Harrow last September, only a short time after he was officially proclaimed Crown Prince.

School authorities try to treat the royal pair as they do the other 550 pupils but both are granted liberal leave on weekends.

At school, like other students, each has a small room which serves as a bedroom and study combined.

They get up at 7:30 a.m., eat their meals in the communal dining hall and work the same hours In the afternoon they play as the other Harrovians, games. Both are keen on shooting and football, but neither thinks much of cricket.

School authorities, who emphasize that both lads are "normal boys doing normal work," say the cousins are likeable youngsters, somewhat shy and reserved.

Feisal has the making of a good artist. Three of his paintings have been shown at an Anglo-Arabic exhibition in London.

Hussein is an expert driver—he has a United States-made automobile back home and recently bought a pale blue English sedan that he drives around London at weekends.

6—In Memoriam

McCUE—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Bert McCue, who passed away July 6, 1950.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by wife, three sons, one daughter, grandchildren.

McQUARRIE—In memory of dear Allan, who was killed in action, July 8, 1944; buried in Benysurmere Cemetery, France.
He sleeps in a foreign land,
In a grave we may never see.
May God guide some kind hand
To lay a flower for me.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Father, and Family, and his wife in England.

WEYER—In loving memory of our little girl, Marjorie Ann Weyer, who passed away six years ago today, July 8, 1946.
She was only a little white rosebud,
A sweet little flower from birth.
God took her home to heaven
Before she was soiled on earth.
—Sadly missed by Mamma, Daddy, Raymond, Marion and Carolyn.

WEYER.—In loving memory of our granddaughter, Marjorie Ann Weyer, who passed away July 8, 1946.
The depths of sorrow we can not tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well;
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Ever remembered by Grandma, Grandpa, Uncle Bob and Aunt Mary.

Seven Youths Charged In Theft Of Gas

"Better take up a collection boys, the next time you want some gas," Magistrate E. A. Gee advised seven local youths charged with stealing gasoline from John Heard, 102 Bennett St., July 1.

"Suspicion points strongly to them but we have to have more than suspicion," Magistrate Gee said in granting Gordon H. T. Farquharson's motion for dismissal at the completion of the crown's case.

The seven: Roy Tully, 18, 667 Chamberlain St., James Shaw, 20, 166 Adeline St., Cecil LaFrance, 19, 653 Little St., Clifford Larock, 17, 713 Chamberlain St., Donald Bedford, 17, 221 London St., John Burfield, 19, 844 Bell Ave., and John Selvy, 20, 298 Wolfe St., were all represented by Mr. Farquharson and were all tried together.

O.P.P. Constable Harold Armstrong said he followed a car, which answered the description of a vehicle given to him by Mr. Heard, east on Bennett St., and its continuation, Dumble St., to Highway 28 and Water St., then north on Water St., for a distance before stopping it about 2.30 on the morning of July 1.

FOUND HOSE

The seven were in the car driven by Tully, he said, and he found a four-foot length of rubber hose, still damp and smelling of gas and a five gallon can in the trunk still wet and also smelling of gas.

Mr. Heard said he had lost gas on different occasions during the last three months and the night of July 1, he saw a man at the gas tank of his truck, with a can and after watching him for a few minutes, saw him cross the street to a car parked nearby.

The car which Constable Armstrong brought back for him to identify was "the same shape and kind of car as the one that drove away," said Mr. Heard but he could not swear it was the same one, or identify any of the seven accused.

Mr. Farquharson based his argument for non suit on the fact that Mr. Heard had not stated in evidence that any gas had been taken. Therefore he asked, "How can they be charged with theft when nothing was stolen."

Place Weigh Scales On Townsend Street

The public weigh scales will be transferred from the old market to a new site on Townsend Street in front of the big barn that was built for the housing of the horses of the sanitation department. The front part of that building will be converted into offices for the parks and sanitation departments, as recommended at their committee meeting on Monday night.

Aldermen Longhurst and Rehill, chairmen of those committees, were also authorized to build a grease pit in the former barn which has been altered for eventual use as a garage.

The joint offices of the two departments have been located in a house on the south side of Townsend Street, west of Miller Bowl.

from the southerly limit to the northerly limit of the street."

Estimated life time of the drains is 16 years.

SPREAD COST

"It would be inequitable to charge the whole of the cost of enclosing the outlet drain against property abutting on the above named streets, as the outlet ditch drains a large area of land and also provides an outlet for street drainage. It would also be inequitable to charge the whole of the property owners' part of the cost of the other drains against property abutting on the above named streets, as the drains are designed to drain the streets as well as the abutting property."

"It is recommended that the city corporation assume 75 per cent of the cost of enclosing the main outlet drain, and 40 per cent of the cost of the other drains; and the balance of the cost should be assessed against the property abutting on the above named streets."

Details of drain costs are:

| | |
|---|---|
| Enclosing parts of the main outlet drain | $11,675.97 |
| Other street drains as listed | 19,639.03 |
| Catch basins and connections | 13,345.00 |
| Total | $44,660.00 |

Preparing the Queen Elizabeth sub-division for the building of houses, as previously reported indicating the interest of a group of builders, is one of the main projects the council undertook this year.

Draining the land is a necessary preliminary in redeeming it from its original undeveloped condition as part of Smith Township.

$1.15 A FOOT

"Estimated cost per foot frontage for the share of property abutting on the above streets is $1.15, which when made payable in 15 annual instalments with interest at 4½ per cent is equivalent to 10.75 cents per foot frontage as the annual rate of charge."

That is, the charge to the eventual property owner for storm drainage will be 10¾ cents a foot.

| | |
|---|---|
| Corporation's share, 75 per cent of enclosing the main drain, is | $ 8,756.98 |
| Corporation's share, 40 per cent, of the other street drains | 7,855.61 |
| Catch basins and connections | 13,345.00 |
| Flankage and intersections | 3,726.99 |

Annual cost to be borne by the city is computed at $3,140.45 for 15 years.

THE SEWER PROGRAM

The sewers to be laid on the sub-division's streets are eight-inch mains on Dumble, Argyle, Schneider, Rishor, Nicholls, Philip and Elizabeth; and a 10-inch main on Dumble from Nicholls to Schneider.

An 18-inch main on Gilbert from McClennan to Elizabeth; on Elizabeth from Gilbert to Nicholls; on Nicholls from Elizabeth to Cluxton; and the outlet from Cluxton to the existing sewer at Sunnyside Street.

Cost of sewers is estimated at $61,526.62, of which the corporation's share is $17,221.80, or $1,603.59 a year for 15 years.

Cost per foot of sewer is $3.57, or 33 2-10 cents per foot annually for 15 years. Connections are estimated to cost $95 each, or $8.85 annual charge.

ROAD COSTS

Most of the roads are 28 feet wide. They are to be of gravel with oil finish. Total cost is $28,257.30. City assumes 40 per cent, or $11,302.92; plus flankage and intersections $3,917.55, amounting to $15,220.47, to be paid for in five years a $3,467.10 a year.

Abutting property is charged $1.50 a foot frontage, or 34.17 cents a foot annually for five years.

Communist Rebels Cut Rangoon's Pipeline

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (Reuters)—The Amsterdam Court of Justice today refused to jail a physician for the mercy killing of his pain-wracked tubercular brother.

Dr. A. J. Berman, 50, had been charged with administering tablets and a morphia injection at the express and repeated request of his brother, to put him out of his "unbearable pain." The brother died about half an hour later.

In today's judgment the court confirmed the sentence of one-year's conditional imprisonment imposed last March by the Utrecht district court.

A "conditional" imprisonment sentence is given when the person is released but has to go to prison if he commits another offence.

The Amsterdam court added three years' probation to the original sentence.

OTTAWA (CP)—The determination of Canadian soldiers in Korea to keep their comrades from falling into enemy hands is shown in the citations for four immediate gallantry awards announced today by Army headquarters.

One Military Cross and three Military Medals were awarded. Two of the Military Medals were given to soldiers who showed bravery in bringing back wounded comrades to their own lines.

Lieut. David Alexander Middleton, 28, of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Toronto, with the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was awarded the Military Cross.

Military Medals were awarded to:

Acting Sgt. Trevor Allen, 28, of Springhill, N.S., a member of the Lord Strathcona's Horse;

Machinist Faces Double Murder Charge

SLOUGH, Buckingham, England (CP)—Donald Neil Simon, 32, a machinist formerly of Fredericton, N.B., will appear this month at Birmingham Assizes on a double murder charge, police said today.

Simon is charged with the shooting of his wife, Eunice Marjory, 28, and Victor Brades, 27. Brades was found dead against a wall about midnight June 21, and Mrs. Simon was lying wounded in a nearby gutter. She died later in hospital.

Mrs. Mary Pearce, mother of Mrs. Simon, testified at a preliminary hearing yesterday that Simon had said to her after the shooting: "Oh Mum, what have I done."

Prosecutor Ryland Thomas said that on June 21 Simon met his wife and Brades and told them: "None of you will get home tonight."

Thomas said Simon fired first at his wife. Brades was shot through the heart as he went forward to protect her.

The court was told that Simon and his wife had agreed to live apart because of his alleged excessive drinking. Mrs. Simon, said to have gone out several times with Brades, lived with her mother.

Police said that Simon gave his hometown as Fredericton. Although the information was not confirmed, it is understood Simon served in the Canadian Army from 1938 to 1947 with the Royal Canadian Regiment.

Yearling Moose Rescued By Game Warden

POWASSAN (CP)—Stumpy, a yearling cow moose who somehow suffered cuts and the loss of all but an inch of her tail, is being cared for here by friends.

Conservation officer Bill Humphrey went to Stumpy's rescue after Charles Yates of nearby Callander reported she had been standing in a creek for three days. This was her way of keeping flies away from her wounds.

Humphrey placed a halter on her and led her to a barn owned by Clifford Campbell where her cuts are being treated. It is believed she may have been attacked by a bear.

Her future is uncertain but it is possible she might be taken to Parry Sound for exhibition.

Powassan is about 15 miles south of North Bay.

Detective Tells Court Murder Details

HAMILTON (CP)—City Detective George Mair said today in testimony at preliminary hearing of Reginald Sloman on a murder charge, that on answering a call to Sloman's home he found Sloman seated on the edge of the bed in which his wife, Kathleen, lay dead.

The detective said he felt for the woman's pulse, could not locate it, but telephoned the fire department inhalator squad because the body was warm.

He said that when he entered the room the accused was seated on the edge of the bed wearing a white shirt open at the neck and dark trousers. There was a bundle of men's ties on a bedside table.

ENTER EXHIBITS

Several exhibits were then entered, including bed linen, some of it blood-stained, a man's maroon tie, which was said to have been found on the bed, and also a damp wash cloth and towel, also found on the bed.

Accused was taken later to central police station where, the detective said, a further statement was given police.

Detective-Sergeant Herbert Witthun, who dispatched the two officers to the scene, described a telephone call he received at 8:42 a.m.

He said a man told him over the telephone that: "I think my wife is dead at 17 Dundurn street south." He asked the man if he called a doctor and the man said he had not. He asked the man his name and the man told him it was Reginald Sloman.

Can Leonard Do It Again?

WINNIPEG (CP)—Can Stan Leonard do it again?

Thousands of Winnipeggers will jam taut ropes at Niakwa Golf Club here Friday and Saturday for the answer.

The pro from Marine Driver, Vancouver, will be stepping up then to defend his title at the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship, closely followed by Canada's annual golf classic, the Canadian Open.

It's a Winnipeg first for both events.

4 FOR LEONARD

Leonard, four-time winner of the C.P.G.A., will be out to make it No. 5 and his third straight. The B.C. pro first hit the golden trail in 1940 when he claimed his first C.P.G.A. triumph and then successfully defended the Ross Cup the following year. He missed in 1948 but reclaimed the trophy in 1950-51.

At Hamilton's Ancaster Club last year he finished the final 18 holes one stroke off the competitive record for the course although his strength was sapped by a touch of influenza.

But Leonard and the estimated 40 other entries are expected to have a rough time on Niakwa this year.

The course has been remodelled which means even those who have played the 6,585-yard layout before will be in for surprises.

Bridgenorth Wins

BRIDGENORTH (ENS. — The Bridgenorth ladies defeated Selwyn 35-29 here last night in an exhibition softball game, earlier winning in Selwyn. A third game will be arranged shortly.

The Canadian Olympic rowing team in Finland needs three racing craft in a hurry. The three shells sent from Canada have been "irreparably damaged" in transit. Kenneth Farmer, general manager of the Canadian team, said yesterday in Montreal he had received word from Goeteborg, Sweden, that the boats were damaged at sea in heavy weather.

SURE IS ROUGH

Coach George Trafton said it was going to be rough in Winnipeg Blue Bombers' workouts this season. But even he didn't know how rough. Trafton was injured yesterday in a practice while holding a tackling dummy. His foot got stuck between the dummy and the ground and Trafton couldn't get clear before it was nailed by halfbacks George Benson and George McPhail.

Rare Operation Saves Man's Life

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania hospital disclosed today what it termed the "successful completion" of a rare operation in which a section of the body's largest blood vessel was taken from a dead man and transplanted into a living person.

The vessel, the aorta, supplies blood to the body below the heart. It is about 1½ inches in diameter with walls one-eighth inch thick.

The patient, 46-year-old John Chatman, was suffering from a weakening of the wall of the aorta. The hospital said a break would have caused immediate death.

On June 25 surgeons removed the weakened section and replaced it with a three-inch section taken from the body of a 19-year-old youth who had been killed in an accident 10 days before. The section had been preserved by refrigeration.

The transplanted section of the vessel will be absorbed by the blood stream and replaced with new tissue created by his body.

Chatman, now well on the way to recovery, will shortly be released from hospital.

Canadian Reporter Finds Iron Curtain Easy To Pass

By JACK SULLIVAN

HELSINKI (CP) — A tour of Olympic villages for athletes pointed up one thing—the Iron Curtain is not tough to pierce.

While watching the Canadians at the Kapyla all-male camp waiting for officials to cut red tape and arrange for practice hours and training grounds, an Australian and this reporter decided to visit Canadian women in another camp yesterday. It was listed as at Otaniemi, about four miles from here.

There were no guards at the entrance and to our amazement, we found ourselves in the midst of Russians, Romanians, Czechs, Hungarians and Bulgarians.

This was supposed to be "forbidden" territory. Finnish newspaper men had been unable to get permission to visit the camp and United States sports writers had been "working" on officials for the go-ahead to visit the camp, situated in a lonely wooded section.

We walked around freely and talked to an English-speaking reception official, who said western women were not there—they were in another Olympic village.

ENTERED BY ACCIDENT

(Sullivan and his Australian companion apparently were able to enter the Communists' camp only by accident. An Associated Press dispatch from Helsinki earlier held little hope that westerners would see Red athletes in action before the games.)

Otaniemi turned out to be the only camp where male and female athletes are together. The Russians there apparently want to make sure none stray to the west before the games.

The reception official "forgot" his English only when queried about the number of Russian athletes and on general information regarding the Reds.

CANADIANS HAPPY

The Canadians are housed in the main Olympic village in the northern section of Helsinki. It accommodates 4,500 competitors and is made up of 14 apartment houses. Following the July 19-Aug. 3 games, it will be turned over to Finnish families.

In the village are a bank, barber shop, post office and a restaurant that covers almost two acres. The rooms accommodate from one to nine persons. Although the rooms are furnished simply, Canadians are happy about the set-up.

The only complaint—and it's common with practically every visitor—is that it never gets dark. There is a sort of twilight until the early hours of morning and most athletes are awake before 5 a.m., the sun shining brightly.

Canadian sprinters and middle distance runners wear fire-engine red uniforms for limbering-up exercises on a training ground almost at the doorstep of the village.

Will Take 13 Days To Fly Olympic Folk

LONDON (AP)—Nine flights spread over 13 days will carry 321 athletes and officials to Helsinki to represent Britain in the summer Olympic Games.

The British Olympic Association announced the full squad today, along with details of what it called the "British Olympic Airlift."

The first flight of 44 men will leave July 11. It will include the field hockey team, the rowing squad and five officials. The last plane will leave London July 27. The first return load will leave Helsinki July 24, only five days after the games open. The games run from July 19 through Aug. 3.

The Olympic Association announced yesterday that appeals for public funds totalled more than 59,000 pounds, with some still to be counted.

U.K. Aircraft Carrier Leaves Capetown

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters)—The Royal Navy aircraft carrier Campania, believed to be carrying the first British-designed atomic weapon, slipped quietly out of Simonstown naval base today on the last leg of her voyage to Australia for secret tests later this year.

The atomic tests—Britain's first—are to be held in the Monte Bello islands, off northwest Australia.

To Raze Old House

TORONTO (CP)—A house and barn built in suburban Etobicoke in 1830 will be torn down to make way for a $500,000 shopping centre. The 122-year-old house was occupied until two months ago. There was no plumbing and water had to be obtained from neighbors.

Smoke Costs $150

BRANTFORD (CP).—Gordon L. Larion, 20, will think twice before smoking while driving again. The ashes from his cigaret blew in his eyes, blinding him and sending his motor car crashing into a hydro pole. Damage $150.

Gavilan Conquers Turner In Eleventh Round T.K.O.

By JACK HAND

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Kid Gavilan still is welterweight champion of the world and Gil Turner still rookie of the year.

That's the situation today as the Cuban Keed looks for new worlds to conquer after his 11th-round technical knockout over 21-year-old Turner last night at Municipal Stadium.

Al Weill, International Boxing Club matchmaker, went to work on a future schedule for the 147-pound champ.

REMATCH—MAYBE

There is talk of a rematch with Turner—in a year or so.

Turner was running about even with Gavilan last night when he ran into the furious 11th-round barrage. Both judges Charley Daggert and Lou Tress had it 5-5 after 10 rounds and referee Pete Tomasco had the Cuban out front 6-4. The Associated Press card showed Gavilan leading 5-4-1 going to the last round.

Coming into his big test as an unbeaten fighter with 25 knockouts in 31 straight wins, Turner paid the penalty of over-eager youth. In time he may be able to cope with the wiles and iron jaw of Gavilan, but not yet.

RUNS INTO TROUBLE

After setting a blazing early pace Turner ran into trouble in the fifth when Gavilan hurt him with a flurry inspired by a patented bolo right. Turner was penalized the round by referee Tomasco for a low blow but it was only a formality. Gavilan won the round from here to Havana.

After the fifth, Turner slowed his furious pace. Gavilan, more sure of himself, was able to make the Philadelphia kid fight his fight. The Cuban champ took the lead only to have frantic flurries by Turner force him to bide his time.

In the 10th it seemed Gavilan couldn't miss with a left hook. Time after time they thudded home on Turner's wide open jaw. Still young Gil surged back with a round-ending flurry. But the end was in sight.

LAST RALLY FAILS

Coming out for the 11th, Turner shot the works in one last-gasp effort. It failed. Driving home counter hooks, Gavilan smothered the rally. Pressing Turner against the ropes, he rattled punch after punch off Gil's chin as the youngster sagged on rubbery legs. Referee Tomasco stopped it at 2:47 of the 11th.

Few in the crowd of 39,025 that paid a record welter gate of $269-677 disagreed although Turner, 11-to-5 underdog, had solid betting support from his home town. Even Turner agreed that the ref was right. Only his manager, George Katz, objectee.

The simple facts were that Turner was in over his head with the experienced 26-year-old champ. The 15-round route was a little too much. If it had been a 10-rounder, Turner might have won.

Weight made no difference. Gavilan at 146 to Turner's 144½ was in his best condition in months.

$50,000 Fire At Metal Plant

CROWLAND (CP)—Fire that broke out early today in a building of the Welland Iron and Metal Company caused an estimated $50,000 damage.

Night-watchman George Kopich, 60, was rescued from the blazing building by police and firemen. Police said the watchman was inside the building searching for a wallet which contained $21. He recovered the wallet intact after the blaze was extinguished.

Origin of the fire in this community, three miles east of Welland could not be determined.

Bell Blasts Win

Bell Telephone blanked Foresters 26-0 in a surprising one-sided Civic Softball League game last night at Turner Park. Bell batters pummelled the pitching of the league leaders hard throughout to score four runs in the second inning, 10 next time up, two in the fourth, seven next heat and three more in the sixth. Tushingham led the way with four homers in six appearances. Guerin came up with a swell three-hit hurling chore for the winners, and he had perfect support, while the losers were quite loose defensively. Teams:

Foresters—Doughty, c; Roberts, 1b; Parnell, cf; Quigley, ss; Murray, 3b; Ferguson, 2b; Hobson, lf; Worr, rf; Maloney, p.

Bell—Gillespie, 1b; Tushingham, 2b; James, c; Harrison, 3b; Conway, ss; Guerin, p; Greatrix, cf; Bullied, rf; Gordon, lf.

Kesco Victorious

Kesco stopped Post Office 21-13 in Ashburnham Park last night in a wide-open Civic Softball League fixture. Smashing out 23 hits, they scored four runs in the first inning, five next batting, nine in the big fifth and two more in the sixth. Homers were hit by Humphries, Conroy, Little and Goodfellow, as Little led hitters with four for six. Posties used 14 hits to fashion two runs each in the second and sixth, one apiece in the fourth and fifth and seven in the third. Loucks hit two homers. Both sides were loose afield. Teams:

Kesco — Chenier, Goodfellow, Little, Conroy, Harrison, Humphries, Galley, Alberico, Montgomery.

Post Office— Maher, Harrison, Willshaw, Reid, Moore, Smith, Loucks, Wallwork, Thirnbeck.

Canada Feeling Pinch Of Steel Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Some Canadian industrial plants face heavily-reduced production if the six-week United States steel strike lasts a few more weeks, says K. S. Harris, director of the Defence Production Department's steel division.

Mr. Harris said in an interview yesterday that Canadian steel plants may be forced to curtail production next winter as an indirect result of the strike.

The effect of the U.S. tie-up may be a "national calamity" for Canada if it continues much longer, he said.

Only about 15 per cent of normal imports of steel from the U.S. now are entering Canada.

In about four weeks, he estimated, Canadian manufacturers using U.S components will be getting to the bottom of their stockpiles. These would include producers of automobiles, electrical equipment and machinery.

The construction industry would be hit, too, since it uses many sizes of structural steel made only in the U.S.

But Mr. Harris said the most serious long-range effect of the strike will be that developing from the concurrent tie-up of iron ore production in the U.S., on which Canada's central Canadian mills depend for their raw material.

These now are eating into their ore stockpiles while the Great Lakes shipping season—during which they bring in their winter requirements—is slipping away.

Hurt In 100-Ft. Fall

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP)—Margaret McCoy, 22, Waterloo, Que., photographer, was seriously injured yesterday in a 100-foot fall down a shaft of an abandoned mine on Red Mountain near here. She landed on a ledge some 30 feet from the water-filled bottom of the shaft. She and her older sister, Doris, are members of a party assigned by an American magazine to photograph old mines.

REFORMATORY WRECKED.—Damage to Guelph Reformatory, as a result of Saturday night's riot, has been estimated at $200,00 or more. The 1,000 prisoners — convicted of offences calling for sentences not exceeding two years less a day — wrecked chairs, smashed toilet bowls, broke windows and set blankets and mattresses aflame. Guards used tear-gas bombs and riot guns to quell the outbreak. Shown is a section of one of the three dormitories—with windows broken — in the provincial reformatory 70 miles west of Toronto.

150,000 Canadian Boys And Girls Desert City Streets For Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some 150,000 Canadian children will desert city streets for summer camps in the next two months.

For most of the kids there'll be a two-week helping of sun, swimming and fun in more than 800 private and service club camps with special treatment for the sick or crippled youngsters.

Clubs sponsored by religious and charitable organizations are especially active. Through private donations or assistance from municipal governments they are able to charge nominal fees. Some are free. Others ask less than 50 cents a day while most operate on a sliding scale based on the ability of the parents to pay.

ONTARIO MOST ACTIVE

Of all the provinces, Ontario is the most active in this work. More than half of the 427 camps listed receive some form of government aid thus allowing approximately 45,000 children to enjoy a holiday. Officials of the Department of Education said this is a slight increase over the number accommodated last year.

In addition the department supervises two counsellor and one leadership camps where some 850 students are trained before spending two weeks or more at the camps.

Variety is the keynote of the camping program. In Alberta more than 116 holiday organizations are reported in operation, from mountain lake resorts to rough farm camps, and from chalets to tents and sleeping bags. A possible 33,000 young people will attend in an eight-week period.

62 SITES IN B.C.

In British Columbia 62 camp sites, most of them on the seacoast within a day's boat journey of Vancouver, will care for 15,000 children during the summer.

At the other end of the continent, Newfoundland societies operate some 20 camps, varying from a church boys' brigade to a special centre for crippled children.

In the vicinity of Quebec City, 2,000 boys and 120 girls are registered for 12 holiday sites. Montreal's 39 camps will handle 50 to 500 vacationists every two weeks and a training program in the Maritimes is arranged to accommodate 14,000 persons.

Parachute Catches On Tree Rescue Nurse 'Darned Mad'

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Nursing Sister Mrs. Grace Woodman was darned mad.

She was suspended by her parachute upside down from a tree more than 125 feet above the ground for two hours, when she should have been helping an injured man.

The blue-eyed, petite, 95-pound widow, who says she is about 30, described yesterday what is believed the first operational para-rescue jump by a woman.

Nursing Sister Woodman, a Flying Officer in the R.C.A.F. para-rescue unit here, was assigned Saturday to parachute with two men into the wilderness near Port Coquitlam, 45 miles east of here, to assist Ken Northcott, a surveyor seriously injured in a fall down a mountain side.

HER STORY

In her own words this is what happened:

"We jumped at about 1,000 feet.

"I followed Sqdn. Ldr. Dick Wynn by about five minutes. It was terrible country. Scattered trees and lots of rocks. Jump master, Sgt. Red Jameson, was wonderful. He sent us off so we would land in the trees.

"We had to land in the trees. We would have been seriously injured if we landed on the rocks.

'BIG TREES'

"My harness came loose when I jumped. I slipped through it when it hit the tree. It caught me just below the knee. I had lost my hunting knife so I couldn't cut myself free.

"I was two hours before I could get myself upright. I struggled back into my harness and finally I was able to slide down the rope.

"I had lost my gloves and went down the rope too quickly. I burned my hands terribly. Nylon burns are worse than rope burns. I certainly learned a lesson.

"I was awfully mad I got hung up. No, not scared, just mad."

WAS NERVOUS

Nursing Sister Woodman confessed she was nervous:

It was the first time she had jumped from a Dakota aircraft, and "I was scared of snakes."

She couldn't find the other members of the para-crew and after stumbling through mountain snow she crawled into her sleeping bag until dawn.

She was awakened by the engines of the rescue planes and soon found other members of the party.

Dead tired after the 22-hour adventure, she returned to Vancouver with the patient aboard a helicopter.

Nursing Sister Woodman's husband died two years ago and she decided on a para-rescue career.

She joined the R.C.A.F. last August and trained first at Edmonton and later at Banff. Born in Pembroke, Ont., she was educated there and graduated as a nurse at the end of the Second World War.

May Nominate Woman For Vice-Presidency

CHICAGO (AP)—A movement was under way today to nominate Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine for the vice-presidency on the Republican ticket.

This would be the first time that a woman's name won consideration for the United States' second-highest office by a major political party.

The move has the consent of Senator Smith, serving her first term in the Senate after eight years in the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Isabella J. Jones, delegate from Pennsylvania, said Senator Smith's name will be proposed from the floor.

Milford Sherwin

The deceased was born and spent his boyhood and young manhood about five miles west of Roseneath, the elder son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sherwin. Later moving to Orono he married Edith Cain of that community.

His death occurred in Toronto General Hospital after a lengthy illness at the age of 52 years.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter Anna Marie, and a son Lawrence; a sister, Mrs. Laurie Cole, Newtonville, and a brother, Dr. Wilfred Sherwin, Orono. A sister, Mrs. Fred Green (Mary) predeceased her brother.

Interment was in Orono cemetery.

643 Fatalities In U.S. During 3-Day Holiday

CHICAGO (AP)—At least 643 persons met accidental death during the three-day Independence Day weekend in the United States. This compared with 510 such deaths during the May 30 Memorial Day week-end.

The 366 traffic deaths reported set a record for a three-day Fourth of July holiday week-end, but a widespread heat wave shared blame with the motor-car for the high, over-all toll. There were 202 drownings.

Two persons died from fireworks. Seventy-three met violent death from miscellaneous causes.

Sneaks Out To Steal

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said a 14-year-old boy serving a three-year sentence in Mont St. Antoine reformatory here has admitted sneaking out several times to commit thefts in east-end Montreal and returning before he could be missed at supper roll call. They said the boy and a 17-year-old partner were responsible for about 25 thefts.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 82nd Congress adjourned last night, after voting to add nearly $1,000,000,000 for a huge long-range expansion of the U.S. atomic weapons program.

Testing Cloth To Save Soldiers' Lives

OTTAWA (CP)—The Defence Department is experimenting with types of cloth it thinks may save lives.

Reticence surrounds the project at this stage. All that is being said is that the department is trying out various materials, including nylon, which might be found useful in throwing protective armor around the body of the soldier.

It would not be a bullet-proof vest in the true sense because experts apparently know of no such material capable of strengths that could resist a direct hit, at least in quantities whose weight a soldier would willingly bear.

What they are after is a material capable of fending off shrapnel and other fragments from shells and mortars and the like, in other words a protective shield that wouldn't halt direct fire but would save the soldier from many of the indirect hazards of battle.

In doing this work, Canada is getting into a search also being pressed by the United States and United Kingdom. Canadian soldiers in Korea, in fact, recently tried out an American-designed vest said to weigh about eight pounds. They found various faults.

Weight and the effect on the mobility of the soldier are two defects scientists find hard to overcome.

Fight Pickets To Get To Work

DAGENHAM, England (Reuters)—More than 100 employees of the strike-bound British Ford Motor car Company factory yesterday fought through a picket line under police protection in a bid for return to work.

Only 30 made it. The rest were turned back, including one man who tried to rush the pickets on a motorcycle.

Some 13,000 workers have been idle 12 days because of a wildcat strike.

Since the walkout has no official union backing, the men are getting no strike pay. As a result many, like the men yesterday, are getting short of funds and want to return to work.

Last week one striker who had gone broke threw himself under a speeding train.

Sportsman Dies

HAMILTON (CP) — Allan M. Close, well known in local sport circles for many years, died yesterday. He was a member of the Hamilton Olympic Club executive for 15 years and was credited with bringing the British Empire Games to this city in 1930.

KEEPS MUM—Mrs. Jacqueline Sirois Moore, Montreal newspaper reporter, refused to divulge to a judicial inquiry the names of bookies from whom she obtained information for news stories. She was held in contempt of court by Mr. Justice Francois Caron and released pending sentence July 17 or 18. Mrs. Moore was called as a witness at the inquiry which has been investigating alleged vice conditions in Montreal over a 10-year period up to 1945.

Navy Displays Model New Submarine

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Navy yesterday displayed a 4½-foot model of its atomic-powered submarine—but said it didn't give away any secrets.

The unveiling came in connection with the awarding of a medal to Capt. Hyman Rickover for his work on the design and development of the new submersible, the keel of which was laid June 14.

The model makes it appear that the atomic-energy-producing reactor, or furnace, and allied equipment take up about one-third of the vessel's over-all length.

But Rickover, chief of the naval reactors branch of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, told reporters the model is simply a "diagramatic" one, and not intended to show anything about size, dimensions or relative placement of equipment.

At the time of the keel-laying, President Truman said the craft, to be called the Nautilus, would be able to travel thousands of miles at top speed on a few pounds of uranium fuel.

Rickover's model shows a pug-nosed vessel that looks in silhouette something like a hammer-head shark.

Woman 150 Dies

LIMA, Peru—(AP)—The newspaper El Commercio yesterday reported the death of Lorenza Saucedo Vargas and said municipal records show she was 150 years old.

Takes Half An Hour To Get Elevator In Chicago Hotels

By C.R. BLACKBURN

CHICAGO (CP) — Everyone seems to be trying to get into the Republican National Convention act and that's why there are so many people and cars in Chicago that it usually costs $1 for a 50-cent taxi ride.

Even Canada got into the act yesterday as the milling crowds in the stockyards amphitheatre sweated through an hour's wait for the gavel to fall.

A television time-killing show in the press lounge suddenly gave a flash of a news commentary just as the newscaster was giving the straight statement that Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada had ordered his Cabinet Ministers to stay away from the convention.

The scene at once flashed back to the adjoining convention hall and that was all about the Prime Minister's ruling.

DIEFENBAKER ON HAND

So far as could be learned there were no Canadian Cabinet Ministers present but among those here with admission cards or hoping for them were Progressive Conservative members John Diefenbaker of Lake Centre, George Hees of Toronto and Dave Fulton of Kamloops. It was reported that Rodney Adamson of York West also was in the offing.

Also here watching to learn how to conduct political conventions—or how not to—were H. E. Kidd and A. C. Kidd, managers, respectively, of the Liberal and Progressive national organizations in Canada.

It is a taxi-driver's nightmare to get a passenger to the cluster of main convention hotels on Michigan Avenue—the Hilton, Blackstone and Congress.

The Hilton, formerly the Stevens and probably the largest hotel in the world with 3,500 rooms and great ballrooms and restaurants, is the convention headquarters.

The traffic in the lobbies is so heavy that the masses have to line up for the elevators and take their turns which may be a matter of 15 minutes or half an hour.

Say Storm Causes Heavy Damage, Breaks Heat Wave

TORONTO (CP)—A storm with rain, hail and thunder flowed into Ontario last night, causing thousands of dollars damage but bringing relief from a sweltering heat wave. The storm was centred in northern areas where, in places 2½ inches of rain fell, buildings and trees were felled and crops flattened. The storm, which arose when a mass of cold air flowed in to clash with warm air, caused rain over most of the province although some areas escaped with only a few showers.

Forest rangers, battling 24 forest fires, welcomed the rain, as did most residents who have been suffering blistering heat for more than a week.

DOWN 10 DEGREES

At Windsor, where 5,000 Chrysler Corporation workers were sent home yesterday because of the heat, temperatures dropped 10 degrees from 91 in one hour.

Near North Bay several buildings were demolished or damaged and five shade trees on one farm were knocked down. Large hailstones broke a number of windows. No one was reported injured.

The first substantial rain to fall on St. Thomas in 10 days flooded streets.

Temperatures will remain lower today as the cold front moves eastward into Quebec. Temperatures probably will be a little higher tomorrow but there is no sign of very warm air moving into the province for a few days.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy estimated today that the rain was worth from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 to Ontario farmers whose crops have been suffering from drought.

Pasturage benefited most, he said. Rain was especially needed in western Ontario where "things had become too dry."

Woman Found Wounded, Police Hold Man

TORONTO (CP)—George W. Humble, 41, today was charged with attempted murder in the shooting early today of Jean Peters 38-year-old hand lotion demonstrator who police said had been living with him.

Police said the woman was shot in the chest in the climax to a quarrel arising from the woman's announcement to friends with whom she went swimming yesterday that she planned to go to Kitchener for a visit.

An emergency operation was performed on the woman. Doctors said she will probably recover.

Humble was remanded to July 16 without bail.

1143 u vzyr Toronto-add shooting

Police said that three shots were fired from a .32-calibre automatic. Two of the bullets were found imbedded in the kitchen wall. Police said they found Miss Peters lying in a pool of blood on a chesterfield in the parlor. They believe she was shot while in the kitchen and staggered to the chesterfield several feet away.

Dock Workers Decide Lift Overtime Ban

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—Dock workers in all Australian ports today decided to accept the recommendations of their leaders and lift their overtime ban, which has cost Australia 964,000 man-hours since it was imposed April 9.

The Communist-led Waterside Workers' Federation imposed the ban as a protest against the federal arbitration court's refusal to give an immediate hearing to claims for increased wages.

The court retorted June 2 by fining the federation 400 pounds for contempt.

Official figures show the overtime ban cost waterside workers 400,000 pounds in extra wages.

Urge Canadians Wait Awhile

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians who want to see the coronation next summer shouldn't rush into arrangements too early, the State Department warned today.

In a statement the department said there is no information available yet about seats to watch the procession and prices. When Commonwealth governments have approved the plans, an announcement will be made.

Some Canadians who plan to be in London during the coronation have sent requests for hotel accommodation to the United Kingdom high commissioner here. The department said such requests should be made through travel agencies. Those received by the British high commissioner are sent to the British tourist information centre in London.

Boy Drowns In Car Driver Is Charged

SUDBURY (CP)—Harry Maki, 3, of nearby Whitefish Falls, was drowned yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding plunged into nearby Pothole Lake.

Lenard Shawbonquit of Sudbury has been charged with manslaughter.

A son of Mr. and Mrs Harry Maki, the boy was going with Shawbonquit and Emily Barefoot, also of Whitefish Falls, to meet his mother who was arriving from Sudbury by train.

The car landed upside down in six feet of water after leaving the highway. The two adults, both of whom were unable to swim, managed to escape through a window. The victim's father is a diamond driller working at Worthington, near Sudbury.

Communist POW Shot Refused To Surrender

TOKYO (AP)—A Communist prisoner of war on Koje Island, Kore, was shot and killed by South Korean police yesterday. He refused to surrender with six other escapees, United States Army headquarters announced today.

The seven P.O.W.s were among 26 prisoners in the United Nations Koje camp who escaped between July 2 and 4, the army said. Ten are still at large.

Sea Parade For U.S. Liner

SOUTHAMPTON (AP)—The new speed Queen of the Atlantic, the liner United States, slid to her pier yesterday in a triumphal five-mile sea parade of flag-bedecked welcoming ships.

Her maiden eastbound crossing ended in one of the biggest, loudest welcomes Britons have given a ship since the Queen Mary's maiden voyage ended here in 1936.

Hundreds of small craft and pleasure steamers from all parts of Britain's south coast paraded the liner along the Solent roadstead from the eastern tip of the Isle of Wight.

The United States will stay here until tomorrow, when she wil start her first west-bound trip for New York. With her she will take the record for an eastbound crossing of the Atlantic of three days, 10 hours and 40 minutes. This cut 10 hours off the record set by the Queen Mary in 1938.

Queen And Margaret Attend Big Ball

LONDON (AP)—The Queen danced until the early hours today at her first ball since the death of her father, the late King George VI.

The young Queen and her sister, Princess Margaret, were among the 40 guests at the ball given by the Marquess of Londonderry and the Earl and Countess of Leicester to mark the coming out of their daughters, Lady Annabel Stewart, 18, and Lady Carey Coke, 17.

Dancing continued until a dawn breakfast.

The court ended its official mourning period June 1.

Eisenhower Delegates Get 13 Seats

Louisiana Delegation Allowed In After Surprise Move

CHICAGO (AP) — The credentials committee today voted to seat 13 Eisenhower delegates from Louisiana in the Republican convention — upsetting an earlier decision by the national committee which gave these seats to Taft backers.

The decision was unanimous, 50 to 0, as supporters of Robert Taft on the disputes-settling committee joined the backers of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in what apparently was an effort to bring some show of harmony to the strife-torn Republican convention.

The net result was a gain of 11 convention votes for Eisenhower.

The decision means that the Louisiana delegation will include 13 Eisenhower men and two for Taft. The Eisenhower supporters have not contested the two Taft delegates.

SURPRISE TURN

The vote in the fight over disputed delegations took the surprise turn when Eugene Worrell of Virginia, an avowed Taft backer, moved the seating of the Louisiana Eisenhower faction headed by John Minor Wisdom, New Orleans lawyer. One of those seconding the motion was Representative Clarence J. Brown of Ohio, one of Taft's lieutenants in the fight for the presidential nomination.

Worrell's motion came as a surprise because he voted with Taft forces yesterday when the committee approved a solid pro-Taft delegation from Georgia.

The committee is still to act in the dispute over 38 Texas delegates.

The Republican national committee voted to seat 22 Taft supporters and 16 backers of Eisenhower. The Eisenhower forces claim they deserve to have the whole 38 votes.

Takes Six Men To Move Patient

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—Six husky moving men huffed and puffed yesterday, but they could not get 685-pound Eugene Atkins into a second-floor courtroom.

Atkins' $75,000 damage suit opened before Judge Thomas Keating.

He is suing ewis B. Schroeder, a movie projectionist, as a result of a 1951 automobile accident which Atkins claims paralyzed him from the waist down. He has occupied two beds at a hospital.

Yesterday six men strapped him to a bed and hoisted it into their van. At the courthouse, a 40-ton crane was ready to lift Atkins, bed and all, to the second floor. But there was no window big enough.

So the moving men trundled Atkins up a short flight of steps into the first-floor corridor. There they left him, puffing a cigar, while selection of a jury got under way.

Operator Denies Knowing Secret Paper In His Pocket

LONDON (CP)—A young Foreign Office radio operator accused of spying insisted today he did not know how a secret government document happened to be in his pocket when he was caught while talking to a Russian diplomat.

William Marshall, 24, told a jury of 12 men at London's Old Bailey court that he had not given any of Britain's secrets to the Russian and that he knew nothing of the paper found in his pocket.

The prosecutor described Marshall's testimony as "such an improbable story." He asked for Marshall's conviction on five charges of violating Britain's Official Secrets Act.

The prosecution quickly wound up its presentation behind closed doors before the noon recess, basing its case mainly on the piece of paper containing secret information police said they found on Marshall.

NO KNOWLEDGE

"This document, do you know anything about it?" Marshall was asked by his counsel.

"Nothing whatsoever," Marshall replied.

"Do you know how it came to be in your wallet?"

"No, I'm afraid not," Marshall replied quietly in a high, thin voice.

What the document contained was not disclosed by the government. The public was barred from the courtroom at the outset after the prosecution said it wanted to present "highly secret" evidence.

The prosecutor read part of a statement by Marshall in which he said he felt "a misfit" during a year's service with the British Embassy in Moscow. It was on his return from Moscow that he established contact with Kuznetsov.

The court was cleared for 45 minutes while secret testimony was taken.

INSPECTOR WITNESS

The first witness in public was Chief Inspector William Hughes of Scotland Yard who gave evidence of Marshall's arrest in a South London park.

The inspector agreed he did not see Marshall pass anything to Kuznetsov, though there would have been ample opportunity to do so.

Evidence then dwelt on a grubby piece of paper found in Marshall's wallet. It was covered with writing and bore an embossed insignia in one corner.

Marshall's former chief at the diplomatic wireless station, Charles Bradford, said it would not have been necessary for Marshall to make notes for his work. He could carry the information in his head.

U.N. Troops Lose Key Hill To Chinese

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—United Nations troops today drove on North Korean Communists entrenched on a ridge at the eastern end of the Korean battle line, but lost a key hill to counter-attacking Chinese in the centre.

The United States Eighth Army reported Allied infantrymen in the east killed 42 Reds and wounded 65 others in an action that was still under way at 3 p. m. (2 a.m. EDT).

Steep slopes slowed the U. N. advance but troops moving in from two directions were reported only 50 yards apart.

RETOOK HILL

Between 350 and 400 Chinese in hand-to-hand fighting recaptured a hill U. N troops had wrested from them 24 hours earlier.

The United States Fifth Air Force said its planes today destroyed 24 troop and supply bunkers, damaged two others, destroyed eight enemy personnel shelters, eight buildings, two machine-gun positions and inflicted 15 troop casualties.

U.S. Thunderjets again bombed the big No. 2 power plant at Changjin reservoir Tuesday after reconnaissance showed the Reds were trying to get the generators back in operation. The plant was one of 13 North Korean hydro-electric stations knocked out in heavy raids two weeks ago.

Reds Provide Noisy Welcome

LONDON (Reuters)—Communist demonstrators today provided a noisy background to an official welcome for Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, paying his first visit to Britain since his appointment as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe.

Shouting "Go Home Ridgway" and scattering anti-United States pamphlets, they tried to force through barriers as Ridgway alighted from the plane that brought him from Paris.

The general, who was accompanied by his wife, imperturbably carried on his inspection of an R.A.F. guard of honor.

Ridgway will stay here for two days, during which he and Mrs. Ridgway will be received by the Queen.

Seven of the demonstrators were arrested.

Coast Guard Plane Carries Sick Actress

SALEM, Mass. (AP)—A Coast Guard rescue plane landed beside a yacht 90 miles at sea last night, took aboard an ailing New York actress despite treacherous seas and ferried her to Salem hospital for treatment.

She was identified as Merle McHugh, a 25-year-old brunette, taken ill aboard the 46-foot auxiliary ketch Sandpiper owned by Eric Piper, 42, of Brookline.

Hospital authorities declined to disclose the nature of Miss McHugh's illness. She is the daughter of Eugene McHugh, managing editor of the New York Times.

Thousands Face Layoffs Due To Steel Shortage

PITTSBURGH (AP).—Additional layoffs in the United States railroad industry loomed today as the result of the strike of 600,000 United Steelworkers C.I.O. Nearly 50,000 railroaders have been furloughed since the strike began June 2. They're part of the 422,405 workers in allied industries off the job because of the steel strike.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, which laid off 10,000 men June 5, says it is being forced to furlough "several thousand" more. Many other railroads are moving only passengers, mail, express and perishables as the production of durable goods is curtailed because of the strike.

Meanwhile, representatives of the iron-ore industry say they plan to ask the Steelworkers if a plan can be worked out to move ore now stockpiled in the upper lakes region. All ore shipments, along with iron-ore mining, have been suspended.

Philip Murray, president of both the C.I.O and the Steelworkers, has asked Attorney-General James McGranery to take "prompt and vigorous" action against six major steel companies he accuses of violating anti-trust laws.

Murray said the six big producers, headed by U.S. Steel, are in "a combination and conspiracy" preventing all other struck steel companies from signing new contracts.

The steelworkers walked out after the U.S. Supreme Court denied President Truman's authority to seize and operate the mills pending settlement of the wage dispute. The companies have rejected a Wage Stabilization Board "package" recommendation giving to men a pay raise totalling 26½ cents an hour, the union shop and other benefits. The union shop —under which only union members would be employed—is the main stumbling block in the negotiations.

Train Cuts Hose At $200,000 Fire

KINGSTON (CP)—A train sliced through a hose while firemen fought a $200,000 fire today at Elder bottling works.

Col. James Ross, public utilities commissioner, said he tried to flag the train but the engine steamed through to the station without stopping.

When the hose was cut Col. Ross was doused with water.

"When the train crew learned they had cut the hose they just laughed," said Col. Ross.

CBC Officials Study Television

OTTAWA (CP)—Top television officials of the CBC today opened a two-day meeting, called to study progress made so far on TV stations in Montreal and Toronto.

With J.A. Ouimet, assistant general manager of the CBC, serving as chairman, the officials discussed the problems remaining to be solved before the Montreal and Toronto stations begin operations.

The Montreal station is to begin telecasting baseball games July 25. The Toronto station will start test programs Aug. 22. Both stations are to be opened officially early in September.

Family Adopts Korean Orphan

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—A 16-year-old Korean War orphan arrived last night to live with an American family whose son was killed in the Korean War.

Kim Yoon Joong was met by his new parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Beauchamp, as he disembarked from the liner President Wilson.

The Beauchamp's 22-year-old son, Victor Jr., wrote last year to his parents telling them he planned to send Kim to them to be educated. He described Kim as "one of the smartest kids" he had ever seen.

After the son's death last October, the Beauchamps tried unsuccessfully to locate Kim. They finally found him after a news story of their search reached troops with which Kim had become a stretcher-bearer.

Move 20,000 POW's From Camp On Koje

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—The United States Army announced today that 20,000 prisoners of war have been moved since July 2 from United Nations prisoner-of-war camp No. 1 on Koje Island to other locations.

The army said the camp's prisoner population will be reduced from 80,000 to 50,000 by mid-July.

Smaller Grain Crops

TORONTO (CP)—B. I. Jennett, chairman of the Ontario Wheat Producers' Association, yesterday advised Ontario farmers to store their wheat for gradual sale to avoid price slumps. V. S. Milburn, secretary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said smaller-than-average winter wheat and coarse grain crops are expected this year in Ontario.

3 Canadian Soldiers Get Prison Terms For Assault

HANNOVER, Germany (Reuters)—Three soldiers of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade have been sentenced to prison terms by a Canadian court martial on charges of assault and desertion, brigade headquarters announced today.

Pte. Henry J. Dafoe and Pte. James Lediard were each sentenced to two years at hard labor and Pte. Robert Parks to 21 months. All three were dismissed from the service.

A Brigade spokesman said these were the stiffest sentences imposed by a court martial since the brigade arrived in Germany. The sentences are subject to review.

The three accused pleaded guilty of assaulting a German taxi driver, but not guilty of desertion.

The spokesman said the soldiers were arrested wearing civilian clothes on the German-Netherlands border. They had train tickets to Hengelo, in The Netherlands.

He said they would serve their sentences in Germany until their normal time for returning to Canada. Remainder of their sentences would be served in a Canadian prison.

The trial ended yesterday. It was not open to the press generally, but five German reporters were specially invited so they could report what happens to Canadian troops who misbehave in a country they are helping defend, the spokesman said.

Third Girl Rescued By Group In Boat After Big Struggle

BANCROFT—(By Staff Reporter)—Two young Maynooth sisters drowned and a third sister nearly drowned at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in Horseshoe Lake, four miles southwest of Maynooth, and four miles north of here when they waded out together on a narrow shoal and then suddenly fell into deep water. Their struggles were watched by a fourth sister and two neighbors who were in the bathing party. Dead are Donna Jean Moxam, 10, and her 14-year-old sister, Beatrice Eileen. Both are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Moxam of Maynooth.

Before 13-year-old Marjorie Moxam was pulled from the lake, unconscious, three other people got into difficulties trying to rescue her.

At one time five people were floundering about in the water. But for the timely arrival of a rowboat with three Mount Dennis girls, there would have been three drownings at least.

Yvonne MacRae, 16, one of the three Mount Dennis sisters, saw Marjorie rise to the surface momentarily and then begin to sink in the water. Yvonne, seated in the bow of the boat, lunged forward and seized the sinking girl by the hair and pulled her head out of the water.

Her sisters, Mary 12, and Donna 10, helped pull Marjorie into the boat and they brought her to shore.

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION

Artificial respiration was then applied by Mrs. Dorothy Patterson of Oshawa and Miss Elizabeth Legridge of Mount Dennis. After working for about 15 minutes they brought Marjorie around and she was taken to the MacRae cottage.

Later she was treated for shock by Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft.

The double drowning was the tragic end to an evening's outing for the four Moxam girls and Mrs. Agnes Stewart, a neighbor in Maynooth, and her 16-year-old daughter, Lois.

Originally Mrs. Stewart was going to Horseshoe Lake with her daughter only. Lois can swim a little. But the Moxam girls—Donna and Beatrice (who drowned), Marjorie (who was rescued), and 15-year-old Mary (who didn't get into difficulties—asked that they might go along as well.

LAKE TREACHEROUS

The party of six arrived at the lake, some distance away from any other bathers, and the girls promptly rushed into the water to cool off. Mrs. Stewart made her-

Chrysler Closes Michigan Plants

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler Corporation announced today that virtually all its extensive Michigan operations will be closed down for lack of steel by next Monday night.

The shutdown will affect about 68,000 workers. Of these, 14,500 will be recalled to take inventory.

Chrysler said its manufacturing plants in other states will have to suspend operations about the same time. Some 7,500 employees will be affected by the out-of-state shutdowns.

Chrysler's defence production, except for a military-truck job, will not be affected immediately.

Ford already has shut down its assembly plants across the U. S and General Motors has laid off thousands in its huge factory network. An estimated 100,000 workers in Michigan are affected altogether.

Men Rushed To Fight Fire In Nfld.

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Men and supplies were rushed today into the woods at the tip of White Bay, north-central Newfoundland, to battle a forest fire raging out of control after destroying two lumbering camps.

The fire, which started Sunday when loggers cooking a meal accidentally set fire to a shack, now covers about 12 square miles in a stand of high-grade timber.

The fire is near Hampden but the settlement is reported in no immediate danger.

PLAN TACTICS

Albert Martin, woods manager for the Bowater pulp and paper mill here, flew over the area today to map the outbreak and plan fire-fighting tactics.

Bowater officials reported they were hard-pressed to obtain enough tents and food supplies for the 250 loggers fighting the flames in the tinder-dry forest.

The fire is north of Birchy Lake in timber stands owned by Bowater.

$36,000 Taken From U.S. Bank

DETROIT (CP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation today was checking the disappearance of some $36,000 from a north-central branch of the National Bank of Detroit.

F. B. I. officials said Charles Smith, an army air force captain in the Second World War and a customer relations man at the bank, was missing since last Thursday night.

Although bank officials would make no direct accusation against Smith, Earl J. Failor, a vice-president, said:

"There certainly is a wrongdoing involved. . . .Smith came home drunk Thursday night and his wife told him he could pack up and leave if he ever arrived in that condition again.

"The next day . . . she discovered he had packed his clothes and gone."

Ousted Union Man Charges Dictatorship

DETROIT (CP)—An ousted union official today charged Walter Reuther, international president of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) with dangerous and dictatorial procedure.

David Moore, a former vice-president of U.A.W. Local 600 who said he was speaking on his own behalf and on that of four other union officials ousted as Communists, said that Reuther "is denying the union's rank and file the right to elect representatives of their choice."

The five were removed from office last spring by the international U.A.W.'s purge committee which took control of Local 600 after the international union charged that it was Communist-dominated. They were barred from seeking re-election to the offices they formerly held.

Local 600—the Ford Motor Company local in Detroit—is the largest in the world.

Say Reds Evacuating Berlin Radio Station

BERLIN (AP)—The Communists appeared today to be completely evacuating their Radio Berlin in the British sector.

A dozen employees quit the building. The Reds have shifted all their broadcasting activities to the Soviet sector but had maintained a crew of about 20 watchmen, maintenance and repair men, and scrubwomen in the 750-room building. Even the maintenance crew apparently made its exodus today.

A squad of Soviet sentries remained inside.

Berlin Roads Blocked After Kidnap

Plan Special Patrols To Help Protect Citizens In West

BERLIN (AP) —Aroused by the kidnapping of an anti-Communist lawyer, the West Berlin city government decided Tuesday night to blockade all roads leading into the surrounding Russian zone. The kid-48, chief of the economics branch nap victim was Dr. Walter Linse, of the League of Free Jurists.

Three men abducted him from the U.S. sector in broad daylight Tuesday and raced by motor car into the Soviet zone, firing pistols and strewing nails to slow pursuers.

Maj.-Gen. Lemuel Mathewson, the U.S. commandant in Berlin, sent a sharp protest to the Russians against the kidnapping. He said it was outrageous and intolerable and demanded the immediate release of Dr. Linse.

The League of Free Jurists has been a thorn to the Communists for about three years. The league is composed of almost 1,000 lawyers and judges who fled to West Berlin from the Soviet zone. Its primary work is to record violations by East Germany's Red government of basic German law.

The kidnapping, which followed a series of border incidents, led the West Berlin police department to ask that its regular force of 10,000 men be increased to 12,000.

TO GRANT REQUEST

Mayor Ernst Reuter's cabinet indicated the police request probably will be granted. It decided to barricade all the streets that touch on the Soviet zone border—nearly 90 miles long. The border between West Berlin and East Berlin, it was announced, will be guarded with special patrols.

The government stressed that it will use all means, police or otherwise, at its disposal to fight crimes against the life, freedom and security of the population of Berlin. It called on all Berliners to help the police by increased watchfulness.

The orders are to turn the Allied sectors into a virtual armed camp after a month of pressure during which the Communists have been building a "death zone" around the city with the excuse that they had to protect themselves against spies.

From accounts of witnesses, West Berlin police told this story:

Dr. Linse was set upon by three men in civilian clothes as he left his home at 7:30 a.m. on the way to his office. They dragged him into a car that bore a West Berlin license plate and sped away through busy streets at more than a mile a minute.

Passers-by shouted for help. Several West Berlin cars gave chase. The kidnappers fired pistol shots at the pursuers but none was hit.

The nail-strewing tactics proved slightly more effective. Some of the hundreds of nails the kidnappers tossed out behind them flattened the tires of one car.

The border crossing was made where the U.S. sector and the Russian zone meet near Teltow, unguarded by West Berlin police.

Apparently all set, the Soviet zone people's police raised the barrier and the abduction car raced to Communist soil without challenge. This act alone, West Berlin police said, illustrated the cold-blooded planning involved. No other West Berlin car would have a chance to cross the Red "safety belt" circling the city, much less enter the Soviet zone without a check.

ODD AUTHORITY

The speaker of the British Parliament by ancient law may requisition the carriage of any citizen to get him to Westminster.

Steel Workers Ask For Boards

TORONTO (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) has called on the Ontario and Quebec governments to set up conciliation boards at once in connection with a wage dispute between the union and the Steel Company of Canada.

Murray Cotterill, union publicity director, said today conciliation officers have made a study of the situation but has not yet recommended to the governments whether conciliation boards should be established.

"We have complied with the law by taking the prescribed steps in our negotiations," he said. "Now the next move is up to the governments and their officers. Our members are getting impatient over the delays."

Republicans Trying To Heal Breach

By CLYDE R. BLACKBURN

CHICAGO (CP)—This third day of the Republican National Convention to pick a 1952 Presidential candidate may see the party members get down to the business of fighting Democrats instead of fighting among themselves.

But the prospect was dim that voting on a candidate would go on tonight as scheduled.

Forces of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, following through the advantage they won Monday on the seating of contested delegates, may again bring that battle to the convention floor.

DISPUTE UNSETTLED

The Credentials Committee, headed by a delegate supporting Senator Robert A. Taft's candidacy, worked all yesterday and virtually all night in an effort to settle the controversy over seating of 68 delegates from Texas, Louisiana and Georgia. These delegates were in question because the Eisenhower forces claimed they were chosen by machine methods and that the popular slate would have largely favored Eisenhower.

Some observers here believe that in spite of what goes on in the skirmishes over delegate seating the main decision will be made on the convention floor. There, on the first or second ballot, it will become apparent whether or not Taft will be able to swing the necessary 604 votes to win the nomination.

Delegates, representing a party which has been in the wilderness for 20 years, will be thinking primarily about getting a candidate who can win in November, observers believe.

If it seems that Taft has not overwhelming strength of sentiment behind him, there could be a sudden switch to Eisenhower as the popular candidate most likely to win against any opponent. This could happen regardless of the pledges and promises.

Yesterday the convention marked time with oratory while the Credentials Committee wrestled with the delegate problem.

The chief spell-binder was former President Herbert Hoover, the only living ex-President, who sounded a war-cry to the party generally and in the main followed the semi-isolationist arguments voiced by key-noter Gen. Douglas MacArthur the previous night.

Gen. Ritchie's wife, the former Catherine Minnes, is from Kingston, Ont.

Relations are close between the Black Watch and its affiliated regiment in Canada. The colonelcy of this regiment carries with it similar rank in all affiliated regiments.

Third Girl

self comfortable on the shore and watched.

The lake at this point is narrow and treacherous, local residents say. There is thick mud on the bottom and a shoal runs along close to the shoreline. Then it suddenly drops off into water six to eight feet deep.

Apparently the three girls — Donna, Beatrice and Marjorie—waded out in the shallow water and then before they realized it were floundering in the deeper part.

When she heard the shrieks of the three girls struggling beyond their depth in the lake, Mrs. Stewart became distraught. Though unable to swim a stroke she ran into the water fully clothed in a vain attempt to reach them.

Finally her daughter, Lois, also in difficulties during a rescue attempt, had to pull her out of the water.

GOES TO RESCUE

The noise and confusion attracted the attention of a nearby farmer, Ray Higgins, 40, whose home is about a quarter of a mile away. Though not a strong swimmer Mr. Higgins also plunged into the water, fully clothed.

He reached Marjorie who fought frantically with him. For some minutes he managed to keep her head up but then, exhausted himself, he barely made it back to the shoal.

However the few minutes that Mr. Higgins managed to keep Marjorie up were sufficient to save her life.

Just as his strength gave out and he had to let go, the rowboat containing the three MacRae sisters came up. Yvonne saw Marjorie long enough to clutch her by the hair and rescue her.

The bodies of Donna and Beatrice were found nearly two hours later by John Freymond of Bird's Creek. O.P.P. Corporal Archie Grayling and John Hawkins investigated the fatalities.

It is not known whether or not there will be an inquest.

Fire Death Toll Reaches Four

BRIDGEWATER, N.S. (CP)—The death toll of a fire at nearby New Germany yesterday rose to four when Mrs. Clinton Conrad, who lost three children in the blaze, died in hospital.

The young mother, frantic in her attempts to lead all her six children to safety, dashed three times into the fiery frame dwelling and collapsed with James 2, in her arms on her final trip. He later died.

In two previous trips she brought out Dale, 7, and Marion, 12. Twelve-year-old Geraldin jumped from a second-storey window.

Mrs. Conrad called for Diane, 9, and Wayne, 8, to follow her but they apparently became confused by smoke and flames and were trapped.

Mr. Conrad suffered serious burns. He had been cutting hay in a nearby field and arrived in time to pull his wife and son from the porch.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

Today he was back at North Luffenham, fully recovered.

The No. 439 squadron recently flew from Canada to join No. 1 fighter wing here.

MONTREAL (CP)—Reginald V. Jarvo, 49, of Cornwall, was sentenced to 23 days in jail here today by Judge Irenee Lagarde on charges of drunken driving, failing to stop after an accident and driving without a license.

Judge Lagarde also ordered Jarvo to refrain from driving for the next three months. "And that means anywhere in Canada," he added.

Union Dispute Looms In Ont. Hydro

TORONTO (CP)—A fight between American Federation of Labor building trades unions and Canadian Congress of Labor groups loomed yesterday as the rival movements appeared before the Ontario Labor Relations Board in a jurisdictional battle over bargaining rights for Ontario Hydro construction workers.

A group of 18 international A.F.L. unions represents more than 3,500 hydro construction workers in Ontario. But bargaining rights for approximately 350 workers in five hydro projects in the Niagara district are claimed by the C.C.L. United Construction Workers.

John Bruce, head of the A.F.L. plumbers' union, told the board there would be trouble if it threw out an agreement certifying the A.F.L. group as lone bargaining agent.

"Deny us our rights on the projects and there'll be industrial unrest," said Mr. Bruce. "I'm not threatening, I'm just stating the situation factually."

John Diblee, Hydro's industrial relations director, said Ontario Hydro had never before encountered any other union in the field but the A.F.L. organizations. The master agreement covering all Hydro construction employees in the province was signed "to eliminate jurisdictional squabbles and bring about some uniformity in conditions."

The board adjourned following the hearing to discuss the initial question of whether the Hydro agreement was a bar to another union applying for certification.

Driver Hit On Head By Man Jumping

Fine Brantford Man $210 For Obstruction

KITCHENER (CP) — Vernon Ellar of Brantford today was fined $210 and costs after pleading guilty to charges of obstructing an officer, mischief and failing to stop at a stop street.

A charge of breaking and entering was withdrawn. He also was given a suspended sentence for taking keys from a police car.

Defence counsel Roy Youngson, who said Ellar's actions were "uncontemplated and very spontaneous," urged a fine instead of a jail sentence.

Police Seek Man Who Signed Register

MONTREAL (CP)—Police today sought a man who signed the register of a downtown hotel as William Greenhalgh of St. Hilaire, Que., when he checked in Friday with a red-haired girl later found suffocated in a room, her body nude and battered.

The girl was identified by her sister, Mrs. Florence Keller of Chicago, as Elizabeth Marjorie Richards, a native of Quebec province, at the inquest held today before coroner Richard L. Duckett. The inquest was adjourned sine die.

Miss Richards, alias Betty Stuart, alias Llewellyn, was originally reported as being an English immigrant.

U.S. Doesn't Like British Plan For Political Advice

WASHINGTON (AP) —The United States is reported to be cool to a British suggestion that a team of political advisors be named to assist Gen. Mark Clark, Supreme United Nations commander in Korea. The State Department is said to be against creating any formal new advisory group in the Far East theatre at this time. But top U.S. officials told a reporter today that they are considering closer liaison between Clark and the American ambassadors in Japan and Korea as a means of preventing military decisions that could result in world-wide political repercussions.

Informed diplomatic officials said Britain's Minister of State, Selwyn Lloyd, suggested the idea of a political guuidance team when he talked with State Secretary Dean Acheson here several weeks ago. Lloyd was reported to have argued that such a group, on which Britain would be represented, would make sure Clark and top American military leaders in Korea realized the full international implications of military decisions they might make.

A political guidance team, he felt, might have avoided the flare-up between Britain and the U.S. which resulted from American bombing of Communist power plants in North Korea without first notifying Britain.

The State Department, it was learned, takes the view that adequate machinery exists for providing Clark with all the political advice he needs. Clark is reported to be in close contact with Robert Murphy, U.S. ambassador in Tokyo. Gen. James Van Fleet, military commander in Korea, is said to be in constant contact with John J. Muccio, U.S. ambassador in Korea.

See Little Headway In Market Prices

TORONTO (CP)—Prices made little headway today in slow early afternoon stock market dealings.

Activity slackened from a dull opening. Industrial trading shrank to selected key issues while few golds, metals or oils attracted speculative interest. Volume for the first three hours totalled 740,000 shares.

Refining oils and retail stores led industrials upward with a scattered list of fractional advances. Utilities, steels, foods, banks, textiles and manufacturing companies also drew firm support.

Western oils eased as Central-Leduc, Gas Explorations, Jupiter, New Concord, North Canadian, Peace River and Souris Valley turned downward. Britalta, National Petroleum and Omnitrans were firm.

Base metals were mixed but leaders tended higher. Chromium, Gas Explorations, Falconbridge, Noranda and Ontario Pyrites strengthened while Barvue, Nesbitt-Labine, International Nickel and Mackeno weakened.

Senior golds were quiet, Junior producers and prospects dipped sharply. Holding companies slipped.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indices showed industrials up .40 at 319.17, golds down .66 at 91.18, base metals up .34 at 187.26 and western oils down .39 at 136.13.

Canadian Dollar Up

NEW YORK (AP)—The Canadian dollar was up 3.32 of a cent at a premium of 3⅛ per cent in terms of United States funds in foreign exchange dealings today. The pound sterling was unchanged at $2.79½.

Careless Driver Pays Fines, Cost $67.90

Donald D. Sproule, 1308 Monaghan Rd., was convicted of careless driving and fined $15 and $52.90 costs in police court today.

Sproule was turning into the western entrance of the Hitching Post restaurant on Highway 28, south of the city about midnight May 16, when two oncoming motorcycles swerved into the ditch to avoid hitting his car.

He denied either seeing the motorcycles approaching or seeing them pass in front of his car as they went into the ditch.

The one motorcycle driven by Terry Heard, 39 Stewart Place struck a boulder in the ditch, throwing both him and a girl passenger off but neither was injured seriously.

The other motorcycle, driven by William Foster, 368 Water St., went into the ditch, came up the other side and ran into a car parked on the restaurant driveway.

FORCED INTO DITCH

Mr. Sproule said the first time he knew anything had happened was when Heard ran up to his car as it was moving into the driveway and said he had forced two motorcycles into the ditch. Then Heard took his car keys from the ignition he said.

A passenger in the Sproule car, William Whaley also said he did not see any motorcycles approaching.

Both Heard and Foster who was injured and knocked unconscious in the accident, were also charged with careless driving.

The charge against Heard was heard first and on completion of the crown's case, John Currelly asked that the charge be dismissed.

"There is no possible case for the prosecution is there Mr. Bradshaw?" asked Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Mr. Bradshaw in reply asked: "Is a motorcyclist with a passenger justified in travelling at between 40 and 50 miles an hour at night?"

"It may be foolish but does not come within this section of the Highway Traffic Act," the Magistrate said in dismissing the charge.

DISMISS CHARGE

Mr. Bradshaw then asked that the charge be dismissed against Foster.

P. D. Scollard, counsel for Sproule agreed that crown evidence heard in the charge against Heard be applied to the careless driving charge against his client and Mr. Sproule's evidence as a crown witness was entered as defence evidence.

William Miller of Renfrew, whose car was damaged by the Foster motorcycle said he was sitting in the car and saw both the motorcycles and the car lights approaching.

He said he saw the car coming from Peterborough slow up and "swing across the highway as the motorcycles passed in front of it." He said Heard picked himself up and ran over to the Sproule car to get the keys and that by that time, the Sproule car had moved off the pavement onto the driveway

Woman Dies Three Men Claim Husband

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP)—A 60-year-old woman died in a hospital Sunday of heart trouble.

Shortly afterwards, Police Inspector Darrell Davis said, three men showed up and each said he was her husband.

The officer said the woman was listed on the hospital's records as Dolly Clingenpeel, and her husband as James Clingenpeel, 63.

After her death Clingenpeel arrived to claim the body, followed shortly by Thomas Powers, 60, of Stockton and W. H. Grist of Oakland.

Going to Clingenpeel's home to investigate the complications, Davis said, he found the man's body. He termed Clingenpeel's death a suicide.

Looking deeper into the tangle, Davis said he found:

1. Born Ethel Hoyt, the woman married one Floyd Settle of New York, in 1908. No record of a divorce.
2. In 1914 she married Powers. No record of a divorce.
3. In 1916 she married Grist. He filed for a divorce in 1923.
4. In 1923 she began living with Clingenpeel. No record of a marriage.

Russians Ask $21,420 Ransom

BERLIN (AP)—The Russian zone of Germany today demanded a 90,000-mark ransom ($21,420) for a convoy of trucks carrying the possessions of a U.S. roller skating show which played to full houses for two weeks in West Berlin.

The East Germans confiscated seven of the eight trucks and permitted only one to go through to West Germany.

They said the trucks were loaded with watches, china and other items purchased in the Soviet sector of Berlin. All material has been seized and will not be returned, they said. The remainder of the cargo was assessed by the east for customs purposes at 90,000 west marks.

The 78 Americans in the show were not stopped.

Lake Current Changes Near Shore Not Safe

COBOURG (ENS)—Change in the lake current has scooped out deep holes in the lake bottom near the shore of Lake Ontario at the foot of Ontario Street, with the result that it is dangerous for youngsters going in wading. Police and Mayor Jack Burnet looked over the scene and later warning signs were posted. However, the condition of the lake bed at the park is satisfactory.

Seek To Improve Facilities Aiding Immigrants To Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—Future British immigrants to Ontario may find their problems simplified because of a combination of events.

A little more than a month ago, the chance meeting of an Englishman and a Scottish-Canadian in Union Station indirectly led to the establishment of a mutual aid society called the Federation of British Immigrants and New Canadians. Today the organization claims some 3,000 members and finds accommodation and employment for more than 40 new arrivals a week.

Late in April, Jack Burns, a former Liverpool City Councillor and business man, arrived in Toronto with his family to establish a building and repair business. Like most newcomers he experienced difficulty in finding suitable accommodation.

While waiting to collect a trunk at Union Station, Mr. Burns met a Scotsman, returning to Dundee for health reasons. He offered his two-storey, eight-room house to the Englishman.

"I bought it completely furnished for $15,000," said Mr. Burns, "and a local newspaper published the story. In an interview I mentioned the poor facilities available for aiding the independent immigrant and light-heartedly offered to help any new arrival to the best of my ability. Within two days I received 2,000 letters and 1,100 phone calls."

ORGANIZED SOCIETY

Mr. Burns said so many persons called to ask for aid or to offer assistance that in addition to his own business he decided to organize a society on a voluntary labor basis to combine the functions of an employment agency and accommodation bureau.

He now has two groups of 20 persons each who devote their spare time to the Federation, answering some 400 to 500 inquiries weekly from a makeshift office in Mr. Burns' house.

Mr. Burns hopes to develop the Federation into a credit union which will be able to construct a hostel for new arrivals and ensure temporary shelter for the needy.

BlameGasFumes For Injury To Lindsay Boy

LINDSAY (ENS)—Gas fumes were blamed for the sewer blast that injured a 15-year-old boy, June 20, in an investigation report given at the Lindsay council meeting Monday night.

The matter was brought before the council when a letter was read from William Gunn, father of the injured boy, stating that he was holding the town responsible for expenses arising from the injuries.

William Gunn, Jr., suffered extensive and serious burns when a blast moved a manhole cover about 18 inches from its well.

ODOR OF GAS

C. N. Strachan, town engineer, said that he believed the explosion had been caused by some flame igniting gas fumes and blowing the cover off. A strong odor of gasoline was present following the blast.

He said that an investigation had taken place to find the source of the gasoline. Two nearby service stations had been visited and storage tanks air-tested. Only one was found to have a small leak. This tank is now empty for further investigation by the oil company involved.

The town engineer also reported that he had heard stories that the boy, along with others, had been dropping lighted matches in the manhole.

It was found that the town carried no insurance coverage for this type of accident and it was decided that no further action would be taken until the investigation by the Board of Works had been completed.

New Treatment For Bad Burns

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three Detroit scientists today reported tests pointing to quick new methods of diagnosing and treating severe burns.

Dr. John J. Prendergast and two associates of the Chrysler corporation's medical department reported in the Archives of Surgery that the test of burn severity centres around the blood protein called gamma globulin.

They said there is a great increase of gamma globulin in the blood of seriously-burned patients, and a slight increase in patients with minor burns.

In serious cases they also found a decrease in the concentration of albumin—another blood protein—which suggested that improved treatment might call for transfusions of blood containing purified human serum albumin.

Plan Summer Program For Girls At Cobourg

COBOURG (ENS)—A special recreation program has been arranged by the Y.W.C.A. of Cobourg, under the supervision of Miss Muriel Whitely, for the benefit of girls in the age group of 9 to 12 years, who are not going to any of the summer camps this year. The recreational events are held each day from 1.00 to 4.30 in the afternoon from Monday until Friday. When more help is available to look after the girls, the age limits may be enlarged next year.

They participate in craft groups, ball games, singing, hikes along the lake shore, games, story telling, folk dances and supervised swimming. Mrs. Paul Allen supervises the crafts, Mrs. William Brown is the story teller, Mrs. Charles Hare looks after the softball, Mrs. H. Calverley singing and games, and Mrs. M. McGuire swimming classes. They are assisted by Mrs. W. Moran, Mrs. Alex Booth, Mrs. Norman Massey and Mrs. Joe Randall. Junior leaders are Ramona Smith, Shirley Moran and Betty Edgell.

Break In Line Sets Off Fire

YORK, Pa. (AP)—A break in the Little Inch pipeline in a barley field early today set off a fire fed by natural gas that lit up the southeastern Pennsylvania sky for three hours.

The Texas Eastern Transmission Company, which operates the line, reported that gas being fed into the line was turned off 90 minutes after a terrific concussion rocked the surrounding area.

No one was injured and there was no report of extensive property damage. Company work crews said a 30-foot section of the pipe had been torn apart.

Two Democrats Criticize General's Speech

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination take a dim view of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's keynote speech to the Republican national convention.

Averell Harriman called it "meaningless oratory." Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee said it "offered no hope, no guidance to the people."

Harriman, the mutual security administrator, was in Charleston, W.VA., yesterday meeting Democratic leaders. He told reporters MacArthur "admits we need friends in the world and yet he in fact demands that we go it alone."

Kefauver, campaigning in Duluth, Minn., said MacArthur himself is responsible for some of the Korean situation which he blamed on the Democratic administration.

Meanwhile Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia, another Democratic aspirant, appeared to make a hit with Arkansas delegates to the Democratic national convention opening in Chicago July 21.

The 22-vote Arkansas delegation is pledged to "favorite son" Senator J. William Fulbright. Russell asked for second-choice backing.

Kefauver's campaign headquarters claimed that the Tennessee senator will have 403 delegate votes pledged by the time the convention opens. Russell claims about 300 votes. Nomination requires 616 votes.

The latest Associated Press tabulation shows Kefauver with 252 votes, Russell with 117½ and Harriman with 101½.

Lay 6 Charges In Abduction Case

TORONTO (CP)—Police yesterday laid six charges against Frank Jollymore, 28, after two girls were found, dazed and sobbing, wandering aimlessly in west-end High Park.

The girls, aged 9 and 12, said they were driven from east-central Toronto to the park Monday night. They said they were held prisoner in a motor-car for eight hours.

Jollymore, arrested later, faces two charges of kidnapping, two of having carnal knowledge and two of indecently assaulting the girls. Police seek two other men believed to have been in the car.

The search began when a third girl, who had refused to get into the car, reported the incident to police.

The girls said a man drove them outside the city and assaulted them. Later they returned to the city, where he gave the older girl $2 and the other $1.

Hit-And-Run Truck Driver Convicted When Cobourg Police Do Good Work

COBOURG (ENS)—Good police work resulted in the arrest and conviction of Joseph Hart, of Stratford, on a hit-and-run charge. Hart, driving a dump truck, sideswiped two American cars on Sunday night, which were parked off the highway while one of the drivers went in to see about accommodation at a nearby tourist spot. Both cars were heavily damaged but, apart from a shaking up, nobody was hurt. The truck kept on going.

However, found at the scene was a fender flag from the truck, which was attached to a stick that had been cut from a small tree limb. Constable Homer Seale, of the town police, recalled seeing a dump truck with a similar flag stick in town some hours before the accident and the resultant enquiry led Chief H. Pearse, Constable E. Butler and Constable Seale to north of Orono Monday night where a bridge was being built and there arrested Joseph Hart. For the convenience of the U.S. witnesses who wanted to be on their way, the case was heard at Bowmanville yesterday instead of waiting until Friday, and Hart was fined $150 and costs or four months.

Guelph Gives A Warning

The Ontario Government and the prison authorities have taken the line with the Guelph rioters which will be most acceptable to the people of the province. There has been no bargaining, bribery or compromise with the rioters, and they will feel the weight of discipline heavily as a result of their escapade. So they should; they have cost the people of Ontario a very large sum of money and they have made fools of themselves in the most menacing and destructive way open to them. They are in revolt against society, and they need not expect society to coddle them. The policy of keeping the ringleaders anonymous, which Premier Frost has announced, is a good one; we have no desire to make underworld heroes of the leaders in the riot.

* * *

There are lessons to be learned from the Guelph outbreak. The first, in our opinion, is that there are men in Guelph who ought to be in a penitentiary, and not a reformatory; even a first offender in early youth may be a sufficiently hardened character to be unsuitable as an inmate of a reformatory. Greater care must be taken in sentencing offenders to see that they are sent to the place best suited to them. The second lesson appears to be that Guelph is too big, and that we would be better off with two smaller reformatories; the building of such places is costly, but riots on this scale are costly, too, both in cash and also in discipline and reputation.

* * *

The third, and perhaps the hardest lesson, is this: men in prison will riot if they think that they can achieve anything by it, however enlightened and well-conducted the prison may be. Indeed, it would be a sad lookout for humanity if men did not rebel against imprisonment, for society is in a bad way indeed if prison is preferable to liberty. Understandably, every prisoner wants his freedom; understandably, almost every prisoner thinks that he, for some special reason, has had a raw deal and should not be locked up. Riots will happen in any prison, and neither severity nor extreme easy-going treatment will prevent them. We must not be panicked by a riot into abandoning the conservative, but enlightened, policy which is in force in our prisons. For the present, special measures will be taken, and in future there will be greater precautions against riots, but that does not mean that the basic attitude toward the prisoners must be changed. A reformatory is a place where we hope to reform people; we cannot do that by making an ordinary penitentiary out of the institution at Guelph.

* * *

To repeat, we must not be surprised that men in a prison or reformatory are resentful, and want to get out. Nor can we assume that all prisoners, even in a reformatory, can be reformed. Optimism on this subject must always pervade a reformatory, but we cannot lose sight of the fact that it was disregard of ordinary rules of society which brought the inmates inside the walls in the first place.

Steel-Workers' Strike

Although thirty-three smaller companies have signed contracts with the Steelworkers' Union and are back in production, the major companies have not. A compromise settlement between union and big companies seems far removed. The strike is now more than a month old, and 1,025,000 men are idle because of the strike.

If the strike is not settled soon, Canada will feel its effects sharply. Already critical shortages of steel are looming before some of our major industries. This may affect car production and prices, and other producers and prices in any industry where steel is basic. Despite Canadian pride of independence and dollar, the tendons of our industrial heel are still American steel; a shortage of their steel can cripple us.

Will the situation be changed when the Labrador-Quebec iron deposits are mined? Much of the capital for that enterprise is American. Further; how much of the steel from Canadian iron is actually forged in Canada? According to present plans, most of the bulk ore is to be shipped to the United States for refining. If that is so, a strike in American steel plants will still hurt Canada.

In the present circumstances, Canadian dependency on American steel is virtually absolute. K. S. Harris, director of the Defence Production department's steel division has said that the U.S. strike may be a "national calamity" for Canada if it continues much longer. Only about fifteen per cent, of normal imports of American steel are now entering Canada. He estimates that in about four weeks Canadian manufacturers of cars, electrical equipment, machinery and firms using structural steel will be getting to the bottom of the American stock-pile.

The Accomplished Urbanity of Taschereau

On Sunday the man who had been Premier of Quebec from 1920 to 1936 — the longest tenure in that office in Quebec's history — died at the age of eighty-five.

He was Louis Alexandre Taschereau, a Liberal member of the Quebec legislature for thirty-six years until his abrupt and complete retirement in 1936. The bulk of the legislation which stands today in Quebec's statute books was enacted by his Government.

It is not as architect of a Quebec era, but as a member of an historic family, proud of his ancestry and of Quebec's rural class, that many Quebec people recall the former Premier this week. In 1920, speaking to the Empire Club of Toronto in fluent English, he said that the Quebec habitant was the first Canadian and "will be the last." The Montreal Gazette, whose political views are opposed to Liberalism, eulogizes Mr. Taschereau's 'accomplished urbanity":

He was an heir to a long tradition. His family had come from Tours in 1727 and had played a notable part in the history of Canada — in public life, in military struggles, in the church.

Whenever he heard anyone speak of Canada as being a young country, he liked to remind them of the events of the centuries that are gone, all of which were part of the Taschereau family history. Tradition was to him a living thing — something that mellowed, and deepened daily life, and gave poise and distinction to one's attitudes and manners.

In Upper Canada and the West we are sometimes unmindful of the strength of tradition in Quebec, a Canadian tradition; and of the perseverance of notable family names. Such families as the Taschereaus have taken a formative and distinguished part through several centuries in creating this country of Canada and giving her roots here on Canadian soil as old and strong as any in the New World, grown old with the Taschereaus.

The Advantage of Being A Pirate

Despite a comfortable notion in these parts of the world that piracy has ceased to exist except in boys' stories of other days and wolves' actions on Wall Street or younger wolves' antics around the corner drug store, the captain of the schooner Yess B knows differently; he has been attacked by real pirates on the high seas, pirates with black masks over their faces and pistols in their hands.

The piracy took place off the Barbary Coast. Captain Horst Engqvist put out to sea carrying a hundred and sixty-five cases of cigarettes and fifty sacks of coffee. He was attacked one stormy night off Cape Spartel, which is in the international zone of Tangier, opposite Gibraltar. Captain Engqvist, taken by surprise, and with bullets spattering the Yess B, was forced to yield up his cargo. He returned to Tangier, to seek consolation.

In Tangier, instead of getting sympathy he was hauled into court by the owner of the cargo who had suspicions that the pirates who boarded the Yess B might not have been above-board. The court gave Captain Engqvist the benefit of the doubt but the merchant has appealed against the acquittal.

The poor captain, beset by pirates, is now walking the plank in law courts. He speaks only German. The Court's proceedings are in French. The policeman who acted as interpreter at the first trial is now away on leave. At the Appeal hearing the Court at first accepted the offer of an amateur interpreter who spoke excellent French, but very bad German. Another interpreter was called on, who spoke German perfectly, but little French. The Court has therefore been adjorned sine die. Meanwhile — as in few novels and comic strips — the pirates have got the best of the deal.

King James Bible A Poor Translation

Address given by Prof. N. H. Parker of McMaster before the Ontario Council of Christian Education

(reprinted from The Canadian Baptist)

Many readers of the English Bible, and especially those under the British flag, have long invested the King James' Version of the Scriptures with a sanctity approximating perfect holiness. Consequently they who advocate the preparation and distribution of a new and different version may seem in their eyes to be guilty of sacrilege, more especially if they assume to do so in the name of the Church itself.

It is scarcely proper to speak of the familiar King James Version as "authorized". True enough, King James did grant permission to make the translation and did specify that it should be used in Anglican churches; but the verdicts and decrees of no civil ruler have ever been binding upon the free churches, nor could they by any stretch of the imagination impart a quality to any book which that book does not intrinsically possess. Some, however, seem to feel that the magic word "authorized" confers upon this particular English translation an authority which other versions of the same Hebrew and Greek text cannot lay claim to. The new translation which is about to appear under the auspices of the International Council of Religious Education is really just as much "authorized" as the version of 1611.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT LET us now address ourselves more directly to the subject in hand.

1. Occasional re-translation of the English Bible is necessary because of the inevitable changes wrought in the English language by the mere passing of time. Time changes all things and especially living things—like languages. English grammar, English vocabularies, and English idioms are no exceptions to the rule. What was once a "modern translation" is now full of archaisms, some of which are not only strangely odd but unintelligible as well. It is true that some of this "old-fashioned language" is dear to the ears of the older Christians, and nobody wishes to quarrel with devout sentiment; yet, few indeed of the outmoded words and phrases possess sufficient virtue to offset their most grievous fault, that of making the Bible seem outlandish and unreal to the young and the unchurched. Consequently the Revised Version, soon to appear in complete form, retains only the formal pronouns (thee, thou, thy, and thine) in address to the deity, substituting simple and dignfied modern English for all other forms not in current use.

II. A new translation is made advisable, also, by the surprisingly great amount of bad work which appears in both the King James Version and the present Revised Version. Let me hasten to say that in view of the circumstances under which the early translators worked the King James Version is a truly marvellous achievement, and the same may be said with less emphasis for the Revised Version. There were almost no Hebrew grammars and dictionaries when the former was made, and the knowledge of Greek was superficial in comparison to that of modern scholars; not only so, but by the very temper of the times translators were too much inclined to "ride" with the familiar Latin version of the Scriptures. As for the Revised Version, modern researches in grammar and philology have carried us far in advance of the attainments of scholars who labored fifty or sixty years ago. Our claims to a higher degree of proficiency today are indubitably just, but we should always make them in humility and in gratitude, for we have only built upon the foundations our fore-runners laid for us.

Sometimes the translation is poor because the translators simply did not deal faithfully with what was before their eyes; for instance, in Isa. 7: 14 they deliberately set aside the Hebrew text and substituted the Greek of the Septuagint (the best known Greek text of the Old Testament). What the Hebrew has is "Behold, the young woman is with child and about to bear a son". No doubt, this substitution was made for theological reasons, but, even so, the English does not give the reader what is in the Hebrew.

✧ ✧ ✧

FAR MORE often a poor translation may be traceable to an impurity or obscurity in the Hebrew text. Ordinarily translators, and especially translating committees chosen by common consent of the church, endeavour to put into English that which is before them in Hebrew or Greek, even though they may suspect the presence of textual error; but sometimes that is impossible for the simple reason that the "original" makes no sense whatever and cannot be translated. At all such points the text must be amended before it is rendered, which is a job much more easily done at present than fifty years ago. For example, we know now that a whole clause has been accidentally omitted from the Hebrew of Gen. 4:8 and that this passage should run thus: "So Cain said to his brother Abel, 'Let us go into the field'; and when they were out in the field Cain rose up against Abel his brother and slew him". The text of David's elegy over Saul and Jonathan is in a deplorable state of preservation, for which reason the King James Version gives us a very poor translation: the translators could make little of the obscurities. Now we are practically certain of the sense in all the difficult spots; but what is more, we know, as the translators of the King James Version did not, that the dirge is in poetry, and we know what Hebrew poetry was like; hence we would make the following improvements in rendition (and more):

v. 19, "Grieve, O Israel, over thy dead!
How are the mighty fallen!
v. 21, Ye mountains of Gilboa, no dew and no rain
Be thereupon you, ye fields of death.
For there was defiled the shield of the mighty,
The shield of Saul, a consecrated weapon.
v. 21, Saul and Jonathan, the lovely and the gracious!
In life and in death they were undivided!

But to continue. In Isa. 53: 10 there is a phrase which has always bewildered the Hebraists, so much so that many have advocated omitting it as a gloss. It is the phrase, "He hath put him to grief", a single word in the Hebrew text. Not only is the poetic metre problematical, but the sense is at odds with the context, for the word actually means "He has caused sickness". There is no accusative in the text. So, the translators gave us their best guess and for centuries English readers have based their theological arguments on that guess. But the recently discovered manuscript of Isaiah known as the Dead Sea Scroll, a document dating back to the second pre-Christian century, clears the mystery up. It has "He (God) caused him to be pierced" (run through as with a sword).

✧ ✧ ✧

SHOCKING as the statement may be in the ears of ordinary Bible readers, every competent Hebraist in the English speaking world will bear me out in this assertion: nearly every familiar and beloved passage in the Old Testament contains at least a few glaring mis-translations. To cite only a few, I mention Psalm 8; Psalm 23; Hosea 11; Habakkuk 2; Isaiah 40, 53. But perhaps the worst fault of all in the King James Version as a translation is its complete failure ot recognize the presence of poetry in the Old Testament. At least half of the Hebrew text of the Old Testament is poetic in form yet, in 1611, when the King James Version was made that fact was unknown to Christian scholarship.

✧ ✧ ✧

III. A new translation of the Bible is made imperative now by the availability of a Greek text for the New Testament that is far more accurate than any used in previous versions and by greatly advanced skill in textual criticism in both the New Testament and the Old. In brief, it is possible today to get much closer to the lost original manuscripts than ever before, thanks to newly discovered documents and the ever advancing knowledge of Biblical languages. The King James Version was made before scholars had access to any of several great Greek manuscripts now known to be indispensible for textual study. It was made from what we speak of as the text of Erasmus (a great scholar in his day), but that in turn was based only upon late and unreliable European manuscripts. The Revised Version did have the benefit of the greatest manuscripts, but, alas, not after we had best learned how to use them. This all boils down to the homely truth that we ought to have a new translation now simply because we are at last able to produce one that is virtually perfect.

✧ ✧ ✧

IV.

BUT some are sure to ask, "Why has not present Revised Version won universal approval?" That is a reasonable query and deserves an answer. In point of fact, the Revised Version has won almost universal approval in the southern part of the United States and extremely wide usage throughout the whole United States. However, it is, as has already been stated, by no means as good a translation as can be made, nor does it represent as nearly perfect a text as can be reconstructed. Also, it suffers from defects in literary style, notably the tendency to follow too closely the word order of the original and to retain far too many of the archaisms of the King James. The reasons why it has failed to become the approved text in churches throughout the British Empire are not far to seek: they are the natural tendency of British people to adhere to the traditional and the old; the use of the King James in a number of prayer books and "books of common order"; and the total unawareness of the ordinary reader that his present English Bible represents a poor text and a poor translation also.

✧ ✧ ✧

I HAVE not understood it to be my commission to discuss the qualities of the new translation in terms of style and format. Suffice it to say that the men who have made it are proficient not only in Greek and Hebrew but in English as well. They have seen to it that we have the Scriptures in English as simple, clear, and elegant as can be written by learned and discreet men. Mutual consultation and criticism amongst these gentlemen are our guarantee that nothing improper or inelegant will get into the pages of this our crowning effort at making the Word of God available to the common reader in our mother tongue.

An American Opinion: SOUNDING THE KEYNOTE

Letters To The Editor

A TOURIST SPEAKS HIS MIND

Sir: The writer who has been on a tour of Canada, mainly Ontario, stopped at some pretty rotten places in the past two months and the lousiest of them all was this town of Peterborough.

Your restaurants are horrible to say the least and I venture to say that we feed our pigs better swill than the food served in your town at outrageous prices.

As for your flophouses, wrongly named hotels, the operators should be flogged and thrown out of the country. They are worse than thieves. The rates they charge for such scummy rooms is grand larceny. They ask higher prices for those scummy rooms than a first rate hotel would charge for a suite in U.S.A. I may exaggerate a little, but you know the set-up well enough that I don't need to go into detail.

The air of independance displayed by those nit-wits called clerks is outrageous.

They don't know the meaning of courtesy. Most Ontario hotels rob you with a smile, but Peterborough Hotels are so anxious to get your money (treble what their stalls are worth) and get you out.

Your boast about the value of your dollar over and above the American dollar but we have the value on what it will buy and the American dollar will bring in U.S. far more and far better merchandise than your dollar will in Canada. Furthermore, wages in U.S.A. are far greater than they are in Canada. We have many gangsters in U.S.A. but we keep them in check and in prison, but in Canada, you are under gangster rule.

Canadians are a gullible lot of fools to be bluffed by such rotten politics as they are. It would make any American feel that Canada was now a colony of Russia, rather than a democracy. Canada is certainly not a free country, not a democracy. Canada cooks up more ways of robbing their people, legally of course, than U.S.A. would ever dream of. Some day it is going to kick back in the faces of these would-be honorables and Sirs and when it does, their titles will be scum instead of honorable, Sir and Lord so-and-so.

You have a grand country but it's a damned shame that it is under the domination of political thieves and their stooges.

Yours truly, J. C. WELDON

SEES ROMAN DEGENERACY IN CANADA

Sir: I wonder what the author of the play "Clutterbuck", thought he was giving to his fellow men? What is the object of it? It seems merely to ridicule human beings, both male and female. It is a harsh, unlaughable ridicule without any redeeming lift. Of what value is such a production ? ? ?

As one recently returned from two years abroad, lately in residence at International House at University, fresh from public health experience in child guidance and venereal disease control, I find the above play at trifle dismaying, just a tiny bit depressing. It is not easy to maintain one's faith in human nature. What is funny about portraying it at its very lowest, at the animal level?—and expecting the effort to be applauded! It was encouraging to note that the audience did not seem to feel much like applause.

Most of us have a fair perspective regarding the characteristics of homo sapiens as emphasized in such presentations. We can accept it—or deal with it. But how many vulnerable young minds are distorted, how many delicate ideals mortally wounded by portrayals such as "Clutterbuck"? Is it not another drop in the bucket of evil influence that is poured all over young citizens of today? Does it not add to the youthful confusion of what is right or wrong, what is worth striving for?

It is wonderful being a Canadian, especially away from home. But there is something alarming about trends in Canada. We are known as a rugged, genuine people, familiar with struggle, living in a big free world close to nature and to God, learning early in life to get our values straight. But is that true now? Is there not a danger that Canadians in their present prosperity may degenerate, as the Romans did, by the very corruption which is being substituted for the honest thrill of hard work and real achievement? Are we also to become participants in the stupid search for artificial thrills by sacrificing the sacred relationship of man and wife to that rewarding end? Do we, who have so very much, really want any part of the "Clutterbuck" trash?

Yours sincerely, ANNE PARK

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into mountain where Jesus had appointed them. . . .

And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. (Matt. 28:16, 18-20.)

✧ ✧ ✧

So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.

And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen. (Mark 16:19, 20.)

Hoover Labels European Army Phantom Force

CHICAGO (AP)—Herbert Hoover, in a farewell address to the Republican party he once headed, last night labelled as largely a "phantom" the European army, until recently commanded by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In an address to the Republican National Convention, he warned the United States to look to its aerial strength and be ready to strike back like a "rattlesnake" at any Communist aggression.

The only living former U.S. president raked the Democrats, accusing them of throwing away the fruits of victory in the Second World War.

MAY BE LAST

Hoover referred to his age—he is 77—and told the convention that in "the inexorable course of nature, this is likely to be the last time I shall attend your conventions."

Hitting at the concept of building up large land armies in Europe, Hoover said that aside from U.S. and British divisions, the European army is largely a myth because the continent's will to defend itself is weak.

Hoover, as he has done frequently in the past, urged a major buildup of U.S. airpower to defend "the centre and final reserve of strength of the free world (which) lies now in the western hemisphere."

Hoover did not mention by name either of the two leading contenders for the Republican Presidential nomination which he won twice.

AKIN TO TAFT

But the theme of his speech, devoted in large part to foreign policy, was much closer to the expressed views of Senator Robert A. Taft than to those of Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, who relinquished command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces to come home and campaign for the Republican nomination, has expressed confidence that Western Europe will do its utmost in the common cause.

Hoover accused the Democrats, in office since Hoover's futile try for re-election in 1932, of corroding "the grandeur of the people" by the "drip, drip, drip from dishonor in high places."

"Behind this plush curtain of tax and spend," Hoover said, "three sinister spooks or ghosts are mixing poison for the American people.

"They are the shades of Mussolini, with his bureaucratic Fascism; of Karl Marx and his Socialism; and of Lord Keynes, with his perpetual government spending, deficits and inflation."

Thousands Lose Jobs In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The sharpest congressional economy ax in years is chopping thousands of workers from government payrolls throughout the United States.

In the hard-hit price, wage and rent control agencies, officials have said that appropriations are hardly adequate to do the job.

No official would estimate today just how many thousands will be fired in the entire federal service. But the price and wage agencies said more than half their 17,000 employees will be out within 30 days.

Altogether, Congress cut about $9,000,000,000 off the Truman administration's requests for $83,778,382,112.

British Press Gives Convention Reports

LONDON (Reuters)—The British press devoted many columns of thin editions yesterday to reports and comments on the Republican National Convention in Chicago.

Under a double-column headline, "The Great MacArthur Proves a Flop," the Evening Standard said delegates went home after hearing the general's keynote address "obviously feeling that the hero had been a bit of a bore."

The Evening News reported that MacArthur said little that he had not said before.

Chicago Housewives Cheated On Poultry

CHICAGO (AP) — A Chicago Board of Health officer said yesterday some housewives may be paying for as much as four pounds of ice in buying frozen turkeys and chickens.

Harold Wainess told a board meeting inspectors checked 50,000 pounds of frozen poultry at a cold storage plant and had found some turkeys and chickens had been pumped full of water before being frozen and sold.

Narrow Escape

STUTTGART, Germany (Reuters)—A freight train locomotive broke through a buffer stop, crashed through the wall of a house and came to a halt a few inches from the bed of a sleeping couple in nearby Uhingen yesterday. The couple ran out from the house seconds before their sleeping room collapsed. Two children in an adjoining room were slightly injured.

Stormy Crossing

BARI, Italy (Reuters)—Seven Yugoslav refugees landed here yesterday after a stormy 125-mile crossing of the Adriatic in a row boat. They told police they left the Dalmatian port of Dubrovnik four days ago because life in Yugoslavia was "impossible."

Architect Denies Being Asked To Pay Morgan For Contract

WINDSOR — (CP) — John P. Thomson, who designed a 132-bed wing for the East Windsor Hospital for Incurables, yesterday denied a suggestion that he had been asked to make a payment to hospital superintendent Dr. P. J. G. Morgan in connection with the awarding of the contract for the wing.

He was testifying before a provincial government commission which is conducting a public inquiry into the affairs of the 350-bed hospital.

Arthur A. Macdonald, chief counsel for the investigating body, suggested to him: "Some discussion took place while you were planning the new wing at the hospital where by some benefit was to be given Dr. Morgan or some nominee of his if you got the contract."

Mr. Thomson replied: "Nonsense."

NO PAYMENT MADE

He said he had never told anyone that such a payment had been made. Dr. Morgan was not indebted to him when the contract was awarded and had not become indebted to him since.

H. N. Phillips, regional group manager for the Sun Life Assurance Company, amplified testimony he gave earlier in connection with an $8,500 hospital-paid life insurance policy provided for the superintendent.

He said the $8,500 policy was instituted to bring Dr. Morgan's insurance coverage into the same relative position as that of other staff members.

Under the Sun Life insurance plan now in effect at the hospital, hospital-paid policies were provided for each employee. Value of these was "approximately" equal to a year's salary—up to a $7,500 maximum—for the employee concerned.

The hospital provided the $8,500 policy in addition to a $7,500 policy instituted under the regular plan because Dr. Morgan's salary was $12,000 annually, he said.

Earlier, Mr. Phillips had stated only that the $8,500 policy was provided to meet offers by other insurance companies.

The inquiry, now in its seventh week, is continuing.

Legion Denies Endicott Charge

CALGARY (CP)—Canadian Legion and city police officials yesterday denied charges by Dr. James Endicott, chairman of the Canadian Peace Congress.

Dr. Endicott charged Monday that the Calgary branch of the Canadian Legion threatened to break up any public meeting he might hold here. He also said he had cancelled a scheduled address when told that Calgary police could not guarantee him protection.

Ralph Henderson, president of the No. 1 branch, Canadian Legion, said: "That's a lot of nonsense. He couldn't get our hall, of course. But, at the same time, we wouldn't smash up his meeting."

Chief Constable Larry Partridge denied having said anything to Dr. Endicott or anyone acting on his behalf.

Nazis Hold Reunion

KASSEL, Germany (Reuters)—More than 3,000 former high Nazi officials, all interned for years after the war, met yesterday for "an unpolitical reunion" on the site of their former internment camp near here. They demanded permission to take part again in public life. Nearly all have been forbidden by denazification courts to hold public posts or carry out certain professions.

2 Provinces Given 2-Week Deadline

TORONTO (CP)—United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) yesterday gave the governments of Ontario and Quebec two weeks to bring about settlement of a dispute between the Steel Company of Canada and 10,000 of its employes in the two provinces.

It asked the provinces as an alternative to set up conciliation boards to deal with the dispute.

An announcement said that "unless settlement is achieved or conciliation boards set up. . .the union members will consider themselves free to consider effective economic action."

Conciliation services were applied for March 19 but, despite statutory time limits requiring such boards to be established shortly after application, "no board has yet been established."

Manuel was last seen about an hour before as he took his daily walk through Queen Victoria Park.

Merchants Get Upset Win Over Seabrooke

Lakefield Merchants put an end to Seabrooke Motors' undefeated winning streak at nine games, Tuesday night at the Bowl, as they handed the men's senior softball loop leaders a 10-4 defeat in the nightcap of the regular twin bill.

John Hinton, veteran right-handed slab artist, was in fine form to limit the powerful Sullivan East City squad to five hits, one a double by Neil Thompson in the eighth scoring skipper Sullivan who had singled. At no time was Hinton in difficulty however, as he held sway in a masterful display and was given great support afield by his mates who pared their lapses to a mere two, in the surprise victory. Hinton fanned four and yielded a like number of passes.

Terry Woods started for Seabrooke's but was below his usual form in the control department. The visitors smote his early offerings for 10 hits and eight runs in the first three innings, then he settled down until the sixth when Lefty Doris took over with two aboard and one away. Lefty completed a creditable relief chore.

Cam Wasson rapped out three safeties, batted in a pair of runs and scored one besides catching a peach of a game. But possibly John Cupoli caught most eyes with a booming homer and single in four tries to drive in two besides scoring a brace and giving a sensational fielding display.

Cupe's catch running backwards near the left field fence off Spencer in the third was one of the best ever seen at the Bowl. Joe Blewett had three for five; Henry, Hinton and Heffernan two safeties, Red Wasson, John Leckley, Skeeter O'Heron and Spencer all sparkled afield.

The college's first defeat in five matches came at the hands of Bermuda's only undefeated team in league competition. Ridley won two, drew one and another was abandoned because of rain.

B.A.A. battled first and scored 191 runs.

Jim Drynan of Hamilton, Ont., took four wickets for 44 and Edmund Burn, cricket coach, four for 60. The collegians could only muster a 42-run reply, led by Jim Chaplin of Galt, Ont., with 16.

Out At The Kawartha

A number of spectacular matches were played off over the week-end. The gallery for some of the games is increasing in numbers and dimensions.

President's Cup—A battle of real intensity developed between Jack Condon and Mel Akers which did not finish up until the 21st hole, Jack Condon coming out on top.

A. Caccavella in a somewhat similar match defeated A. Sanderson, while E. Reynolds won over B. Mayfield.

Kawartha Cup—The lone match played during the week resulted in a win for Rev. Maskey over T. Collins.

Men's Two-Ball—R. Howarth and W. Durant ended up with a win over R. Payne and J. Gatfield.

Mixed Two-Ball—Peggy Beggs and A. Caccavella came out on the paying side over Helen Praskey and H. Correll, while Cathy Nash and J. Inglis finally obtained a decision over Marg. Lundy and B. Moulton on the 18th.

Club Championship—Keen interest is shown in every round of this match by every Kawarthian. The first couple of tilts were run off over the hot weekend with E. Hanbidge winning over R. Hay, and R. Buchanan over J. Raine.

Kawartha Lakes Amateur Tournament—Entries are coming in continually from outside clubs. This is one of our periodic pieces of advice—to local players—"Get your entry in." Those men whose entry is accompanied by the entry fee, we understand, will receive preference. Remember, the list is to be cut off at 250.

Clubhouse—Sunday dinner will not be served July 13th, but sandwiches will be.

Panton Leading Golfing Pack

LYTHAM, England (Reuters)—Scotland's John Panton led the pack yesterday as 96 of the world's best golfers emerged from 36-hole qualifying tests with the right to take part in the battle for the British Open Golf Championship.

The players qualified by scoring totals of 152 or better for the two rounds played on the Royal Lytham, where four rounds will be played. After the second round tomorrow, a maximum of 50 players will advance to the final 36 holes Friday.

Panton racked up a 68 yesterday to go with his 66 Monday for a total of 134.

Panton was two strokes ahead of Harry Bradshaw, the Republic of Ireland's main hope, who in turn was closely followed by reigning champion Max Faulkner and Harry Weetman, matchplay champion, both with 137.

Reg Horne of Britain and Gene Sarazen of Germantown, Pa., who won the title 20 years ago, totalled 138.

Revoy's Squad Turns Back Lindsay, 14-2

George Hawke's up-and-coming Revoy Motors squad handed Lindsay Merchants a 14-2 defeat in the opener of Tuesday's men's softball double-header at the Bowl before a large crowd of fans, to strengthen their hold on third place in the standing and creep within three points of the idle U.E.W. nine.

Dick West twirled for Revoys, allowing but three singles; he struck out five and gave up six walks. In the pinches, however, West was effective, and he helped his own cause at bat with two hits in four attempts, hit a homer, drove in two runs, and scored a pair to complete a big night.

On the opposing mound Jack Kean proved less effective; than usual and yielded to Bill Cummins after five innings of toil, the latter having little better luck as the Revoy sluggers blasted out a total of 16 hits including a homer and triple by Walter Fife to drive in five runs; two doubles and singles by Jack Mackness in five trips to drive in three; and double and single by Boyd Cowie, who drove in one and scored three in four trips to the platter. Dave Hayes drove in a pair of runs, and Bill Wood had three hits in four attempts.

Here And There In Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A formidable threesome from the United States heads a field of 124 golfers entered in the $15,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship July 16-19 at Winnipeg.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association said yesterday that when it closed the books on the entry list the field comprised 27 amateurs and 97 professionals. It includes Jim Ferrier, two-time Canadian champion seeking his third straight win; Julius Boros of Midpines, N.C., United States Open champion and Jim Turnesa, U.S. P.G.A. champion.

The total is far short of the record entry of 199 at the Royal Montreal Club in 1950.

The list includes 25 of the 34 money-winning pros of the 1951 championship at Toronto. But the two top amateurs of 1951—Al Severson of Mt. Clemens, Mich., and Nick Weslock of Windsor—are not entered.

Besides Ferrier, one other former Canadian Open champion is in the race—Lawson Little of Pebble Beach, Calif., who won the 72-hole event with a 271 in 1936. That score stood as the record until Bobby Locke of South Africa shot a 268 in 1947.

First prize money is $3,000, biggest since the event was inaugurated in 1904.

Fifty-four Canadians are entered in the event which no Canadian has won since 1914 when Karl Keffer of Ottawa won with a 300 over the Toronto Golf Club course.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, leading Canadian pro in the Open in the last two years, heads the home-bred forces. He was in a sixth-place tie last year, nine strokes behind Ferrier's winning 273. Other Canadian prize winners of '51 back for another try are Henry Martell of Edmonton, Murray Tucker of London and Jules Juot of Montreal.

ESCOE, WALLS REMATCHED

Promoter Jack Berry announced in Edmonton last night that Vern Escoe of Toronto will seek to regain his Canadian heavyweight boxing title from Earl Walls of Windsor, in an outdoor bout there July 17. Walls won the title by knocking out Escoe June 13.

ARGOS SIGN ROOKS

George Rooks, a 205-pound Negro halfback from Morgan State college, has been signed by Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football league. Rooks, sought by the Argos for the last two seasons, was a member of the 1950 all-American Negro grid squad.

BIG DOUBLE PAYOFF

Seven Fort Erie racetrack fans yesterday won $1,338.40 each when Geneva Lois and Sue's Special combined for the biggest daily double payoff of any Ontario race track this season. Geneva Lois accounted for the major chunk of the payoff, paying $113.50 to win in the first.

OPERATE ON GUEST

Jack Guest, Jr., noted sculler was operated on in Toronto yesterday in an effort to correct a back condition he has had since birth. Dr. Gordon Murray, "blue baby" specialist who performed the operation, said it was successful but it will be months before a decision can be made as to Guest's sculling future.

SUED FOR DIVORCE

Jim Rivera, the much-publicized 31-year-old rookie of the St. Louis Browns, was sued for divorce in St. Louis. His wife, Maxine, 24, charged that he sulked, pouted and swore at her and told her he no longer loved her. They were married in October, 1951, and separated, June 28.

START 'PEACE APPEAL'

All the athletes at the Olympic Games in Helsinki, Finland, are going to be urged to sign a "peace appeal." The movement, Moscow papers said yesterday, has been started by a Finnish athlete who claims to have collected 630 signatures already.

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

As the girls' softball playoffs proceed these hot nights, the picture starts to take form. Belleville already has been ousted by Ashby's from the senior city race, but will take on the winner of the Lindsay-Cobourg series in intermediate city finals. Meantime, Ashby's await a winner from Burtol's-Marines' sawoffs to commence the senior playoffs, ultimate winner hitting into P.W.S.U. playdowns. A playoff twin bill at the Bowl tonight: Burtol's vs. Marines in their deciding game, and one of 'em will be eliminated. This is followed by Cobourg vs. Lindsay lasses and that should be a close contest, too. Crowds have been picking up for these interesting playoffs.

Picture Taking Form

Racing Commission recently advised the local Exhibition Board that no more night harness horse racing would be permitted here this year, apart from during the annual exhibition. Not even when other planned races were under auspices of the Exhibition Board. After a good night of racing in Morrow Park several weeks ago, before a big crowd, 'twas hoped to run a night's meet every two weeks or so to please horse followers and to give local and district owners and drivers a chance at some purses, without having to pay heavy expenses on long hauls. But no, 'tis not to be — even though betting on races was not permitted here. Too bad B. A. McLean of Lindsay, on the commish, couldn't use his office to help encourage such meets up this way.

Owen Sound Crescents are threatening to climb the ladder at a faster clip in the senior O.L.A. grouping from now on. As the heavy grind wears along, the Crescents have been making lineup switches and winning some games. They have a lot of husky veterans and younger players aboard and will give any of the top three teams a stiff scrap. They're after fourth slot and will be trying hard to knock off the second-place Petes' Timbermen here tonight. Weather permitting, it should be a hot fixture before a big midweek crowd. No more senior lacrosse in Miller Bowl this week, the Petes going to St. Kitts Sat'day.

West and Hinton Hot

Revoy's beat Lindsay 14-2 at the Bowl last gloaming before a goodly gallery to tighten their third place grip. Dick West came up with a sparkling three-hit hurling performance and blasted out two hits in four tries, one a homer. Walt Fife hit a homer and triple and Jack Mackness banged out four in five as the Revoy bats thundered. Lakefield Merchants pulled something of an upset in the night-cap with a deserved 10-4 win o'er the previously undefeated Seabrooke squad. John Hinton allowed but five safe blows and had fine support, as the losers used two twirlers. Cam Wasson and Joe Blewett had three hits each for the winners, with John Cupoli belting a homer and single, as well as grabbing off a great catch. U. E. plays Seabrooke's, and Lindsay tackles Lakefield on Thursday.

Lou's crew, otherwise the local junior O.L.A. bunch, have a stiff test tonight in St. Kitts, and then tackle Mimico here Friday and Brampton up this way next Monday. No rest for the weary as the heavy pace continues. St. Catharines columnist comments: "The junior A's have one of their most important games of the season Wednesday. Peterborough Queens, first place finishers in the junior series last year, provide the opposition and to the winner goes four points. Last time the two clubs met in Peterborough, Athletics came back more than slightly scarred. Seven players required stitches before the return trip to this city and three missed the next two games because of injuries suffered in that particular game. This is the only appearance of the junior Petes here this season, barring playoffs."

U.S. Sends Strongest Track Team To Games

HELSINKI (AP)—The strongest track and field team the United States ever assembled arrived today, hopeful of maintaining American Olympic supremacy.

Eighty athletes stepped off two planes in dazzling sunshine at 5 a.m.

Both planes had smooth flights over the 5,000 miles from New York. It will take three more flights to complete transport of the contingent, which numbers nearly 400 persons. Two planes are due tomorrow and the last Friday.

Use Different Formulas In Pennant Drive

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees are using different "formulas" in their 1952 pennant drive.

Brooklyn is employing the method used successfully by John McGraw, late manager of New York Giants. The Yanks are following their own tried and true pennant blueprint.

McGraw's pennant philosophy was simple: "Beat the bushejs." The fiery Giant immortal brought 10 pennants to the Polo Grounds, many as a result of piling it on the second-division teams while holding the contenders even.

The Yanks' theory is just the opposite. The Bombers say: "Knock off your nearest rival." The Yanks always seem to reach the heights in a crucial series.

Brooklyn's 4½-game lead over New York Giants today was built chiefly on the Dodgers' success against the sixth, seventh and eighth-place teams.

The Dodgers have won 33 games and lost only one to the last three teams in the standings while winning 18 and dropping 20 against the other five.

The Yanks, seeking their fourth straight flag and 19th since 1920, have won 19 and lost 11 to first-division opponents and stand 26-18 over the lower-echelon teams.

Only Boston's fifth-place Red Sox hold an edge over the Yanks. The Red Sox, only a game out of fourth place, have won six of 10 meetings.

Red Wings Edge Buffalo In 5-4 Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs, the International League's second- and third-place teams, both gained on the front-running Montreal Royals last night.

Royals, rained out of a double-header in Baltimore, saw their lead cut to 2½ games over the Red Wings as the latter beat Buffalo 5-4 in 12 innings. The Chiefs, who moved to within five games of the leaders, also went into extra innings, downing Springfield Cubs 4-1 in the 11th.

Meanwhile, Toronto Maple Leafs settled matters early in defeating Ottawa 4-2.

SQUEEZED HOME

Catcher Lou Kahn squeezed home the winning Red Wing tally to give reliefer Freddie Martin the win. Martin hurled six-hit scoreless ball over the last 9 1-3 innings.

A three-run homer by Johnny Welaj with none out in the final frame brought an end to the Syracuse-Springfield affair. Arnie Landeck picked up the win that was the Chiefs' third straight.

Toronto also utilized the home-run ball but did so right at the start. Lew Morton connected with none on in the second, and then Pete Pavlick and Marv Rickert tagged solo four-baggers back to back in the third to give the Leafs a 3-0 margin. Lou Limmer homered in the fourth for Ottawa, but the A's never caught up even though they chased winner Gerry Fahr in the eighth. Ray Shore made his 32nd relief appearance for Toronto.

Race Getting Hot For Top Money Winners

CHICAGO (AP)—Professional golf's race for the 1952 money-winning honors is beginning to get hot.

Jack Burke, once well-entrenched as the cash-collecting leader, now heads the 1951 money king, Lloyd Mangrum, by less than $700, and Cary Middlecoff is pushing in the third spot.

Burke has $12,970, Mangrum $12,296 and Middlecoff $11,106, the Professional Golfers Association reported today. Three players, Dave Douglas, Julius Boros and Ted Kroll are bunched in the $9,000 bracket.

Kroll has finished among the first 10 in every start during the last five weeks, including a semi-final effort in the P.G.A. championship and a playoff loss to Middlecoff for the Motor City Open title.

YEAR-ROUND RODEOS

On at least 300 days of the year a rodeo will be found operating in either the United States, Canada or Mexico.

Racing Shells Damaged By Storm Canadian Olympic Chances Poor

By JACK SULLIVAN

HELSINKI (CP) — Canada's chances in Olympic sculling and rowing appeared practically washed out today.

A North Atlantic storm hit the ship bringing racing shells here from Montreal, damaging them "beyond repair," officials were told.

Only by flying replacements from Canada can officials hope to get them here in time for the July 19-Aug. 3 Olympic Games. Meantime, Canada's oarsmen here are using European-style boats lent by the Finns. They're practically useless because of different seating arrangements. Officials have had no luck trying to find suitable shells in Sweden.

AIR FREIGHT COSTLY

But it would cost at least $20,000 to have the shells shipped by air from Canada. A special cargo plane would be needed.

Paddy Cline of Hamilton, coach of the four-oared crew, said yesterday:

"Our four-oared crew has been together for three years with their eyes on the Olympic championship. Right now, at the most critical time, a storm has to blow up in the North Atlantic practically to ruin our chance. It's a heartbreak to the whole gang."

An ironical feature is that new boats—double sculls, four- and eight-oared shells—are sitting in the Toronto club house of the Argonaut Rowing Club back in Canada. They were built at Kelowna, B.C., by Gordon Jennens expressly for the Canadian Olympic team.

They were shipped by truck and didn't arrive in Eastern Canada in time for the June 17 shipping date from Montreal. Substitutes were shipped.

At Kelowna, Jennens was reported preparing to leave by air today for Helsinki where, it is understood, he will attempt repairs on the storm-damaged shells.

At St. Catharines, Jack House, president of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, said last night "if the R.C.A.F. would co-operate it would be a wonderful thing."

An Ottawa R.C.A.F. spokesman said there wasn't a hope of the air force flying the shells because of a shortage of aircraft. He said: "We're already strapped for aircraft for training and transport."

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first shutout in the history of the annual All-Star baseball game at St. Louis 12 years ago today was a 4-0 victory for the National League over the American. The National Leaguers yielded three hits. Up to this year however, the American League has won 12 of the 18 All-Star games played since 1933.

STARTING ALL-STAR HURLERS — Vic Raschi of the Yanks (left) and southpaw Curt Simmons of Phillies started on the mound Tuesday in the all-star major league exhibition in Philadelphia, neither finishing. It wound up in a 3-2 win for the National League over the American after five rain-drenched innings when Hank Sauer's homer in the fourth proved the clincher, though many fans wondered if the American Leaguers, with sensational Bobby Shantz fanning three tough hitters in the last frame, played.

National League Beats Out American All Stars 3-2

PHILADELPHIA (CP).—The home run, baseball's most spectacular weapon, exploded yesterday in the faces of the representatives of the league that practically invented it. Two towering blasts from the bats of Jackie Robinson and Hank Sauer gave the National League All-Stars a 3-2 victory over their American League rivals in a five-inning contest shortened by rain. But there were enough thrills packed into the five innings to send the 32,785 fans home happy.

It was the third straight victory for the Nationals and it was made possible by the same type of slugging that American League stalwarts like Babe Ruth, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons, Joe DiMaggio and Ted Williams had unleashed against them in past years.

RAIN HINDERS GAME

While the rain and the muddy field hampered play, it had no effect on the 430-foot clout that Sauer sent over the wall with Stan Musial on base in the fourth inning to decide the game. And Robinson's first-inning blast was still climbing when it hit the left-field stands.

The victory was the Nationals' seventh in 19 tries and the first for Leo Durocher in three assignments as their manager. It was the third loss in a row for Manager Casey Stengel of the American Leaguers.

The treacherous footing in Philadelphia's Shibe Park bothered the infielders, particularly Robinson, whose inability to make a play on a routine double-play grounder gave the Americans their two runs. But it didn't affect the pitchers unduly.

Fireballing Curt Simmons, Philadelphia Phillies' stylish southpaw, set down the losers with a single safety in his three-inning stint, striking out three men and holding the Americans scoreless.

SHANTZ SUPERB

Even more spectacular was the performance of little Bobby Shantz, the pint-sized left-hander for Philadelphia Athletics, who struck out three of the National League's top hitters—Whitey Lockman, Musial and Robinson—with a blinding assortment of fast balls and curves in the only inning he pitched.

Neither Simmons nor Shantz showed up in the won-lost records. Big Bob Rush, the Chicago Cub righthander who took over from Simmons in the fourth, gained credit for the victory while Cleveland's Bob Lemon, who yielded Sauer's game-winning blast, was charged with the loss.

The Americans looked weak yesterday without such standbys as Williams and DiMaggio. They managed five safeties but, as a National Leaguer phrased it, were lucky to score at all.

Robinson, Brooklyn Dodgers' second baseman, could not get a firm footing on a treacherous terrain in the fourth and Eddie Robinson's hard-hit grounder went for a single and scored Minnie Minoso from second. The Chicago White Sox outfielder had doubled just before Al Rosen had drawn a base on balls.

DIMAGGIO DOUBLES

Bobby Avila followed with a hopper behind second that Robinson knocked down but couldn't hold, and Rosen scored. The other two hits were a double by Dom DiMaggio and an infield single by Hank Sauer.

The Nationals obtained only three hits but all were for extra bases. In addition to the homers by Sauer and Robinson, Enos Slaughter, St. Louis Cardinals' grand old-timer, doubled to the right field corner.

Loses Both Legs Good Golfer

SASKATOON (CP)—Capt. W. W. Jansen of Saskatoon plays golf with one of the largest "handicaps" in the history of the game—the loss of both legs.

But despite his artificial limbs, Capt. Jansen can hold his own with any of his more fortunate "club mates."

At the D.V.A. inter-district golf matches between Saskatoon and Regina recently, he fired an 18-hole 100, including a birdie on one of the holes.

Both Capt. Jansen's legs were amputated above the knees but he walks without aid of cane or crutches and leads a normal and happy life.

His father, Major Vern Jansen, acted as caddy for him during the tournament. Both father and son have served in the Regina Rifles.

An outstanding golfer before the war, Capt. Jansen won the Canadian armed forces golf competition while serving in England.

Choose Kesselring For Tourney In U.S.

KITCHENER (CP) — George Lang, local representative of the Canadian Golf Association, announced yesterday that Jerry Kesselring of Kitchener Westmount will be a member of a team to play the United States in an international match in August.

Kesselring, Ontario Open champion, has been chosen one of seven Canadian amateurs to meet a U.S. team in Seattle. The other six members of the team are yet to be named.

BALL SCOUT DIES

John Mique Malloy, 67, once one of Chicago's top fight promoters, died in Chicago yesterday of cancer. Malloy had been a baseball scout for Chicago Cubs.

Nominations Close In Quebec; Election July 16

QUEBEC (CP) — Nominations close today for the Quebec provincial election next Wednesday, July 16.

In 88 of the province's 92 constituencies more than 200 candidates are expected to take out official papers and make their deposits of $200 each. District returning officers close the lists at 2 p.m. EDT.

Nominations already have closed in the four other ridings—Abitibi East, Abitibi West, Saguenay and Magdalen Islands. The lists were closed early because the four constituencies include remote areas with slow communications.

So far, 216 candidates have signified their intention of running, compared with the 312 who contested the last Quebec election in 1948.

The Liberals, seeking to regain the power they lost in the 1944 election, plan to put a candidate in each riding. The governing Union Nationale party has announced it will have 91 candidates.

The C.C.F. has announced 23 candidates, compared with seven last time. There also are 10 assorted standard-bearers.

The one constituency in which the Union Nationale will not be represented is Quebec county, held in the last Legislature by Rene Chaloult, Nationalist. This is the same riding which the Union Nationale skipped in 1948. However, this year Mr. Chaloult will face opposition from an Independent-Union Nationale candidate as well as a Liberal.

The drop in candidates this time compared with 1948—216 against 312—arises from the fact there are no candidates representing Union des Electeurs, the Social Credit-type movement which contested each of the 92 seats four years ago. None was elected.

Union des Electeurs has announced it will remain aloof from this campaign, preferring to devote its time to private campaigning for its policies, and already has expelled one member for giving public support to a Liberal candidate.

The Labor-Progressive party plans to put four candidates into the field, all in Montreal ridings.

The Union Nationale emerged from the 1948 balloting as the big winner, with 82 members elected against eight Liberals, one Nationalist and one Independent.

At dissolution May 28 last, the House standings was:

Union Nationale, 81; Liberals, 8; Nationalist 1; Independent, 1; vacant, 1; total 92.

Paper Pays Tribute To Louis Taschereau

CHICAGO (Reuters)—The Chicago Tribune today pays tribute to Louis Taschereau, Premier of Quebec from 1920 to 1936, who died Sunday.

The newspaper says Canada "has lost a statesman of the first rank, a distinguished member of the bar, and a charming gentleman."

Truce Talks Started One Year Ago

MUNSAN, Korea. (AP)—One year ago today Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway waved goodbye to five men who flew to Communist-held Kaesong to seek peace for Korea.

Hopes were high that day. Today, the struggle of war and peace goes on, and no end seems in sight.

The papers that make up the historical record of the truce talks now stand seven feet high. Delegates have come and gone. None of the original five remains. Fifteen generals and admirals have sat down at the conference table across from the Communists. And Gen. Mark Clark stepped in as United Nations commander when Ridgway moved to Paris.

The delegates have worked nearly 800 hours at the Kaesong and Panmunjom conference tables. The shortest session was 15 seconds on April 14.

The longest was seven hours and 20 minutes on Nov. 25 when staff officers drew the proposed cease-fire line.

The negotiators now have agreed on the complete armistice document except for one monumental issue. That is how to exchange the prisoners of war.

For some 300 hours, the debaters have tried to figure out how to satisfy each side on this emotion-packed question. The Reds want their men back—forcibly if necessary. The Allies say they will return only those who want to return.

Buys House

TORONTO (CP) — Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt yesterday purchased the Col. John Herbert Christie home in Forest Hill Village. Built in 1930, the 14-room Georgian style brick house will be his official residence while in office.

Slayer Suicides

MONTREAL (CP) — Louis Jacques Cote, 19, declared mentally unfit to stand trial for the crowbar-slaying of his employer March 10, hanged himself yesterday in Bordeaux jail. Cote admitted killing Jean Allaire, 23.

No Instructress Lindsay Hospital Trains No Nurses

Inability to obtain a qualified nursing instructress has forced Lindsay's Ross Memorial Hospital to discontinue training nurses.

Frank L. Weldon, secretary of the hospital board, said today that no new trainees were being accepted this year.

Since Miss Muriel Grieves resigned as instructress of nurses about a year ago, Mr. Weldon said, the hospital board has not been able to get a qualified instructor and the hospital has been training the undergraduate nurses as best it can with the available staff.

Seven nurses were graduated this year, Mr. Weldon said, and there are about ten undergraduates still in training.

About six or seven will be graduating in 1953 and the remainder in 1954.

Unless an instructress is obtained in the meantime, Mr. Weldon said, the transfer of the three or four nurses in their junior year may be considered next year.

It is the hope of the board, he said, that they will be able to obtain a nurse with qualifications to train students so the hospital will be able to resume its nurse training program by next year.

Bomb Explodes

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—A bomb exploded last night outside the United States information service office in downtown Buenos Aires. Four passersby were injured. Four persons were reported arrested.

10 Die In Crash

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP)—A passenger bus and a cattle truck collided near here yesterday in a blinding rainstorm, killing 10 persons and injuring six.

Marriage Rate Dips

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States marriage rate apparently dipped last year to the lowest point since 1938, the public health service reported yesterday. The divorce rate was estimated to be the lowest since 1941. The 1951 marriage rate of 10.4 per 1,000 population was six per cent down from 1950. In 1951 there were 2.4 divorces per 1,000 persons, compared with 2.5 in 1950.

U.K. Papers Demand Red Dean Disciplined

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—The entire British press—except the Communist Daily Worker — today cast an angry, skeptical and derisive eye on Dr. Hewlett Johnson's claims that he has "irrefutable evidence" that germ warfare has been waged in Korea.

Nearly every newspaper carries a leading editorial on the subject. All except the Daily Worker described the charges as worthless.

The editorial broadsides followed a press conference yesterday in which Dr. Johnson, the "Red" Dean of Canterbury, produced the alleged evidence of germ warfare, including a lengthy manifesto allegedly signed by 410 leaders of the Christian Church in China deploring germ warfare.

Dr. Johnson, just back from a China tour, admitted he had accepted scientific evidence shown to him "because I was not qualified to criticize."

PEER ASKS ACTION

The nature of the press conference led to speculation on the future of the "Red" Dean and the possibility of disciplinary steps against him. The matter is to be raised in the House of Lords by Lord Ammon, a Labor peer.

Nine Conservative members of Parliament today put down a motion in the House of Commons charging Dr. Johnson, 78, with being "guilty of actions contrary to his calling as a clergyman of a Christian church and prejudicial to the interests and safety of her majesty's subjects."

The motion urges the government to ask the Queen to revoke his appointment.

The tenor of press comment today was that up to now the activities of the "Red" Dean have been a joke, although a poor one, but that the time has finally come to take some action against him.

"The Dean's past conduct may not have warranted interference from above," says the Liberal News Chronicle. "It is time to consider whether he has not abused his office and forfeited his right to be immune from dismissal."

(The Dean can be tried for a civil or ecclesiastical offence).

The right-wing Daily Graphic says it is time Dr. Johnson—"the dupe in the deanery"—was told he could not combine his official duties with "his gullibles travels."

The pro-Labor Daily Herald says that "in the whole career of the publicity-hunting Dean. . .there has been no episode so fantastic or so disgraceful as this one."

"He is the germ carrier—a carrier of the germs of Moscow's poisonous propaganda," says the Conservative Yorkshire Post.

Similar sharp attacks are published by the independent Liberal Manchester Guardian, the right-wing Daily Express, Daily Telegraph and Daily Mail and left-wing Daily Mirror.

The Daily Express carries a feature article by its science editor, Chapman Pincher, ridiculing Dr. Johnson's claims. Pincher said research has shown the chances of spreading human infections by insects or any other go-between agents are poor.

ENDICOTT INTERVIEW

Dr. Johnson's press conference was similar in many ways to an interview given to the London bureau of The Canadian Press last April by Dr. James Endicott, chairman of the Canadian Peace Congress.

Like Dr. Johnson, Dr. Endicott claimed to be personally convinced that the U.S. had waged germ warfare, but said he hadn't seen a raid carried out or inspected any victims. Dr. Endicott, like Dr. Johnson, admitted he was not scientifically or technically qualified to say whether the alleged evidence he had seen had any validity.

Unlike Dr. Johnson, Dr. Endicott admitted that what he had seen was only a "small" proof or indication of germ warfare.

Secret Session Lasts For 26 Minutes

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—The first year of Korean armistice negotiations ended today with the United Nations and Communist delegates meeting in secret for 26 minutes.

There was no announcement on whether progress had been made toward solving the prisoner exchange deadlock, key issue blocking a truce. It was the shortest of six secret meetings held since Friday. Another executive session is scheduled for Panmunjom tomorrow.

In Oslo, Norway, U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie expressed hope for an armistice "by the end of July or the beginning of August" because truce negotiators had shown "a certain positive willingness" to reach agreement.

Capture 3 Gunmen

CHARLESTON, Miss. (AP). — Police last night said they had snagged three gunmen who pulled a daring daylight hold-up in Memphis. Two were captured after their car was riddled with rifle fire. Three gunmen yesterday took $7,200 from a Memphis grocery store.

Believe 500 Delegates To Attend Red Cross Meeting In Toronto

GENEVA (AP)—The Korean war will cast a broad shadow across the deliberations of the 18th International Red Cross conference in Toronto from July 26 to Aug. 7.

Delegates from both Communist and non-Communist countries will attend the conference and the inevitable controversies are expected to arise, particularly in the discussions of Korea, the efforts to aid the wounded, the civilians and the prisoners of war in North Korea and the Geneva conventions.

Acceptances of conference invitations already have been received from Communist China and Romania. Mrs. Li Teh Chuan, minister of health in the government of Communist China, will be the head Chinese delegate.

AWAIT SOVIET REPLY

Although the list of delegations is not yet complete, it is estimated that approximately 500 Red Cross representatives from all parts of the world will be present in Toronto. The Soviet Union Red Cross Society is among those which have not yet replied to invitations. All governments, signatories of the Geneva conventions, all national Red Cross societies, the international committee of the Red Cross and the League of Red Cross Societies have been invited.

The early acceptances by China and Romania were taken as indications that representatives of most of the Communist countries would be present at Toron, n n early in the conference when the international committee of the Red Cross makes its report to the conference's important general commission. The committee, in its report, admits its complete inability to carry out its humanitarian mandate in North Korea.

The international committee offered its services to both North and South Korea soon after hostilities started. South Korea accepted this offer almost immediately.

The North Korean government, the committee report says, on July 15, 1950, "announced its intention of conforming strictly to the principles of the conventions relative to the treatment of prisoners of war."

REFUSED TRANSIT VISAS

The committee tried to get a delegate to North Korea both through the Soviet Union and China, but was unable to obtain transit visas from either country.

"In spite of attempts in different forms, with the accent always on the urgency of the matter, no delegate was allowed to enter North Korean territory," the committee's report to the Toronto conference says.

"List of North Korean prisoners of war were received regularly at Geneva and communicated by the agency to the North Korean government," it continues. "Reciprocity, however, was not obtained. Two lists, containing 110 names of prisoners in North Korean hands, were sent to Geneva, in August and in October; in spite of continuous requests, none further were received."

The committee's efforts to send relief supplies into North Korea were equally fruitless.

PROBE OFFER REJECTED

If the charges of bacteriological warfare in Korea are raised by Communist delegates, the committee will report that it accepted an invitation to send an impartial commission to Korea to investigate these charges, but that this offer was never accepted by the Communists.

The committee also will report on a wide range of relief activities among refugees in many parts of the world.

Medical welfare teams recruited by the Canadian, British, U.S., Danish and Norwegian societies are at work in Korea and more than $1,000,000 in relief supplies have been sent there by member societies.

One question, not on the agenda, which may come up is that of the curtain lowered by Communist governments of eastern Europe on the sending of food parcels. The Hungarian government has set up its own food-parcel agencies in some places and no other parcels are accepted. one reason given by Radio Budapest was that usually parcels from the west went only to bourgeois Hungarians and not the workers.

Record Employment

WASHINGTON(AP)—Total United States employed rose to 63,572,000 in June, the Census Bureau reported yesterday. It was a record high for the month and only 60,000 below the all-time records set in August, 1951.

B.C. Election Results Hinge On Eight Doubtful Seats

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's slow-motion election count staggered toward the home stretch today with the outcome of the June 12 contest still hinging on the eight doubtful seats in the Vancouver area.

This is the latest standing:

| | Elected | Leading |
|---|---|---|
| SC | 16 | 2 |
| CCF | 15 | 4 |
| Lib | 6 | 0 |
| PC | 2 | 2 |
| Lab | 1 | 0 |
| Totals | 40 | 8 |

It may take another week to determine whether the C.C.F. or Social Credit will form the next —and minority—government. The Liberals, ousted from office, will hold the balance of power in the 48-member Legislature.

EIGHT UNDECIDED

The eight remaining seats to be decided are (current leader in brackets):

Vancouver-Burrard Ballot A (SC)
Vancouver-Burrard Ballot B (CCF)
Vancouver Centre Ballot A (CCF)
Vancouver Centre Ballot B (CCF)
Vancouver East Ballot A (CCF)
Vancouver-Point Grey Ballot A (PC)
Vancouver-Point Grey Ballot B (PC)
Vancouver-Point Grey Ballot C (SC)

Based on the analysis of vote transfers in other ridings, the C.C.F probably will win both Vancouver Centre seats and Vancouver East. They also have a good chance to hang onto the second seat in Burrard. This would give them 19 members in the House.

Social Credit probably will win the third Point Grey seat and Ballot A in Burrard, giving them 18 seats. But they have a good chance of taking the other two Point Grey seats and a fair chance of taking the second Burrard seat.

HAVE GOOD CHANCE

If they pick up only one of these, they will tie the C.C.F. at 18-18. If they grab two or three, Social Credit will form the next government.

Burrard and one seat in Vancouver Centre are nearing the final count. But the other seat in Vancouver Centre, Vancouver East and Point Gey have still not started their second counts under the alternative voting system. Point Grey is still working a re-count of the first complete totals and will not start the second count until tomorrow.

As expected, Social Credit took Delta riding yesterday to complete the roster of rural constituencies. This put Social Credit one up on the C.C.F. in the members-elected list. They also swept ahead of the C.C.F. on the fourth count in one Burrard seat and cut down the C.C.F.'s lead in the other.

LIBERALS OPPOSE P.C.

The Victoria Daily Colonist said in a newspage story yesterday that the six Liberals will support either Social Credit or C.C.F. in the next House.

The Colonist adds: "They (the Liberals) will allow the C.C.F. or the Social Credit party, whichever is chosen to form the government, to function as a minority government only so long as it treads the middle of the political road. If the government tries to enact any distinctive 'party' legislation . . .the Liberals will side with the official Opposition to throw out the government."

New counts were required under the new system of voting, where a candidate must have a majority of votes to win a seat. These counts started last Thursday after a three-week gap from election day to allow allocation of absentee ballots to their proper ridings.

Strikers Vote To Return To Jobs

DAGENHAM, Essex, England (Reuters)—Workers at the Ford Motor plant here voted by an overwhelming majority today to return to work after a two-week unofficial strike.

At a mass meeting 14,000 Ford workers rejected a stay-out resolution by the shop stewards, some of whom are Communists.

A union official warned the men that unless 9,000 workers on strike at the nearby Briggs motor bodies plant, which supplies Ford, also return to work, many of the men may find themselves short of work.

TOKYO (A)—Officers and men of the First Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment paused briefly today in a Korean valley to honor their fallen comrades.

A church service commemorated Pachino Day, landing of the battalion in Sicily July 10, 1943, and honored five men who have died in action in Korea.

Capt. Guy Piuzo of Ottawa, conducted the Roman Catholic service and Capt. John F. Moorhead of Fredericton, N.B., the Protestant. Maj. Joseph Cardy, senior Protestant chaplain of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, spoke.

Troops stood in silence as the names of the five men killed in Korea were read. They were Cpl. Peter John Nolan, Cpl. Wycliffe Lesley Presley, Pte. Kenneth S. Brooks, Pte. Lewis Joseph Gosselin and Pte. W.A. Luxton.

Strikers at the Briggs works will vote later today on whether to continue their stoppage, which began when 900 were laid off.

The Ford strike, without union sponsorship, was called in sympathy.

WINNIPEG (CP) — The eighth victim of a bus-truck collision near here Thursday was identified Saturday as Mrs. L. E. Rice of Delhi, Ont.

Red Cap Makes Information Tour

HALIFAX (CP)—Out to make himself "the best informed Red Cap with the Southern Pacific," Charles N. Gibson, 73, of San Francisco, is in Halifax today on a cross-continent tour.

The veteran of 53 years with the railway is spending his two-month vacation touring Canada. His ambition is never to be stumped when anyone asks him a question about travelling.

He left Vancouver in June and has visited Banff, Alta., Winnipeg, Montreal, Quebec and the Maritimes.

Gibson plans to stop off in Toronto and Windsor on his return trip.

U.S. Sending Second Protest

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)— A second United States protest against the construction of another 13,000-ton tanker in Danish shipyards for Soviet Russia is on its way, reliable sources said today.

The first tanker, Apsheron, was delivered to Russia two days ago. The government rejected the first American protest on the grounds the Russian order was a purely commercial matter, arranged long before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was created.

But political circles point out the government this time cannot argue that the protest comes too late for effective intervention as the vessel will not be completed until autumn, 1953.

The government is not anxious to commit itself as a ban on construction of the tanker, besides entailing legal difficulties, might give the Russians needless affront.

New Hamburg Man On Abduction Charge

GUELPH (CP)—Stanton Bowman, 37, of New Hamburg, was charged with abduction and attempted rape after being arrested at his home early yesterday.

He was remanded until Friday.

Bowman's arrest followed the abduction and beating of Muriel Campbell, 13, of Kitchener, and Carol Parkinson, 12, of Guelph.

The girls were picked up by a man in a motor-car Monday night after they had been swimming at Eramosa. Police said they were tied and blindfolded and driven to a point 12 miles north of Goderich, where they were beaten over the head with the barrel of a revolver and dumped out of the car.

The girls were treated for slight head injuries at hospital in Goderich.

Police said Bowman attempted to escape while being brought to Guelph by trying to seize the driver of the police car with handcuffed hands from the rear seat.

He is in county jail here.

Senate Reluctantly Approves Mossadegh

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A rebellious Senate gave a reluctant recommendation today that Premier Mohammed Mossadegh be reappointed Premier. The vote was so small it amounted to a rejection of Mossadegh's political and financial policies.

Only 14 senators voted to recommend to the Shah the reappointment of the Premier. Nineteen abstained.

The Senate is made up of 60 members but there are some vacancies.

In effect the Senate, a stronghold of the Opposition, by its action today reaffirmed its previous position of withholding its final decision on Mossadegh until he presents a program for its approval.

Reverses Decision

BARRIE (CP)—A court ruled yesterday that a driver cannot be convicted of driving with ability impaired by alcohol if the arresting officer is not familiar with the driver's ordinary driving ability. Judge J. G. Harvie reversed the decision of Magistrate G. R. Foster who convicted Harry S. Marks, 42, Barrie town foreman, last February and fined him $50.

RCAF Recruiting Off

OTTAWA (CP)—The Air Force said yesterday recruiting was down 20 per cent during the first six months of 1952 compared with the similar period a year ago. However, a spokesman said recruiting showed signs of picking up during June when recruits were 100 per cent higher than for June last year. For security reasons figures are not released.

Hot Women Defy Bylaw

QUEBEC (CP)—A slight breeze last night gave Quebecers some respite from a two-day heat-wave. Temperatures reached a maximum of 89 degrees yesterday, but City Hall officials reported a thermometer in the sun shot up to 114 degrees. Many women wore sun-dresses despite a bylaw which bans them on the street.

Court Orders Seizure Of German Magazine

BONN, Germany (Reuters)—The Bonn district court today ordered confiscation of this week's issue of Der Spiegel, a weekly news magazine which published an article saying Chancellor Konrad Adenauer had made plans to flee in the event of a Russian invasion.

Police immediately seized bundles of the magazine all over West Germany.

Kefauver Claims Lead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Kefauver-for-President headquarters posted a claim last night that Senator Estes Kefauver will go to the Democratic National Convention July 21 with 403 delegate votes—nearly two-thirds of the figure needed for nomination. Kefauver's campaign manager, Gael Sullivan, said the 403 votes would be "twice as many as any other candidate" would command.

Coal Mine Closed

CADOMIN, Alta. (CP)—Flood damage and the state of the Canadian coal market have forced the closing of the $1,000,000 Cadomin Coal Company mine. Opened 35 years ago, the Cadomin mine has been the sole major industry in the town which now has a population of 800.

"THE WATER'S FINE"—The "old swimming hole" still has a strong lure for boys. This cool, spring-fed pool attracts a goodly quota at Camp Wetaskiwin, the camp of the St. Catharines District Boy Scouts Association. A waiting line, at right, gets ready to swing out on the rope tied to the half-fallen tree.

Have Paradise For Sick, Aged Film Stars

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Some 20 miles from Hollywood and Vine lies a little-publicized paradise where the movie industry cares for its needy sick and aged.

The setting is a 60-acre tract of citrus and walnut groves. Its heart is a cluster of modernistic buildings surrounded by lawns, lily ponds and beds of flowers.

For the sick there is a $1,350,000 hospital and a convalescent home. It employs a resident physician and has specialists on call. Patients are treated without cost for as long as necessary.

PRIVATE COTTAGES

For the aged—minimum age is 60 for men, 65 for women—there is the motion picture country house. Its 30 "guests" occupy private cottages similar to those of luxury resort hotels.

A central building contains a large library, a television-equipped lounge, and a top-notch dining room.

The guests receive room and board, clothing, a weekly allowance, movies twice a week, station wagon service to Hollywood and occasional trips to see touring plays.

Names of the guests are kept confidential, but it is no secret that many well-known personalities of yesteryear have spent their final days in the home.

The house and the hospital are supported by the motion picture relief fund. Hospital revenue comes from salaries in every branch of the industry. Those earning less than $200 weekly contribute ½ of one per cent, those earning more give one per cent.

The relief fund is headed by Jean Hersholt, in his 16th year as president.

Make Public Detailed C.N.E. Report

TORONTO (CP)—Directors of the Canadian National Exhibition yesterday made public a detailed examination of the business methods and organizational setup of the C.N.E.

The report made by the management consultant firm of J. D. Woods and Gordon found "no evidence of fraud or dishonesty encountered, except for defalcations on the part of temporary employees" but suggested a number of improvements.

They were:

1. Installing an effective budget system "as a control over revenues and expenditures;"

2. Transferring to the C.N.E. Association year-round control and maintenance of the C.N.E. buildings, owned by the city;

3. Appointing a purchasing agent to do all C.N.E. buying, instead of having every department do its own, as at present;

4. Cutting down on the number of free passes;

5. Setting up of a concession committee to handle the allotting of space to concessionaires.

1,000 Vets Arrive On Way To Canada

SEATTLE (CP)—Nearly 1,000 members of Canada's 25th infantry brigade arrived here yesterday from Korea aboard the U.S. navy transport Gen. Hugh J. Gaffey.

One of the Canadians who attracted attention was Walter Ruggles of Picton. He sported a 9½-inch moustache—rich and full in the centre and waxed in ferocious spikes on either end.

$500 CAR DAMAGE

Total damage of $500 was caused to two cars Tuesday afternoon in a collision on Highway 28, between Springville and Kendry Crossing. A car driven by Oscar Jewell of Kingston Rd., Toronto, collided almost head-on with a southbound car driven by James Roddy, also of Toronto. Lumberjacks' spiked boots chewed up the board walks.

MRS. CHARLES J. RAY

Lt.-Gov. Names Mrs. Charles Ray To Hospital Bd.

Appointment of Mrs. Charles J. Ray to represent the Province of Ontario on the Civic Hospital Board of Governors has been announced by Lieutenant Governor Louis Breithaupt.

Mrs. Ray will replace W. C. Ackerman who resigned several months ago, after serving as provincial representative on the board for a number of years.

There are now two women serving on the board, Mrs. W. E. Fanning represents the Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

WITH RED CROSS

"She will be a very welcome addition to the board," said Max Swanston, chairman of the Civic Hospital Board of Governors, in praising the work Mrs. Ray has done for a number of years in connection with the Peterborough branch of the Red Cross.

Presently in charge of the Red Cross Blood Donor Service, Mrs. Ray has taken an active interest in the service since it was organized during the Second World War.

She is a former president of the Red Cross and is also a member of the Red Cross disaster and relief service committee.

One of her many achievements during her term of office as president was the outfitting of the Apsley Red Cross Hospital.

Ran To See Horse Child Hit By Car

A two-year-old Douro Township girl, excited by the sight of an approaching horse, ran into the side of a car Tuesday afternoon on Leahy's Lane and was slightly injured.

The little girl is Sandra Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Boyd, of 10 Leahy's Lane. She received a bump on the head and both thighs were grazed. Her parents took her to a doctor for examination, but it was confirmed that her injuries were only minor and she was taken home.

The accident occurred at 5:20 p.m. just as Mr. Boyd had got in from work.

Sandra was playing in the laneway and noticed a horse approaching. Excited at the prospect she called out to her four-year-old sister Lizbeth and dashed out to the street She overran the turn and collided with the northbound car of Clare O. McGill, 23, of 2 Leahy's Lane.

Mr. McGill was able to put his brakes on quickly and the tires grazed but did not run over the two-year-old girl.

Leahy's Lane is just northeast of the city boundary, and the accident was investigated by O.P.P. Constable Russell Pollard.

CrowBar Slips Railroader Fractures Leg

Inspector Closing Freight Car Door; Waits For Help

Thomas Hayward, 43, 616 Centre St., was injured Tuesday evening when a crow bar he was using to close a freight car door slipped, breaking both bones in his left leg.

Mr. Hayward, a car inspector at the Havelock C.P.R. station was working alone in the station yard when the accident occurred. He lay helpless on the ground for several minutes, before a man passing by heard his cries for assistance.

He was taken to Civic Hospital in Peterborough where his condition is described as satisfactory today. The compound fracture is regarded as serious, as one of the leg bones appears to have been badly splintered.

Shunt Train Cars Quietly As Able Says CNR Official

Canadian National Railways shunting operations are carried on in Peterborough as considerately as possible for the residents within audible range.

This was the substance of information in a letter to the council Monday night from A. R. Wilson, Belleville, divisional superintendent of the C. N. R. Apparently, members of the council have been receiving many protests from residents, and for reason of information have requested that the letter be published in full text as follows:

"We have your letter dated June 13th which contained information regarding complaints from citizens having their sleep interrupted by the unnecessary shunting of trains.

It is our candid opinion that there is no "unnecessary" shunting of trains in the city of Peterborough as it is not the policy of the railway to do any switching which is not necessary for the building up of trains or the accommodation of manufacturing plants, patrons and shippers. Cars require to be placed in certain locations on industrial sidings while loaded cars are required to be removed. When these cars are accumulated they are switched together in their proper position on either an eastward or a westward train. When this work is completed the crews are called to be relieved of duty.

May I respectfully point out to you and through you to the City Council members that we are continually receiving complaints from shippers and manufacturers in the City of Peterborough to the effect that we are not giving them the proper freight service. Consequently, in order to do so, it becomes necessary for us to perform these switching services both early and late. In the first instance to place cars for early morning handling and in the second instance to remove cars which have been loaded during the day and require prompt handling.

We realize that our location in Peterborough places us in a very bad position as far as public relations with the community are concerned. We have requested our crews to make every effort to switch as quietly as possible and we feel this will be done."

Tyrone Guthrie Studies Plan For Theatre

TORONTO (CP)—Tyrone Guthrie, London producer, arrived in Toronto last night on his way to Stratford, where he will study the possibilities of creating an outdoor Shakespearean theatre on the banks of the Canadian Avon.

The former Sadler's Wells administrator will spend the rest of the week at Stratford with Tom Patterson, originator of the idea to make Stratford's picturesque park a setting for large-scale Shakespearean productions.

This isn't Dr. Guthrie's first visit to Canada. Twenty years ago he directed several radio plays here and has visited friends several times since then. Toronto recently saw his staging of "Aida" when the Metropolitan Opera appeared here.

MINOR SHAW

Minor Shaw To Be Representative For I.U.E.-C.I.O.

Minor Shaw, a native of Syracuse, N.Y., has arrived in Peterborough to replace Joe Wirtz as I.U.E.-C.I.O. area representative. Mr. Wirtz is leaving Peterborough where he has been for the last 18 months, to take over the Toronto head office as co-ordinator of Canadian I.U.E.-C.I.O.

Mr. Shaw has been an employee of General Electric Co. for 10 years and has been a union member all that time. In his home local, Local 320, he served as steward, treasurer, committeeman and president.

He was a member of the National G.E. Negotiating Committee and he is still a member of the National Committee and vice-president of District 3.

Included in his labor experience are organizational drives in Utica, N.Y., Lynn, Mass., Philadelphia, Chicago and Fort Wayne.

The new area representative is no stranger to Canada. He at one time played baseball for the old Prescott team, Prescott, Ontario. And he has spent some time in Montreal, Brockville, and the Toronto area, as well as some summer weekends in Ontario.

He will, however, be entering a new field as an area representative for I.U.E.-C.I.O.

IN FAR EAST

During the Second World War he was in the China-India-Burma theatre with the 843rd Anti-Aircraft Coast Artillery (U.S.A.)

For the next two weeks or so Mr. Shaw will acquaint himself with the local labor picture and will meet with I.U.E. and other C.I.O.-C.C.L. unionists. Then, when Mr. Wirtz leaves, he will take over actively.

I.U.E. estimate they have the allegiance of about 2,500 trade unionists in Peterborough. There are some 450 members each at Local 570 (Western Clock Co. production workers), and Local 599 (C.G.E. office workers). And though I.U.E.-C.I.O. is not the certified bargaining agent among the C.G.E. production workers they claim 1,650 workers.

Mr. Shaw is married and soon expects to bring his wife Mary to Peterborough from their present home in Syracuse. In the meanwhile he is looking for accommodation and wants to get settled down.

"I'm sorry to leave Peterborough," Joe Wirtz told the Examiner today. "I've been here since February, 1951, and made many friends. It's not good-bye though; I hope to spend some weekends in Peterborough and will probably return in the fall to assist Mr. Shaw in organizational activities."

Local Soldiers Coming Home

A large draft of soldiers on rotation leave from Korea arriving by train in Kingston Saturday will include two Peterborough men and nine from the district.

They are: Pts. G. F. Lucano, 511 Albert St., Peterborough; Sgt. E. J. Wood, 160 Hunter St. E., Peterborough; Pte. F. J. Crowe, Lakefield; L/Cpl. A. H. Empey, Sigmn. F. L. Musgrave, Pte. L. C. Pankhurst, Pte. H. E. Parks, Spr. W. C. Van Dusen, L/Bdr. L. J. Watson, all of Belleville; Gnr. E. Simpson, Cobourg; Pte. W. D. Rushnell, Trenton.

Eliminate Pests

RED DEER, Alta. (CP)—More than 19,000 crows and magpies were destroyed in this year's anti-predator campaign of the Red Deer Fish and Game Association.

City Residents Cut Amount Of Water Used

Rate of Water Pumped Shows People Obeying

Peterborough residents are complying with the request of the Utilities Commission to conserve water. The number of gallons of water pumped Tuesday was 1,750,000 fewer than on Monday, the day the appeal was made to the public.

"The people of Peterborough have been co-operating very nicely," Howard Powell, assistant general manager of the Utilities, said today.

As a further illustration of the willingness of the public to help out, Mr. Powell said that during the day when no lawn or garden watering was permitted the pumpage averaged 4,800 gallons a minute.

According to the schedule as laid down by the Utilities, residents west of the Otonabee river and north of Sherbrooke St. were permitted to turn on their hoses and sprinklers for one hour Tuesday night: between 9-10 p.m. This promptly boosted the number of gallons being pumped per minute from 4,800 to 7,000.

As soon as 10 p.m. came the gallonage dropped again.

Mr. Dobbin explained that the source of the water is not the difficulty. There is still plenty of water. The problem is the capacity of the pumping system to keep up a steady supply during peak periods.

De Laval are still using their sprinkler system because they have their own wells and pumping system.

Nashua Paper is sprinkling with water that has been used in the manufacturing process and has been stored away in tanks.

Today's shower and cooler weather should relieve the situation somewhat, Mr. Powell said.

Heavy Rains In Two Areas

Heavy rain in wide strips five miles north and south of the city Tuesday evening afforded no relief to the parched lawns and gardens of Peterborough.

Neither was this morning's shower sufficient to relax the restrictions which have been applied by the Utilities Commission in the emergency of continuing drouth. The public is requested to adhere to the arrangement of watering lawns and gardens only two hours a week.

Ross L. Dobbin, Utilities manager, said today that several of the city's industries are outside the regulations. Canadian General Electric Company and DeLaval Company have their own wells.

Nashua Paper Company at Braidwood Ave. and Monaghan Road use secondary water on their lawns. Their metered water may be primarily required for cooling or other industrial use within their plant. Instead of letting it drain off into the sewer, they apply a secondary use by pumping it onto the lawn.

Mr. Dobbin said the effect of the Commission's appeal to the public has been generally recognized, and is reflected in reduction of the maximum rate of pumping and demand on the filter beds.

Second Person Dies In Kitchener Accident

STRATFORD (CP)—Mrs. Adam Kalbfleisch, 64, of Stratford, injured in a June 22 highway accident which claimed the life of her husband, died in hospital at Kitchener today.

The accident occurred at a highway intersection near Kitchener, about 23 miles southwest of here.

Meanwhile, Ira Betzner of Ossington, N.Y., driver of the car which collided with the Kalbfleisch vehicle, has been charged with manslaughter and dangerous and careless driving.

Abduction Charge

TIMMINS (CP)—Police last night arrested Reginald Belair, formerly of Timmins, on a warrant from Toronto police charging him with abduction of his own 14-year-old son. He is being held in custody here pending arrival of a Toronto police escort.

LARRY L. MAGUIRE

RUSSELL BAER

Russell Baer Appointed Outboard Advertising Head

Russell E. Baer, manager of radio station CHEX, is joining the staff of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., Ltd., as advertising manager, succeeding Larry L. Maguire. His engagement, effective July 21, was announced today by L. L. Tremblay, vice-president in charge of merchandising at Outboard Marine.

Mr. Baer has carried the business responsibilities of CHEX for the last four years, having been transferred from radio station CKWS in Kingston, where he was program director and sales manager.

He has had 12 years' experience in the business and community service of radio with Northern Broadcasting and Brookland Companies successively, and successfully, at North Bay, Timmins, Kirkland Lake, Kingston and finally Peterborough.

AIR FORCE PILOT

That period of steady advancement as a radio executive was interrupted by four years with the Royal Canadian Air Force in the Second World War. His record was 40 operational trips as a bomber pilot which earned for him promotion to the rank of Flight Lieutenant and the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross.

He is president of Peterborough Sales and Advertising Club, member of the Lions Club, Chamber of Commerce, Kawartha Golf and Country Club and also of the blue service group, the R.C.A.F. Association.

Following an illness of several months ago, Mr. Maguire recently requested that he be relieved of the bulk of his work as advertising manager. He is remaining with Outboard Marine, however, as assistant to Mr. Baer.

In the management of CHEX, Don Lawrie is coming to Peterborough from Timmins, where he has been in charge of radio station CJKL. He takes Mr. Baer's place on Monday, July 21.

Young Bathers Crowd Beach

The heat wave of the last ten days or more has crowded the Inverlea beach. Of the daily average of 400-500, the big majority of bathers have been youngsters ranging from 7 to 14 years.

The surge of swimmers has kept the life guards, Barry Hollingsworth and Jerry Armstrong, alert and anxious for the safety of the waders and swimmers. During the last three weeks, 12 persons were nearly drowned. Two were stricken with cramps, and three others were pulled out by persons who happened to be near them.

CUT FOREHEADS

Some of the children fall off rafts; others wade out beyond the rope boundary. Some of the venturesome divers have come up from shallow water with cuts on their foreheads. Possibility of serious accident is always present. So far, the vigilance of the guards and the prompt help of older swimmers have kept the beach record clear.

Protective facilities are complete. A new punt has been provided through the Kinsmen's Club; rope lines are up, and first-aid equipment is at hand.

It has been suggested that more parents should try to accompany the younger children to the park water front.

Order Inquest Into Death Of G. H. Cutmore

An inquest into the death of George H. Cutmore, ordered by the Attorney General's Department Tuesday will be conducted here July 23, by Dr. Smirle Lawson, Ontario Chief Coroner.

The inquest has been ordered to establish definitely the cause of Mr. Cutmore's death. He was found Sunday afternoon, May 11, lying dead behind his car on a driveway off the River Road, two and one-half miles north of the city.

Mr. Cutmore, 55, was the secretary of the DeLaval Co.

He died from a shotgun blast in the stomach. At the time, coroner Dr. Herbert Young stated that there would be no inquest.

The body was exhumed at 7.30 today and taken to Civic Hospital where an autopsy will be performed later this week.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said the inquest has been called to determine the cause of his death but that there is no suggestion whatever of foul play.

Reason for the inquest is to find if Mr. Cutmore's death was accidental or suicide as the payment of a double indemnity insurance policy will be affected by the cause as established by the coroner's verdict.

Modern Economics

VANCOUVER (CP)—H. B. Fitch, retired school principal, says: "The present generation is the most confused I've ever seen. How can I impress the economic facts of life on a grade 7 boy who could earn $45 a week by walking horses at the race track?"

50 ERUPTIONS

Mount Vesuvius on the Bay of Naples in Italy has a record of 50 eruptions.

Ask Discount In Stores On US Money

Find General Trend Is To Charge Rate of Discount

Discount on American money is still a major question in Peterborough.

At present there is a general trend by Peterborough retailers to charge the discount on American money. Chain department stores in the city have announced that they are now charging the discount and many of the smaller retailers who were formerly taking American money at par are following suit.

However there are still a very few who feel that their best policy is to continue to accept American money at par.

The city's Brewer Retail Store announced that they would be charging the discount, but the Liquor Control Board is still accepting it at par.

Some questions have arisen because of the slight discrepancy between the Bank of Canada exchange rates quoted daily in the Examiner and the rate charged at local banks. This difference may be as high as one per cent.

There are two reasons. The first is that the figure quoted by the Bank of Canada is what is known as a mid-rate. That is the average between the buying and the selling rate. For instance, banks selling U. S. funds to customers today would sell the funds at a discount of two and seven-eighths per cent. You would pay $97 and one-eighth in Canadian money and get $100 in U.S. funds.

If the bank were buying U. S. funds from you, it would pay you $96 and one-eighth in Canadian money for $100 in U.S. funds. The Bank of Canada quotes a figure half way between the two, three and three-eighths.

The second reason is that the Bank of Canada is dealing in large amounts of money and can afford to buy and sell at a lower rate than can individual branch banks dealing in small amounts.

There is also a difference in the exchange rate of cash and cheques. In both the buying and selling of cheques issued on American banks, the discount may be as high as one per cent lower than the rate on cash.

Landmark Starts To Come Down

Failure Predicted For Early Occupant Of City Hall

The brick walls that once enclosed the business on Simcoe Street of the grain dealer who later in life was knighted as Sir Joseph Flavelle, were falling this morning in the demolition of the old city hall.

Probably the last commercial occupant of the western section of the building which for years was the office of Peterborough Utilities Commission was Charles Brown, who bought and sold grain and carried on a feed and flour business.

At an earlier period, Joseph W. Flavelle carried on a similar business in those premises. It was a strategic location with a rear entrance and view of the market to which farmers used to bring wagon loads of grain for display and sale to the local cereal dealers.

START AT TOP

Employees of St. Clair House Wrecking Co., Toronto, started this morning to loosen the top layer of bricks in the walls of the western section of the building, above the lane leading to the market. That part of the old Mansart roof had already disappeared. The progress of the work of razing the municipal structure recalled a story told to the Examiner by the late Thomas H. Hooper. Few contemporaries of its principals have survived the years that have passed since the morning incident on the market which Mr. Hooper recollected.

"I have forgotten exactly the season of the year, but that morning there was a row of wagons of grain lined up on the market for sale by the farmers who had driven in from the country," Mr. Hooper said.

"I noticed that Mr. Flavelle was climbing up on the loads and taking samples of the grain, I suppose to examine the quality. He was then a comparatively young man, and was always well dressed. He was so careful about his appearance that he was bound to attract favorable notice, although his work took him on to the dusty bags of grain.

POPINJAY

"A countryman who evidently did not know Mr. Flavelle, was standing near me on the market square.

"'Look at that popinjay' he remarked to me. 'All dressed up like a banker and thinks he knows grain. He thinks too much about how he's dressed . . . Well, he'll never amount to much.'

"I just listened to the man's comment. There was nothing for me to say, although I had a considerable respect for the business ability of Mr. Flavelle as I had seen evidence of it.

"You know the rest of the story. He went on to Toronto later, made a lot of money, rose to the top in finance, and so on. When he was made Sir Joseph Flavelle I remembered the morning on the market when some farmer predicted a future of failure for him."

German Girl Starts New Life In Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—A girl who once gathered news from underground sources in East Germany is starting a new life in Edmonton as a typist.

Last summer 24-year-old Dorothea Beerwald had her first taste of North America when she was one of 18 German publishers, writers and editors chosen to study American journalism. Then last fall she read in an American magazine about Alberta being the "Texas of the north."

Miss Beerwald decided that Edmonton would be her new home.

In Berlin she was editor of the press service in the West Berlin High Commissioner's office. Her job basically was to gather news of East Germany from underground sources for the High Commissioner's office and West Berlin newspapers. She joined the service in 1945 after attending university in Berlin when the war was at its height.

Commenting on her 1951 tour she said:

"Everybody seems so calm. You have no fences around your houses. You can drop over for a chat with the neighbors without locking your doors. You are so patient in bus stations and train depots. . And you seem to believe us right from the start."

Of the Russian-controlled East Berlin press, Miss Beerwald said: "Every news item must be cleared through their 'Department of Information' for censorship. It was funny to see all seven East Berlin papers come out with the same headlines and the same story."

Often, she said, the Russians were caught off-guard by some development such as a Truman speech.

"For two days their papers would not even mention it," Miss Beerwald said. "Then, they all would come out with the same slanted story after the 'policy' had been decided."

In West Berlin the newsprint shortage was so severe the nine newspapers were cut to six or eight pages with no comics or women's pages.

Although the newsprint shortage is severe, West Berlin newspapers print serialized novels. Miss Beerwald said these serialized novels are considered as important as foreign news.

Factories Crippled By Steel Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—United States manufacturing plants are in desperate plight because of the steel strike, the Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, said today.

"And still nothing is being done to get production started again," the publication said.

Estimating steel production losses by the end of this week will total 13,200,000 tons, the Iron Age reported.

"By the end of this week the auto industry will be at least 70 per cent idle. . .Even if the steel strike were settled immediately the auto industry would be flat on its face for at least three or four weeks."

Industry sees no hope of early release from the steel vacuum, the trade weekly said, describing as "practically worthless" any emergency measures short of settling the strike.

Tight steel supply is now expected into the first part of 1953, said the trade weekly, since steel inventories and supply lines have been drained.

Steel-making operations this week were placed at 14.5 per cent of rated capacity, a gain of a point from last week.

Heat Closes Plant

Principal Paid $500 For Work On New School

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Robert E. Sutton, former principal of the Lakefield District High School will be paid the sum of $500 as a remuneration for his administrative work in connection with the new high school now being built in the village, it was decided at a recent meeting of the board, presided over by Chairman G. N. McIlmoyle. All members of the board were present. The motion was made by Erie Pearson and M. C. Tucker with Edward Everett of Chandos and Hugh R. Allen of Lakehurst, who replaced Gordon Hunt on the board, voting in favor and Chester Hamilton of Dummer undecided. Contrary to the motion was N. A. Moore and T. E. Rath of Lakefield.

A discussion of considerable length then took place regarding the engaging of a building superintendent to be in charge of overseeing operations at the new school, but a motion to have someone hired for the position, made by T. E. Rath and N. A. Moore of Lakefield was defeated.

J. E. Stevens, newly appointed principal, was present and discussed matters needing immediate attention. He also expressed his appreciation for the confidence placed in him by engaging him as principal.

At the request of the Minister of Education, the name for the school was decided upon and will be known as the Lakefield District High School.

Corrections in construction to the Apsley High School will be in charge of M. C. Tucker and E. Everett who will meet with the contractor and discuss the changes.

Roy Brown and Sherman Pearson were present and addressed the board with regards to transportation contracts for the term of 1952-53, with both contracts being renewed. Mr. Moore and Mr. Rath were authorized to sell the hay on the high school property to the highest bidder.

The finance committee recommended payment of general accounts totalling $167.66; transportation accounts as follows, all for the month of June, Roy Brown, Pearson, $517, J. G. Smith, $56, $247.90, Coyle's Garage, $260, S. M. Reddick, $225, and L. McColl, $45. Bradford-Horshal, Ltd., progress payment No. 5 of $15,237.10.

Kill Off Buddies For Girl's Love

TOKYO (Reuters)—An attractive Japanese waitress will come home from Okinawa soon for a reunion with 19 ardent lovers—ex-soldiers who killed off 12 of their buddies for her affections.

The romantic slaughter happened on the little Pacific island of Anatahan. The girl, Kazuko Higa, a waitress on Saipan Island, escaped to Anatahan with the 31 soldiers, when American troops invaded.

The girl and the soldiers remained on the little island five years after the war, unaware that Japan had surrendered.

And to pass the time, the soldiers fought one another for Kazuko's love.

Finally, Kazuko and her lovers discovered that the war was over. She went to work in a restaurant in Okinawa last year, and the soldiers went home.

A ship's captain said here he met Kazuko—now 35—recently and she told him of her plans to return home to see the men who killed for her love.

Plan Paratroop And Air Show For Civic Holiday

The first major Paratroop and Air Show ever to be held in the Peterborough district will be staged Civic holiday, August 4, under the sponsorship of the Peterborough Rotary club.

The show will take place at the Skyboro airport, on highway 7, three miles north of the city.

The main feature will be an assault on the airport by 84 paratroopers of the Royal Canadian Regiment stationed at Petawawa jumping from four C47 aircraft. After they land, the paratroopers will take the airport using blank ammunition in mortars and motor machine guns.

JUMP 800 FEET

The aircraft will make three passes over the field with 40 men jumping during the first two passes and the four dispatchers, who control the jumps, jumping on the third. The jumps will take place between 800 to 1,000 feet.

The onlookers will receive a running commentary explaining the manoeuvres by a special public address system. They will also hear the orders given to the paratroopers while they are making their jumps.

Approximately one half of the paratroopers taking part are veterans of the Korean War.

The Royal Canadian Regiment Band will also be in attendance and will present a band concert during the afternoon.

AID ROTARY WORK

The Rotary club is sponsoring this show both to raise money for their work with crippled children in the district and also as an educational project to make the people of the district more familiar with the latest developments in this type of warfare.

The jumps in this show will be carried out with the permission of the commanding officer of the Second Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Major Jack Peterson, formerly of Peterborough.

A similar show was staged at Hawkesbury a few weeks ago, which drew an attendance of approximately 10,000.

MR. AND MRS. CARL L. DOUGHTY, of Peterborough, the bride formerly Miss Wilma Darling, were married Saturday in Bethel United Church.—(Choate Studio Photo).

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM J. SULLIVAN were married Saturday at the Immaculate Conception Church. The bride was formerly Miss Patricia LaForce, Reg. N.—(Choate Studio Photo).

Wilma Darling Bride Of Carl Doughty

In Bethel United Church, Emily, on Saturday afternoon, Wilma Jessie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Darling, R.R. 2, Peterborough, became the bride of Carl Leslie Doughty, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Doughty of Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt in a setting of lovely summer flowers. Mrs. Pearl Ruth played the wedding music and Mrs. Lea Hobbs sang "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown with French lace bodice featuring a nylon yoke trimmed with seed pearls and long lily point sleeves. The skirt was of double net over satin. A tiara of pearls held her veil of embroidered net which fell to fingertip length and she carried a cascade of red roses and baby's breath.

Miss Hilda Darling as her sister's bridesmaid was frocked in pale blue organdy eyelet over blue taffeta, made on princess lines. The matching bolero had a mandarin collar and three quarter sleeves. Her hat was of matching blue mohair with lace edging and she carried a cascade of pink roses.

The groom was attended by his brother Mr. Ken Doughty and the ushers were Ronald Darling and Earl Williams.

The reception was held in the church Sunday school room. The bride's mother was receiving, dressed in pale blue mesh with a hat of white straw and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore mauve lace with a mauve straw hat and corsage of talisman roses.

For going away the bride chose a navy linen suit and navy and white accessories and she had a corsage of red roses. After honeymooning in northern Ontario the couple will live on Donegal St. in Peterborough.

Active Army May Recruit CWAC's In 1953

OTTAWA (CP)—The army may start recruiting women for its active force next year, it was learned today.

At present, the army is the only armed service without women members on active duty. The R. C. A. F. women's division has a strength of about 2,500 of an objective of 5,000 and the navy has 106 and plans to step-up recruiting this fall.

Large clothing orders have been placed by the Defence Production Department in recent weeks for women's clothing. They include 348,355 worth of raincoats for the Canadian Women's Army Corps which means about 15,000 coats at present prices.

The volume of orders for women's service garments lend support to other indications that the army is getting ready to call up some of the 800 women reservists now trained or being trained.

During the Second World War, 21,618 women served in the army, 17,030 in the R. C. A. F. women's division and 7,043 in the navy.

MARRIED 60 YEARS AGO today, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Melton, 445 Albertus Ave., are celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Melton are seen here in their garden which is Mr. Melton's special pride. The English born couple have tea here every afternoon the weather permits.—(Choate Studio Photo).

Mr., Mrs. George T. Melton Observe 60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Melton, 445 Albertus Ave., are celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary today.

The couple, both octogenarians, have spent 38 of their 60 years of married life in Peterborough and 22 in England.

They were married in Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Harrow Green, Leytonstone, Essex, England, July 9, 1892. The bridesmaid and best man, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bonniface are still living in Leytonstone.

Mr. Melton, who is 84, was born in Stratford, Essex, England, the second oldest of a family of four. He received his education in Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk and was an employee of the Old Great Eastern Railway before coming to Canada in 1913.

Arriving in Peterborough, he was one of the first employees of the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. He remained with that company, until his retirement 14 years ago and worked in the boiler room, dying, winding and shipping departments.

Mrs. Melton, who is 82, was born in Leytonstone, the former Jane Mary Ashwell, and was the youngest of a family of four. She attended Harrow Green School.

TIRELESS KNITTER

She has one sister living in England and the two have exchanged letters weekly since they parted in 1905.

Mrs. Melton, who enjoys fairly good health is an untiring knitter. At one time she averaged five pairs of socks a month and during the Second World War made about 30 afghans and sent them to England. Last Christmas she knitted 21 pairs of socks. In between pairs of socks she knits a sweater for variety.

Mr. Melton, very active and in excellent health, is an avid amateur gardiner with a particular fondness for dahlias and gladioli. His daughter, Mrs. J. H. Cridland, with whom he and Mrs. Melton now make their home, says that wherever her father has lived he has always left a beautiful garden.

When they first came to Peterborough the couple lived on Water St. From there they moved to 534 Park St. and for the past two years have lived with their daughter on Albertus Ave.

They joined All Saints' Anglican Church but later transferred to St. John's Anglican Church where Mrs. Melton was made a life member of the Women's Auxiliary for her many years of service.

AFTERNOON TEA

This couple have many friends. And when their daily afternoon tea time approaches quite often neighbors and friends drop in for a chat. As well as keeping this English afternoon tradition the Meltons have also always kept themselves well-informed about happenings in England by reading English periodicals.

Political discussions often crop up at what the family call, forums, and at these sessions it is reported there are sometimes slight tempests in the domestic teapot, for Mrs. Melton is pro-Churchill and Mr. Melton pro-Attlee.

Mr. and Mrs. Melton have two sons and two daughters: David G. H. Melton of Lennoxville, Quebec; Mrs. J. H. Cridland (Lillian) of Peterborough, George R. E. Melton, also of Peterborough, and Mrs. Carl Campbell (Winnifred) of Toronto; three grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Wedding anniversary celebrations today took the form of an afternoon and evening reception for Mr. and Mrs. Melton's friends. All of their family were with them except their son, David, who was unable to make the trip from Lennoxville because of business obligations.

Havelock W.I. Picnics At Trent River

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The annual picnic of the Havelock Women's Institute was held on Monday afternoon at "Bonnie Bank," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman at Trent River, when 33 persons attended. The president, Mrs. H. Pollock, presided for a short business session when plans were made for the society to visit Peterborough sometime in October for an inspection tour through several of the industries of the city. Another feature for the program this fall was a showing of a movie film covering the overseas tour of Miss Anna P. Lewis, of the Federated Women's Institutes, Toronto, the date set for this event to be announced later.

Mrs. Hugh Thompson was the winner of the spelling contest; Mrs. Charles Exton, of Toronto, won the dream house contest, and the prize for the person whose birthday was closest to the picnic date went to the president, Mrs. H. Pollock.

A very pleasant social time was spent in playing euchre, followed by a "pot luck" supper on the large screened verandah.

LIKE DEVONSHIRE CREAM

Devonshire cream with strawberries — there's a summer dish! Just as much a treat for your face in the summer or anytime is a creamy penetrating cleanser that takes off every smitch of lipstick and powder in a few strokes. Grand for a quick clean-up when you're hot and sticky!

Visitor Local Club To Conduct Soroptimist Meet

A visitor to the Peterborough Soroptimist Club this spring, Miss L. Grace Nicholls of Toronto, will preside at the biennial convention of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs of which she is president, being held July 20 through July 25 in Washington, D. C. It is expected 1,000 members and delegates from Soroptimist Clubs in Canada, United States, Alaska, Hawaii, Brazil and Cuba will attend. However, the local club will not be represented.

Convention theme is "Stand Up and Be Counted" and the keynote address will be given by Margaret Hickey, editor of public affairs of the Ladies' Home Journal. The director of the Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Frieda S. Miller, will be the principal speaker. Madam S. Tiers of Paris, France, president of the French National Union of Soroptimists will be a guest at the convention. Dame Caroline Haslett, a prominent Soroptimist of London, England, will give a message on the closing day.

Business sessions will be devoted to discussion of work done during the past two years; plans for the coming biennium; forums on laws, publicity, classifications, legislation and international relations, with a report of the work accomplished during the past four years on the program outlined at the last convention of the Soroptimist International Association, and reports on projects to be presented at the coming international meeting in Copenhagen, Denmark, this August.

Founded in California in 1921 by a group of civic-minded executive women, interested in being of service to their community, the organization has grown into the largest, though youngest, international association of classified executive women in the world. "Soroptimist" is a coined word from the two Latin words "soro" meaning "sister" and "optima" meaning "the best and highest good" which translates into "The best for women," the slogan of all clubs. A demonstration has been made by Peterborough club in fostering the Golden Mile Club which has a growing membership of the city's older women.

Hay-Baird Rites

A wedding of interest in Peterborough took place at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 7, in Glebe Road United Church, Toronto, when Margaret Ellen Baird of Toronto, daughter of Mrs. James Baird and the late James Baird, of Peterborough, became the bride of William Hubert Hay of Toronto, son of Mrs. Peter Hay and the late Peter Hay of Durham, Ontario. The Rev. R. Harold Parr officiated and Mrs. F. J. Foster was at the organ. Mr. L. Clark sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly".

Given in marriage by her brother, James Baird of Peterborough, the bride wore an ankle length gown of ice blue taffeta with bouffant nylon net overskirts. The fitted nylon lace jacked featured a Peter Pan collar and tiny buttons. Her hat was of matching nylon lace and she wore elbow length net mittens. The bridal bouquet was of red roses and white sweet peas. Mrs. James Baird, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor in a street length gown of powder blue crepe with lace bodice and jacket, small white hat and gloves. She carried a nosegay of pink roses. Mr. Gordon Mercer of Toronto was groomsman. Ushers were Mr. George Baird, of Peterborough, brother of the bride, and Mr. Arthur Adlam of Durham.

A reception followed in the church parlors, the bride's mother receiving in a gown of grey and rose figured crepe with black accessories and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother in navy and white sheer with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations. For the honeymoon in New York the bride travelled in a grey worsted suit with black and white accessories and corsage of red carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Hay are residing in Toronto.

Don't Run

Running for a train or bus doesn't do the heart any good, especially for those who are overweight and over forty. Extra pounds are a burden on the heart and unusual exertion may prove too strenuous. Leave running activities to the healthy teenager—the over-forties should take it more easily.

Tan Wisely

The traditional summer coat of tan, which appeals to most people, may cause trouble if, in acquiring it, the body is exposed to too much strong sunshine. In rural areas, men working on a farm should not do their outdoor work without wearing a shirt and head covering during the hotter hours of the day.

MR. ERNEST FOUND, formerly of 166 Prince St., and Miss Evelyn McFaul, formerly of 61 James St., were married quietly on Tuesday afternoon by the Rev. Charles G. Boyd at St. Paul's manse. They were attended by the groom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Found. The bride wore navy with pink accessories and a corsage of red roses. The couple will live in St. Catharines after a short honeymoon in Toronto and Niagara Falls.—(Parks Studio Photo).

DOROTHY DIX

Tale Bearing Can Cause Serious Harm

DEAR MISS DIX: I cannot agree with your often-stated opinion that interested friends should not tell a wife of her husband's philandering. You don't say enough about the havoc caused by the "other woman," and I don't see how you can expect a friend to stand by and see someone wreck a happy marriage. In my 60 years, I have seen five different homes ruined by home-wreckers, often posing as the wife's friends. When we see these wicked women carrying on their nefarious work, why shouldn't we tell the wronged wife?

Right now I know of a home in town that is slowly on its way to ruin. The wife is an exceptionally lovely person with three children. A few years ago some gossip told her that her husband was connected with a girl in trouble, and she left him. She came back, and now the husband is involved with a young wife who has recently moved into our neighborhood. The newcomer is friendly with my friend, who, of course, knows nothing of the affair going on between the neighbor and her own husband. What possible advantage can there be in keeping my young friend in the dark concerning her husband's activities?

B. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: No universal problem can be solved with a pat answer that will fit all cases. Never have I had the presumption a claim it does; but one solution very often will be best in the most number of instances. Also remember that, in a situation involving wrongdoing, no possible solution can wipe out, or even mitigate, the sin without the sinner himself repenting and atoning.

SHE PROBABLY KNOWS

It should be obvious, therefore, that when as serious a transgression as adultery is involved, the question of whether or not the wife is informed, or by whom, becomes secondary to the guilt. In the vast majority of cases, a philandering husband errs once. You may be sure that if he is a chronic offender the wife knows all about it, though pride may keep her from admitting her knowledge.

If the one-time philanderer realizes the error of his ways—as he usually does in short time—his wife is better left in blissful ignorance. Knowing that he has strayed from the straight and narrow path once, she is bound to suspect every aberration from then on. If he comes home later than usual from the office, is called out of town on business visits his parents o. engages in any activity that takes him away from home, even for a few hours, she will be suspicious. Is it fair to jeopardize the future harmony of her home simply to satisfy the desire of gossiping neighbors to carry bad news? And make no mistake about it! While your own intentions may be purely friendly and helpful, most bad news is carried by people whose only purpose—though of course they will never admit it—is to cause trouble and dissension. Their personal interest is nil; their desire to create trouble tremendous.

Since the young wife you mention has already had cause to leave her husband because of infidelity, she certainly is not so blind as to be oblivious to the present circumstances. Her apparent ignorance springs, probably, from a desire to hold a home together for her children, or in hopes that the husband will repent and come back as he did before. If it ever becomes absolutely necessary for bad news to be carried home to an unwitting wife, such is the prerogative of a relative. Never could I put such a dangerous weapon into the hand of a friend or neighbor, no matter how devoted she may be to the wronged wife.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: At my place of employment I have met a wonderful man of charm and personality. We have been working together for two years, but in the past ten months our association has grown to more than that of fellow workers. We are both married. I like my job too much to quit, and am making an exceptionally fine salary. PAULA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: As you are bound to know, there is but one answer I can possibly give you. This romance must be terminated if you are to avoid the tragedy of breaking up two homes and finding great unhappiness for yourselves. As a competent business woman, you should have sense enough, and conscience enough, to realize the terrible consequences of extra-marital love affairs. No specious arguments for a "great love" can cover the fact that you are breaking one of God's Commandments and cannot escape the consequences if you encourage this affair to continue. At any cost, end it now!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going steady with a young man for about five years, during which time he joined the Air Force. We corresponded until two months ago, when his letters ceased. Also, he has had two leaves and has not been in touch with me at all. Now I have met another nice young man and wonder if I should go out with him. S. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: By all means, do so. Your Air Force friend seems to have let you down, thereby cancelling out any obligation you may feel toward him.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Says No More Hard Liquor To Be Served

A buddy of a buddy of mine drove up to our house after having done her marketing early and caught me drinking my third cup of coffee.

I handed her a cup. She was pleased to find me alone, and immediately blurted out the reason for her surprise call. She had made a momentous decision. No more liquor was going to be served in their home.

She knew my stand on this controversial subject and she knew the reason for it. So when she made this declaration of decision I did not ask why. I merely said: "How do you plan to get around it?" (I know the crowd they congregate with.) "That's where you come in. I want to learn to make marvellous fruit drinks and elegant iced coffee and tinkling and clear iced tea and things like that and be famous for them."

Being all kinds of a reformer at heart, with alacrity I brought her back to my desk and we started going through my beverage files. I sent her home loaded with books and clippings.

All of that was two weeks ago. Last night I met her in our mutual friend's home. All she had a chance to say to me was "That iced coffee is tremendous." But the light in her eyes and the breadth of her smile revealed her success.

EMEM'S ICED COFFEE

(I'll confess I've filched from many iced coffee makers until I've perfected this beverage to my satisfaction).

I use a drip. Eight tablespoons pulverized coffee to the four-cup size drip. (Pulverized coffee is not powdered coffee. It is merely coffee beans ground as finely as possible on a big grinder—it makes your coffee stretch half as far again). This makes very strong coffee, which is what you need for iced coffee. Fill very tall glasses full of ice. If you use sugar put it in now. Pour directly over the ice the hot coffee. Don't allow the stream of coffee to strike the side of the glass. Nearly fill the glass. If you use sugar stir it now with glass sipping straw. Now comes the tricky part if you use cream and like tricks. Holding a shallow spoon full of very rich cream over the surface of the coffee, tip it slightly and slowly. It will form a thick layer on top of the coffee if you do this skilfully. In a certain hotel that many of you know one waiter makes a specialty of this little ceremony. When you plunge your straw through the cream it fills first with cream then with icy coffee and your first sip is delicious. Try it gals.

EMEM'S ICED TEA

Following same routine as for iced coffee—using double strength 4-minute brewed tea, glasses full of ice, sugar first if used, then plenty of lemon juice—I like 2 tablespoons for each very tall glass. When all of this is in, pour over the ice the strong hot tea. The delicate flavor of properly brewed hot tea is retained—something you can never recapture if you make tea and chill it without ice in the refrigerator. A sprig of mint is a smart addition if you have it in the garden. Alas Pete dug mine up in a wild spurt of spading this spring.

In tomorrow's column see the recipe for making up lemon syrup to have on hand for the thirsty members of your family.

RASPBERRY SHRUB

In a saucepan mix together and cook for 10 minutes 3 cup washed raspberries, 1½ cups sugar and 2 cups water. Strain and chill. Add 1 cup lemon juice and 2 quarts ice water. (Or instead of 2 quarts water add 1 quart and 1 or 2 trays of ice cubes—the number of ice cubes depending on the size of your trays).

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

What's Right?

You make a remark that you realize afterward was just plain rude—and you are sorry for it.

WRONG: Try to forget it, and hope the person you said it to will also.

RIGHT: Apologize for it.

✧ ✧ ✧

You have taken an over-night trip by train and are wondering how much to tip the porter.

WRONG: Tip him the same as you would for a day trip.

RIGHT: Tip him about twice what you would for a day trip.

✧ ✧ ✧

You answer the telephone and it is for another member of your family.

WRONG: Make no reply to the person on the telephone but simply yell out: "Jimmy, it's for you."

RIGHT: Say: "Just a moment, please" or "I'll call him" and go away from the telephone and tell the person he is wanted, instead of shouting for him.
